A SURPRISING FIND

Collections of Half a Century Result in Extraordinary Accumulation Beneath a Cashier's Desk.

Mr. Wright, the National Cash Register Co.'s agent in Winnipeg, has in his possession an old drawer, which was taken from a general store in Kingston, Ontario, where it has been in use for fifty years. Through all changes of system from the establishment of the store, when the proprietor only had access to this cash-drawer, and when all the clerks used it, and during the period it was under the supervision of an individual cashier, the drawer was never changed, occupying a position beneath a cash desk. In the box-like arrangement where the cashier sat there was a false floor about six inches high, which did not cover the main floor entirely. When the proprietor tore out the cashier's desk recently, an assistant gathered up the refuse to throw out into the lane, when, at the suggesion of Mr. Wright, it was sifted.

After all the dirt had been carefully cleared away, one hundred and eighty-six dollars in small gold and silver coins of all denominations, and dilapidated bills, were rescued from this refuse. The proprietor's surprise can be imagined, and yet he said he had never missed the money, and never knew it was gone! The drawer itself is so badly carved and worn by long service, that one might wonder how it now holds together.

HAMILTON, ONT.

THE INVESTIGATION OF THE GROCERS' GUILD

IN THE COURTS AT HAMILTON

The delayed preliminary investigation into the charge of conspiracy laid at Hamilton against the officers of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild was begun before Magistrate Jelfs of that city on Monday. After three and a half hours' work the proceedings were adjourned for four weeks. Only one witness was called, Mr. J. Stanley Cook, secretary of the Dominion Guild, and he was on the stand during the entire hearing, but most of the time was devoted by the prosecuting attorney, Mr. S. F. Washington, K.C., to reading from the by-laws, minutes and letter books of the guild.

Nothing sensational or even unusually interesting was brought out. Mr. Washington confessed himself ill prepared, having received the books and papers in the case only on Saturday.

The Charge as Laid.

The indictment is as follows: "That Henry C. Beckett (Hamilton), George E. Bristol (Hamilton), John I. Davidson (Toronto), Thomas B. Escott (London), W. G. Craig (Kingston), Joseph F. Eby (Toronto), Thomas Kinnear (Toronto), stand charged that they did in the years 1898 to 1905, in the city of Hamilton, unlawfully conspire, combine, agree and arrange the one with the other, and others of them and with"—then follow the names of all the members of the guild in Canada—"and with the several members during the years aforesaid, of such of the parties aforesaid, as are firms or partnerships; and with the officers and directors during the years aforesaid, of such as are corporations, and with the several officers and members of committees of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, and of each of the provincial guilds during the years aforesaid and other persons, firms and corporations at present unknown, to unduly limit the facilities for producing, manufacturing, supplying and dealing in sugar, tobacco, starch, canned goods, salt and cereals, being articles and commodities which are the subject of trade and commerce, and to restrain and injure trade and commerce in relation to such articles and commodities, and to unduly prevent, limit and lessen the manufacture and production of such articles and commodities; and to unreasonably enhance the price of such articles and commodities; and to unduly prevent and lessen competition in the production, manufacture, purchase, barter, sale and supply of such articles and commodities, against the form of the statute in such case made and provided and against the peace of our Lord the King."

What the Guild Says.

Briefly, what the members of the guild say is: "Our organization is for buying, not selling. We have nothing to do with prices. What we say to the manufacturers is 'If you sell to retailers as to wholesalers we cannot continue to do business, therefore if you sell to retailers, do so at the price they would have to pay a wholesaler, otherwise we cannot continue being distributing agents for your goods.'"

Mr. John G. Farmer assisted Mr. Washington. Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., Mr. Edmund Bristol, M.P., Toronto; Mr. E. H. Ambrose and Mr. Wm. Lees, Hamilton, appeared for the accused.

Throughout the sitting it was quite evident that Mr. Washington was merely feeling his way, and the output was so unexciting that one Hamilton wholesaler slept most of the time he was in court.

"This investigation differs from others in this—that we are prepared to do all we can to facilitate it and furnish readily all the books and papers required," said Mr. Johnston.

E. F. B. Johnston's Statement.

When the case was called the accused were not formally arraigned and Mr. Johnston waived the reading of the indictment. But Mr. Johnston made the following statement:

"We come here to answer as far as we possibly can the very wide and sweeping charges laid against us. We of course say we are not guilty of the violation of any act of parliament or any condition of the criminal code or any part of the common law. I might just state briefly the position we occupy. Our evidence will be directed towards this end: to show that in the association there is no such thing as an interference with the sale of goods. It is a buying institution. There is no rake off as we had in the plumbers' cases. There is no pooling. We simply agree in regard to buying and buying alone, and therein we differ from all other so-called combines that have appeared before the Canadian courts.

"The whole point is that we have agreements with certain manufacturers and we say we will buy certain articles from you at certain list prices. The prices will be fixed by you. We do this on condition that you do not sell to retailers as you will to us, because if you do we must go out of business. You may sell to them, of course, but if you do you cannot look upon us as your distributing agents or as your customers. I take the ground that we are entitled to take the position we have taken. We do not interfere with your selling to anybody, but if you sell to retailers you deprive us of that trade. We hold that our position is thoroughly good in law."

Few More for Company.

Mr. Washington stated that he might want to add one or two names to those already enumerated in the indictment.

"We'll be glad to have them for company," agreed Mr. Johnston.

Mr. Washington said he thought one or two tobacco manufacturers should go in. He then called Mr. Cook.

Mr. Cook is assistant secretary of the Montreal Board of Trade, and the guild seemed to be a sort of sideline with him. He furnished the prosecuting attorney with very little information during his four hours on the stand, and he did not seem to be keeping anything back either. The Dominion Guild is composed of the provincial guilds, in whose hands are the making and enforcing of agreements. Mr. Cook has been the Dominion secretary since 1902, prior to which time no minutes were kept. His predecessor was Mr. J. Edgar Wills, former secretary of the Toronto Board of Trade.

The Guild's Bible.

Mr. Washington held up a small leather-bound book inscribed on the front "Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild."

"You produced this book on your subpoena," said he. "What do you call it?"

"The Dominion Guild Binder," replied Mr. Cook. The book comprised circulars issued by the guild to members and was made for adding more.

"Do you happen to know when this guild was first formed?" asked the attorney.

"I have no idea."

"Or who was the first president?"

The witness cudgeled his memory in vain.

"When you took charge?" pursued the lawyer.

Mr. Laporte."

Mr. Washington asked the witness to identify a Dominion Guild letter book produced. It had been used from Dec. 1897 to May 1899.

Guild's By-laws.

Reverting again to the binder, the first pamphlet in which was a copy of the guild by-laws dated January 22, 1903, Mr. Washington asked:

"Have you any by-laws prior to these?"

"Not that I know of."

Mr. Washington read the first clause as follows:

"Membership.

"All members in good standing on the 31st Dec., 1902, of the following local guilds, to wit:

"British Columbia Wholesale Grocers' Exchange.

"Winnipeg Wholesale Grocers' Association (including Rat Portage).

"London Wholesale Grocers' Guild (including Sarnia and Windsor).

"Hamilton Wholesale Grocers' Guild (including Brantford, Berlin, St. Catherines, Guelph).

"Toronto Wholesale Grocers' Guild (including Owen Sound and Collingwood).

"Kingston Wholesale Grocers' Association (Ottawa, Belleville, Napanee, Peterboro', Brockville).

"Montreal Wholesale Grocers' Guild.

"Quebec Wholesale Grocers' Guild.

"Maritime Province Wholesale Grocers' Guild (including the following branches: Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island), are hereby declared to be members of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild."

List of all the Members.

"Have you a list of all the members of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild?" asked the attorney.

"They are in circular No. 10 in the binder."

"If we want to find out the members who have been in this guild since its inception we will have to look elsewhere?"

"Have no idea who they were."

The officers, it was explained, were Lt.-Col. John I. Davidson, president, and a number of vice, one appointed by each provincial guild. Mr. H. C. Beckett is vice-president for Ontario.

"There are some other officers of the Ontario Guild?" continued Mr. Washington.

Some Things He Didn't Know.

Mr. Cook was not familiar with the provincial organizations.

"You've heard of a price committee?"

The witness admitted he had.

Mr. Cook's apparent lack of familiarity with the details of guild organization and work caused Mr. Washington to read the clause relating to the duties of secretary, but he could not ruffle the equanimity of his witness, who pointed out that he had never been associated with the wholesale trade and was assistant secretary of the Montreal Board of Trde.

"When you took office did the former secretary pass on his documents and papers to you?" asked the Crown's questioner.

"Not a document," returned the witness.

Mr. Johnston—"There were none kept."

"All you know about it are papers in existence since what date?" Mr. Washington continued.

"The close of 1901."

"Have you brought with you all papers since that date?"

"They have been submitted to you."

"The minutes have not been submitted to me."

"They are printed in that book," pointing to the "binder."

Executives That Did Not Arrive.

Mr. Washington read the clauses of the by-laws providing for the appointment of provincial executive committees but Mr. Cook knew nothing about them, and it developed that that portion of the constitution had not been acted upon and that the duties assigned to the executive had been assigned to the subsequently organized price committees.

The principal duties of these stillborn executives were:

"To officially confer with manufacturers on matters concerning the welfare of the trade.

"To arrange with manufacturers of staple lines that no sales shall be made by them to the retail trade at better prices or on better terms than the list prices, and that all such sales shall be charged through the wholesale trade as the proper channel of distribution.

"To arrange that the list prices shall hereafter be known as the prices to be sold at by all wholesalers to the retail trade.

"To arrange that manufacturers and other dealers observe the list prices as fixed by the manufacturers in transactions with the retail trade."

A form of agreement to be signed by manufacturers binding themselves to carry out these ideas was included in the by-laws, and it was stated that copies when signed should be forwarded to the Dominion Guild secretary. Mr. Washington was surprised when Mr. Cook averred he had never received any, but the failure to appoint executives accounted for it.

For New Comers.

Mr. Washington read also these two clauses of the by-laws as follows:

"(20) In cases where new lines of proprietory goods are offered to the trade, each member of the guild agrees to require the seller to enter into an agreement or express a willingness to enter into an agreement guaranteeing the members of the guild a profit, and where such willingness is expressed on the part of the seller the agreement with such seller shall be executed as soon as possible and duly advised to all parties interested.

"(21) Each member of the guild agrees to recommend any seller of new proprietory goods to the members of the executive committee of the province in which such member does business, with a view to protecting the interests of the trade and increasing the business in respect thereof."

Continuing, Mr. Washington read:

Sharing Sugar Expenses.

"(31) Special provincial assessments shall be made from time to time to meet the expenses incidental to carrying on the sugar selling system, also to meet expenses that may hereafter be incurred in carrying out the sales of other articles under systems that may from time to time be adopted by the Dominion or provincial guilds.

"(32) The sugar equalized rates shall be compiled as occasion requires by a duly appointed official of each provincial guild, who shall be paid such annual sum as will reasonably reimburse him for the time, labor and expense connected therewith in preparing the same and promptly advising the trade."

Two Forms of Application.

Mr. Washington then read the two forms of application for membership, one to be used "when applicant is known to be strictly wholesale," the other "when applicant is reported not to be strictly wholesale." They were the same with the exception of the following extra clause in the latter:

"In making the application, beg to state that our business is being carried on as strictly wholesale house and not co-operative concern whose members or stockholders are made up of retail merchants; we are not in any way connected directly or indirectly with any plan or agreement by which our stockholders are to receive dividends on the basis of their purchases."

The membership fee was $250, divided $50 to the Dominion Guild, $150 to the provincial, and $50 to the local.

"Do you as a matter of fact admit co-operative concerns?" Mr. Washington asked the secretary.

"I cannot swear to the standing of any individual firm on the list." Mr. Cook replied.

Board of Trade Man.

"What is your business?" the lawyer asked, a little tartly.

"I am assistant secretary of the Montreal Board of Trade."

"You cannot tell then as a matter of fact whether you allowed co-operative concerns to join the association?"

"The form of application indicates the guild's attitude."

"Did you take in jobbers?"

"I really cannot say."

"Would the jobber be strictly wholesale?"

"Not if he did a retail business."

"Do you know the difference between a wholesaler and a jobber?"

"No. I do not."

Mr. Washington went on to the minutes of the annual meeting held in January, 1903, at which all of the accused were present, and read:

Outsiders Getting Benefit.

"A number of firms outside the guild being at present in enjoyment of the benefits of the sugar arrangement without sharing in the cost, the following resolution was introduced in order to prevent the continuance of this state of affairs:

"Moved by Mr. Carter, seconded by Mr. Blain, and carried:

"'That wholesale grocers using the equalized rate books and not subscribing towards the expenses of the guild, be charged the sum of $5 for each book.'"

Mr. Washington read on about the appointment of a committee, Messrs. Beckett, Cross, Kinnear, Geoffrion and Turner, to see the canners about "the unsatisfactory nature of the contract on which canners sell their goods to the trade," and the appointment of Messrs. Beckett, Blain, Carter, Cross and Turner, a committee to make an arrangemtnt with the salt manufacturers "which would enable the trade to secure a fair profit."

It was left with the executive of each province, so the minutes stated, to take up the question of an arrangement on Tuckett's tobacco and to see the starch and gloss manufacturers.

Successful With Salt Men.

"It is apparent that your committee was successful with the salt manufacturers," said Mr. Washington as he turned to the next circular, No. 2, which was the agreement signed "between Messrs. R. & J. Ransford, Clinton, the Canadian Salt Co., Windsor, and the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild."

The minutes of the 1904 meeting which Mr. Washington proceeded to disclose related that the committee appointed the year before to effect an arrangement with the salt manufacturers had been successful in securing an agreement for Ontario and it was working well.

These agreements with manufacturers are in intent the same for all. Small ribbon bound volumes containing 21 of them were in the hands of the lawyers, and a volume was put in as evidence. The agreements were with the following manufacturers: Starch, Brantford Starch Works, St. Lawrence Starch Co., Edwardsburg Starch Co., Imperial Starch Co.; syrups, Edwardsburg Starch Co., St. Lawrence Starch Co., Imperial Starch Co., C. E. Colson & Son, Montreal agents for Crosse & Blackwell; Canadian Canners, Ltd., separate agreement with each of the following guilds: Ontario, Quebec, Winnipeg, Maritime, British Columbia; Holbrooks, Ltd, Birmingham; Pacific Selling Co., New York; Bates Mfg. Co., Toronto, regarding mince meat, cheese and Worcester sauce; Neilson, Robinson Chemical Co., Napanee, regarding Beta pie filling; Ontario Sugar Co.; John W. Bickle & Greening, regarding King Oscar sardines.

A Sample Agreement.

To each agreement was attached a list of the wholesale grocers to be sold to under the agreement. The first, between the Brantford Starch Co. and the price committee of the Ontario and Quebec guilds was as follows:

Whereas after consulting with the representatives of the Wholesale Grocers' Guilds for Ontario and Quebec and it appearing to us reasonable and necessary as a protection to ourselves and the wholesale grocery trade and with a view to securing the cordial support of the wholesale grocers and thereby extending our trade.

Now this agreement witnesseth:

1st. That our list prices on lines of grocery starches as manufactured by us for sale to the retail trade shall hereafter be known as the prices at which our goods are to be, and shall be, sold at by ourselves and the wholesale dealers to the retail trade. The same conditions shall apply to any private brands which might be put up for or sold by any house on list "B."

Not to Retail Trade.

2nd. That we will not sell nor will we permit any of our salesmen or representatives to sell or offer to sell to the retail trade at lower prices or on better terms of time and cost discount than those set forth in this agreement.

3rd. That on all orders taken by us or through our representatives from the retail trade we agree to fill all such orders through the wholesale trade.

4th. That we will allow the trade discounts as set forth in paragraphs 6 and 7 to such wholesale firms as are on list "B" attached hereto and hereby agree not to sell at better than list prices any firm or firms claiming to be strictly wholesale unless such firm's name is on the list attached hereto or afterwards added by agreement with the price committee of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild or Quebec Wholesale Grocers' Guild.

Against Co-operatives.

5th. That we will not sell at better than list prices any buying clubs, or retail co-operative buying organizations or any brokerage or other combinations or any firm claiming to be strictly wholesale unless such firm's name is on the list attached hereto or afterwards added by notice from the price committee of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild or Quebec Wholesale Grocers' Guild except as provided for under a special agreement with the price committee.

6th. That subject to the conditions as herein set forth our terms on grocery starches to the wholesale trade as per list "B" will be list prices with a trade discount of:

Wholesale Men's Declaration.

8th. We the undersigned wholesale grocers, having complied with the terms of agreement "A", No. 6, dated the twenty-sixth day January one thousand nine hundred and five, between the starch manufacturers and the price committee of Ontario and Quebec Wholesale Grocers' Guilds, declare as follows:

"We have not sold, nor have we permitted our travelers or salesmen to sell, in the Province of Ontario or Quebec starches to the retail trade at less than current list prices (as issued by the said manufacturers from time to time) or on better terms of time and cash discount than 30 days or 1 per cent. for cash in 10 days. We have not ourselves, nor have we permitted our travellers or salesmen to accept or agree to accept from the manufacturers, parties to this agreement, any inducement in the form of extra discounts, bonuses of free goods or in any other unprovided for way, beyond the trade discounts as set forth in clauses 6 and 7 of said agreement. We have not permitted our salesmen directly or indirectly to take any part in the making up of orders between two or more retailers for direct shipment freight paid, in 10 box lots, nor have we offered or permitted our salesmen to offer to the retail trade any inducements in form of free goods, or other bonuses that would indirectly be equal to a concession in price to the retailer.

"And we are entitled in the terms of said agreement to the discounts agreed upon for quarter ending ——.

Wholesale Grocer."

Special Label Goods.

9th. The undersigned hereby agree that no order for special label goods shall be accepted unless for a bona fide order for one hundred (100) cases or over. Such special label to be provided or paid for by the buyer.

10th. That in the event of it being satisfactorily established to the standing committee of the Dominion Wholesalers' Guild that any wholesale buyer on list "B" attached hereto has in any way violated the selling prices and terms to the retail trade by the giving of rebates, extra cash or trade discounts, extra time without interest or in any other underhand or unprovided for way, or has sold at less than list prices on better terms of time and cash discount to any firm, claiming to be strictly wholesale but not on the list attached hereto, and not direct buyers of starches, we the undersigned agree that upon receiving notice of same from the president of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild, or president of the Quebec Wholesalers' Guild, to cancel all rebates to which such firm would otherwise be entitled for the quarter ending the period in which such violation occurred and also agree not to sell such firm in future except at list prices and no trade discount allowed until such firm subscribes to an agreement to carry out the terms of purchase and sale as set forth in this agreement.

11th. This agreement to take effect on the twenty-sixth day of January, one thousand nine hundred and five.

Cutting on Tobacco and Sugar.

Continuing with the 1904 minutes, Mr. Washington read that the first item of new business was the recommendation of the Montreal association that a committee be formed to report on the question of cutting of prices on tobacco and sugar. The committee was appointed and reported the form of an agreement to be subscribed to by "all wholesale grocers or direct buyers from the manufacturers."

The preamble runs, "as occasional complaints have been made against some firms or the representatives thereof, of violating the selling agreements on sugar, tobacco and other lines, the selling prices of which are fixed by the manufacturers."

Outline of an Agreement.

The agreement opens with the significant undertaking to draw the attention of all salesmen to it and not to plead lack of knowledge as justification for a breach. Then follows a positive undertaking to adhere to the rules of the equalized rate book for sugar and all agreements with manufacturers. Further clauses provide for the detection of breaches, by employing an inspector if necessary and the subscriber undertakes to show his books if called upon and to share the expense. The penalty for violation of the "sugar agreement" is forfeiture of two months' rebate, and for a breach of the "tobacco and other agreements" either a forfeiture of all rebates or the refusal of the manufacturer to supply goods.

Percentage in the Guild.

"Does your guild include all wholesalers?" Mr. Washington asked the witness.

"Not all."

"What per cent?"

"In Montreal there are thirteen members and three non-members."

"What per cent. in the Dominion?"

"I don't know."

Origin of the Price Committee.

Then the genesis of the price committee was set forth and Mr. Washington read from the 1904 minutes:

"Relations between manufacturers and wholesalers.—On recommendation of the executive of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild, Mr. T. B. Escott, of London, submitted to the meeting the question of sales by manufacturers or their agents (brokers), to both wholesalers and retailers at the same price—insufficient trade discount allowed the wholesale trade on many lines now handled and on new lines being introduced by manufacturers from time to time—also, the sale by manufacturers at wholesale prices to retail co-operative buying concerns.

"Mr. Escott, on behalf of the executive of the Ontario Guild, instanced many of the evils that now exist—and directed attention to the work that had already been done in communicating with several hundred manufacturers and brokers (manufacturers' agents) requesting from them a statement as to their position between wholesaler and retailer, resulting as follows:

Grocers Knew Better.

"Number of manufacturers who claim to sell to the wholesale trade only—one hundred and sixteen.

"(Of the above one hundred and sixteen who claim to sell to wholesalers only, at least thirty per cent. are known by the trade to sell direct to the retailer at wholesale prices).

"Number of manufacturers who acknowledge selling both wholesaler and retailer at the same price—fifty-nine.

"Number of manufacturers who acknowledge selling both wholesaler and retailer, but who claim to protect the wholesaler by allowing a trade discount to wholesalers only—twelve.

"Number of brokers who sell to wholesalers only—thirty-two.

"(Of the above some are known to canvass and solicit trade from retailers at wholesale prices).

"Number of brokers who acknowledge selling both wholesaler and retailer at the same price—six.

"Number of brokers who claim to sell wholesalers at one price and retailers at an advance—four.

"Mr. Escott reported that while about 400 letters were sent out to manufacturers and their agents, less than 60 per cent. replied.

This Was a Surprise.

The above information came in the nature of a surprise to the meeting, members present expressing appreciation of the work done by the executive of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild, and instancing cases of well known manufacturers making no distinction whatever between their prices to the retail trade in small quantities and their prices to the wholesaler in larger quantities.

More Measures Taken.

"The meeting was unanimous in the opinion that prompt measures should be taken to protect the interests of the wholesale trade, and a resolution was passed that a committee composed of Messrs. the Hon. Richard Turner, Quebec; Kenneth MacKenzie, Winnipeg; T. B. Escott, London; C. H. Peters, St. John; Mortimer Smith, Halifax, be asked to report on same."

This committee presented a long report, briefly, as follows:

It is a common practice of manufacturers to allow wholesalers a trade discount of 10 per cent. and allowing same to retailers.

The average cost of doing business is 7 1-2 per cent. On at least 50 per cent. of a grocer's turnover the profit is not more than 5 per cent. (instance sugar, tobacco, produce). Therefore the trade discount of 10 per cent. on proprietory lines will not cover the cost of selling.

The minimum wholesale discounts on all proprietary lines should not be less than 15 per cent., with a cash discount of 3 per cent.

Should be Agreements.

Manufacturers and brokers should be requested to sign an agreement that they will allow wholesale trade discounts only to firms named by the Dominion Guild.

Manufacturers who desire to canvas the retail trade themselves to more thoroughly introduce their goods, should place all orders through the wholesale trade, the discount thereon to be 2 1-2 per cent. less than ordinary.

Members of the guild should refuse to handle the goods of manufacturers who continue to sell to retailers at the same price as to wholesalers.

Plan of Campaign.

A plan of r the carrying out of these proposals was the appointment for each province of a price committee with these duties: (1) To arrange with manufacturers the trade discounts to be allowed. (2) To supply manufacturers with a list of the recognized wholesale firms as supplied by the secretary of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild. (3) To secure from manufacturers a signed agreement protecting the wholesale trade.

Where the price committee concluded an arrangement with a manufacturer of a new line, they were to give him a card of introduction to the trade.

The trade should enter into an agreement not to purchase any new lines of proprietary goods unless such introduction was presented.

Forms of agreements, one for manufacturers, one for members of the guild to insure the carrying out of the scheme, were submitted.

This report was unanimously adopted.

Promised a Search.

Mr. Washington wanted a list of the manufacturers who had signed the agreements. All he could get was the booklet of agreements referred to above. He could not understand why there was no agreement regarding sugar or tobacco, so much having been said and done about them at the annual meetings. Mr. Washington promised to have a search made and furnish everything that could be found.

"Then just to finish up the sugar question," Mr. Washington read a report on sugar sent out on March 4, 1905, by Mr. H. C. Beckett, telling about the difficulties with the Ontario Sugar Co. who were anxious to have the wholesalers handle their output, and had had a good deal of trouble because of the prejudice of the consumer against beet sugar and their own refusal to sell below Montreal refiners' prices. The Ontario Co. agreed to take a lower price, and things were arranged. The letter included a resolution passed at the 1905 Guild annual meeting:

Sugar Resolution.

"Resolved that the members of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild make it a condition with all refiners that their sugar can only be sold through the members of each provincial guild, provided that each refinery is willing to sell their sugar through guild members in any province where they desire to have their sugar sold.

"It shall also be considered a violation of the sugar agreement for any member of the guild, or any direct buyer of sugar to sell any refined sugar not listed by the properly appointed

SOME TYPICAL CANADIAN STORES

The illustration we produce this week is of a store of one of the pioneer merchants of the Great West. It is a surprise to the whole world, the rate at which the great Northwest has gone ahead. In a few years, practically, what was considered a great wilderness has been transformed into a vast domain of civilization.

It is only, therefore, right and proper to give credit where chedit is due, and an eastern citizen who has left his home and friends to pioneer such a country is worth more than mere passing mention.

R. T. Goodfellow, of Prince Albert, Sask., who is a native of Peterborough, Ont., went to Prince Albert in 1879, and was there at the time of the rebellion. In 1886 he started in the grocery and fruit business. About a year ago he moved into his new store. It is a solid brick, and is fitted up with every modern appliance. The stock is very tastefully arranged, and complete and up-to-date in every detail. The store is well lighted, having large plate glass windows on each side, and lighted by electric lights at night. It is situated on one of the principal business corners in the town, and Mr. Goodfellow enjoys a first-class trade, owing chiefly to the fact that he carries only the best goods obtainable.

In conversation with a representative of The Grocer he remarked that he had been a subscriber ever since he started business, and looked forward to the arrival of The Grocer each week with pleasure.

The store of P. H. Currie. A Saskatoon pioneer.

P. H. CURRIE. SASKATOON.

Another illustration shown herewith is taken from the Town of Saskatoon. This town has grown with rapid strides, and is another instance of the progressive spirit manifest throughout the Northwest. From a simple 200 population two years ago, it has rapidly advanced, until at the present time it has about 4,000 inhabitants and still progressing.

P. H. Currie started in business about three years ago in a modest way, making Saskatoon his centre, and immediately met with success, and has progressed with the advancement of the town. He is constantly adding to his premises to make room for increased stock, which he finds it necessary to carry. The store measures 40 x 60 feet.

R. T. Goodfellow, A Western pioneer.

Mr. Currie is a firm believer in the advantage of advertising, and makes use of every opportunity to push forward his trade. The store, too, is a well ordered, well arranged establishment. Mr. Currie makes a special feature of the dry goods department; his idea is that to please the ladies who visit his store, is the whole thing, and to this no doubt is attributable the popularity of his store.

He changes his window display regularly. One week will have a heavy display of the latest groceries, another week canned goods. The special illustration shows one of dry goods, with just sufficient groceries to add variety.

JOHN SLOAN & CO., TORONTO.

On Saturday, the 10th inst., the employees of John Sloan & Co., wholesale grocers, assembled in the office of the company to honor their chief by the presentation of a handsome mahogany office desk and two chairs. The company has just moved into its new quarters, and the occasion was a most timely one. Mr. Charles Parsons, to whom was delegated the privilege of making the presentation, spoke of the high regard held by every one of the employees for Mr. Sloan, and on their behalf read the following address:

Dear Sir,—We are gathered together here to offer you our warmest congratulations on this occasion. Your business has grown and increased to such proportions under your guiding hand that the old quarters must be abandoned for these more commodious premises. We recognize, sir, that yours is a success unique in the history of business enterprise. Some years ago you entered this very building as one of the employees, to-day you have come here as the moving spirit and master mind of a large and prosperous business ranking among the highest in this great business centre. You have indeed risen from the ranks, step by step until to-day your name is known far and wide as one of our great merchant princes in this the greatest country under the blue dome of heaven and we trust you will allow us to share with you the feelings of elation and pride which must to-day stir within you.

We, also feel that we should not allow this opportunity to pass without expressing to you in some form the great respect we feel for your sterling qualities as a business man and which have contributed the grand success which has crowned your labors. We have always found in you a sympathetic friend, kindly in all your dealings with us, ever considerate of our comforts and interested in our individual welfare.

As a slight and more tangible token of our good wishes, we ask you to accept the accompanying gift which we trust will add to your comfort in these pleasant quarters we are to share with you, and it is our earnest prayer that the hand of time may rest lightly upon you and that you may long be spared to occupy your place among us and find each succeeding year adding fresh lustre to your eye and more power to your arm.

We assure you, sir, that we have your interests at heart and hope that you may live long to enjoy the success you have so richly deserved.

Mr. Sloan was deeply moved by this manifestation of goodwill from his employees, and in thanking them, spoke of the loyal support and co-operation that his employees had always given him, without which, said Mr. Sloan, the business would not have been what it is to-day. In the year 1868 Mr. Sloan started his commercial life as a boy, at three dollars a week in the same premises he now occupies as proprietor. He well remembers the hard struggles of his early days, filling the offices of salesman, bookkeeper and delivery clerk. He had had his critical moments like most business men, but had come through them all successfully, and had always managed to pay the full hundred cents on the dollar.

The premises into which the firm have just moved is a large imposing corner block at the junction of Church and Front streets, and contains upwards of 20,000 feet of space. It has been remodeled on the latest sanitary and up-to-date principles. The delivery has five separate outlets for the expedition of loading. The office arrangements are such that the business can be carried out with an extraordinarily small amount of running round. In fact Mr. Sloan has concentrated all his experience of what should constitute an up-to-date warehouse.

H. C. Hamelin,

Who has a circuit of department stores in Manitoba towns and is First Vice-President of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada.

THE HAMELIN STORES.

As an illustration of the opportunity for advancement in the "Great West" nothing speaks more plainly than the progress made by many of those who are now leading men in those provinces.

H. C. Hamelin, the Manitoba retailer, is one of such; from small beginnings he has built in Manitoba a rural mercantile business of no mean proportions. Mr. Hamelin has a circuit of local department stores that covers nine towns, and has just purchased the entire stock of Nash, Carson & Naylor, the large Winnipeg retail store, who recently assigned.

In 1892 Mr. Hamelin began business in Manitoba, opening a small general store in Lauder. Developing a good trade, in three years he opened a branch store at Hartney. His enterprise was rewarded, and two years later he established at Melita, and one year after that in Napinka. This brings history down to 1900.

Mr. Hamelin was now fairly committed to his original line of business, and proceeded to develop it year by year, with of course profit to himself. Every successive year has seen a new branch opened, and the Hamelin enterprise is representd at Arcola, Stoughton, Carlisle, Manor and Waskada and no doubt the future will see a development on at least the same scale.

THE INVESTIGATION OF THE GROCERS' GUILD.

Some Other Agreements.

Mr. Washington made inquiry about agreements with the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., the Malta Vita Co., the E. B. Eddy Co., the Force Food Co., the Peterboro Cereal Co., but Mr. Cook could tell him nothing.

"I understood you to say there was no sugar agreement," said Mr. Washington.

"Yes."

"That surprises me because everything I have read here is full of sugar."

"There's no written agreement."

Mr. Washington read a letter of June 25, 1898, from Mr. Beckett to Mr. Bristol, mentioning two sugar agreements.

Mr. Johnston—"There's no agreement up to the present time with the refiners. These were agreements made among the grocers themselves, of which the refiners had cognizance."

Mr. Washington—"I think we will unearth something different later. Give us a little time."

Mr. Johnston—"There is nothing to unearth."

Mr. Washington read from the 1898 letter-book a memorandum of an agreement between the guild and the refiners, which, it was said, had never been carried into effect.

Equalized Rate Book.

Mr. Johnston said he was advised that the equalized rate book was the only thing the wholesale grocers dealt upon with regard to sugar.

"These refiners are working under this system, called the equalized rates system," said Mr. Washington, addressing Mr. Cook. "Is there any other arrangement or agreement with them?"

"Not that I know of."

"How long has this been in force?"

"Something like since '98 or '99."

Mr. Washington wanted to get an understanding of the equalized rates system, but concluded he had better take time to it.

"Who fixes the prices?" he asked.

"The refiners."

"Who changes the prices?"

"The refiners."

"How is it Mr. Beckett sends out the telegrams giving notice of change?"

"He is notified by the refiners and notifies the members of the guild."

"The refiners send out prices how often?"

"Perhaps daily for two or three days, then not for a month."

"What regulates the market?"

"I have no idea."

Magistrate Jelfs wanted to know what affected the price, and the only thing Mr. Cook could think of was the American market.

"That's all the information you have?" asked Mr. Washington, suggestively.

"I'll be glad to answer all further questions," Mr. Cook replied with a smile.

Mr. Johnston—"It's not as sweet as you expected."

Mr. Washington—"Oh, it's sweet enough for me."

"Before we leave sugar, is there any agreement that the wholesalers will not dispute?" he asked.

"Not that I know of," replied Mr. Cook.

Small Profits on Tobacco.

Mr. Washington turned his attention to tobacco.

"Have you any agreement with the tobacco manufacturers?" he asked.

"Not that I am aware of."

"You have an arrangement of some kind?"

"I don't know whether you would term it an arrangement. I think they support the trade in trying to get a profit on their goods."

Mr. Washington produced a draft of an agreement with Mr. Wm. Macdonald.

Mr. Cook stated that the tobacco manufacturers fixed their prices arbitrarily, and the wholesalers sold it at an advance of 5 per cent.

Mr. Washington would scarcely believe it. "They're not in business for their health," he commented.

It was stated by Mr. Beckett that the wholesaler paid his own freight and the retailer's, and the net profit was 3 1-2 per cent.

Penalties Exacted.

Mr. Washington then wanted to know if any penalties had been enforced, and when Mr. Cook knew of none, reminded him that Davidson & Son, of Quebec, had been fined $100 for a mistake of their traveler at Edmonton.

Mr. Johnston objected that the defendants were not responsible for what was done by the Maritime guild. The magistrate agreed with him, but Mr. Washington thought it was evidence of conspiracy.

"Were not efforts made," continued Mr. Washington, "by the guild or any of its officers to prevent refiners from selling to persons other than members of the guild?"

"Not so far as I know," replied Mr. Cook. "Our efforts were confined to asking them not to sell to people not in the legitimate wholesale trade."

The investigation will be resumed on Monday, March 12, with the understanding that it will be then continued daily until concluded.

Wholesaler's Statement.

The following statement taken from a brief prepared by a wholesaler for the lawyers, shows pretty clearly the guild's point of view:

Re cost of doing business—The acknowledged cost of doing business, that is, the expenses, travelers' salaries, and warehouse expenses in connection with the grocery business, averages from 7 per cent. to 8 per cent. on the total sales. Six per cent. of the business of the wholesale grocers is in proprietary lines upon which the selling prices have been fixed by the manufacturers, the margin allowed by the manufacturers varying from 4 per cent. upwards, but the average gross margin allowed by manufacturers on two-thirds of the wholesale grocery business is less than 5 1-4 per cent, clearly demonstrating that on every 60 per cent. of the business done by the wholesale grocer, the margin of profit is not within 2 per cent. of the cost of doing business. In other words every wholesale grocer in Canada to-day is losing from 1 1-2 per cent. to 2 per cent on 60 per cent. of the business he is doing.

This is a very strong point and should clearly demonstrate that prices are not unduly enhanced by the guild, the wholesale grocery trade, or through any negotiations the wholesale grocery trade have had with manufacturers.

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

Mr. T. E. Owens, of the Bloomfield Canning Company, passed through Toronto on his way to the canners' convention at Atlantic City, U.S.A.

Mr. A. H. Brittain, Montreal agent for the Atlantic Fish Company, is visiting Toronto, Hamilton, and other western points on business at present.

Mr. C. J. Gibson, representing H. W. Nelson & Co., woodenware manufacturers, Toronto, has left for the Maritime Provinces, which he will cover in the interest of his firm.

Mr. G. V. Hastings, Winnipeg, manager of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Limited, and Mr. Kelly, the company's head miller at Keewatin, are in the city at present.

Mr. C. Giltrap, of the Natural Food Co., Niagara Falls, N.Y., and the Canadian Shredded Wheat Co., Limited, is in Montreal this week, arranging for the demonstration of the company's products at the Carsley Pure Food Exhibition, now open.

Mr. T. J. Fead (Jack), a familiar figure to the wholesale and retail grocery trade of Canada, and who during the past few years has represented some of the leading eastern coffee and spice houses, has left the road owing to poor health. Mr. Fead left Montreal for Innisfail, Alberta, where he hopes to regain his health through active outdoor life. Mr. Fead has always been a strong admirer of The Grocer, and during his many years' travels through the land has looked for and read it with interest and profit. The Grocer wishes him speedy recovery.

Mr. A. E. Landry for the last three years with Hudon, Hebert & Cie., wholesale grocers, Montreal, is now with the National Cash Register Co., Dayton, Ohio, representing that company in East Montreal. Mr. Landry, as salesagent for this division of the Metropolis, brings to his new employers an experience of over 13 years in the district among the grocery and purveying trade, as previous to joining the traveling staff of Hudon, Hebert & Cie. he was for 10 years covering the same territory for N. Quintal & Fils., Montreal.

BUSINESS DEBT TO EDUCATION.

How many Ontario business men have not calculated their debt to the Ontario Agricultural College and Experimental Farm?

The measure of it is the benefit the college and farm have been to the farmer. Take one example. Mandscheuri barley was introduced from Russia by the college in 1889. Fifteen years have shown the yield to be 9.3 bush. per acre over that of the common six-rowed variety. The average annual acreage under barley since 1882 has been 633,290 acres. During the ten years since 1895 the average yield, due to Mandscheuri, has been 4½ bushels an acre greater than during the ten years prior to 1895. At fifty cents a bushel, the increased return to the farmers of Ontario has been, and is, $1,425,000 each year.

That is but one instance of what has been done in the department of field agriculture. Similar work is being done with wheat, oats, peas, rye, grasses, and roots.

Animal husbandry is another department. There the domestic animals, instead of cereals, roots and grasses, are the subject of study and experiment, and the importance of it is plain in the light of the fact that eighty per cent. of all crops grown in Ontario is fed to live stock.

The great work of the college in improving the quality of Ontario dairy products has been of inestimable value to the province, but there is in the dairy department another line of activity not so much heard of—increasing the productiveness of the cow. The average Ontario cow gives less than 3,000 pounds of milk a year. The college by careful selection and proper feeding has built up a grade herd of which in 1904 sixteen cows gave more than 6,000 pounds each.

The culture of fruit, flowers and vegetables is studied in the department of horticulture. How to increase the productiveness of the soil is the study of the department of bacteriology. The poultry department has shown the agriculturist how to treble the value of his poultry products. Soil cultivation and drainage, all with a view to increased productiveness, is the care of the department of physics.

The department of chemistry investigates the suitability of Ontario's soil and climate for the production of untried wealth producers. It demonstrated that sugar beets could be grown here profitably, and the output of beet sugar in Western Ontario last year was over 22,000,000 pounds.

Last year this department demonstrated that fourth-grade Northwest wheat flour made bread just as good, just as palatable, just as nutritious, as first-grade wheat flour, and just as much of it, though a little darker in color.

Preventive agriculture might be said to be the business of the departments of botany and entomology. The former studies weeds and fungus growth, and how to prevent them; the latter deals with destructive insects and how to combat them, giving instruction not only at the college but by a bulletin system to agriculturists all over the province. Millions of dollars are lost to the farmers yearly by insect depredation, and this work of prevention is proportionately important.

The ultimate result of each of these varied educational activities is to increase the purchasing power of the Ontario farmer. To the business interests of the province and Dominion that means increased life and growth, for great as has been the development of manufacture and arts in Canada, the backbone and nerve centre of our industrial prosperity is, and must continue to be, agriculture.

Every business man should be an active supporter of the college at Guelph. Every commercial traveler should be its advance agent, should familiarize himself with its work and achievements, and be able and anxious to talk it up among his customers who, though a stage nearer the farm, may not have realized the worth and importance of the college work.

Sir Wm. Macdonald has splendidly realized the business man's responsibility in regard to education. At the Guelph Macdonald Institute 360 girls were in attendance last year in the domestic science department. In a province where 90 per cent. of the women do their own work the importance of this education will not easily be overestimated. The other studies in the institute are manual training and nature study, both of great practical and educational advantage.

BOARD OF TRADE REVIVAL.

Unprecedented interest by the members characterized the annual elections last Friday of the Toronto Board of Trade. It bespeaks a reawakening of the captains of business to a realization of the value and importance of the board. Boards of trade should exert a marked influence upon the industrial and social activities not alone locally but throughout the Dominion. This revival in the Toronto board should stimulate members of boards of trade everywhere to greater activity and usefulness.

Some idea of the Toronto board's scope may be gathered from the address of the retiring president, Mr. J. D. Allan. He enumerated as among the matters dealt with during the year, special railway rates for a traders' week, trading stamps and their abolition, taxing commercial travelers, Government redemption of worn and mutilated silver, Toronto's grant of $200,000 for the new general hospital, trade with France, preferential trade with Britain, technical education.

Boards of trade everywhere might very greatly assist in improving municipal conditions and solving difficult municipal problems by applying to them the united business acumen of the community. Especially in the larger towns and cities men of business are loth to enter heartily into the management of the community's affairs. The result is that these affairs are left to men of very inferior capacity, and inevitably things go badly. A revival among boards of trade would be a very encouraging development.

If Mr. Allan's interest in technical education could become general among board of trade leaders, industrial interests and the industrial classes, and through them every business interest throughout Canada, would benefit greatly.

WHAT ARE TRADE COMBINES?

What section 520 of the Criminal Code relating to trade combines, so-called, covers is of vital importance to the whole trading community and the people of Canada generally.

In these days of strenuous business competition when every trading concern is endeavoring to get as much of its particular trade as possible and to extend its business in every possible way, it seems unfortunate that what is or is not a trade combine within the meaning of the Criminal Code cannot be clearly defined, and that it must be left to the interpretation of a judge or jury or Court of Appeal, in each case, to say whether the acts or agreements or arrangements made by different people in connection with any particular trade do or do not amount to a trade combine so as to be a criminal offence.

It is unfortunate in the interests of trade that what one man or judge considers to come within the Criminal Code another judge equally honest may take an entirely different view. It seems furthermore a great difficulty that the whole of a trade must be investigated by a judge who has had no experience whatever in that business and that such judge must in the final result say whether or not the people who are conducting that business have been guilty of a trade combination or not.

It would seem to be to a large extent a business proposition rather than a legal proposition. Take, for instance, the wholesale grocery trade. For years the distinction between a wholesaler and a retailer had been carefully observed by manufacturers and the manufacturers sold practically exclusively to the wholesaler. With the advent of the departmental store in certain cities came a change and the wholesalers suddenly found that the manufacturers instead of selling as they had hitherto done, through the wholesale trade exclusively, and thereby enabling the wholesaler to get a living profit on the business they did, were selling not merely direct to the large departmental stores but also to the cream of the retail trade, and in that way leaving for the wholesale trade only the smaller retail stores and particularly such retail stores as of necessity had to be carried financially and had to sell on credit, while the cash business of the country was going into the hands of the departmental stores and a few city retailers.

The wholesale grocery trade, finding this state of facts to exist and to be extending, and finding the existence of their business as wholesalers vitally threatened, finding further that the small retailers who served so well the largest portion of the public that cannot afford to pay cash for their groceries as required by the departmental stores were being gradually crippled and in some cases ruined, urged on certain manufacturers that the time-honored distinction between the wholesalers and retailers should be strictly observed, and that the manufacturer should not deal direct with certain retailers and thereby give a certain portion of the retail trade a preference over the other portion enabling the retailers to whom such preference was given to ruin their less-favored fellow retailers.

It has never been questioned that a manufacturer has a right to manufacture or not, that he has a right to sell his goods or not, that having a right to sell his goods he may adopt such method of sale as he considers to be in his interest. The wholesale grocery trade have always recognized this right in the manufacturer, but finding the trade in the state it was and is, they have been compelled as among themselves for the protection of the trade, to ask manufacturers to choose between selling to strictly wholesale people or not doing so, and selling any way that the manufacturers pleased.

In many instances, the manufacturer on reflection has been only too glad to choose the wholesale trade of the country as his selling agent on a fixed basis at a reasonable profit for the reason that by so doing he was able to put his goods in the hands of the consumer cheaper than he had hitherto been able to do.

It will be readily seen that if manufacturers were to wipe out the wholesale trade of the country and force everybody into the retail business, such manufacturers would have to deal direct with retailers and would as against other competing manufacturers have to have a traveller for their own particular article of trade. As matters now exist, the wholesale grocer is able through his travellers to present 50 or 100 different articles of trade just as cheaply almost as the manufacturer could one, so that the wholesaler is able to divide the expense of bringing the manufacturer's goods to the attention of the retailer and to sell same to the retailer at a much less expense than the manufacturer could by any other method. In this way, therefore, the manufacturer has been able to reduce his price, the wholesale trade have received a uniform commission as selling agents, the retailers have been able to compete on a fair basis all alike, and the public has obtained its goods cheaper than heretofore.

The criticism is sometimes made that because one retailer can buy as large an order as some wholesale houses, therefore the retailer should get from the manufacturer the same prices as the wholesalers do. The far-reaching effects of this to the manufacturer, to the wholesale trade and the small retailers and the public is lost sight of.

It is not a case of the extent of the purchase that makes the distinction between the wholesaler and the large retailer, but the entirely different class of business done by a wholesaler and by retailers. The retailer deals direct with the consumer; the wholesaler as between himself and the retailer never does so. If he did, he would be doing the same thing to the retail trade that the manufacturers were a short time ago doing to the wholesale trade by selling direct to certain retailers.

The wholesaler, whom the manufacturer recognizes as such, sells only to the retailer, large or small, and the retailer, large or small, deals direct with the consumer. The wholesaler, as compared with the retailer, has usually a large capital invested in his business, he must carry a very large stock of all kinds of groceries as compared with the average retailer, he must have an extensive staff of travellers to go all over Canada or the greater portion of it, which involves in itself great expense and which enables the small retailer in all the towns and villages of the country and in many cases in cities to get along with a small capital and a small stock; the wholesaler assists and carries the average retailer in the small

ONE HINT WORTH THE SUBSCRIPTION.

The following is an extract from a letter just to hand:

"If you have a spare D.G.R., one of your late numbers, you might mail it to Mrs. ——, ——, Ont., as I think you will get her for a subscriber. Her husband has bought her mother's grocery stock, and he takes THE CANADIAN GROCER, and says that it is well worth the price; that sometimes just one hint is worth more than the subscription."

Mrs. —— is the milliner at ——.

towns and villages and in many cases in the cities by giving him certain credits, by having the necessary capital to carry him in hard times, and by being able to supply the wants of such retailer at any time by telegraph or telephone, thereby enabling the retailer to carry on business with a minimum stock and to keep his stock fresh and new and thereby giving the great mass of consumers a better service and a better and cheaper supply of goods than can be done by any other method.

To allow a few retail departmental stores, by buying direct from manufacturers at the same price as a wholesaler, to absorb all the cash business of the country and to leave the wholesale trade to sell to the retailer, who has to deal with the average man who wants his groceries, as and when he needs them from day to day, and as he is only paid at stated periods, must have credit from week to week or month to month, was manifestly unfair to the wholesale grocery trade, nor was there any reason to suppose that although such stores have bargain sales and consumers occasionally for advertising purposes got staples at less than they do from the average retailer, that such state of facts would continue when all the small retailers had been crippled and the process had gone on till practically all the wholesale houses had really become retail or gone out of business. Once that state of facts was brought about, as the wholesale trade felt sure the necessary outcome would be, the manufacturers would be bound, as indicated, to deal direct with the retailer at a very much greater expense than the manufacturer is put to to-day to place his goods through the medium of the wholesale trade.

By what has been done, it seems clear that the public as a whole are getting their goods cheaper and better and more easily than would be the result of compelling a change in the whole business fabric of the community, and from what would appear, so far as the wholesale grocery trade is concerned, they seem only to have been doing what reasonable men should do and have a right to do for the protection of their own business in any community.

If the question of quantity to be purchased were to be the determining factor on price in every case by manufacturers, then the large wholesale houses among themselves could readily crush out the smaller ones. For instance, a house buying $1,000,000 of sugar a year could practically crush out a small wholesale house that only dealt in $250,000 of sugar every year. The distinction therefore as to price should not be made by the manufacturers on the quantity purchased, but should be made as it has been made for centuries, as between whether a man is a retailer or a wholesaler or consumer, and the different rights and obligations of the various branches of trade to the public should be fairly and equitably considered and dealt with.

That a manufacturer can choose one or more wholesale firms to act as his selling agents on terms to be fixed by the manufacturers has never been disputed. That the wholesale trade of the country finding their existence threatened should ask the manufacturer not to choose some wholesalers but to treat all legitimate wholesale houses alike and observe the ancient distinction between wholesalers and retailers seems a fair and reasonable proposition.

WRAPPING CHEESE FOR EXPORT.

The reports received by the Department of Trade and Commerce, at Ottawa, contain much that is instructive and interesting, and which, if acted upon by the particular industries referred to from time to time, cannot fail to be of immense value in building up our foreign trade.

In one of the most recently published reports, mention is made by Mr. McKinnon, the Bristol commercial agent, that the Canadian cheese sent to that market was encased with an inferior quality of cloth, and in consequence much dissatisfaction was rife.

The cloth, instead of leaving the cheese easily and in one piece, adhered in many places, greatly disfiguring it, and in some cases to such an extent that it could not be displayed in the retail store window.

It can be easily seen that this is a serious feature, and one which will work to the disadvantage of Canadian cheese generally. British buyers are particular buyers, and a few complaints like this from their retail store customers will soon make itself felt by the wholesale brokers hesitating to handle Canadian cheese, or doing so at lower rates.

In dealing with one specific case, Mr. McKinnon had the cloth removed, washed, dried, and weighed, and it turned the scale at only two ounces. This, we understand, is not sufficient to properly protect the cheese, and it is strongly urged by Mr. McKinnon that a much heavier and stronger cloth be used.

COMPRESSED TEA EXPERIMENTS.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture is reported to be experimenting in compressing tea into small tablet form for army uses. It must not be supposed that this is anything new by any means. This idea has often been exploited, but in every case at loss to the experimenter.

It is done to a small extent in both China and Japan, generally for special occasions, and then not so much with an idea of success as on account of custom.

The idea was thoroughly exploited in England some years ago. A company was organized, expensive machinery installed, and everything done to carry the idea to successful issue, but to no purpose.

The process of compression was found to work so disastrously with the leaf that it was almost impossible to obtain even moderate results when brewed. Samples were sent to nearly every firm or institution likely to be interested, but it was found impossible to create any interest.

The article was offered on the Canadian market, but dealers here found, as others had, that it was an unsatisfactory product.

PROFIT BY MISTAKES.

It is said that we do not profit by the experience of others, that only out of our own experience come the lessons which experience impresses upon us, says an exchange.

In making plans for 1906 give some time to thinking over the weak spots in your record for 1905. Strengthen those places if you can. Do your best at any rate.

Perhaps you fell down on the selling end of your business, or made some mistakes in buying. And after that was said and done maybe you did not clean the collections up as you should.

Some of those mistakes you may not be able to correct. It may be that conditions were to blame fully as much as yourself.

But it is well to face the actual condition, and in making its close acquaintance to be prepared to meet it right should it ever arise again.

MODIFIES HER POLICY.

The Australian Government has yielded to the strong remonstrances of the Canadian trade agents in Australia, D. H. Ross and J. S. Larke, and has modified its policy of adding the freight to the value of importations for duty purposes, which had the effect of discriminating against Vancouver and in favor of New York.

THE SUGAR TARIFF BEFORE THE COMMISSION AT OTTAWA.

At the concluding sitting of the Tariff Commission at Ottawa on February 8 some very drastic and sweeping assertions were made by Mr. Robert Anderson, manager for R. Crooks & Co., importers, Montreal, with regard to the profits made by the Canadian sugar refiners under the existing tariff. The substance of his remarks was as follows :

Protection Exceeds Revenue.

"The people of Canada are paying annually as toll to the sugar refiners, in straight protection, nearly $2,000,000 over and above legitimate profits (7½ per cent.), taking the net protection over profit in the general tariff at 45 cents, and in the preferential tariff at 65 cents per 100 pounds, which by rights should be increased revenue to the Government for the good of the people at large." And as the duty collected on all sugar last year was $1,671,177, the Government were giving the refiners $300,000 more than they were collecting from them in revenue. "That surely," said Mr. Anderson, "is not the teaching of good political economy. It is like a man stinting his family to give his substance to charity, but you do not even get any popularity." The advantages quoted for the Montreal refiners were even greater for those at Vancouver and Halifax, where they were getting fabulously wealthy from taking advantage of the freight rates. How could the tariff be revised for the good of the country, and not simply to enrich a few men already millionaires ? By increasing the duty on raw and leaving the present duty on refined the Government would be taking the safest course to get an increased revenue and benefit the consumer, and at the same time give the importer a helping hand.

Increase Duty on Raw.

"I would propose that the duty on raw sugar should be advanced 25 cents per 100 pounds, raising the minimum rate on 75 degrees from 40 cents, as at present, to 65 cents per 100 pounds, and advancing 1½ cents per degree to make the duty on 100 degrees sugar not above the established Dutch standard color limit, $1.0250, against the present rate of 77½ cents per 100 pounds."

That change, Mr. Anderson said, would amply protect the refiners and increase the revenue by $600,000 a year. He had no objection to helping an infant industry by protection, but the refiners had "grown to a ripe old age, nursed and reared in the lap of protective luxury, and are to-day coddled with a greater wealth of protection than they ever enjoyed."

As to the beet sugar industry, it got the full benefit of the enormous protection given to the Canadian refiners, and if the beet sugar industry did not flourish it ought to, otherwise it had no right to exist. Moreover, in Ontario it receives a Government bonus ; besides, an increased duty on raw would help it.

The Grocers' Guild.

Mr. Anderson gave this description of the working of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild : "The refiners bill the sugar to the wholesale grocers at the selling price to the retail buyer, then at the end of sixty days, when the wholesaler certifies that he has maintained the guild selling prices, he gets a rebate from the refiner of 5 per cent., 1 per cent. of which the wholesaler has given to the retailer as discount for cash settlement, the wholesaler retaining 4 per cent. as his gross profit."

Whether the selling agreement was lived up to by the wholesale grocers or not was another question, but they got their discount from the refiners just the same.

The guild agreement had resulted in stable prices, and was the wholesale grocers' salvation. If a combine was found to exist between the refiners and the wholesalers, it would not be practicable to put sugar on the free list, but a uniform duty of, say, one cent a pound should be put on all sugars of whatever kinds or grades. Mr. Anderson concluded by urging that cane sugar syrup, guaranteed free from glucose, be put on the free list when imported direct from Great Britain or her colonies.

Will Stand by His Words.

Sir Richard Cartwright said he gathered from the witness that the taxation on the people in connection with sugar was $4,000 000, of which about $1,700,000 went back to revenue, the balance of two millions or so going into the refiners' pockets. Was witness prepared to stand by that ?

"I am," emphatically replied Mr. Anderson.

"It does not materially differ from my own opinion," observed Sir Richard. "Take the present market, if the duties were removed, how many pounds of sugar could you sell to-day for a dollar ?"

"It would be more like forty pounds for a dollar—2½ cents per pound."

"The present quantity is twenty pounds."

"The ordinary retail grocer would get twenty pounds for a dollar."

"Well," replied Sir Richard, genially, "I am in accord with what you have said."

Mr. Anderson asked that if the refiners made any reply to him it should take place publicly.

The Refiners' Views.

The Canadian Grocer called upon the Canada Sugar Refining Co. and the St. Lawrence Sugar Refinery to obtain an expression of their views. Mr. Ed. W. W. Parker, secretary of the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Limited, stated, as he had done through the press, that "with all due deference to Mr. Anderson's elaborate statements on the sugar duties and their effect, it would be a matter of considerable time to follow his deductions and calculations." Mr. Parker further stated that without going into the details of the case, the conclusions Mr. Anderson had arrived at were certainly misleading despite their plausible rendering and intimated that at the proper time the case of the refiners will be clearly and satisfactorily presented.

To The Canadian Grocer Mr. Theo. Labatt, vice-president of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refinery, stated in substance : "Mr. Anderson's report is too elaborate for a reply in detail in an offhand way, and as it is our intention to reply to it explicitly it will take some time to do so. In the meantime we can assure you already now that his deductions are quite wrong and misleading."

BUSINESS NOTES.

Abraham Ferst, grocer, Montreal, Que., has been burnt out.

G. T. Chapman, general merchant, Arrowhead, B.C., has been burnt out; partially insured.

The dwelling, shop, tools aod contents of the buildings occupied by Amos W. Bridge, churn manufacturer, at Westbrook, were destroyed by fire on Feb. 5.

The St. Croix Soap Co. are planning to make some extensive improvements and enlargements in their factory this coming Spring. The increase in the sales of Surprise Soap has been such as to make this enlargement necessary in order to take care of the business.

T. L. Newburn, manager of the Calgary branch of the James Turner Company, wholesale grocers, of Hamilton, was in Edmonton on February 1, and has secured options for warehouse sites on Third, Fourth and Seventh streets. He states that the firm will commence building as soon as a site is definitely located.

The appeal of the Canadian Canning Company against the British Columbia Government's method of assessing the company's output of salmon was dismissed by Mr. C. G. Major, judge of the Court of Revision and Appeals. This appeal was a test case on which it was agreed should rest the fate of the appeals of nineteen canneries on the Fraser River against what the owners term an inequitable method of assessment.

Leon Vanhavrebeve, representing the Belgium Packing Company, met the council of the Board of Trade of Lethbridge, Alta., and laid before it a proposition to establish a big packing plant there. His company have for years been operating in the Argentine republic and are now desirous of opening a branch in Canada. They would require, in addition to a big plant, 10,000 acres of lands to hold stock. The council enthusiastically endorsed the project and Mr. Vanhavrebeve thinks there is every probability of the industry being located there. He is submitting all details to the president at Brussels, who, if he approves of the plan will arrive in a few weeks to begin operations.

ORIGIN OF THE COMMON MATCH.

In 1827 John Walker, a druggist in a small English town, tipped a splint with sulphur, chloride of potash and sulphide of antimony, and rubbed it on sandpaper, and it burst into flame. He had invented the first friction match. In a few years phosphorous was substituted for antimony and it could be lighted without the sandpaper upon which to rub it. The present consumption of matches averages five a day for each person.

Mr. Baker, of the Homestead Canning Co., Picton, Ont., was in Toronto on Thursday en route for Winnipeg.

BUSINESS AND ASSOCIATION MEETINGS

The Editor will be glad to receive reports and notices of any business meetings of interest to the readers of THE GROCER— short, gossipy and instructive.

TORONTO.

There was a record attendance at the annual meeting of the board of trade, which took place in the rotunda of the Baard of Trade Building, on Friday, 9th inst., and keen interest was evinced, not only in the elections, but in the proceedings throughout. All the signs indicated that the association has taken on a new lease of life, and that the ensuing year will be one of activity and of good work accomplished.

Mr. Peleg Howland,
President Toronto Board of Trade.

The election of the president, vice-presidents, and treasurer, by acclamation, naturally detracted somewhat from the interest of the campaign, but, nevertheless, the struggle for the remaining offices was quite spirited.

The general meeting was called at 3.30, and the retiring president's comprehensive review of the year's work was followed with close attention.

Mr. Peleg Howland, the president-elect, was introduced to the meeting, and was given a warm reception. In the course of his remarks he declared that, with the executive chosen to assist him, he could not see how it was possible for the board of trade not to make progress during the coming year. The board had in the past been subjected to criticism from within and without, some of it, perhaps, deserved. It had, however, a record of usefulness that the city and country might well feel proud of. With the co-operation of the general members, that career of usefulness would go on.

The Officers Elect.

The officers for the ensuing year are as follows: President, Peleg Howland; first vice-president, R. C. Steele; second vice-president, R. J. Christie; treasurer, J. W. Woods; secretary, F. G. Morley; council of the board, James D. Allan, Hugh N. Baird, C. W. Band, W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., John F. Ellis, W. J. Gage, S. Wellington Hay, J. D. Ivey, Thomas Kinnear, Joseph Oliver, A. T. Reid, A. F. Rodger, James Ryrie, J. P. Watson, C. W. I. Woodland; board of arbitration, A. Cavanagh, W. L. Edmonds, John Firstbrook, Thos. Flynn, J. N. Hay, F. C. Jarvis, W. D. Matthews, Marshall MacGregor, J. C. McKeggie, D. Plewes, W. M. Stark, D. O. Wood; representatives on Industrial Exhibition, S. E. Briggs, Marshall H. Brown, George H. Gooderham, A. Burdette Lee, Noel Marshall; harbor commissioners, J. H. G. Hagarty and J. T. Mathews.

Retiring President's Address.

In his address, the retiring president, Mr. J. D. Allan, referred to the progress and continued growth of the city, reflected in the assessment commissioner's report, which showed the total amount of assessment for the year 1906 to be $109,195,316, an increase over 1905 of $20,376,245. In this connection he pointed out that as 1906 was the first year in which the business tax took the place of the personal tax, it was gratifying to note the relation of the two systems of assessment, as bearing out the contention of the board of trade that, while doing away with an inequitable and inquisitorial system in the replacing of the personalty by the business tax no impairment of revenue would occur.

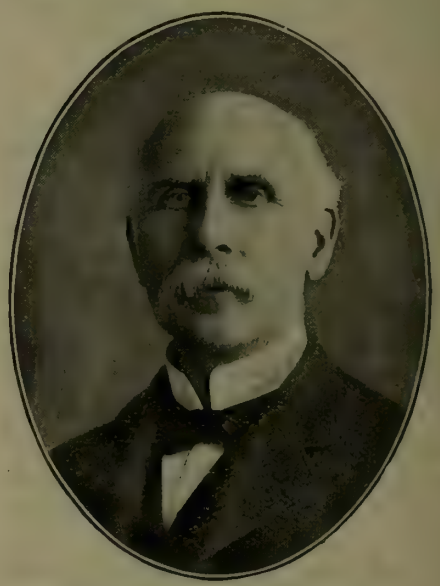
Mr. R. J. Christie,
2nd Vice-President Toronto Board of Trade.

The customs duties collected at this port for 1905 were $9,524,610, which is evidence in a marked degree of the increasing growth of our city's trade and her ever-growing importance as a distributing centre. This is further emphasized by the returns of the clearing house, which for the year reached the sum of $1,047,490,701, an increase of 25 per cent. over 1904, and about one-third of the total business transacted in the clearing houses of the eleven cities of Canada in which they are established.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Cranbrook, Jan. 31.—The eighth annual convention of the associated boards of Eastern British Columbia convened here to-day. Twenty-three delegates were present, representing nine boards from Greenwood to Fernie. G. O. Buchanan was elected president for a fifth term, and A. B. MacKenzie, Rossland, secretary. The convention at the afternoon session discussed the Dominion Fruit Marks Acts, which will prevent the importation of diseased fruits from Washington and elsewhere and the exportation of bad fruit. A resolution of approval was passed unanimously. Members propose introducing a resolution in connection with a bill before the British Columbia Legislature by Hon. R. F. Green preventing the export af unmanufactured timber from the province. East Kootenay men declare that millions of ties and mining props go into the prairies yearly, and the passage of the law would close down hundreds of lumber camps and cause much distress.

Additional resolutions were passed asking for a duty of 30 per cent. on spelter and zinc sheets, preservation of forests from fire, geological surveys of mineral camps of West Kootenay, the immediate construction of a C.P.R. branch between Gerard and Arrowhead, the appointment of additional fruit inspectors, claims to be re-established at noon and not at midnight, survey of lands for attracting immigrants, setting aside one-eighth af all public lands for public and technical schools. The School Act met with censure; a resolution as to the Great Northern excessive freight rates on the Kaslo and Slocan Railway was withdrawn, the matter being referable to the lieutenant-governor, who has absolute power to fix any rate he thinks fit, the railway being wholly provincial.



Mr. T. Kinnear,
Member of the Council, Toronto Board of Trade.

If grocers gave advertising the consideration they give competition they would never feel competition.

DEATH OF PROMINENT MONTREAL MERCHANT.

Ex-Alderman M. Theodule Lefebvre died very suddenly last Monday morning in the office of Mr. J. H. Marin, 71a St. James street, Montreal. Mr. Lefebvre had called to discuss business affairs with Mr. Marin, but the latter gentleman was out and he sat down to await his return. Heart trouble and business worries are given as the causes of his death. He had been warned by his doctors that he was taking great risks in participating in the affairs of the real estate firm of Lefebvre & Drolet, of which he was senior partner. He continued working, however, and thus, it is thought, hastened his death.

Ex-Ald. Lefebvre was the eldest son of Mr. Michael Lefebvre, founder of the firm of Michael Lefebvre & Co., vinegar manufacturers, Montreal, and was born in that city in 1848. He received his education at the Jesuit College of St. Mary's, after which he began to take a course of medicine at Laval University. He soon gave up professional for commercial life, however, and at the age of 25 years entered the employ of the Canadian Rubber Company. In 1879 he entered his father's firm, and when, in 1882, his father gave up the active control of his business, Mr. Lefebvre and his younger brother, Theodore, carried on the administration of the concern. Mr. Lefebvre and his brother showed great enterprise in their management. They built factories at Berthier for the manufacture of beet sugar, and strove hard to establish that industry in the Province of Quebec. Business reverses occurred however, and in 1896 Mr. Lefebvre was obliged to make an assignment. He afterwards tried to establish a vinegar factory at St. Johns, P.Q., but this enterprise also met with failbusiness, in which he was engaged at the time of his death.

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

Mr. Edward Rattray, of D. Rattray, Sons & Company, Quebec, is in Montreal this week.

Mr. W. H. Kirkland, representing W. H. Dunn for Royal Crown toilet soap, has left on a business trip through the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. E. W. Lachance, representing W. H. Dunn, has left on a four weeks' trip through the Maritime Provinces. He will look after the sale of Enameline stove polish and Borden's milk products.

Mr. A. H. Brittain, Montreal, whose faith in "Halifax" and "Acadia" prepared codfish is strong and lasting, has returned from a successful trip through the Eastern Townships. This week Quebec city will receive attention.

Mr. H. J. Stevens, 126 Board of Trade, Montreal, has arranged with Rosenbaum Bros., Chicago, to represent them in Quebec province. The Chicago firm are extensive operators in American corn and Mr. Stevens since locating in the east last year has established a good connection here.

W. H. Dunn, Montreal, has recently been appointed sole agent in Canada for Cailler's Swiss milk chocolate, and will inaugurate a selling campaign March first. Mr. Dunn has also acquired additional territory for the Borden's Condensed Milk Co., and will in future look after their interests in Nova Scotia.

MONTREAL RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of the grocery section of the Retail Merchants' Association held last week, Mr. P. Daoust presiding, a delegation of grocery clerks was received. The clerks wished the association to help them to have the law limiting the number of grocery liquor licenses repealed. Messrs. Quesnel and Lacroix spoke on behalf of the clerks. These gentlemen contended that the law did not do justice to the clerks, especially those who wished to go into business on their own account, as it created a sort of monopoly, inasmuch as the grocers had no necessity to fear competition. Mr. Daoust said that many of the grocers did not like the law, but nevertheless it would be hard to have it cancelled. Mr. Masse spoke, and he said that taking into consideration the temperance campaign recently undertaken, he thought that instead of more licenses being granted, probabilities pointed to a still further limitation. The association, however, will do all that is possible for the clerks, and the subject will be brought up for consideration at the next meeting of the association. It was decided to give a donation of ten dollars to each of the hospitals, Notre Dame, General, and Incurable Diseases. Thirty-three new members, whose names follow, were admitted to the association.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, Feb. 15, 1906.

The grocery jobbing trade report business as somewhat improved, orders from country being larger and more frequent. It has been some time since the turn of the year, and the general inventory of the merchants has had a chance to be gone through with and re-buying necessitated. Collections are also reported as fairly satisfactory. The tea situation is decidedly improved and dealers express themselves as pleased with the outlook. The recent drop in sugars has tended to curtail ready buying on part of the trade, and the weakness of the market (beet market) has the usual tendency to depress buying. Canned goods are unchanged and business only fair. The fish season is improving owing to the near approach of Lent. In coffee and spices no changes are noted.

Canned Goods—The canned goods situation remains unchanged with little to report in the way of interesting features. The recent advance in tomatoes to $1.00 per dozen, announced in this department, seems to have stimulated buying somewhat. In some quarters jobbers are looking for supplies, as it is feared that before the season is over tomatoes will reach considerably higher figures. There is only about the usual demand for canned fruits and vegetables. It is expected that during the Lenten season, close at hand, canned fruits and fish will move off more readily.

Sugar—Business in sugar is reported as on the quiet side. The recent drop of 10c. per hundred, in effect last Friday, has had the usual effect of making buyers pare down orders, and this feeling on the part of the jobbing trade is being reflected in small country orders. The foreign beet market continues weak, and some jobbers anticipate a further drop. Generally speaking, an uncertain tone prevails among jobbers as regards the sugar situation.

Molasses and Syrups—In the molasses market the demand has been quiet and prices have been somewhat weak as far as spot stocks are concerned, jobbers having cut the price to retailers 2c. per gallon. Cables from Barbadoes advise that there were buyers of the new crop at 13 1-2c., puncheon included, representing an advance of 1-2c. from the opening, but there was very little for sale at this figure. The prices have come down all round.

The latest report from Barbadoes of new crop is 13 1-2c., which would lay down here at about 25c. There is little doing in the way of heavy business, as producers are not overly keen to accept large orders, looking for a rise over opening quotations. Local stocks are light, but still there is no disposition on the part of the trade to jump in and buy. Corn syrups are turning over in about the usual way and jobbers report satisfactory business.

Tea—A review of the tea market this week shows a decided improvement. There is more inquiry all round. China greens are selling at advanced prices, and there has been more bidding on same. Ceylon blacks are decidedly firmer in London and any desirable teas offering appear to be sold out before brokers have been able to work them on the market. This also applies to Indian teas. There is a fair demand for Ceylon pekoes and orange pekoes, around about 16 1-2c. to 18c., also some inquiry for autumnal Indian pekoes, and it is reported that several orders have lately been cabled for such teas. Ceylon greens are reported about as last week, with few desirable lines offering. Dealers, generally, say that business is looking much better, as inquiries are coming in from both country and city points.

Foreign Dried Fruits—There is no change in the dried fruit situation. Business is extremely quiet and there is little inquiry from the jobbing trade. Currants are firm at latest foreign quotations. Locally, there is no demand to speak of. Shelled walnuts continue firm and the scarcity reported is confirmed. Dates unchanged at recent advance. There is no change to report in California evaporated fruits, and but little business is passing.

Choice prime beans are selling now at $1.65 to $1.70, while lower grades may be obtained at prices ranging from $1.60 to $1.65. It is expected, however, that prices will go up in the near future and at these figures are considered good buying.

Evaporated Apples—The market is easier as regards demand for evaporated apples. Prices have gone up during the week. Winter varieties are none too plentiful and the price asked is from 11c. to 11 1-2c. The high prices will undoubtedly curtail the consumption.

Fish—The demand for fish continues to improve, and dealers anticipate a rush of orders within the next two weeks. The Lenten season, as most people know, begins on Ash Wednesday, February 28, and, as most of the country merchants have not ordered their supply ahead of time, there is sure to be a heavy demand up to Ash Wednesday. There is a scarcity of large frozen herrings. In salt fish, many lines are scarce and prices are advancing, especially on leaders such as green cod and Labrador herring. Indeed, dealers do not expect there will be enough of these fish to supply the demand. The demand for prepared fish has been quiet, as is usual at this time. A continued improvement is noticeable in fresh frozen fish; and the stock will be ample to supply the trade, except for fresh halibut, which are rather scarce. Haddock are very plentiful and prices are a little lower owing to the large quantity coming forward.

KENTVILLE, N. S., JAN. 25, 1905.

A year ago yesterday and to-day Kentville had the first big snow storm of the season and the worst northeast storm for many years. It was also the commencement of a very hard and severe Winter. On these days Kentville and the whole province was in the hands of the storm king. The streets of Kentville and county were piled right and left with huge banks of snow. There were no trains from the west from Wednesday the 25th, until Saturday afternoon, the 28th. From the 22nd until the 28th there was only one train from Halifax and that was the evening express. On Monday the 30th all trains were in operation. On the 22nd the morning express from Halifax got as far as Digby Neck Crossing. From this out we had the "good old Winter time."

The height of snow drifts between Digby and Weymouth were from 100 to 200 feet long and 12 feet high. At Gaspereaux Bridge the drift was 100 feet long and ten feet high.

It is almost Summer to-day, Jan. 27, 1906.

Toronto, Feb. 16, 1906.

GROCERIES.

The general aspect of trade for the past week has remained unchanged. Quietness is reported by most of the wholesalers, and travelers speak of very little doing. Tomatoes have advanced, and apricots are pretty well up. It is reported from London, England, that olives have advanced 100 per cent. Certain it is that they have gone up on this side to the extent of 25 per cent. Sago and tapioca have made some material advances, particularly the former, which has taken quite a jump.

Canned Goods—Scarcely any change in quotations since a week ago. Tomatoes have advanced a little and are now quoted at $1.00. Considering the season, business cannot be complained of, though quiet. In canned goods most wholesalers are satisfied.

Sugar—The market has been very weak in sugars for some time past, culminating in a still further decline of 10c. for refined. Willet & Gray, in their weekly report, say: Receipt of raws at U. S. four ports were ten thousand less than the week's meltings. One refinery has closed down in consequence of accumulation of the refined product. Prices have now nearly touched the lowest on record for 96 degrees test centrifugals, which was 3.31c. in January, 1904. They are now 30c. below the parity of quotations for European beet sugar. In refined, buyers have limited their orders and withdrawals to the covering of actual wants only. Contracts for large quantities have expired and as withdrawals against such have come in slowly, the American and Howell have announced that if shipping instructions for undelivered portions are not received by 19th inst., guarantee on same will be withdrawn.

Syrups and Molasses—There has been no change in quotations since last week, and no new features in these lines have developed. Sales are keeping up fairly well considering the general quietness. The New York markets have a slight tendency to rise, but it has not been felt here.

Tea—Domestic trade in tea has been good, but with no unusual development. J. & H. Thompson in their latest London report, speaking of Indian, say: Though quotations throughout were very irregular, the auctions, on the whole, passed with more spirit for all grades except commonest, which were not wanted. Improvement in quality is as yet by no means general amongst Assam descriptions, but where this was discernible buyers did not hesitate to bid freely—a feature which augurs well for the few good Autumn teas that may arrive. On the other hand, the trade were equally ready to drop the prices of medium teas with poor liquoring character, offers being sometimes 1-2d per lb. below previous rates. Brokens of all kinds were firm at the decline lately established, the best tippy parcels being in more request, while dusts were inclined to be dearer.

In Ceylons, although prices for the most part were unchanged, and where quality was inferior, even distinctly lower, the trade throughout displayed more confidence, there being a general willingness to do business—a feature which was somewhat lacking last week. Demand, as usual, was largely concentrated on good medium grades between 7d and 8d, while the best broken pekoes met with increased attention, quotations for the latter, in spite of inferior character, being frequently unchanged. Common pekoes about 5d per pound were steady, but inferior pekoe souchongs were again neglected, one or two small lots being withdrawn at 3 1-2 to 3 3-4d per pound. Dusts were in request at fully previous rates, very little being obtainable under 4d, while Indian of similar quality was to be had at 3d per pound.

In Chinas the finer grades of Moning still attract attention, full rates being paid for small quantities. There is also some inquiry for medium Panyongs and a few sales are reported. The excellent value obtainable in the commoner grades of black and red leaf descriptions is stimulating demand for export. The market is practically bare of scented capers under 10d, while oolongs show no change. Foochow orange pekoes have been dealt in from 8 1-2d to 9 1-2d per pound.

Coffee—The demand for coffee continues to maintain itself, but shows no material advancement. There is no quotable change in prices since our last issue. Willet & Gray's weekly statement says: The arrivals of mild coffees from July 1 to February 1 are fully 500,000 bags less than the same time last season, and continue to decrease in the same ratio, so that the movement up to the end of the season can be expected to fall 1,000,000 bags below the total of last year. The total Rio and Santos receipts are so far 100,000 bags less than a year ago. Another thing is certain: that consumption is constantly increasing and has considerably diminished the invisible supplies during the past two years, but in the face of this increasing consumption and decreasing production (world's visible 1,700,000 bags less than a year ago) the coffee world is again looking at the Brazilian "predictions" of large crops, apparently heedless of previous failures. A year ago heavy rains caused a large quantity of berries to fall from the trees. As similar weather has been and is being experienced in the coffee regions of Brazil this year, predictions of a large crop are premature and doubtful. The trade can better afford to be guided by facts as they are than by future predictions that seldom materialize.

Foreign Dried Fruits—The market is still strong; sales have been only ordinary and very little alteration in quotations are necessary. Foreign markets are firm, particularly in raisins, currants and dates, and all reports denote a maintenance of prices.

B. C. News.

Vancouver, Feb. 8, 1906.

Following the plebiscite taken on the market question at the civic elections early last month, the trades and industries committee of the Vancouver City Council has been discussing definite plans. The location was fixed by the vote taken, and now the city engineer is getting out plans for a proposed $100,000 building. The by-law to raise debenture funds for this amount will have to be submitted to the rate-payers. The hope of creating a very considerable attraction for the ranching population by establishing the market is getting a strong support for the proposition among the business men.

Because there was but one tender for supply of groceries for the current year for civic institutions, one of the aldermen accused the retail grocery trade of being in a combine with the intention of putting up prices on the city. The lone bidder, the City Grocery Co., Limited, comes back with an offer of $500 to be given to any public charity to be named by the alderman if he can prove his assertions, which the company indignantly deny so far as their knowledge is concerned. They claim that the prices they formerly had did not give a profit, as small quantities had frequently to be supplied on special delivery. The grocer who had the contract last year did not bid again, and he is quoted as saying that he made no money at the prices he bid. The fact that there are some 200 grocers, large and small, in the city, makes it almost impossible to get an association together, let alone a combine. The City Grocery Co.'s $500 is still awaiting a taker.

This week the sugar ship, Cambrian King, with 5,000 tons of raw sugar from the Mauritius for the B. C. Sugar Refinery, discharged cargo at the refinery wharf. The Aysgarth, which is the next vessel expected with sugar cargo, is 60 days out from Demerara. The steamer Indradeo is under charter to bring raw sugar cargo from Fiji to Vancouver. Heretofore the Canadian-Australian line steamers have been the only vessels to bring raw sugar from Fiji.

The annual convention of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association was held in Vancouver yesterday and to-day. Mr. R. M. Palmer, immigration commissioner, who has returned from England, brought for exhibition before the convention the gold medal for fruit which was won over all competitors at the Earls Court Exposition a short time ago.

In the markets.—The jobbers report that they are quite satisfied with the way January trade totalled up, though, as was to be expected, it was rather quiet. The retail trade is in very satisfactory condition and both wholesale and retail report money fairly easy and collections correspondingly good.

Prospects for the approaching season are perhaps the brightest and broadest in the experience of the wholesale trade of this province. Added to the steady expansion of the province in every line, and most particularly in the way of settlement and development of agricultural lands, the prosperity of the mining industry wherever it is being prosecuted, the unprecedented expansion of the timber trade, and the very lively expectation of considerable railroad building in the coming season, give three factors of very great importance. True, it is hardly to be expected that there will be much stir in the salmon fishing industry of the Fraser River, as this is counted one of the "off years," but the northern fishing is every year expanding and there are several more canneries to be operated on northern British Columbia rivers in 1906. The establishment of traps on Vancouver Island is insuring that there will be at least a fair proportion of the fish which head for the Fraser River, caught in Canadian instead of American nets. If half the railway building is carried on this season that is projected, there will be plenty of trade to keep everyone busy.

Produce.—For the first time this season eggs have been imported into this market. Oregon fresh ranch eggs are plentiful now at the uniform quotation of 32½c. to the trade. As they are quite as fresh as the local new laid stock, the price of the latter has fallen to the same figure. Local fresh eggs are becoming very plentiful, so much so that some retailers, even in the city, are offering quantities to the wholesale trade. Very few case eggs of good quality remain on the market. They are not very good sellers now that fresh stock is freely offered. The pickled stock is selling down from 25 cents, as to quality.

Good stock eastern butter, though not plentiful, is being received in quantities to meet demand. It sells at 28c in packages. Local creamery still brings 35c., and as supply is not likely to increase for some time, and demand is not met, the price will stand yet.

Groceries.—White beans and other varieties of dried beans are entirely supplied to this market from California and for some years none have been shipped from the east. The only local supply ever handled here is in a limited way from Ashcroft and Spence's Bridge, and of this stock the quality is fine, but the growers demand more than the trade can afford to pay. The California stocks are selling here to the trade at: White, 2¾c.; Lima, 5c; pinks, 3½c.; Bayous, 4¼c. Quantity is unlimited.

Demand for raisins is light at present, and prices stand at 9½c. to 10c., but easy at that. If there were much inquiry prices would likely drop as stocks are pretty heavy.

Dried fruits show no changes this week and demand is but fair. The same condition is reported of canned stocks. In both lines fair stocks are held, but not offered, as northern orders will require the larger part of what is on hand. Strawberries canned in the State of Washington are held on order for northern supply, because of the scarcity of that line in the east.

Fruit.—Coldstream apples are cleaned up. Lytton and other places in the upper Fraser valley are supplying a fairly good quantity and of very fine quality. Some better class stock from lower mainland orchards is also being offered. Good fruit brings as high as $2 per case. Lower mainland is quoted at $1.25 to $1.75 per box.

Car lots of oranges are being received, and the quality is very fine now. The fact that the market got pretty well cleaned up during the three weeks of rainy season in California recently when the packers were not shipping, has given prices an upward tendency. They range from $2.75 to $3.50 per case. The chances of further increase are, however, slight.

Bananas are being received regularly. They are coming in fine shape and moving out well. A car from Limon is due on the 15th.

Rhubarb of local growth, forced, of course, is being offered and brings about 12c. per lb. It is very choice.

Vegetables. — Lettuce of hot-house growth, usually in good supply all Winter, has been scarce this week. Victoria green-houses supply the major part of the trade, but they have got behind orders, and it will be a week before fresh supplies will be in. Celery is pretty high yet. It is, of course, all from California now. Quotation is 75c. per dozen. Cabbage, also from California, is bringing 3½c. Cauliflower, another line brought from California, is of very good quality and selling at $1.50 per dozen. Green onions and parsley very tastily put up in small cartons and produced locally are being offered.

Only Yakima potatoes are now offering for choice stock, as no Ashcrofts are obtainable. The quotation is firm at $30 per ton. Local lower Fraser stock is anything from $16 per ton down.

Australian onions will be in by the March steamer. At present the Oregon market supplies this, and the price is 3c.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, Feb. 10, 1906.

A drop of 40 cents per hundred pounds in the price of sugar here has caused some excitement among the grocery trade, and the consumer is jubilant as the result. Such a heavy drop at one time is something unusual on this market. The decline is confined principally to Austrian granulated and was made by the wholesale merchants and not the refineries. The price quoted here now is $3.70 per hundred pounds. The retailers are taking every advantage of the slump in prices, and are booming sugar in every quarter. In the sections of the city where the business rivalry is keen, the retailers are advertising and selling 27 pounds of this grade of sugar for one dollar, or $3.75 per bag of 100 pounds, which is only five cents profit on the wholesale market price. There is some inside to this slump in price, and just at the present time it is impossible to get at the bottom of it. Those who are most interested in it decline to make a statement. The other grades of sugar remain unchanged, the quotations being as follows:

Granulated XXX	$4.20
Bright yellow	4.00
No. 1 yellow	3.70
Unbranded	3.55

The Fish Market.

The local market is well stocked with fresh fish—haddock, cod, smelts, halibut, (cold storage), and lobsters. Clams are plentiful, and there are a few island oysters on the market. These are worth $7 and $8 a barrel, and retail at $1 per quart. American oysters (in tins) are handled here in large quantities at this season of the year. There is not a very heavy demand for fresh fish just at present. The local consumption is very light, and the foreign markets are reported to be over supplied and very depressed. This is particularly so of the Porto Rico market, Trinidad, and other islands of the West Indies. There is a slight improvement in the Cuban market, and prices are steadier, cod being quoted there at $8. Fresh herring are selling here at $5 per barrel, and they are in fairly good demand. Though the weather has been mild and favorable, the arrivals of fish here are very small. Two cargoes of fish which arrived here from Lunenburg were disposed of for $5.50 and $5.75. It is stated that the fishermen along the coast have not many fish left in the stores. The dealers here expect that the demand as usual for fish during the Lenten season will be large, and they are looking forward to early and increased foreign shipments

Eggs.

Newly laid eggs at 20 cents per dozen is something unprecedented in these parts during the early days of February, nut such is the prevailing figure at the present time, and strange to say there is no scarcity. At other Winter seasons there would be a scramble among the jobbers to secure good fresh stock at any price, but it is not so this year. In fact eggs seem so plentiful on the market that the jobbers have assumed an air of independence, and dealers from outside points have found this out during the past few days. Some persons from shore points who brought large quantities of eggs to the city, refused 20 cents per dozen for their stock, preferring to take them back home where the price was just as good, and in some cases a little better. Should the mild weather continue the price is expected to show a further decline. The local demand for fresh laid eggs is fairly good. Case eggs which have been in stock for several months are quoted at 18 cents, and they are selling slow at that price. It is reported that some jobbers have very large stocks of case eggs in cold storage and this unexpected supply of fresh laid eggs coming on the market now is a very serious matter for those who have the large holdings.

Butter.

The butter situation is improving as regards the supply, but the price holds very firm. Fresh country butter is being marketed in considerable quantities by the farmers themselves, the mild weather aiding them very greatly in travel. The stocks of butter held by the jobbers here are very large, and the fresh made article coming direct from the farmers is injuring their trade, the farmer dealing direct with the consumer. Quotations here are as follows : Creamery prints, 26 cents ; small tubs, 25 cents ; creamery boxes, 24 cents ; rolls, 22 to 24 cents, according to quality.

Pork.

Fresh pork is a very scarce article on this market. But few hogs are coming to the city, and the dealers are at a loss to know where to draw a supply from. During the week some of the large sausage makers had to suspend operations owing to the scarcity of pork. Nine cents is the price quoted, and most dealers decline to offer above that figure, as they claim that it is impossible for them to handle it and make any money out of it at a higher price. The demand everywhere appears to be good. Those who have hogs alive are still holding out for more money, as they are familiar with the condition of the market at the present time.

Collections Good.

Jobbers report business very satisfactory, and up to all expectations as far as the city trade is concerned, but business from outside points is a little slow. Collections in most cases are very good.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, Feb. 15, 1906.

Business continues rather quiet except in regard to that pertaining to Winter port traffic. This will be a record year. Every effort is being made to have adequate facilities for the further increase expected next season. This is of great importance, as the size of the steamers which will want to come will both require deeper water and longer wharves. It begins to look as if the great increase in the size of steamers would greatly affect Montreal in the Summer business. If Quebec is awake she should find in this her opportunity.

In markets there is little of interest. There is a further decline in sugar. In spices, ginger is rather higher. Cloves, while still high, are rather easier. Pimento and cinnamon are firmer. Cream of tartar, which a week or two ago touched a low point, already shows an advance and is firm.

Oil—While there is still a steady sale for burning oil, the price of which is low, it is not so important a factor in trade. Lubricating oils have a fair sale for later delivery, but the outlook is just fair. In paint oils prices will rule high, linseed oil being much higher than last season. The prices were at that time extremely low. Turpentine is extreme and seems likely to be even higher. Cod oil has been at a good price all season, showing better value than was expected, owing to large outside demand.

Salt—In Liverpool coarse salt prices are firmly held. Imports have been somewhat larger during the last few weeks and there being but a fair demand there is a considerable increase in stock held in store. In fine salt some small shipments of Liverpool factory filled have been received. Owing to the increased sale of Canadian fine, imports are much smaller than a few years ago.

Canned Goods—Vegetables are still being sold cheap. Peas are very low. Corn is firmer and better values should rule. Tomatoes are higher and the situation is a firm one, the more so because the high price in the United States will prevent our getting supplies there as has been done during the past two seasons; however, in the face of this, some are found naming a lower figure than they could replace at. In meats, prices will rule low, though dealers could not now buy at the price at which many made their contracts for Spring. Salmon and fruits unchanged. A fair sale for apples. Oysters firmer. In domestic fish a fair stock of sardines; other lines short supply; some nice Jamaicas still offered. Lemons low and just a fair business. In apples, best stock brings high prices, but low grade stock is hard to sell at any figure. Nice Malaga grapes still offered. Cranberries, owing to extreme price, are not imported.

Dried Fruit—California seeded raisins have somewhat recovered from the decline. Prices are still reasonable; there is a good sale. Valencias have had the best season for some years, ruling much lower than other varieties. Prunes are firmer, particularly small sizes. Apricots and peaches firm; sales small. Dates a fair stock; prices rather higher; there is improved demand each year for package dates. Figs and peels dull. The latter are higher. Evaporated apples hold at high figures, which affects the sale and makes a fair demand for dried. Onions are easy; Canadian stock has kept poorly. Some Valencia onions have been imported; these bring a higher price.

Molasses—There is a fair demand; prices are easy. The fancy Barbadoes being imported is having a good demand, and if present price can be maintained, will be an active competitor of Porto Rico.

Fish—The broken weather has affected business in fresh fish, for which there is a good demand at this season; quite full prices rule. In dry fish values are still high, though market somewhat dull. Pickled herring are in light supply and high figures rule. Smoked herring hold firm at full figures. Haddies rather quiet.

SECURED AGENCY FOR THE STATES.

The A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Company, who have for about a year represented Maconochie Bros. & Co., of London, England, in Toronto and the Province of Ontario, have secured the agency for the same firm for the Province of Quebec, and also for the United States. This is not only a tribute to the satisfactory manner in which the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Company looked after their principals' business in Ontario, but is peculiarly interesting from the fact that a Canadian firm has been given charge of the business of an English company in the United States. It is usually the other way around.

The agreement between the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Company and Maconochie Bros. was consummated this week. Mr. A. W. Maconochie visited New York and there had a conference with Mr. Henry Wright, the president, and Mr. C. L. Marshall, the manager, of the agency department of the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Company. The two latter gentlemen returned to Canada on Wednesday. They regretted that they could not bring Mr. Maconochie with them, but the latter's visit to this continent was so brief that he had not time to go beyond New York.

Among the lines manufactured by Maconochie Brothers are preserved fish, peels, pickles, sauces, marmalade and jams, and, as pointed out in The Grocer a few weeks ago, their trade has recently grown enormously in Canada.

"The Canadian Grocer" the Official Organ.

Address all communications for this department to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 511 Union Bank Building, Winnipeg, Man.

Secretary Coulson returned early in the week from a successful trip in Saskatchewan, and handed to The Canadian Grocer the following list of new members: H. Stevenson, Bishop & Reddin, H. Brandon grocers have for some time had their own retail association, and it has been very successful. Realizing the benefits of affiliation with an association comprising the trade of three provinces, they have joined the Western Association.

It should be clearly understood by the trade that the invitation to the convention this week is not confined to the members of the association, but that all bone fide retailers will be made welcome.

On January 30 the first local meeting of the Dauphin branch was held in McCreary, the dealers present being Jno. Campbell, Mackinac; Jos. Hemlin and Harry Houde, St. Rose du Lac; U. Trottier, P. Trottier and Jos. Boisvert, Laurier; J. Burgoyne, S. Burgoyne, P. Riddell and Jas. Riddell, McCreary. J. Boisvert acted as chairman and John Burgoyne as secretary, and were later elected president and secretary of the Dauphin branch, while John Campbell was elected vice-president. A price list on staples was adopted. Another meeting will be held on the 10th inst.

ANNUAL MEETING OF W.R.M.A.

The annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association opened in Manitoba Hall, Winnipeg, on Tuesday afternoon, the 13th inst., with a fair attendance of dealers from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Albert.

The secretary-treasurer's report was in part as follows:

Mr. President and Gentlemen:—I beg herewith to submit my first annual report. The term just closed has been a very busy one in the way of organization work, and the association has been placed in such a position that its success is assured. The membership has been increased by over 400, and branches of the association have been formed in the greater part of the three Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. From what I can learn these branches are in fairly good working order, considering that this is practically the first year in the life of the association, and that it is therefore still in its infancy.

In the course of my work in the new provinces I have found that it will be necessary to increase the strength of our executive in order to give Saskatchewan and Alberta an equal representation with Manitoba. The three provinces are now well represented in our membership, and I believe that at this convention we should elect our standing and special committees, and settle down to a business basis of association management.

Before electing your executive for the ensuing year a revision of your by-laws and constitution will be necessary for the reason that, while the present by-laws and constitution were sufficient at the time of organization, they are inadequate now.

I would also strongly advise the publication of a monthly or semi-monthly trade bulletin or publicity sheet, which could be mailed to our members free. We could publish in this paper the names of "dead beats" or bad pay customers on the following basis:

If any of our members having on their books a number of people from whom they cannot collect—and I am sure that all have some—will send in the name and address, with the account in duplicate, to the head office of the association, the account will then be mailed to the delinquent, with a request to arrange settlement before a certain date, failing which his name will be listed and he will be unable to get further credit in his vicinity. This will have the result of securing payment in the majority of cases, and the list will be a protection to association members, as by reference to it they can ascertain whether an applicant for credit has settled with his last dealer. It will also prevent the same customer from running more than one unpaid account. This publication will not cost the association or its members anything, as I am satisfied I can secure enough advertising to cover the cost.

The report then emphasized the necessity of establishing a permanent office in the office quarter of the city, the work of the association having grown to such proportions as to make this absolutely necessary.

The financial statement showed that the association had been able from the membership fees to pay all the expenses of an expensive year, devoted entirely to organization work, and that there was a small balance on hand, and with the fees for the coming year the association could easily be financed.

"In conclusion," said the report, "I believe that, considering the wide scope of the work that has been carried on, the association has reason for gratification at the present satisfactory state of the finances, and that we may see in the work of the past year many reasons for gratification. A great deal of good work has been accomplished, the heavy part of the organization work completed, and the expenditure has not exceeded the receipts. The association has reached a point in its development where its high ideals and its sincerity are beyond question. What its future shall be depends on the earnest co-operation of its members."

E. M. Trowern, of Toronto secretary of the Dominion association, was present and in a two hours' speech urged the affiliation of the Western association with the Dominion association. The Western Hardware Association met in the same hall, and after consultation it was decided that both associations should become sections of the Dominion association. It was also decided that the general merchants' section and the hardware section of the west should have a joint board which would supervise matters of common interest. The general merchants' section elected the following officers: President, J. F. Hunter, Boissevain; first vice-president, R. Bogue, Moosejaw; second vice-president, J. A. MacDougal, Edmonton; secretary, W. A. Coulson; treasurer, J. D. Baine, Boissevain.

The officers of the western board, which includes also the hardware merchants, are now as follows: President, W. G. McLaren, Souris; first vice-president, G. K. Smith, Moosejaw; second vice-president, H. C. Hamelin, Winnipeg; secretary, W. A. Coulson; treasurer, J. E. McRobie.

A mass meeting of the western board including general merchants and hardwaremen, was held on Wednesday night and addressed by wholesale men.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

The cheese market in Great Britain seems to have had a gradual decline in prices lately. It is an open question, however, whether this is a genuine weakness or a manipulated one by interested parties wishing to buy goods at a lower price than what holders are willing to accept. At any rate, the quantity of goods for sale in Canada is so very limited that this move has made no impression on holders' ideas of the value of their goods and, meanwhile at least, they pay no attention to lower offers from the British markets, but they remain firm and quietly await buyers to come on.

There have been a number of cable inquiries lately, and although but very little real business has resulted, this has encouraged holders not to sacrifice their goods. Recent estimates of total stocks of cheese in Canada are placed at 115,000 to 125,000 boxes. Of these only about 25,000 boxes are actually offered for sale, the balance being held here for account of British importers, and, with fully two and a half months of non-production before us, this quantity cannot possibly cause any anxiety on the part of the holders.

There are several "bear" arguments being brought out now: one is a larger production of New Zealand cheese. It appears that the New Zealanders had contracted their "output" of butter, but finding cheese the better paying product they stopped making butter and are making cheese instead. Another argument is that the Canadian fodder make of cheese will start earlier. But how can we make new milk cheese before the cows come in? And no matter what the relative value of butter and cheese may be when the new milk comes in, many farmers would rather make butter than cheese, as they need the skim milk to feed to their stock.

Last week the 24th annual convention of the Huntingdon Dairymen's Association was held.

Mr. Robert Ness, president and chairman, in opening the convention, said that he knew of stables into which the light never entered, unless the door was opened—a state of things which should not be.

Mr. L. Simpson, of Vallevfield, stated that in the future a proper record would be kept of the production of each cow in the Montreal Cotton Company's herd on their farm at Vallevfield. It was well known that many cows did not yield enough milk to pay for their keep, although it was also true that some Canadian herds averaged 6,000 pounds each per annum, while there were instances of a 10,000 pound average.

Mr. C. F. Whitley, of Ottawa, addressed the convention on the improvement of dairy herds. No indifference should be manifested by the farmer on this subject, because the average output of the cow in Canada could be easily doubled. The cost of testing milk three times a month was really very trifling. The first cow testing association had been organized at Cowansville, and three others had since been formed to secure improvement in the individual animal, which was the crucial point, and the very root and foundation of successful dairy farming. In Denmark, under this system, the product of milk per cow had been increased over 800 pounds a year, and in butter from 30 to 50 pounds within three years, and on 9,000 farms, possessing 165,000 cows, daily tests were made. In one district alone in that country the average of 50,000 cows had been raised to over 7,700 pounds of milk per annum. The average product of milk in Ontario was only 1,000 pounds per acre, although on some farms the yield was three times as much, and this was more like the standard. In every herd they had tested they had found as great a difference as something over $25 per annum between the poorest and the best animals.

Mr. J. H. Grisdale, farm instructor of Ottawa, stated that one million cows in Quebec averaged only 1,200 pounds of milk per head, and strongly recommended the daily weighing of the milk as the best and most profitable system. Testing only took one minute per day, or half an hour per month. He gave the instance of a discouraged dairyman who was only getting $34.50 per annum per head out of his cows, but after adopting the daily test he raised his yield during the following year over $5 per head during a period, moreover, of low prices. Finding out by his tests that he had three or four poor cows, he got rid of them and increased his average to $50 per cow: $60 and then $70 followed, and in 1904, which was a very bad year for prices, a little over $60—in 1905 $75. This man, after the cheese factories closed, sent his milk to Montreal. He strongly advised farmers to stick to grade cows. In another case, in Vandreuil county, there were two men living and working side by side. One had 13 and the other from 39 to 40 cows. Six years ago the former bought a good, pure bred bull, and the result was that this man, with the small band, had a monthly income of from $80 to $90, compared with the other man's $90 to $100.

Mr. Grisdale next discussed sanitation in connection with dairying and food for the stock in a most interesting manner, and the convention was a decided success.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

No new feature of importance has transpired since our last report; the volume of domestic trade has been good and prices well maintained.

Arrivals of live hogs have been slow and unimportant during week under review, and would have been barely sufficient to keep factories going had not the previous week's arrivals been over abundant. This circumstance shows in a clear way the uncertainty of farmers' deliveries. Prices have been ruling high for some long time, and have practically placed the industry on an unremunerative basis. When, therefore, the drop in export markets was reported, and a corresponding drop in values on the purchasing market here took place, farmers at once held back deliveries, and when approached refused to sell. It is expected that arrivals will be more abundant next week, and it is probable that competition for hogs will result in a recovery in part, if not in whole, of the recent decline.

Reports from U. S. points make note of firm and advancing markets on that side, and mention the possibility of packers finding difficulty to keep pace with demand.

The English market is firm at previous decline, but buyers are critical as to quality, and are showing disposition to discriminate materially in their buying.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

By Our Own Correspondent.

February 3, 1906.

Another week has passed, but still the London produce markets continue without any improvement. Nor does there seem to be any prospect of better trade in the near future. However, should any one of the produce markets suddenly assume a more satisfactory tone, it would not create any great amount of astonishment, for during the past few months buyers and sellers have been deceived in their surmises on more than one occasion.

Butter.—The market is just now very quiet indeed, if possible more so than last week. In view of the fact that importers have been steadily giving way in the matter of price, it might have been expected that buyers would have seen their way to exhibit some greater alacrity to purchase on the more favorable terms. Apparently they have refrained from rushing at present quotations in the expectation that prices will be forced still lower. It is difficult to believe that retailers, having bought so sparingly during the past few weeks, can have very much on hand. Again, it is difficult to believe that the advance in price per pound has caused any serious difference in the public consumption. Under these circumstances, one might be justified in looking for better transactions before long, but in view of the fact that importers have large quantities of butter on hand, the chances for higher prices seem to be small. From Australia and New Zealand alone, some 72,000 boxes of butter have been received during the past week.

Cheese.—The cheese market is but slightly better than the butter market. It is true that some importers report a slightly stronger demand, but for the most part they advise trade as being very dull. Retailers also say that they are having difficulties in disposing of such supplies as they have, and it would appear that the slowness of the cheese market must be attributed to lack of interest on the part of the consuming public. If this is the case, the very high prices, which have been asked for cheese during the past few months, must be partially responsible for the attitude of the public. Cheese has ceased to be of the same importance as an article of consumption with the lower classes as it used to be, and consequently any fluctuation in price is more likely to affect the consumption. It is understood on this side that supplies of cheese from Canada are not to be expected on so large a scale during the next week or ten days, and sellers are finding satisfaction in this fact.

Bacon.—The market opened with a very slow demand early in the week, and, although there has within the last day or two been an all round reduction of 3s., it cannot be said that the buying is very brisk even at present quotations. A very careful investigation shows that the demand is just a trifle better. "The whole trouble has arisen from the fact that, with such small quantities finding their way to this market, the price of raw material advanced, and sellers have had to squeeze the last penny out of the trade. The demand has thus been almost strangled." So says one of the London produce papers.

Trade has been fairly active in demand, and prices rule firm. The weakening in live hogs which was noted last issue has recovered itself, and dressed prices have also firmed up. Provisions.

In barrel pork there is little of domestic offered. Pack is very light. Even with quite full prices asked for American, local packers find it hard to compete. Beef unchanged; sale very light. A steady sale for smoked meats at full prices. Lard seems firmer, though the American market continues to change from day to day. Very little Canadian offered. Refined lard keeps low. In fresh beef there is slack demand; price, particularly of domestic, is low. In the west a rather firmer feeling reported. Veal is little seen; a fair price asked. Mutton shows a fair value. Lamb is quite firm. Pork keeps high.

FIRMER BACON.

The Canadian trade agent at Leeds refers to the demand for Canadian bacon, and says that the English trade would prefer more hard bacon. Canadian produce is making good headway, and he recommends that effort be made to capture a larger share of the North of England market.

THE PACKING INDUSTRY.

In 1890 there were only two packing houses in the Canadian export bacon trade having a weekly capacity of some 3,000 hogs. Last year the weekly capacity of the sixteen packing houses in operation was about 50,000. According to the season the output from Canada has reached about $15,000,000 annually, or 20 per cent. of the total quantity of bacon imported by Great Britain.

OUTLOOK FOR HOGS IN U. S.

Chicago Live Stock World: There are no indications that enough hogs will arrive during the month of February to let packers out of a deep hole they seem to be in. Local traders estimate the month's run at 600,000 to 750,000. In February, 1905, receipts of hogs were 727,000, and very few men identified with that branch of the live stock trade expect that many this month. Last February prices ranged from $4.40 to $5.12½, but the market was on the upturn, and by April the best hogs were selling at $5.72½. Conditions from the seller's standpoint are better now than they were a year ago. The demand for fresh pork is decidedly stronger, and packers haven't anything stored away to back up a bluff with. There are no hogs in the east, and the demand from that source is so strong that shipments are constantly increasing. All things considered, hog producers have the long end of the stick.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The general condition of the flour and cereal markets has been one of inactivity during the week under review. Domestic trade in flour has had chiefly the character of satisfying immediate requirements, and has lacked any spirit of enterprise. In grain a degree more interest has been apparent, but not of any great importance.

It is reported that about 30 to 40 per cent. of the wheat from the west is more or less smutty, a feature of serious moment to the market, and one which works against ready business.

The export trade has been difficult to manipulate and very little new business enected. A good deal of movement has been going on with some dealers, but this is on account of earlier orders. In flour especially, the export trade has been difficult, English bidding being considerably out of the run of dealers' prices on this side, and apparently prices are inclined to run away down.

The smaller country millers are reporting a somewhat unique situation. Bran and middlings are commanding good sales at high prices, for stock feeds, but the slowness of flour prevents their getting at these products. On this account some millers are disposed to sell out flour on a low basis, so as to keep the mill going and secure bran and middlings for their local buyers, prices of which are sufficiently high to allow a slight shading of values to encourage buyers.

Altogether the outlook is not considered a good one for the immediate future. The key of the situation is with the export trade, and prices offered are unremunerative to present holders.

PRICE OF FLOUR IN WINNIPEG.

The improbability of a great and permanent reduction in the price of flour—a thing fondly hoped for by the housewife—seems to be indicated by the prices of flour for the past three years, which are given below :

	Per bag.
March, 1903, First Patent Hungarian Flour	$2.00
March, 1904, First Patent Hungarian Flour	2.65
January, 1906, First Patent Hungarian Flour	2.45

The cost of flour depends upon three things—cost of wheat, cost of freight and cost of milling. The last two show a reasonable and steady decline, while the first is, as every western farmer knows, exceedingly jumpy. It is true that the cost at present is somewhat down, but no prediction can be made of the price of flour next half year.

Unfortunate it is, that the chief price factor, the cost of raw material, is the only one which can not be expected to drop. Owing to improved methods of milling, and the continuance of a steady demand which enables mills to run at full capacity for long periods, together with the competition in the trade, there is no likelihood that the cost of manufacture will do anything but decline. But this decline will be unimportant. All millers are agreed that competition is keen, and so far as they are concerned, profits are not over-great.

NUTRITIVE VALUE OF FLOUR.

Experiments have been going on for some years at the University of Minnesota to determine the nutritive and digestive qualities of Graham, entire-wheat and standard patent flour.

Graham flour is unbolted ground wheat.

Entire-wheat flour contains all the wheat except a portion of the bran, which is removed with a coarse screen.

Standard patent is a fine, white, bolted flour, containing neither the bran nor the germ.

The different flours were made from the same wheat, and the relative values of each were determined from digestion experiments with healthy young men. In all, seventy-two experiments were made, the result of which showed that while the coarser foods were somewhat superior as regards the total protein and ash present, they were inferior to the white flour as regards digestibility. Without exception, white flour was found to have the most available energy on account of being so much easier than the others to digest.

WINNIPEG'S NEW MILL.

The Western Canada Milling Company is at present rearing a new mill in St. Boniface, which will be driven by electrical power. This motive force is also to be employed shortly in the Ogilvie mills. The power developed will amount to 1,400 horse-power, and both flour and oatmeal mills will be shortly served with the new force. Oatmeal mills will, it is expected, be electrically driven for the first time on the first of March, and the flour mill on the first of May.

Rolled Oats.

On account of a cutting among Ontario millers, the price of rolled oats has been considerably reduced, as prices will show. The peculiar position exists of oats being firmer and higher and the prepared product lower. This cutting will in the long run prove more disastrous for the larger millers than the smaller, the loss being proportionately heavier. How long this will continue is open to question, but it must be a losing game all round.

The local hay market is very steady at present. There is plenty offered and the demand is not very strong. The export market is not so firm as it has been the past three or four weeks. The stocks at Portland, Boston and St. John are pretty well cleared out, as the steamers have taken full cargoes to the United Kingdom.

The markets abroad are fairly steady. The stocks at Liverpool and other points in the United Kingdom are almost cleared up, and English hay is nearly finished. The market is in a receptive condition, but buyers are inclined to refrain from taking hold freely. Indications point to improvement, however, as the market has gained four shillings. GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

TWO FIRST-RATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

There is no better way of "talking type" than that of reproducing well-set advertisements.

This week I was able to secure two first-rate specimens of the art, and no doubt their appearance on this page will be helpful to other grocers.

I consider the announcement of Clancy M. Buell to be one of the best retail advertisements that have run in Canadian papers. Typographically, it is almost perfect. And in phraseology it is just about as strong. Occasionally I come across advertisements that are set attractively, but the matter itself has nothing to commend it.

Buell's advertisement is a pleasing exception. The man who wrote the announcement (and somehow I imagine it was Mr. Buell himself) knew his business, and the man who set it knew his business too.

The advertisement is surrounded by an appropriate border. It is balanced throughout. Only two fonts of type are employed, and the body type is set without an indentation.

Even to the untrained eye an advertisement such as Buell's appeals quickly. There are practically only three things to look at—the two display lines and the text: and all three are divided with uniformity. No matter which margin you select, there is about the same amount of white space.

Clancy M. Buell
I have bought the R. R. Dowsley grocery next to the Recorder office. I have had a good business experience and by careful attention to your wants I hope to merit a generous share of your patronage. I am determined to make freshness, purity and high quality the standard of this store. See how well I can please you.
GROCERIES

And notice the skilful way in which Mr. Buell appeals to his readers. True, a good deal of "I," but not a particle too much for such an occasion. The advertisement of a "new" grocer must necessarily be straightforward and animated and contain more or less laudation of past experience and present principles.

This advertisement of Buell's is worth a study. The layout might be copied or partly copied, and the matter itself is a first-rate exemplar of clear-cut coherent statements.

The advertisement of Gould Bros., which appeared in the "North Ontario Times," while not perhaps so perfect a specimen as the advertisement spoken of above, is a pleasing example of good advertising.

The compositor has here striven for balance and he has met with more than an ordinary measure of success. A neat border is employed. Also a good display type. The border on the centre piece might have been less ornamental, but where the compositor failed to consummate his idea was in the closing sentences of the advertisement.

The matter beginning "Try our 25c. and 40c. Ceylon Teas" and ending with "Town" should have been indented three or four ems like the opening sentences. This would have insured uniformity of style, have preserved balance and would generally have enhanced the effect.

The matter of Gould Bros.' advertisement is strong and pithy and entirely in accord with what one would expect knowing the purpose of the announcement. Grouping off the priced items was a happy idea, besides a good stroke of business. No reader can have any doubt about what is for sale in Gould Bros.' store.

Next week I shall continue my talk on "How Advertisements Might Be Improved," and shall select two or three advertisements from Canadian papers for criticism. Keep this page intact for a comparison of your own.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

The demand for green fruits has been of greatly improved character during week under review. Reports from all points are of practically same nature.

California fruits are well to the front. Oranges have greatly improved in quality, and are evidently controlling public favor. The early arrivals, which were green and immature, somewhat checked the market, but by careful manipulation any evil consequences have been averted. Bananas have also recovered the market, and are ready sellers at firm prices.

Messina lemons are good sellers, and are showing in excellent quality; prices, however, are ruling firm, being influenced by advance reports from primal points. California lemons are easier and are selling mainly at western points.

In Maritime Provinces markets are good, the greater demand being for oranges. Cranberries are practically depleted.

The apple condition is one of great strength. Good fruit commands a good price, and export trade continues excellent. Cables from Liverpool denote good sales and high prices; 11,000 barrels were sold at recent auction at prices ranging from 19s. to 24s. 6d.

Vegetables have only been of moderate local interest.

A SUGGESTED EXPERIMENTAL FARM FOR NIAGARA.

The executive of the Niagara Peninsula United Fruit-Growers' Association had a meeting at St. Catharines on February 3, to take further steps towards requesting the Government to establish an experimental farm in the Niagara district. After a good deal of discussion as to where the farm should be located, a resolution was passed asking the Government to locate the farm where suitable soil may be obtained, adjacent to good hotel accommodation and proper railway facilities.

At the last meeting of the association the appointment of delegates to go before the Tariff Commission at Ottawa to apply for increased tariff on fruit, was left to the executive committee. The executive committee gave out the information that they had not appointed anyone, as none of the fruit-growers around St. Catharines seemed anxious to go, the feeling there being that the tariff should remain as it is, notwithstanding resolutions to the contrary passed at the general meeting of the Niagara Fruit-Growers' Association some time ago. Growers west of there will probably send a deputation to Ottawa on their own account, but there will be probably no representatives from the Niagara Peninsula Fruit-Growers' Association.

LOBSTER TO GIVE WAY TO COD.

News to hand from Louisburg states that the cod fishery will be prosecuted on a more extensive scale from this port next season than for many years past. Of late fishermen have devoted their attention mainly to lobster fishing during the early part of the season. The scarcity of lobsters and the present high prices ruling for codfish will induce many to give up the lobster fishing and devote their whole attention to codfishing.

THE SALMON PACK.

A despatch from Anacortes says: "H. B. Drisko, superintendent of the Northern Fisheries Co's cannery, places the probable pack of sockeye salmon for the coming season at 100,000 cases, or less than one-fourth last season's pack. The Alaska Packers' Association will operate only one cannery on the Sound the coming season."

VICTORIA, B.C., FRUIT MARKETS.

The following interesting paragraphs are extracts from the Victoria, B. C., Times and are noteworthy at the present time as giving an insight into the conditions of the fruit market there:

It has been estimated by some that the orchards of this district are increasing at the rate of about one million trees a year, and that in consequence there will soon be a glut in the fruit market with a corresponding drop in prices below the profit line. In order to find out if such a result is likely to follow the present development of the industry, and also to get an idea of the past season's output, an interview was obtained with Mr. Arthur Brenchley, local manager for F. R. Stewart & Co., who in substance said as follows:

"This last season nine full carloads of large fruits, such as apples, pears, plums and prunes, were shipped from Victoria to Manitoba, and the new provinces. Besides these smaller shipments were made regularly, amounting in all to at least fifteen carloads. Then there was the local demand, which would amount to about three carloads. Although this may not at first sight look very big, yet, when it is considered that the first car was shipped from Victoria in August of 1902, and that the crop last year was below the average, the result is very satisfactory. In spite of the small crop of apples, Bartlett pears and plums there was an increase of about fifteen per cent. over last year's shipments."

The strawberry crop last year was not much more than half the average, yet he estimated that the total output of the district was one hundred and forty thousand pounds or seven carloads. A large part of this was consumed locally, but enough were shipped to keep the eastern buyers in mind of the superior flavor of the Victoria berry.

During the last year or two the packing and grading has very much improved, but even yet there is room for improvement in many cases. The improvement is due to the strict enforcement of the Fruit Act, both Dominion and provincial. There is often a good deal of grumbling at the severity of the inspectors, but it is necessary to be severe if we are to keep the markets. Laxity in packing and grading means the loss of markets, the end of which would be that Victoria would cease to be a shipping point.

Upper British Columbia is entering into the business in competition, and this competition is bound to be keen. There the trees are all young, while in the Victoria district many of the orchards are old, and have been neglected for years, therefore inspection is doubly important. One box of scaly fruit may result in the condemnation of a whole shipment, causing a very great loss to the shipper.

APRICOT DRYING.

The apricot is of the same species as the plum, and a native of Armenia. In appearance it resembles the peach, the color being red on the side next the sun, and the flesh yellow. California largely supplies the American market, although some apricots come from Italy and France. The California apricot blossoms in March and ripens in July. The growers have their own drying plants and work together in the drying season. After the fruit is cut by women and children, it is spread on trays and put into an air-tight chamber where it is sulphured for three hours. This bleaches the fruit and prevents it from becoming wormy. After bleaching it is allowed to remain in the sun for a couple of days, when it is built into large piles in order that it might sweat. When the sweating process is finished it is put into sacks and cases ready for shipment.

VEGETABLE-GROWERS MEET.

The Vegetable-Growers' Association, with George Syme as president, met in the Albion hotel, Toronto, and discussed the best ways to grow celery and rhubarb. On the celery question Mr. Syme expressed his opinion that the best kind of soil for this plant was a sandy loam. Mr. Syme also stated that the rotten heart so often found in the bunches of celery was caused by small insects, and that these insects could be exterminated by a mixture of a bushel of lime, a pound of Paris green, and a pound and a half of alivor, and spreading this mixture around the celery bed.

Mr. Thomas Dilworth, of Weston, spoke on the rhubarb question, stating that the plants should be grown in partial instead of total darkness, as had been the custom of many growers before that time, stating that by so do-

MONTREAL MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

The fruit market has been steady and the demand fair. The present cold weather makes it difficult to safely handle some varieties of fruits and vegetables. Mexican oranges are selling quite freely from $2.35 to $2.50. Valencias advanced 25c. a case on account of the price in foreign markets having been increased. It is expected that within the next ten days there will be another advance in the price of this brand.

One Montreal firm disposed of two cars of lemons on the 12th at $2 to $2.15.

Florida tomatoes, which recently were $5, are now selling $6.50. There has been a rise of ten cents in potatoes, and the prices of most other vegetables have been increased.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

USING A SPECIALTY.

Every dealer who is alert to the best interests of his business recognizes the desirability of having a "leader" of some kind by which his store is distinguished from the ordinary. He does this not only for the actual profit that arises from the sales of this particular line, but for the benefits that redound to the business generally. It is for this reason that some of our most progressive dealers have paid more attention of late to their confectionery department, and those who have done this, have been amply repaid for their trouble and investment.

There is probably no other line carried by the grocer that the general public is so conversant with, as confections. The people have become educated in this line, to want the best and purest that can be produced, and the dealer who will make it a feature to procure the choicest of bon-bons and confectionery will find it a good investment.

Few other lines carried will give the tone and superiority to a business as will the reputation of having a good line of confections always on hand. In the showcase they can be arranged tastily and without taking up a great deal of room, and as a window decoration they are most attractive and pleasing.

COLORED CONFECTIONERY.

A bulletin dealing with highly-colored confectionery was issued by the Inland Revenue Department. One hundred and eleven samples were collected, the chief object being to ascertain whether any of the colors used in the manufacture of such sweetmeats contained mineral impurity, under which term is understood metals, lead and arsenic. The examination resulted in demonstrating the entire absence of these metals. In only one case was the presence of arsenic shown, but in such a very minute quantity as to be completely harmless.

A CONFECTIONERY WINDOW.

The pretty effects that can be obtained with the use of bon-bons and other confectionery in window dressing are numerous and varied. Apart from fruits, perhaps, nothing else in the store can compare with them in attractiveness, and nothing else can be arranged so indicative of what you would wish the general tenor of the store to be.

It is said that clothes do not make the man; that may be, but they certainly have their place in forming the first impression. So the dressing of the window goes far to give an impression of what may be found behind that window.

It is not necessary, and perhaps not advisable where one's window space is limited, to give it all up to the display of confectionery, but at least a part of the window can be profitably appropriated for this purpose. The use of fancy baskets is one of the prettiest and latest ways of exhibiting sweets. These baskets should be shallow and not too large. They may be square, round, heart shape or in fact any shape the dealer chooses, and the more attractive they are of themselves, the greater will be their value in bringing out the beauty of the display. A layer of colored paper shavings is first placed in the baskets, and on top of this are laid the bon-bons in symmetrical rows. The advantages of these shallow baskets are two-fold. On account of only one layer being used, a small amount makes quite an elaborate display, and for the same reason the contents of the baskets may be easily changed from time to time without fear of any under ones being marked by pressure.

The deck of the windows should be raised say six or eight inches for an exhibit of this kind in order to take away the appearance of any flatness which might result from the use of the shallow baskets.

If only part of the window is used for this display, it had better be placed on an elevation in the centre, and surrounded by the other things that are to be shown, which of course, must be something which will be in harmony with the confectionery—say nice clean-looking fruit, either domestic or imported.

NUTMEGS GALORE.

A wholesale grocer in a Canadian city not long since received an order from a country merchant which read something like this:

"Please send me 3 bls. of sugar and 3 of nutmegs." The sales manager, who received the order, thought that 3 bbls. of nutmegs were wanted as well as 3 bbls. of sugar, but in order to comply with the request he had to send out on the street and buy up practically all the available stock in sight.

Of course the country customer did not want 3 bbls. of nutmegs and he is at a loss to understand how the wholesaler should have thought that he did. "Why, my dear sir," he said, "I could not sell 3 bbls. of nutmegs in fifty years."

It is an interesting fact that the Province of Alberta has twelve creameries under Government control with an output of 800,000 lbs. annually, and ten creameries which are run privately.

PROGRESSIVE RETAILING

COMMERCIAL EDUCATION; HOW TO SYSTEMATIZE IT.

The fifth congress of the German Association for the Improvement of Commercial Education was held at Wiesbaden recently. The congress was attended by 200 delegates, mostly representatives and members of the various chambers of commerce throughout Germany.

It was decided to recommend more intensive methods in the instruction of commercial geography, and to use every possible effort to add to the pupil's knowledge of products. Technical training as to the proper application and worth of different raw materials was of prime importance to every student. The idea of this is to give young men an opportunity to learn a business in every detail, for the reason that such expert knowledge is often of inestimable value in times of a crisis or strikes.

A large manufacturer of hosiery in Chemnitz says that during the 25 years of his business experience he had at different times occupied almost every position in his factory. The very fact that he was in a position to do this never failed to impress his workmen and officials, and always exerted a salutary influence upon them. It also had a tendency to keep many of them from threatening to quit their places for various reasons, and his thorough knowledge of all the details of manufacture enabled him to have a better appreciation of the capacity of his employes for work as well as putting him in a position to enforce a stricter standard of discipline.

It was decided at the congress to take immediate steps to introduce one uniform system of stenography into all the commercial schools. Thus far various systems of stenography have been put in use throughout the empire, much to the detriment of young men coming out of the schools and entering upon practical life by taking up positions in business houses. A committee was appointed to thoroughly examine into the different systems now in use and to select the most practical one for exclusive and permanent use.

The apprentice system of training is very widely extended in Germany. Apprentices from the small villages in the country swarm to the larger cities to learn trades, etc. It has been found necessary to establish permanent homes for these boys in order to safeguard them from evil associations and to surround them as much as possible with home or parental influence. It was also recommended that apprentices living with their parents should also visit these homes wherever practicable. Such homes have already been established in Kiel and Lubeck, with the most satisfactory results to the Association for the Improvement of Commercial Education.

The question of commercial education for women was discussed at length. There are at present commercial schools for girls at Cologne, Berlin, Cassel and Munich. These schools have passed the experimental stage. They have been proved a success, and henceforth they are to become a permanent thing, to be established alongside the commercial schools existing for boy apprentices all over the empire. During the past ten years Germany has thrown open wide the doors of her universities, as well as opening many of the professions to women, and their advent into many phases of commercial life has now become a part of the established order of things. The only question now is how to best prepare them to fill mercantile positions of importance and trust. It was decided at the congress in Wiesbaden to recommend decisive measures for the establishment and maintenance of girl apprentice schools wherever necessary in Germany.

The present condition of the commercial universities at Leipzig, Cologne, Aachen, and Frankfort was discussed. The question of the feasibility of admitting foreigners was debated at length. The conclusion reached was that the commercial universities occupied a different position than the technical schools, which have been agitating against foreigners of late. In the commercial schools no pronounced commercial secrets are treated ; therefore it was only right that foreigners should be admitted, only it might be well to insist that all students from foreign countries should be equally as well prepared for the work as German students. The policy of refusing to admit foreigners generally to German universities was condemned as something which would reflect discredit upon the country and probably lead to some form of retaliation on the part of some neighboring countries.

Commercial education in Germany is still a subject which continues to interest all classes of the people. The work is not allowed to rest. There seems to be everywhere a keen realization of the fact that upon the right training of the young men and young women depends the commercial and industrial future of the empire. To achieve this end, therefore, the governments of the different German states are lending every effort to aid municipal and private enterprise in the establishment of schools for the furtherance of practical commercial education.

THE COST OF DOING BUSINESS.

A question which occupies the attention of many retail traders, as well as of the trade press, is: what is the cost of doing business in a general store?

Certainly there can be none of greater importance to those engaged in that line, and yet we hold it to be evident that no accurate general answer can be given to it, so much depends on the location, the lines carried, the methods employed and the volume of business done.

So far as we can judge, the object of those making this inquiry is to show that running expenses are greater than people generally calculate on and to establish therefrom the conclusion that selling prices should be increased. This, however, is impossible in nearly every case, since these prices are governed by a variety of influences and cannot be altered by considerations of that sort.

People who bring up the question of running expenses as an argument for increasing prices, are, according to our ideas, approaching the issue from the wrong side, or as it is vulgarly styled, barking up the wrong tree. There are two methods of adjusting profits to running expenses, one of which is to vary the assortment of goods sold in order to approximate the average profit necessary to leave a sufficient margin over expenses, and the other is to so adjust prices as to secure the best obtainable results in volume of trade and net profit, which may possibly mean a reduction in prices in some cases instead of an increase.

These two principles are among the most important in the science of merchandising. They explain how it comes that prices on a considerable variety of goods may be such as to fall short of yielding an adequate rate of profit, while yet the business may be on the whole an exceedingly lucrative one.

A minor consideration in the problem is the adjustment of the sort of goods carried so that the business can be done on the whole at the minimum of expense, that is chiefly by carrying lines which fit best into each other and can be handled at the smallest cost for help.

All successful businesses are run according to these rules, though undesignedly, without doubt, in many cases.

JUDICIOUS BUYING.

Good buying is no less important than good selling. The profit on a year's business often represents the margin made by taking advantage of the best market for each individual purchase. By skilful buying the selling price can be made so attractive that a quick turnover of stock is assured.

Good merchandising does not consist in making big sales from as small a stock as will permit of giving efficient service. There is no good purpose subserved in doing a big business, if the merchant has to have so much money tied up in his stock that his profits, great as they may be, just pay interest on his investment.

If the markets are carefully watched and the demands of his trade systematically studied, a retailer should be able to get the best results out of a fair investment. The trade paper will keep him posted on the one and his daily experience should provide him with the facts on the other.

There are two extremes to be guarded against in buying. The one is overstocking. By this a man is prevented from keeping his stock as well assorted as he should in those lines which prove most popular. He has laid in such a large and varied supply that he cannot afford to encourage the sale of what customers really want, for it would mean the shelving of his present stock.

"When I am unable to give 'full value,' I will cease making cigars."—J. Bruce Payne.

The foremost circumstance to which I can attribute my cigar success is an unswerving allegiance to the motto: "Full Value."

I do not ever expect to have to make the one leaf less valuable than they are to-day. The Pebble is a high-grade Havana-filled cigar, generous in proportion. It is the leading 5c. cigar; in fact, a number of grocers sell it at 10c. The Pharaoh filler is thoroughly matured Manicaragua tobacco, the best Connecticut broadleaf is the binder, and a clear Sumatra is the wrapper. The Pharaoh is the "ideal smoke."

By being so "particular" I sacrifice a certain amount of profit, but then I have the satisfaction of knowing that my cigars please the seller and smoker alike, and that satisfaction is profit to me.

I want the grocers of this country—every one—to line up behind me in a stand for "full value" cigars. I want them to show that they are interested by ordering 1,000 of the Pebble and Pharaoh, selling the former at 5c. and the latter at 10c. My terms are Fair—the fairest ever offered.

The Powers Behind the Tobacco Throne

5. Reliability All Round

To be able to put your trust in a certain line of tobacco and thereby win the confidence of your customers is ideal tobacco-selling conditions.

These ideal conditions surround the grocer who, recognizing the reliability of T. & B., selects it for his store.

is a tobacco that gives satisfaction all round, because smokers can bank on the flavor and grocers can bank on the sales.

Some grocers have been selling T. & B. for years, and they tell us that never once have they had their faith shaken. Pretty convincing, isn't it?

What say YOU as regards an order?

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

NOTHING FOR SOMETHING.

While it is good business for the cigar dealer to furnish as many conveniences to his customers as possible, yet there are cases where the giving away of something for nothing does not bring its due reward. An instance is given by a San Francisco trade journal.

A local retailer whose store was opposite the general post office, observing that writing accessories were not furnished to the public in the latter, conceived the idea of providing pens and ink, envelopes and writing paper free, to such as should seek them in his store. The idea apparently met the entire approval of the public, which availed itself of it liberally. As a business proposition, however, it cannot be pronounced a success, for while the plan has been in operation nearly a year, the total business results that can be traced to it are the sale of a five-cent cigar. On one occasion, says the dealer, a man wrote for about two hours and went away without as much as saying "thank you," while not an uncommon happening is for a man, after using the writing materials, deliberately to walk across the street and buy a cigar from a competitor at the corner.

It is true that the retailer in question claims to be actuated by motives of philanthropy and refuses to consider himself ill used, but the incident may give food for thought to less altruistic dealers who hold charity to be a better proposition than justice, and believe that half a cent expended on a gift makes up for a cent's worth of inferiority in the goods.

PRAISE OF TOBACCO.

"Here," said a Chicago antiquary, "is a tract that should interest you—a rare tract in praise of tobacco. It is dated 1665, and it deals with the pestilence. The price is $14." The dusty little book was called "A Brief Treatise of the Nature, Causes, Signs, Preservation from and Cure of the Pestilence." The author was given as "W. Kemp, Mr. of Arts." The passage about tobacco, which came among a list of devices for purifying the air, said eloquently:

"The American silver-weed, or tobacco, is very excellent for this purpose, and an excellent defence against bad air, being smoked in a pipe, either by itself or with nutmegs shred and rewseeds mixed with it, especially if it be nosed; for it cleanseth the air and choaketh, suppresseth and disperseth all venomous vapour; it hath singular and contrary effects; it is good to warm one being cold, and will cool one being hot. All ages, all sexes, all constitutions, young and old, men and women, the sanguine, the cholerick, the melancholy, the phlegmatick, take it without any manifest inconvenience; it abates hunger, and yet will get one a good stomach; it is agreeable with mirth or sadness, with feasting and with fasting; it will make one rest that wants sleep and will keep one waking that is drowsie."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

CIGAR SALESMAN'S NERVE.

Frank Knee, "The Cigar Man," makes quite an impression on you. He weighs three hundred and eighty-five pounds, but he is a great hustler for all that. When he "gets it in" for a landlord, he rolls over in bed and smashes it all to pieces. Then he pulls the mattress out of the wreck and sleeps on the floor.

The other day he wanted to go from West Union to Monticello. To do this, one must make connection with the Milwaukee train at Donnan Junction. The "Rocky" Island was late, so Frankie wired the Milwaukee conductor, Jack Higgins, as follows: "Large party on board for Monticello—hold train." Jack held his train thirty minutes. The Rock Island pulled in and "Little Frank" waltzed down the platform. "Where's the rest of 'em?" said Jack. "That's all," replied Frank. "But you wired a 'large party,'" said the conductor. "Well," drawled "The Cigar Man," "if there are any larger parties around here than I am, I would like to see them."

At last accounts, they were not on speaking terms.

SALAD OILS ANALYSIS.

A bulletin issued by the Inland Revenue Department gives the result of an analysis of 108 samples of salad oils. There were found 66 samples of genuine olive oil, 2 doubtful samples, 24 samples of cotton seed oil sold as salad oil, and 16 samples of cotton seed oil sold as olive oil. Commenting thereon the Government analyst observes:

"While it is certain that cotton seed oil lacks the peculiar flavor of olive oil, it is probable that, so far as food value goes, it may be little inferior to that article. Certain highly refined grades of cotton seed oil may be regarded as valuable foods; and as these take the place of olive oil in the making of salads it is perhaps not unnatural that they should be termed salad oils. It is, however, much to be regretted that such brands of cotton seed oil are not sold under some characteristic name, such as cotton seed salad oil, thus making their fraudulent sale impossible. When a salad oil is asked for, the sale of cotton seed oil, properly refined, cannot be called adulteration; but when the article offered is plainly named as olive oil, the substitution of cotton seed oil in whole or in part is, of course, a case of adulteration.

"That man is what I call a real epicure," remarked a grandstand spectator as a man left at the close of the seventh inning.

"Indeed?"

"Yes. He would rather eat than see a baseball game."

A DOUBLE PROFIT

Royal Baking Powder Pays a Greater Profit to the Grocer Than any Other Baking Powder He Sells.

Profit means real money in the bank. It does not mean "percentage," which may represent very little actual money. A grocer often has the chance to sell either:

1. A baking powder for 45c. a pound and make a profit of 5c. or 6c., or,
2. A baking powder for 10c. a pound and make "20 per cent profit," which means only 2c. actual money. Which choice should you take?

Royal Baking Powder makes the customer satisfied and pleased, not only with the baking powder, but also with the flour, butter, eggs, etc., which the grocer sells.

This satisfaction of the customer is the foundation of the best and surest profit in business—it is permanent. Do not take the risk of selling a cheap alum baking powder; some day the customer may find out about the alum, and then your best profit in the customer's confidence is gone.

Royal Baking Powder pays greater profits to the grocer than any other baking powder he sells.

The owners of the "Shell" Brand of Castile Soap as well as the owners of the "Tyne" Brand of Scotch Fish have the principles, courage, enterprise and iron purpose that has enabled them to rise above all others in the high quality of their products. The liberal patronage they have won spells "success" in very large letters. The good has been a mutual one—for owner and retailer. Permanent trade has been established—and held most tenaciously. The retailer who is not handling these two lines is losing money every single day in the week.

Shell Brand Castile Soap

A soap containing 67 per cent. of pure oil. No animal matter in it. No smells or odors as found in common soap.

No Animal Matter

We repeat this because it's so unusual. No decay because there's nothing to decay. Unadulterated pure oil is only used. Unequalled for the bath or fine laundry work. In pressed cakes and bars.

JAPAN TEA

your tea trade and study it closely. You can cultivate the taste of your customers in teas as you are doing in other lines. It is important that a guarantee of PURITY goes with every pound you sell.

JAPAN TEAS

are the safest for young and old. Try them and test carefully.

Absolutely the Purest, Cleanest,
Healthiest,
Most Satisfactory.

Ceylon Tea and Success

go hand-in-hand.

The enormous success scored by Ceylon Tea is sufficient evidence of its superior value. It entered the market after other teas had established a reputation, and quickly secured for itself the top place in popular favor.

Ceylon Green Tea

Canada's favorite.

RE PEAS

DEAR SIR,—

Have you ever taken the time or trouble to explain to your customers the reason of the difference in price between Extra Fine Sifted Peas (Petit Pois) and the ordinary Standard Peas? Have you explained that the Extra Fine Sifted Peas are the choicest of the early pack? That they are very small, sweet, tender and simply melt away when eating; also that they are superior to imported French Peas in flavor, and are absolutely free from coloring with which the French Peas are treated, to give them a bright green color?

These Extra Fine Sifted Peas are especially suited for your highest class trade.

Take a little time with your customers to explain the difference in quality, and you will soon establish a trade for a high-class article with greatly increased profits to yourself.

Don't forget one important fact! That is, to carry in stock only the best brands, such as "Aylmer," "Log Cabin," "Horseshoe," "Auto," "Little Chief," "Lynnvalley," "Maple Leaf," "Kent," "Lion," "Thistle," "Grand River," "White Rose," etc., etc.

Yours respectfully,

A SURPRISING FIND

Collections of Half a Century Result in Extraordinary Accumulation Beneath a Cashier's Desk.

Mr. Wright, the National Cash Register Co.'s agent in Winnipeg, has in his possession an old drawer, which was taken from a general store in Kingston, Ontario, where it has been in use for fifty years. Through all changes of system from the establishment of the store, when the proprietor only had access to this cash-drawer, and when all the clerks used it, and during the period it was under the supervision of an individual cashier, the drawer was never changed, occupying a position beneath a cash desk. In the box-like arrangement where the cashier sat there was a false floor about six inches high, which did not cover the main floor entirely. When the proprietor tore out the cashier's desk recently, an assistant gathered up the refuse to throw out into the lane, when, at the suggestion of Mr. Wright, it was sifted.

After all the dirt had been carefully cleared away, one hundred and eighty-six dollars in small gold and silver coins of all denominations, and dilapidated bills, were rescued from this refuse. The proprietor's surprise can be imagined, and yet he said he had never missed the money, and never knew it was gone! The drawer itself is so badly carved and worn by long service, that one might wonder how it now holds together.

at one time would startle you, yet you think nothing of the pennies that fall under the counter every day that amount to hundreds of dollars a year. Twenty years with old methods mean a loss of thousands of dollars.

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

First Annual Meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada

In all respects save attendance the first annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada held in Winnipeg last week was a complete success. Gratifying progress was shown as the result of one year's work, the Association membership being now, in round numbers, six hundred. The full membership list printed below shows the strength of the Association in the three prairie provinces, and, although the attendance at the convention was not so large as might be desired, there were dealers present from all three provinces, showing that the interest in the Association work is by no means local. Remembering the immense distance covered by the Association and the great cost entailed by visiting Winnipeg to attend the convention, it is not to be wondered at that so many dealers decided to stay at home and are relying on the full reports in the trade press to keep them in touch with the work of their retail organization.

MR. W. G. McLAREN, SOURIS, MAN
President Western Board Retail Merchants' Association.

E. M. Trowern, Toronto, secretary of the Dominion Retail Association, was present and took up a large part of the time with a proposal that the Western Association affiliate with the Dominion. After considerable discussion the proposal was adopted, the Western Association agreeing to pay a per capita tax of 10 cents to the Dominion Board.

A more important move was the affiliation with the Western Retail Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association, who were meeting in Manitoba hall at the same time. A committee from the general merchants met a committee from the Hardware Association and arranged a basis of union which was finally adopted by both associations. According to this agreement the two associations retain their separate executives, but elect a joint board to have charge of matters of general interest.

Who Were Present.

When the convention opened it was found that the following merchants had signed the register.—

I. J. Lawlor, Killarney, Man.; S. K. Carrothers, Creelman, Sask.; W. Ledoux, Arnaud, Man.; J. S. Riddell, Frobisher, Sask.; F. Schneider, Langenberg, Sask.; J. D. Baine, Boissevain, Man.; E. H. Glinz, Oak River, Man.; S. R. Johnston, Rouleau, Sask.; H. A. Hastings, Rouleau, Sask.; D. N. Embree, Boissevain, Man.; W. J. Currie, Lauder,

MR. H. C. HAMELIN
Second Vice-President of the Western Board.

Man.; D. Dalgleish, Margaret, Man.; J. J. Hill, Cartwright, Man.; Wm. Gemmill, Cartwright, Man.; F. Wilkie, Margaret, Man.; J. H. Snelgrove, Dunrea, Man.; J. F. Hunter, Boissevain, Man.; F. R. Stewart, Rosenfeld, Man.; E. Dobson, Goodlands, Man.; S. J. Taylor, Yellowgrass, Sask.; W. G. McLaren, Souris, Man.; Thorpe & Button, Manitou, Man.; J. Boisvert, Laurier, Man.; G. Musgrove, Stonewall, Man.; J. S. Affleck, Reston, Man.

Membership List.

In order to show the real strength of the association The Canadian Grocer takes pleasure in printing the full membership list. It shows the strength of the association by provinces. Some retailers seem to imagine that the association is a Manitoba organization. The analysis of the membership list given below is sufficient refutation of this impression:—

The Opening Meeting.

In opening the meeting, President Lawlor heartily welcomed the dealers present, particularly those who had come from Saskatchewan and Alberta. Manitoba dealers might be expected to attend a meeting in their own province, but it was particularly gratifying to be able to welcome dealers from the far west. He hoped that there would be harmony at the meetings and that the result of the deliberations would be the greatest good to the greatest number.

Mr Lawlor then reviewed briefly the work of 1905, recalling the organization meeting in Winnipeg one year ago, the appointment of Secretary W. A. Coulson in the Spring of the year, and the semi-annual meeting held in Winnipeg last July. He told of the territory covered by Secretary Coulson in the course of his organization work and announced that the association had now 590 members while it was estimated by the executive that there is in the west a possible membership of 1,100 or 1,200.

A Bright Outlook.

Provided only that the retail merchants of the west would stand up for their own interests, said President Lawlor, their immediate future was bright The opening up of new territory by the building of the G.T.P. would be a benefit to the surrounding country. Dairy produce would find an increased market at home, which would mean enhanced prices—a good thing for the retailers, as produce was the same as money to the farmer.

Mr. Lawlor explained that he had had some correspondence with the executive of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. E. M. Trowern, secretary of that association, had written asking whether the western association would welcome a representative from the Dominion association at their meetings. He had sent a cordial invitation, and, as a result, Mr. Trowern, himself, had come west. He would address the meeting later.

The president stated also that A. L. Johnson, ex-president of the Winnipeg Board of Trade, had asked permission to address the association on the subject of the legislation now before the Manitoba Legislature, respecting the sales of merchants' stocks in bulk. Mr. Johnson had also intimated that other wholesalers would like to address the association, and the president had assured him that the association would be glad to give him and the other gentlemen a hearing.

Finances Satisfactory.

The secretary then read his report as given in last week's Canadian Grocer. The financial statement showed receipts amounting to $2,912.50 and disbursements totalling $2,697.30, leaving as a balance on hand $215.20. Messrs. Franklin, Wilkie and A. R. Welch were appointed auditors to vouch for the accounts, and later reported the financial statement correct.

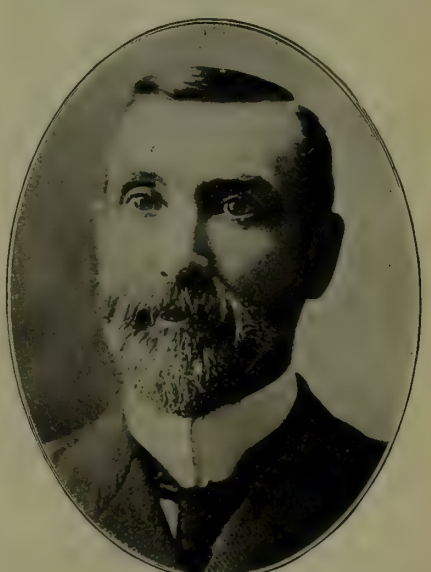
The secretary's report was adopted after considerable discussion in the course of which several little misunderstandings were cleared up. Some dealers seemed to think, having given the matter no consideration, that the secretary had nothing to do but run around the country settling little local disputes. They forgot that he was responsible for the organization of the whole of the west, and that he had been doing the work of two or three men. Explanations being given, the secretary's report was adopted unanimously on motion of W. Krolick, Grayson, and W. Ledoux, of Arnaud. On motion of Messrs. Smith and Krolick, a vote of thanks to Mr. Coulson was passed amid great enthusiasm.

Message from Hardware.

At this stage of the proceedings J. A. Lindsay, president of the Western Retail Hardware Association, entered the hall with a message from his association. He said the hardwaremen had met in the morning and had been addressed by E. M. Trowern, of the Dominion Retail Association. This afternoon, as a result of his morning address, the question has come up whether or not it was advisable to join the National Retail Association.

Take Second Place.

"A year ago," said Mr. Lindsay, "we were proud to give you a copy of our by-laws when you were drawing up your own by-laws and constitution, and we thought we were the whole thing. But now we find that the tail is wagging the dog. You are stronger than we are. If we decide to join the National Association, and you decide to do the same, it is suggested by Mr. Trowern that we should to a certain extent amalgamate; that we should have a common executive to look after our common interests. But we hardwaremen don't want to be obliterated if we unite, and I don't suppose you do either."



MR. T. J. LAWLOR
A prominent member Western Retail Merchants' Association.

On the invitation of Mr. Lindsay, President Lawlor retired to visit the Hardware Association, and the chair was taken by J. D. Baine.

A nominating committee was then appointed consisting of J. F. Hunter, Boissevain; W. Ledoux, Arnaud; E. H. Glinz, Oak River, and W. A. Coulson, Winnipeg.

The Dominion Representative.

President Lawlor returned, bringing with him E. M. Trowern, who addressed the meeting for about two hours, delivering the same speech as he made before the hardwaremen in the morning. He spent a lot of time unnecessarily in arguing to a lot of retailers already in the association, the necessity of organization. His audience were already convinced and the mere fact of their membership should have been sufficient proof of this, but evidently Mr. Trowern had the speech on his mind and had to deliver it.

At the close of his address he came to the point, but unfortunately a number of dealers had left the meeting.

Organization Creates its Need.

"The more organization we have," said he, "the more organization we find we require. When we started our organization in Toronto we found that it was necessary to enlist the support of dealers throughout the Province of Ontario. When we got Ontario we found that we had to get Quebec, and now we are under the necessity of getting help from the west."

Mr. Trowern then outlined some of the objects of the association, laying stress on what he called the contract system of price setting. By this system, the manufacturer sets the retail price of certain staple lines and all these goods are sold the retail trade on condition that they will not sell below these prices. In this way, price-cutting is rendered impossible, for if a man signed the contract and broke it he would be liable under the law. It would be the object of the association to persuade manufacturers to put their goods on the contract plan and sell only under that plan. Mr. Trowern concluded with a strong plea for the affiliation of the western association with the Dominion.

At the evening meeting it was decided to affiliate with the Dominion association on motion of Messrs. Baine and Snelgrove. This motion was passed when it was learned that the hardware association had already taken the step. Messrs. Lawlor, Paynter, Glinz and Coulson were appointed a committee to confer with the hardware association to arrange a basis of union.

The Basis of Union.

Wednesday morning was spent in informal discussion among the dealers present, there being no regular meeting as all were waiting for the results of the deliberations of the committees from the two associations who were hard at work arranging a basis of union.

In the afternoon the general merchants met, with President Lawlor in the chair, and after a long discussion the union proposal submitted by the committee was adopted. According to the terms of the agreement, the two associations retain their separate organization, their separate executives and separate secretaries, but for certain common objects they merge in a Western Board of the Dominion Retail Merchants' Association, whose headquarters are in Toronto. The executive of the Western Board are to be elected in a joint meeting of the two associations. The Western Board may levy a maximum fee of 50 cents per member on the two associations, and a fee of 10 cents per member is to be paid to the Dominion association.

Immediately after the basis of union had been agreed upon the General Merchants' Section adjourned and the Western Board (in which the hardwaremen are also included) proceeded to elect their officers. An account of their proceedings follows at the conclusion of the report of the proceedings at the General Merchants' Section.

Election of Officers.

In the evening the general merchants met again before the meeting of the Western Board and officers were elected as follows, Messrs. Glinz and Snelgrove acting as scrutineers: President, J. F. Hunter, Boissevain; first vice-president, R. Bogue, Moose Jaw; second vice-president, J. A. McDougall, Edmonton; secretary, W. A. Coulson, Winnipeg; treasurer, J. D. Baine, Boissevain; auditor, F. Wilkie, Margaret.

Immediately after the election results were announced, the newly elected president, J. F. Hunter, took the chair amid loud applause and in a brief speech he thanked the association for the honor done him. President Hunter is a man of good executive ability and as a presiding officer there are few who can equal him. While he was in the chair business was carried on promptly and systematically.

Secretary Re-engaged.

The principal business of the evening was the question of finances. It was decided to leave the annual dues at $5, the present figure. Secretary Coulson was re-engaged at an increased salary and a number of merchants present told of his good work for the association, and spoke highly of his ability as an organizer.

About Contract Prices.

President Hunter presided at the Thursday sessions of the General Merchants' Section and a vast amount of routine business was put through. A long discussion of Mr. Trowern's contract price plan took place and it was decided to approach a number of manufacturers on the subject.

A number of members spoke strongly on the absurdity of forcing the secretary to travel around the country collecting the annual fees, and settling trifling disputes which merchants should be able to settle for themselves. In the matter of collection of fees, it was finally decided on the suggestion of Messrs. Welch, Baine and Lawlor that some one merchant in each town should be made responsible for collections and that the secretary should make a draft on him at fifteen days. In this way a great amount of traveling expenses will be saved. The same speakers also impressed on the merchants present the folly of calling in the secretary to settle every little trifling local trouble when such disputes should easily be settled by the local dealers.

OFFICERS RETAIL MERCHANTS' SECTION.

President—J. F. Hunter, Boissevain, Man.
First Vice-Pres.—R. Bogne, Moose Jaw, Sask.
Second Vice-Pres.—J. A. McDougal, Edmonton, Alta.
Secretary W. A. Coulson.
Treasurer—J. D. Baine, Boissevain, Man.
Auditor—F. Wilkie, Margaret, Man.

Cutting Prices.

Reverting to the matter of price-cutting, particularly by catalogue houses, a motion was introduced by T. J. Lawlor to the effect that when prices are habitually cut on certain staples the association executive should approach the manufacturers and ask to have these goods sold on the contract plan. The motion carried. The chairman then asked that all dealers having local complaints of this nature should send them in to Mr. Coulson as he had no other means of knowing of these troubles and he could not be expected to remedy evils of which he had no knowledge.

Mr. Coulson reported that price-cutting at Hamiota and some other points had been stopped, the banks and wholesale houses having given him considerable assistance in ending this ruinous cut-throat policy.

Standing up for the Retailer.

A resolution condemning the alleged practices of some jobbers and manufacturers in selling to the consumer was passed amid enthusiasm.

On motion of J. Munroe and S. H. Carrothers, a resolution was passed instructing the secretary to take up the matter of discounts given by rubber manufacturers on rubber goods and act with the Dominion board in an effort to secure larger discounts.

Banking Facilities.

A long discussion took place at the Thursday afternoon session on the character of the banking facilities afforded the western dealer and the extent of the credit allowed him. Several speakers complained that eastern dealers can borrow money from the banks at least 2 per cent. cheaper than the western dealers can borrow. After a long discussion a resolution was passed instructing the executive to investigate the matter, as it was felt that the western dealers are not receiving the favorable treatment to which they are entitled.

Peddling Licenses.

At the morning session Mr. Coulson read a number of complaints of the unfair competition of traveling hawkers and peddlers and the result of a long discussion was the adoption of the following resolution on motion of D. N. Embrie and L. D. Smith:

"That the provincial governments be appealed to to pass legislation calling for uniform municipal license fees from peddlers and hawkers throughout the province and to take steps to see that the municipalities enforce the said legislation."

Quantity Reductions.

The offering of inducements to large quantity buyers was brought up by Wilfrid Ledoux, Arnaud, and a general discussion followed. It was urged that the granting of discounts to quantity buyers militates against the interests of the small dealer, and finally, on motion of Messrs. Ledoux and Snelgrove, the following resolution was passed unanimously:

"Whereas discounts are given on goods sold by manufacturers or jobbers in large quantities, and whereas such discounts are against the interests of the small retailer and encourage the cutting of prices by catalogue houses, resolved, that the general merchants desire all such discounts to be abolished and a uniform price be adopted for all."

Votes of Thanks.

On motion of T. J. Lawlor enthusiastic votes of thanks were passed to the Union Bank, the Bank of Commerce and the wholesale trade for assistance given the association. Mr. Lawlor also moved a vote of thanks to the trade press for the publicity given the work of the association among the trade. After a vote of thanks to retiring President T. J. Lawlor and Secretary Coulson, the convention adjourned to meet again at the call of the executive some time in the Summer.

Western Board Meetings.

The first meeting of the Western Board was held on the afternoon of Wednesday, February 14, T. J. Lawlor presiding. There was a fair attendance of hardwaremen and general merchants and considerable enthusiasm was shown.

The first business was the election of officers and in this the utmost harmony prevailed between the members of the two executives. Both secretaries are on the executive of the Western Board, the general merchants are represented by the president and second vice-president, while the hardwaremen are represented by their first vice-president. J. A Lindsay, retiring president of the Hardware Association, is auditor.

The executive is as follows: President, W. G. McLaren, Souris, Man.; first vice-president, G. K. Smith, Moose Jaw, Sask.; second vice-president, H. C. Hamelin, Winnipeg, Man.; secretary, W. A. Coulson, Winnipeg, Man.; treasurer, J. E. McRobie, Winnipeg, Man.

President-elect W. G. McLaren took the chair amid applause, and the meeting at once settled down to business. Many favorable comments were heard on the business-like management of the meeting by the president-elect. He made an excellent chairman.

Various Resolutions.

On motion of Messrs. Lindsay and Baine a resolution was passed asking the manufacturers to refuse to allow their goods to be quoted in catalogues of mail order houses at cut prices.

On motion of G. K. Smith and T. J. Lawlor, a strong resolution was passed asking for legislation providing that corporations be made amenable to the law the same as individuals and that the president and secretary of a corporation be held personally responsible for the acts of a corporation. This resolution was passed on to the Dominion Board.

On motion of Messrs. Hunter and Payne a resolution was passed condemning the enforced payment by retailers of fees for the inspection of their weights and measures. Several members spoke strongly on this subject, complaining of the injustice of forcing dealers to pay these fees.

A motion by G. K. Smith and J. B. Curran was passed regarding fire insurance for members by the association. The motion instructed the officers of the Western Board to work in conjunction with the officers of the Dominion Board in Toronto to devise some practicable plan of fire insurance by the association.

Sale of Stocks in Bulk.

An informal discussion then followed of the legislation now before the Manitoba Legislature respecting the sale of stocks of merchandise in bulk. As explained in an editorial in this paper some weeks ago, this bill provides some restrictions on the sale in bulk of merchants' stocks, the object being to prevent "midnight sales" by dishonest dealers who sell their stocks and pay the wholesale houses only a percentage of the amount owed them. The bill provides that before a sale can be made a merchant must obtain the consent in writing of at least 50 per cent. of his creditors and 75 per cent. of the value. Failing this the sale can be put through only by paying the amount of the purchase price to a trust company for the benefit of the creditors.

J. F. Hunter spoke strongly in opposition to the bill, as he considered it a measure wholly in the interests of the wholesale trade.

"It ties up and hampers the great mass of honest dealers," said he, "for the sake of a very few dishonest men. We have all to run some risk when we extend any credit and I don't see why the wholesale man should be protected when we are not. What would the farmers say to a similar measure designed to protect the retailers?"

Visitors From the Wholesalers.

A number of wholesale men attended the meeting of the Western Board on Wednesday evening by special invitation. Among those attending the meeting were A. L. Johnson, ex-president Board of Trade; Wm. Georgeson, of Codville-Georgeson Co., Limited; J. Y. Griffin, A. Strong, D. W. Bole, M.P., and A. Macdonald.

Plea for the New Legislation.

A. L. Johnson addressed the meeting at considerable length on the bill now before the Manitoba Legislature respecting the sale of stocks of merchandise in bulk, and, after expressing the pleasure which the wholesalers had in meeting the retail trade, he plunged into the discussion. He argued with the force and clearness of expression which always characterize Mr. Johnson's addresses, that while there might be some details of the measure in its present shape which would be objectionable to the wholesale trade, still the principle was as much in the interests of the retailers as of the wholesalers. The wholesale trade were anxious to have the retail trade endorse the principle of the bill; the details could be arranged to the satisfaction of both parties by a joint committee.

When the Retailer is Hit.

"It often happens," said Mr. Johnson, "that a man sells out his stock in a hurry for say 60 cents on the dollar and then he comes to Winnipeg to compromise with his creditors, or perhaps he doesn't come at all. Perhaps you think this is the wholesalers' funeral only, but think a minute. The purchaser of the stock gets it cheap, and what does he do with it? He slaughters it, of course, to the detriment of the legitimate regular trade, and any measure designed to stop this ruinous practice is in the interests of all branches of the trade.

"The bill is framed for the dishonest dealer, and surely no one will dispute that the wholesaler has some rights in the disposal of a stock for which he has not yet been paid. The wholesale trade do not desire to have legislation that will be onerous on the retail trade, but they do desire protection.

Many Misconceptions.

"I find in discussing the matter with retailers that there are many misconceptions current respecting the bill. It refers only to stocks of merchandise and not to land, and we are anxious that it should be acceptable to you as well as to ourselves. We are willing and anxious to agree to any amendments in the details of the bill, but we think the principle should commend itself to you as well as to us."

Association and the Trade.

Wm. Georgeson, who was greeted with applause as he rose to speak, expressed his pleasure in the knowledge that the association was continuing to prosper. He believed it would do much to advance the interests of the retail trade.

Proceeding to discuss the merits of the bill, he contended that the interests of the wholesaler and the retailer were not far apart. In this particular instance, the interests of the wholesaler were also the interests of the retailer, who is injured by the slaughtering of stocks that invariably follows "midnight sales."

Principle, Not Detail.

"The point, gentlemen," said Mr. Georgeson, "is not whether this bill as it stands is what we want, but whether we approve of its principle. There may be clauses to which exception could be taken, but they can be amended, and if we are agreed as to the principle of the bill the Law Amendment Committee at the Legislature can fix it up all right. It will be amended to make its provisions as little onerous as can be.

Question of Ownership.

"As to the principle of the bill, I fail to see why there should be any disagreement. The wholesale trade are surely justified in holding that when a man does not own his stock of goods, when he has no interest in it, he should consult those who do own it before he sells it at so many cents on the dollar. This bill will never hurt a solvent merchant. There will be no trouble in getting the consent of the wholesale trade to a sale by a solvent merchant. You know the wholesale trade, and you know that you have always found them reasonable."

The Retailer's Views.

In the course of the general discussion that followed Mr. Georgeson's speech, J. F. Hunter contended that the provisions of the bill were unreasonably onerous. He asked if a merchant would have to show up all his affairs and get consent of all creditors for land and other things. Mr. Johnson replied that all direct liabilities would have to be faced. Mortgages would be indirect liabilities. This, however, was a point that would have to be made clear.

Wilfrid Ledoux, Arnaud ; H. C. Hamelin, Winnipeg ; and T. J. Lawlor, Killarney, took part in the discussion that followed in the course of which it was made clear that the purchaser of a stock will not be held responsible for the truth of the statement of his affairs made by the vendor.

Mr. Johnson said that the wholesale trade would be willing to have the bill amended so that its provisions would not apply in case the proceeds of the sale were as large as the liabilities.

A Law for all Branches.

J. F. Hunter said he would be glad to see a law that would protect all branches of the trade but he saw no reason why the wholesale trade alone should be protected to the embarrassment of the retailers. How would the farmers view a similar measure designed to protect the retail storekeepers ? The wholesaler did not have to sell goods to a man whose credit was poor and if they gave him credit they did so at their own risk. He saw no reason why they should be relieved of that risk.

Probably it was quite true that the wholesale men would consent to the sales of their stocks by solvent retailers but there would always be delay and probably the purchaser would change his mind while the vendor was running around getting the consent of his creditors to the sale.

Mr. Georgeson replied to this that sales would naturally be made subject to consent being obtained and the vendor could easily secure a deposit on the sale. He failed to see how a sale would be tied up by the provisions of this bill.

It was finally decided to refer the matter to the executive committee with instructions to report at the meeting the following day.

Concluding Session.

President McLaren took the chair about 4.30 on Thursday afternoon and the concluding business of the Western Board was put through with promptness. The executive presented the following report with reference to the bill respecting the sale of stocks in bulk :

"Your executive board desire to report that they have gone very fully into the proposed legislation respecting the sale of merchants' stocks in bulk and they have decided that, owing to the great importance of the measure to the retail trade, and in view of the short time given for its consideration, the wholesale trade be asked to withdraw the bill for the present. Your executive board ask to be allowed to go further into the matter and consult with the wholesale trade in order that a bill may be prepared that will accomplish the desire of the wholesale trade and at the same time be acceptable to the retailers. Your committee will present a further report at the next meeting of the Western Board.

"Signed — W. G. McLaren, G. K. Smith, H. C. Hamelin, W. A. Coulson, J. E. McRobie."

The report was adopted and the convention then adjourned to meet again at the call of the executive.

IN A NUTSHELL

The Changes Made.

(1) The Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada and the Western Retail Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association affiliate and elect a joint executive to look after common interests; but each retains its own separate executive and secretary to look after its individual interests.

(2) The two associations combined form a western section of the Dominion Retail Merchants' Association, with headquarters in Toronto.

WINDOW AND INTERIOR DISPLAYS

RROWN & KNIGHT, CALGARY.

The illustration given this week is still further proof—if proof were necessary—of the up-to-date methods employed by retail grocers in the Great West. A finer internal display for an ordinary grocer's store could scarcelv be arranged. It will at once be noted that the picture was taken at Christmas time and is appropriately decorated, yet the decorations are of such modest and reasonable dimensions that the general appearance of the stock is not interfered with.

A careful perusal of this picture by a progressively inclined grocer will give him many ideas of use and importance. The arrangement of glass bins on the right of the picture were so placed at the suggestion of the principals themselves, with a handy table shelf the whole length, for either display or serving. Shelves, bins, or receptacles of suitable descriptions are everywhere in evidence, and greatly add to the cleanliness and utility of service.

FROSTED WINDOWS.

The frosting of windows is a problem that bobs up every Winter. To get at this question intelligently it may be well to consider the cause of the window's frosting. It is simple enough. The cold outside air cools the glass and the warm air on the inside containing moisture coming in contact with the glass, is congealed and becomes frost on the window. The difference in temperature on the two sides of the glass does this. A similar action is noted when a pitcher of cold water is brought into a warm room. The warm air of the room striking the cool side of the pitcher is turned into moisture—is condensed until it is drops of water. This being the case, it is easy to see that the real solution of the frosty window problem is the keeping of the temperature the same on both sides of the glass.

There are other ways of keeping off frost when the weather is not very cold, however. By keeping a current of air moving against the window the frost will be prevented, as the moving air dries up the congealing moisture so fast that it does not form on the glass. For the same reason, a row of gas jets along the bottom of the window will keep it clear in mild weather, or a lamp will serve the same purpose. But these methods are not working along the right lines. They are not striking at the root of the trouble. They are curative rather tnan preventive.

In cold weather windows must be completely boxed in. No heat from the store should get into them. There must be openings of sufficient sizes at the top and bottom to allow a free circulation of the air. If this is done the window will not frost over except in very unusual, damp weather.

CANNERS GATHER AT SEASIDE

And Discuss the Problems Confronting the Industry—Over Thirty Canadians Present—Fine Display of Machinery.

Atlantic City, the gay, the debonair, the frivolous, the resort of the idler, the health seeker, the nouveau riche, blessed by nature with its eternal ocean, its splendid beach, its glorious battalions of white-crested combers, cursed by man with its dreary wilderness of hopeless vulgarity from the strident display of robber hotels down through all the grades of petty cheats and catch-penny fakirs who prey upon the vanity and folly of its frequenters—Atlantic City, the Riviera of America, was last week at least the scene of a gathering in which brains and vigorous, virile manhood were the characteristics, the annual convention of the canners of America.

The convention included the packers, the brokers and the supply men, and represented over five and a half million cases of canned goods packed this season, and an enormous sum of invested capital.

The meetings were held in one of the large hotels on the board walk, and the exhibition of canning machinery made by the supply men on Young's pier a half mile down the board walk.

The latter was the mecca that drew the canners from all the states east of Chicago and from Canada. The latest devices in canning machinery were on display in charge of the most pleasant imaginable gentlemen, who explained their merits and closed the deals for new machines, and no small number of sales were thus made.

Canadians Present.

Canada was well represented. Over thirty Canadians attended the convention and machinery exhibition and were on every hand treated with the greatest courtesy, even if it was slightly exasperating at times to have it confidently assumed that fruits and vegetables could not be grown in Canada on account of our cold climate. That we should be able to ripen tomatoes seemed incredible to not a few fine fellows from Maryland.

The dean of the Canadian delegation was undoubtedly Mr. James B. Campbell, of the Acme Can Co., of Montreal. Mr. Campbell has been a regular attendant on these conventions for years. He knows everybody and they all know him. His courtesy in introducing fellow Canadians to the important personages was generally appreciated.

Mr. Campbell has an ambition to have the convention held in Canada in 1908, and there is a possibility that he may be successful.

The Montreal party came early and went away late. They included besides Mr. Campbell, his partner, Mr. W. Pratt, Messrs. Bienette and Geo. Lauzon, of St. Eustache; Laplante, St. Remi; L. J. Laurin, A. Laurin, Dusault, St. Dorothee; Napoleon Lepage, Pierre Gravel, Park Laval; R. Whithall, Montreal.

From Toronto a party consisting of Messrs. Thos. Owens, Frank Owens, E. A. Pearce and A. H. Allen, of the Bloomfield Packing Company, and D. B. Gillies, of The Canadian Grocer, went over Monday night via the Lehigh Valley. To while away the tedium of the journey a fish yarn competition was got up and Mr. Frank Owens was easily first in a stirring history of landing a 'lunge on the Quinte.

On Wednesday Mr. David Marshall, of the Canadian Canners, Limited, arrived and was a careful student of every new device that was being shown in the way of improved machinery.

Mr. H. C. Beckett, of the Canada Grocers, Limited, was also present. Although not a canner Mr. Beckett makes it a point to keep close to all that is going on in the canned goods trade. Mr. Nairn, of the Canadian Canners, Limited, was also present and spent his time in the machinery hall.

Other prominent Canadian canners at the convention were President Symington and Manager W. A. Carson, of the Napanee Canning Company, Messrs. Hagerman and R. B. Morden, of the Belleville Canning Company, Manager G. Matthews and Thos. Flynn, of the Miller canning factory at Trenton, Sherman Strout of the Delhi Canning Co., Chas. McCartney of the Grimsby factory, J. C. Danheiser, of the St. Catharines plant, M. Moore, of the Wellington factory, and Mr. Davis, of Burlington.

MR. J. B. CAMPBELL,
ACME CAN WORKS, MONTREAL.
Elected member of the Machinery and Supplies Association

Mr. E. D. Smith, M.P., of Winona, accompanied by Mrs. Smith, was an interested visitor at the machinery hall, and is understood to have secured some additions for his factory at Winona.

Mr. L. J. Coryell, of the Coryell Seed Co., Oshawa, an old visitor to the convention, renewed acquaintances made at Columbus and Washington in previous years.

In the machinery trade Mr. W. E. Blandford, of Brown, Boggs & Co., was active in getting around among the Canadian crowd.

Topics of Discussion.

The first day's business of the convention was largely social. The members got acquainted while Mayor Stoy extended the civic welcome to the canners. Tuesday, however, business was uppermost in all minds, the features of the day being addresses by Mr. Chas. E. Wilcox, of Chicago, on the canned goods industry from the buyers' standpoint, and by Mr. Finley Acker, the great Philadelphia retail grocer, throwing out a few suggestions based on 25 years' experience with the consumer.

The Buyers' Standpoint.

Mr. Wilcox witnessed to marvellous improvement in canned goods in the last 25 years, and made the point that there never was an over-production of really first-class goods. He argued that as the canners raised their standards the consumption of their goods would increase. He would always consider quality before price. His one serious complaint against the trade was in reference to the poor quality of boxes being used.

A Retailer's View.

Mr. Finley Acker, whose Philadelphia grocery store is probably the finest in the world, is a comparatively young-looking man with a handsome, clean-shaven face, agreeable manner, and pleasing address. His remarks were listened to with marked interest. He also advocated quality. The era of competitive cheapness had passed, he maintained; we were now in the era of competitive quality. Mr. Acker backed up his argument by instancing the disappearance from the market of lines once considered good but which had not kept up with the improvements of the times. There would always be sale for goods that were conscientiously packed. Mr. Acker said that for years it had been his greatest pleasure to know that he was supplying his customers with pure, wholesome, delicious food. The canner's position was a high one. He was doing a great service to his fellow man if he always put up the best goods he knew how.

A Word From the Packer.

On Wednesday the packers' side of the question was discussed by Mr. Jas. P. Olney, of Geneva, N.Y. The speaker admitted that buying and selling futures had its disadvantages, but on the whole one year with another he favored that plan if on a pro rata basis. This basis should extend also to the retailer. The margin on canned goods did not warrant guaranteed delivery.

Mr. Olney complained that notwithstanding the increased cost of production of late years in all lines of manufacture, the canners alone were not getting a

THE MONTREAL BOARD OF TRADE.

The circular issued on February 13th by Mr. Geo. Hadrill, secretary of the Montreal Board of Trade, to the members of that body is one that should cause all merchants to reflect, and stimulate not only the present members of the Board of Trade, but also the commercial interests of that city, to renewed efforts to place the institution on the high plane it is entitled to occupy.

Since 1887 when the membership was 1,362, it has gradually declined (with the exception of the years 1902 and 1903 when there was a slight revival of interest), until it now stands at 976, a decrease of 386 members, or more than 25 per cent., in eighteen years. This heavy decrease, too, occurred during ten years of immense prosperity in all branches of trade and industry.

The present serious state of affairs must appeal to all merchants, manufacturers and exporters, and raise the question in their minds as to the cause for this marked decline. It is admitted that a city of the commercial importance of Montreal should have a Board of Trade whose influence on the trade of the country should be far-reaching and powerful. That the newly elected council of the Board of Trade realize the necessity of checking the decline and reviving the interest in the institution is evidenced by the circular.

One of the most reasonable causes for the decline in membership is undoubtedly the entrance fee, which is one hundred dollars. This is the view that the council have apparently accepted, and it has been decided, in order to increase the membership, that "all lapsed certificates in the possession of the board shall be re-issued at $35 each, so that, adding the transfer fee of $5 and $10 for the current year's membership dues, the total cost to a new member, until said lapsed certificates are all re-issued, for the first year is only $50, and for succeeding years $10."

The council hopes through this concession to bring the total membership up to 2,000, and if each member secures but one new member this figure should be easily realized.

Many members of the Board of Trade feel also that the charge of one hundred dollars is far out of proportion to the benefits they receive, as they have no transactions that require them the constant use of the Exchange floor, and their adherence to the board is one based on the principle of patriotism to the city and port, and they recognize it as a commercial duty to continue their membership.

If the council should decide merely upon an annual subscription of $10, doing away with the excessively high entrance fee, there is no doubt that the membership could be increased to 3,000 or 4,000. This annual fee of $10 naturally would not entitle them to operations on the Exchange floor, but in all other respects the full privileges of the board. It is possible, however, that the council's offer as outlined in the above clause of their circular will induce many former members to rejoin and also encourage others to do so.

The Montreal Board of Trade should be in the van in advancing public questions of commercial importance to not only the city, but give expression to all vital questions of the country at large. The holding of the quarterly meetings of the members of the board, which were formerly held, retained the interest of the members and made it a live institution. A revival of these quarterly meetings for the discussion of important public questions and the placing on record of the board's position, would go greatly towards making it an important recognized public institution.

WHOLESALE GROCERS' GUILD.

The annual meeting of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild will be held in Montreal shortly. It is expected that the meeting will be a large and representative one, as matters of great interest to the grocery trade in general will be taken up. The association will, among other subjects take up the question of the sugar situation, the selling of goods to departmental stores, the canned goods situation, and rearrangement of certain purchasing and selling clauses, the question of equalization of freight rates, discounts and terms, etc.

Owing to the impression, possibly a mistaken one on part of the general retail grocery trade, that matters inimical to grocers generally are being discussed at these meetings, it is to be hoped that the press, particularly the trade newspapers, will be admitted to these discussions. Such action on part of the guild would place that important body in the same category as all the leading banks, financial institutions, and other public bodies whose annual deliberations are published freely. In the past it has been difficult to obtain any satisfactory reports, and any misunderstandings and inadequate statements that have appeared and which have caused friction in grocery circles are due to the refusal of the guild officials to give the trade newspapers explicit statements as to contemplated changes in trade regulations.

THE GROCER AND CEREAL PACKETS.

The cereal market has been attracting a good deal of attention recently, and not a few grocers must be filled with anxiety, particularly those who have encouraged a trade in "loose" cereals and breakfast foods. The grocer's attention is of necessity concentrated on his immediate trade and customers, and he cannot, therefore, be expected to watch every eccentricity of the market; yet, at the same time, he is the one seriously affected by every movement.

There appears to have been a good deal of fluctuation lately, and competition is likely to develop with unhealthy conditions; the first to suffer in such case will be the grocer.

The securing of steady and even margins of profit is one of the most important factors in the grocer's business, and if these are jeopardized his whole security is undermined. Probably in no more certain way can he secure this than in the encouragement of his packet goods trade. It certainly appears so in regard to the cereal trade at the present juncture. In carton goods the grocer is sure of a moderate profit, has no loss by depreciation, and next to no expense in handling, whilst to continue to push a "loose" cereal trade means extra cost in handling, much loss by depreciation, and in unsettled markets often no margin of profit.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION FOR GROCERS.

What would be the effect of technical education for young men and women desirous of entering the grocery trade?

At present they drift into the store and out of it again with an indefiniteness of purpose that precludes application or any serious attempt to master the fundamental knowledge necessary to an intelligent and proper conduct of the business. This state of things is detrimental to the clerks, to the grocers, to the trade and to the public. If all these interests would benefit by the establishment of a course of technical grocery education no one would be left to be injured or to oppose it.

The public would benefit very materially by a more hygeinic handling of the commodities and by more sanitary conditions of the majority of grocery stores. The trade would be placed upon a higher plane with a scientific basis. Consumption of the higher classes of goods would increase. All these things would benefit the grocer. In addition his clerks would be more intelligent; they would take vastly more interest in the business; they would waste less. For the grocery clerk the introduction of technical education would make a new era.

In England the need for technical school education has to some slight extent been met by the system of apprenticeship. There an attempt is now being made to secure further technical instruction by illustrated lectures. An Old Country clerk who comes to Canada and gets behind a counter can be detected at once by his superior knowledge regarding the goods he handles. It is a distinct inducement to custom and if the retail grocers could avail themselves of technically educated clerks they would have much less difficulty in meeting the competition of the department stores where the clerks are machines to transcribe orders and get change.

Something is going to be done to improve the technical school in Toronto. It is not filling the place it ought to, educationally, industrially or commercially. A commission will be sent out to get information. Why should not the Board of Education consider the establishment of a course of technical education for the grocery trade?

SALARIES AND CIVICS.

Last week the managers of a great co-operative institution conspired to raise their salaries. But instead of going to the people who employed them they went to an outside body which, curiously, had power to authorize them to increase their remuneration.

"What kind of a fool place is it where employees can deal with their own salaries in that way?" someone asks.

The city of Toronto of course. Only public business is done in that way. It shows the stuff that aldermen are made of.

A prominent wholesale grocer was asked this week why he and others like him did not go into council and improve the method of doing things. His reply was:

"I couldn't be elected. I would have to join the Orangemen, and Oddfellows, and Foresters, Masons, Sons of Ireland, Sons of England, Sons of Guns and what not. The people elect the kind of men they want."

That is where he and most good business men make a mistake. The people don't elect the kind of men they want. The kind of men the people want won't come out and they have to select from the self-called. A good man is urged to come out and is beaten, and it adds to the municipal discouragement of the thinking citizens, strengthening their conviction that the people don't want capable men.

The present situation is the result of long habit. It cannot be corrected in a single election or by one man. The remedy is concerted and energetic action by the people who want municipal affairs properly managed in the interest of the whole body of citizens.

If the majority of the Toronto aldermen had been right-minded men and had believed a larger salary should attach to the position, they would have put the proposal forward boldly and have submitted it to the electors.

GETTING THE TOURISTS.

Why don't Canadians, especially merchants, wake up and go after the tourist? The individual business man can't go into an extensive campaign of publicity regarding Canada as the world's picnic ground, and the endless variety of its attractions for every man on a holiday seeking rest, sights or sport. But the individual can get interested and he can get his neighbor interested, and when everybody is interested there'll be something doing.

Switzerland has a population of 3,315,000, and they collect from tourists each year between thirty and forty million dollars. With half the number of people Canada has, the little mountain republic does a foreign trade of over $400 000,000, importing $239,000,000 and exporting $170,000,000. Yet so important is the tourist that trade is good or bad according to the number of foreigners on the move.

The absence of thousands of students from Toronto in Summer is more than made up to the boarding-house people by the influx of Americans who come to Canada, especially from the south. The big hotels are full. Many towns and hamlets become American Summer resorts from June to September. Muskoka is an international holiday ground and there are undiscovered regions of greater possibilities and attractiveness beyond. All this, and only the transportation companies pay any attention to the tourist business, save that Everyman levies what he can upon any of it that chances his way.

LOBSTER TRADE A LOSS.

The following letter has been received from a commercial traveler, and still further emphasizes the need of improved lobster canning:

"Dear Sir,—I notice a letter in your issue of this date re lobster inspection, and it comes not a moment too soon. As a commercial traveler of some experience, I can corroborate everything that has been said on this question. Years ago we hardly ever heard of a poor lobster, to-day we hardly ever hear of a good one, or at any rate, a tin of first-class lobster in the Spring is a thing almost unheard of. For years both the retail and wholesale men have to make good so many allowances on the lobster product that the line must show them a serious loss."

LOOK AHEAD.

Plan your advertising now and start it. It is not too early to begin a preliminary campaign. Look over your books and see what farmers you have not sold anything to for several years. The chances are that they will need something this season. Get circular letters ready for this class of possible customers.

SUGAR TARIFF BEFORE THE COMMISSION AT OTTAWA.

In our last issue we gave some of the most important features of Mr. R. Anderson's remarks before the Tariff Commission at Ottawa. Since then The Canadian Grocer has interviewed some of the refiners to obtain their views of the situation as expressed in Mr. Anderson's paper. Mr. Hugh Blain, president of the Ontario Sugar Co., whilst remarking that the paper would take a great deal of time to treat it as it should be treated, gave expression to the following :

Mr. Robt. Anderson, of Montreal, representing Messrs. Robt. Crooks & Co., Liverpool and New York, appeared before the Tariff Commission and submitted a somewhat lengthy statement relative to the sugar interests. He claimed to speak on behalf of the consumer and the importers generally. We doubt Mr. Anderson's warrant for this. He is rather truly representative of the brokerage branch of business, acting for British and foreign companies who can hardly be called either consumers or importers so far as Canada is concerned. He is, however, well qualified to speak for the class of which he is a member.

Duty on imported refined granulated sugar 100 lbs. testing 99 degrees	$1.24½
Duty on bag	.02
	$1.26½
Duty on raw sugar for refining under 16 D.S. 100 lbs. testing 96 degrees	.71½
Refiners' protection	.55

This is hardly a fair statement. You can't make 100 lbs. granulated sugar testing 99 degrees, practically pure sugar, out of 100 lbs. raw sugar testing 96 degrees. It would require at least 107 lbs. raw sugar testing 96 degrees to make 100 lbs. granulated, making the duty 76½c. and thus reducing the refiners' protection to 50c., but if you subject these figures to the preference clause of the Customs Act it would reduce the refiners' protection to 33.3c. per 100 lbs. granulated sugar, and the great bulk of the sugar comes in under this preference clause. Boiling down Mr. Anderson's figures to a rational or proper basis, the following would seem to us to be about right, viz., the refiners' protection under the general tariff is about 50c. per 100 lbs. or ½c. per lb., and under the preference clause 33.3c. per 100 lbs., or 1-3c. per lb.

Mr. Anderson's next figures soar away into the realms of absurdity when he tries to show that the refiner has a protection of $1.41 per 100 lbs. of sugar. He pictures the importer buying granulated sugar from a foreign country under the operation of the anti-dumping clause at a duty of 1.8875 per 100 lbs., and the refiner buying raw sugar under the British preference at a duty of .4767, a difference of 1.4108 per 100 lbs. No such importation ever came into Canada and never will while men have possession of their senses, and Mr. Anderson shows a regrettable anxiety to exaggerate when he resorts to such extreme statements.

His next move is to make the importer bring in granulated sugar under the general tariff, while he makes the refiner bring in raw sugar under the British preference, and in this way shows a protection to the refiner of .7883c. per 100 lbs. sugar. This also seems to us an unfair comparison. Surely for comparison both parties should be required or permitted to bring sugar in under the same tariff.

In all these cases he makes no allowance for the loss in the process of making the sugar into the same quality. There must be a loss in making raw sugar into refined granulated, and on page 7 he makes an allowance of 17c. on 100 lbs. raw beet testing 88 to equalize 100 lbs. cane or granulated sugar.

It is quite clear that the statement that the refiners' protection is 50 per cent. of the cost of the sugar is altogether wide of the mark. The most cursory glance at the trade and navigation returns for last year will show how incorrect such a statement is.

THE U.S. GROCERS' CONVENTION.

The following letter has been received by The Canadian Grocer from Mr. H. C. Ellis, secretary Ottawa Retail Merchants' Association, and has reference to our issue of February 2nd reporting the U.S. Grocers' Convention at Niagara Falls.

Editor Canadian Grocer.

"In reading your report of the National Convention of Retail Grocers of the United States held in Niagara Falls recently, I was struck with your closing remarks, in which you say, 'The Grocer would welcome a Dominion Convention of Grocers. Who will start the ball rolling?' What is wrong that you should not know the grocers are organized on a good sound footing in Ontario and Quebec, and are looking forward to the day when we will hold a Dominion Convention as suggested. The ball started rolling some time ago, and at present is travelling pretty fast. I refer to the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, of which the grocers form a conspicuous part. Then, again, there are associations in the Maritime and western provinces who eventually, when they became acquainted with our constitution, will affiliate, thereby covering the whole Dominion with one association.

"Let me explain what appears to be the great difference, according to your report, between the American institution and our Canadian one. They have been organized years ahead of us, and yet I see they are passing resolutions the same as they already passed long ago in regard to wholesalers, bankruptcy law, premium evils, mail order business, fire insurance, just weights, rate cutting, etc., etc. In our association these same resolutions were not only passed, but were acted on, and in some cases the object was obtained, while with others good progress is being made, so much so that we feel assured of getting what is wanted. For instance, in regard to wholesalers our association is recognized as a factor to be reckoned with, and we have their assurance of their assistance in getting what is just. In regard to a bankruptcy law, as the Americans call it, we took up the question of the simplyfying the collection of small accounts through the Division Court. We passed the resolution in 1904 and brought our proposals before the last session of the Legislature, when we were granted a committee of the House to take the matter up with our association and report to the coming session of the Legislature; the same course was taken by our association with the Pedlar and Transient Traders question, and the same results obtained. Then again, the premium evil or trading stamp questions; everyone knows what has been done all through the efforts of Quebec and Ontario retailers joining forces. The other questions mentioned are receiving attention and in due time we trust will be righted. I mention the above as a few instances so as to show what appears to be lacking with the organization across the line and what is of great benefit to ours, that is, our being as one with the other lines of the retail trade. I must admit it is pleasant to meet with grocers alone, as we do in our sectional meetings and at our provincial gatherings, but we could not ever accomplish such great undertakings that affect all classes of retail trade if it were not for our plan of association work.

"I don't want to take up too much space, but desire to show that there is an association for grocers in Canada, one in which any question affecting ourselves can be dealt with by ourselves, and which also allows for annual gatherings of grocers in each province, with good prospects of holding a Dominion convention when all the provinces will be represented.

"I might mention the experience of the Ottawa Grocers' Association, of which I am a member. Before affiliating with the larger provincial body the best we could do was to create a friendly feeling amongst the trade here, and beyond remedying some small local questions, our efforts in regard to the greater aims were futile. However, when we affiliated with the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada we became useful inasmuch as we helped them, and what they did helped us. I presume it will be about the same with all local grocers' associations who are working individually.

"Before closing I hope your valuable paper will see its way clear to promote association work as I have explained, and not lay too much stress on a Dominion grocers' association, for the reason stated above. I might also mention that arrangements are under way for holding the Provincial Grocers' Convention of Ontario in Toronto during the Pure Food Show exhibition, which takes place shortly."

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS' AT HOME.

The twentieth annual at home of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held Wednesday night, the 24th, in the beautiful assembly hall of the Temple Building. Over two hundred ladies and gentlemen were present and in every respect the occasion was an unqualified success.

A programme of two dozen and some extra dances sped the hours far past the division of days. Ladies never looked prettier nor grocers more debonair, and the gaiety and merriment never flagged. The music was entirely satisfying and an innovation of announcing each dance by a bugle call proved a good idea. Those who did not dance played cards.

Travelers Were There.

As usual the affair was popular with wholesale travelers. Those present were: Capt. Adams, Davidson & Hay; Clark Stevens, F. W. Humphrey; Jos. Taylor, Eby, Blain Co.; C. E. Men Who Did the Work.

To make such a really gratifying success of an at home of the proportions of this one entails a lot of work. It fell on the committee and they had the satisfaction Wednesday night of reaping for themselves and their friends a bumper harvest of merriment and enjoyment. The committee were: H. D. Kelly, Chas. Cootes, B. Panter, R. B. Snow, D. Bell, F. Thorne, T. Clark, Samuel Gibbons, J. S. Bond, J. Burns, R. M. Davies, R. VanLoan, W. F. Johnston, J. J. Kelly, D. McLean, G. Riley, W. H. Marmion, James Rae, F. S. Sneath;

MR. B. PANTER
The retiring Secretary, Toronto Retail Grocers' Association.

R. H. Stewart, floor manager; D. G. Beaton, secretary.

The refreshments were in keeping with all the other entertainment and were a credit alike to the committee and the provider.

Notes.

Some of the old chaps danced the kinks out.

Davey Bell was a swell,
No matter what befell,
Here and there and everywhere
To make each minute tell.

R. H. Stewart made the bill and perhaps he didn't dance it through.

R. VanLoan hadn't half as much fun in Cuba.

There were smiles for everybody and not one was rumpled all evening.

What's the matter with Beaton? Nothing. He's a dandy secretary and an ornament to boot.

Who can tell whether Mr. Snow got or gave more enjoyment? He beamed and everybody beamed back.

Well, wasn't he acting president?

The array of palms to veil the orchestra added just the decoration needed.

What pretty dresses the ladies wore! Surpassed only by their faces.

Isn't it too bad we must wait a whole year for another!

WHERE TEA IS GROWN.

The chief tea producing districts in Japan lie between the 34th and 36th parallels of latitude, and the limit at which it can be produced is the 40th parallel, i.e., the lattitude of Madrid. Japanese tea may be roughly divided into powdered tea—only used on state occasions—green tea, bancha, and black tea. A tea bush lives from twenty to twenty-five years, being at its best from its eighth to its fifteenth years, two crops a year being gathered. The picking is done by women, who receive from 12c. to 14c. a day. A good worker will pick 30 to 40 pounds per day. The men employed in firing will earn as much as 39c. a day. The cheapest tea in general use, bancha, sells at an average price of 3c. per lb., while the best costs from $3.50 to $5 per lb. A cheaper quality of this varies in price from $1.50 down to 12c. per lb., and this is the tea drunk by all but the very poorest classes, who cannot afford anything better than "bancha." The exported tea is usually the green tea of first or second crops, but it is notable that while machinery is used for this the Japanese still stick to hand treatment for the tea used by themselves. Practically all the Japanese tea exported goes to Canada and the U.S., only an infinitesimal proportion finding its way to Europe. The total production of tea in Japan in 1903—the latest year for which figures have been available to Mr. Phipps, from whose report from Tokio we quote—amounted to 55,088,036 lbs, valued at $5,604,000.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, Feb. 22, 1906.

Business has been very dull lately. The mild weather we have been having recently may account for this to a certain extent. Orders are coming in fairly well from the country, but they are not very large. In fact nearly all country business of late has been of a hand to mouth character, as retailers are not inclined to give large orders in any line as they do not wish to stock up. If we are treated to another spell of cold weather, with plenty of snow, which is improbable, considering the lateness of the season, business might brace up a little, but if the present weather conditions continue prospects are poor for anything like good business before the beginning of the Summer season.

Another advance of 5c. in tomatoes is noted. This makes a rise of 10c. in two weeks. The reported rise of half a cent in Valencia raisins has not changed the local market, as dealers are stocked up sufficiently to enable them to continue selling at the lower price.

Molasses are reported 1-2c. firmer at the islands, although locally dealers are weak and inclined to shade prices, as most of them are anxious to reduce their stock before the new crop can be marketed.

Canned Goods—The market is easy, with the exception of tomatoes which are firm. There is practically nothing going on in any of these lines except tomatoes. The latter experienced a further rise of 5c. this week, and if the American demand gets heavier as the days wear on, there will likely be a still further rise. Some American firms are already quoting future stock at prices ranging from 65c. to 70c. However, it will be two to three months before it will be possible to deliver these goods, and many things may happen in that time.

Sugar—The situation this week shows no change. Trade is quiet and latest reports from New York show the market in easy condition there. The foreign beet market is also easy. Indications are that owing to the extreme weakness of the beet market that a further decline is not unlikely. In view of the unsettled situation, the trade generally is not doing much buying.

Molasses and Syrups—There is a fairly good demand for syrups and molasses in the local market. This demand, other things being favorable, will increase as the Lenten season approaches. The syrup business is steadily growing, and Lent is sure to help it along still further. Molasses, according to latest reports from Barbadoes, is selling from 13c. to 15c., puncheon included. Local feeling among the trade is that prices will weaken shortly owing to holders' anxiety to close out stocks before new crop arrives.

Tea—The market this week is steady. There is more inquiry, generally, on all lines. Japans are in better position and somewhat better sales are reported. Generally speaking, trade seems to be brightening up. In Chinas, Ping Sueys are firmer and lowest quotations are in the neighborhood of 11c. to 11 1-2c. Supplies are short and in few hands. There is a strong demand reported for Young Hysons and Gunpowders in the U. S., and this has had a tendency to tone up the market here. Ceylon greens are holding steady at the advance, with very few offering. Local dealers are of the opinion that an advance of 1c. is not unlikely within the next few weeks, as the tone of the market both in Colombo and London is strong. In Ceylon blacks, some good teas of better quality have been offering here than have been seen for some time, but are held at high prices. Ceylon fannings and siftings are practically unobtainable even at advanced prices.

Coffee—There is no change to note in the situation of coffee, other than the reported weakness in the New York market, which, however, has had no appreciable effect on local trade. The general tone is easy; business by grinders and roasters is reported fairly satisfactory.

Foreign Dried Fruits— The market this week is quiet, the only interest being an advance in shelled walnuts, which are reported much firmer with stocks pretty well controlled by one foreign house. Valencias are steady. Currants are firm, with very little transpiring. Dates maintain their firmness at the recent advance.

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKETS.

Montreal, Thursday, Feb. 22, 1906.

BUTTER—Receipts smaller than sales. Market consequently better in tone. Approach of Lent will probably improve demand. Good to fine creamery, 22 to 22 1-2c. Dairy selling well, 18 1-2 to 19 1-2c.

CHEESE—Little change. Slightly improved feeling and a few sales. Holders still ask 13c., but find it hard to obtain.

EGGS — Situation unchanged. Receipts fairly large. Quotations 17 to 18c. for fresh. Held eggs quoted 12 to 15c. for cold storage.

PROVISIONS—Hogs in good demand, $7.50 to $7.75 per 100 lb on foot and $10 to $10 25 dressed per 100 lb. Receipts very light. Smoked hams in good demand. Stocks light. Lard firm. Prices unchanged.

Beans—The market is nominal at present. Business is just about at a standstill. Nobody seems anxious to buy and few show a desire to sell. Stocks are decreasing, however, and the prices, which are now the same as they were last week, may go up if the decrease continues. Weakness is the characteristic of the market.

Maple Products—The market remains unchanged. The usual volume of business is being transacted and the export trade is steady. If the present weather continues, the Spring goods will soon be offering. Present indications point to a successful output this year.

Evaporated Apples—The demand for evaporated apples recently has been very heavy despite the high price asked. At present 11 1-2c. is offered for Winter varieties, but even at this figure enough cannot be obtained to supply the demand. Holders are firm in the west.

Fish—The demand for all kinds of fish is very brisk, as this is the fish dealers' busiest season. The Lenten season begins next week, and country merchants are now procuring their stocks. On account of the mild weather, which has prevailed, merchants have not stocked up, and consequently nearly all the orders received at present are for rush shipment. Pickled and salt fish are scarce, especially herring and green cod, and prices have advanced in consequence. Other lines are in fairly good supply and find ready sale.

GROCERIES.

The grocery trade is becalmed between the seasons. Still, business is fair; there are no complaints, and at least one old established wholesaler reports January sales considerably in advance of last year, which offers poor support to the excuse that the open Winter has hindered trade.

Prices during the week have not shown important fluctuations. Canned goods are firmer. Tapioca has gone a small step higher. Candied peels are about a cent higher, and firm. Sugar syrups and molasses are said to be going higher. They are in active demand and very strong.

Canned Goods—"Canned goods are very strong" is the word at every wholesale house, but for the week no advances in prices are quoted, except for tomatoes. They are in active demand at a dollar. Peas and corn are in about the same way, perhaps less markedly so. The low prices are causing a very large consumption, and, though the packers last Fall filled 90 per cent of their orders, it is said there won't be a can left over. Tomatoes are very high in the States and cannot be imported from there as they were last year.

The Canadian asparagus is done and the Californian is a luxury at $3.90.

The scarcity of apples has firmed the market for all canned fruits.

Sugar—There are indications that the bottom in prices has been reached, but Toronto wholesale lore differs. "The sugar market is steady again," the head of one old firm told The Grocer. "The market shows no tendency to harden," said another of equal standing. "Business is quiet and there is no change in prices," said another authority.

The American market is, however, stiffening up a little, and it is the background for the Canadian, and for the matter of that, for the rest of the world, to a considerable extent. A New York advice of Tuesday said: "Increased firmness in raws. Holders asking 1-32 advance for limited quantity, while 1-16 advance is more generally asked. The firmer feeling has a tendency to check business for the moment. European markets are quiet and steady. Quotation for 88 per cent. now 8s. 3-4d, basis f.o.b. Hamburg for February shipment, which is equal to $3.67 for duty paid in New York for 96 degrees test centrifugals. This is 5-16c. above recent sales of that description. In refined, withdrawals against contracts are heavy, while new business is fair. Prices are unchanged, with the markets steady at the close without any special indications for the immediate future."

For Canadian refined sugars there is only a moderate consumptive demand, with buying confined strictly to the hand to mouth basis, and prices are unchanged.

Syrups and Molasses—The molasses situation is very strong. In the primary markets, Barbadoes are all up about a cent and New Orleans about two cents, and the indications point higher. No changes are quoted locally as yet. Syrups are in good demand.

Tea—There has been a little movement in tea locally this week, but the trade generally is slow.

Low grades of tea are easy in London, but the better qualities are very firm. Green Ceylons are very firm in the primary market.

The offerings of Indian teas at auction in London totalled 197,000 packages against 175,000 in the same month last year. There was a somewhat larger percentage of less desirable grades than in December. The month opened with a tendency to advance, but the heavy offerings were beyond the capabilities of buyers, and an average price of 7.23d per pound in the second week dropped to 6.86d in the last.

The Ceylon offerings at London auctions in January totalled 138,000 packages, against 133,000 in January, 1905. Prices followed closely, those for Indian falling from an average in the first week of 7.63d per pound, to 6.91d in the closing sale.

Coffee—Higher prices are looked for. Present prices are very steady and, a most unusual thing, they have not varied for three months. The higher prices are of course a guess, but one firm has in three carloads on the strength of their expert's diagnosis of the situation.

Willett & Gray, in their weekly statement, make up for lack of information with a sermon on the vanity of prophesying the Brazilian crop. They conclude.

"With the fact that consumption continues so much ahead of production, the only restraining feature to an advance in prices is the accumulation of stocks from former years, but then these are diminishing very rapidly, and with the consumption of Brazil coffee in the United States alone of six million bags, larger stocks do not have the same influence as formerly, say 15 or 25 years ago, when the consumption of Brazil coffees here was only three million bags.

"The trade has been buying with great caution in this country and with still greater reluctance in Europe, so that it is highly probable that interior stocks are kept within the closest range of necessities."

The visible supply of the world was on Feb. 1, 11,931,631 bags; on January 1, 12,647,595, and on February 1, last year, 13,621,720.

Foreign Dried Fruits—Trade is good, with a market showing a tendency rather to advance than decline. Candied peels are higher about a cent. The citron crop in Corsica having failed, next year's Christmas cake will not be one loaded with that kind of peel.

California raisins are more closely held and the prices are firmer. Some are quoting 1-2c. higher. The currant market in Greece remains quite firm on a basis of about 5 1-8c. here for lowest grades.

Foreign Nuts—Nuts in all lines show a tendency to advance in the primary markets. Some business has been done in the past week for importation to Canada. Stocks on the spot are short, but this is not felt at this time of the year, as the demand is light. Importations are with a view to supplying expected expansion of business in the Spring. Local quotations have not changed.

Rice and Tapioca—The most talked of article in the grocery trade to-day is tapioca, which has advanced from a 3 cent to a 6 cent basis in the last six months. Apparently the end of the advance is not yet, as the latest cable to New York quotes 23s. 6d c.i.f., which is equal to 6 1-4c. in Toronto, duty paid. The steadily advancing market caused operators, generally, to refrain from importing, with the result that there is little stock in Canada and none of any importance near at hand. It is not at all unlikely that tapioca will be hard to buy at considerably higher prices within the next few months.

"Tapioca is very high," said a leading wholesaler.

"Why?"

"I think the market is cornered."

The impression that generally prevails is that the low prices have induced the East Indian planters to suspend production.

Honey—The honey market is in good shape. There is a good demand and stocks are being cleaned up rapidly. There seems to be a revival in the consumption of honey, due in part, perhaps, to the scarcity of apples. Prices remain unchanged. Hides—Chicago is still unsettled and dealers here are expecting something to happen; they don't know what. Some of the big fellows stocked up a while ago on a falling market by crowding weaker men, but prices, contrary to expectations, continued downward, and it is a question now how long these heavy stocks can be held. A peculiar fact is that the consumers of leather in the Old Country cannot get enough for their needs, yet hides are 2 1-2c. less than two months ago.

Fox and muskrat skins are in good demand, and for the better class of red fox 25c. more is being offered. For the low grade skunk skin there is practically no demand, and 10c. has been shaved off the price.

N. S. Markets.

It is estimated that more sugar was sold in Halifax during the past week than in any other single week for years. What looks like a determined effort to break the sugar "combine" in this city is now on, and the situation is becoming so interesting that the consumer is commencing to wonder when the end will come. Sugar can now be bought cheaper in this city at the present time than ever before. The importers outside of the combine started to cut prices, and they are still at it.

The prices of Austrian and Scotch sugars were first dropped from $4.10 to $3.80, and these prices held for a few days. Then a further decline of 10c. was made, and the price per hundred pounds was $3.70. These prices held for about two weeks, and still the refineries held firm. The grocers handling the sugars above referred to extensively advertised the article, and some of them marked it down to 27 pounds for a dollar. Another dealer lowered the price to 98c. per hundred pounds, and still another jobber who styles himself the "cash man both ways," sent forth display advertisements offering 28 pounds for one dollar. It was thought that the latter price was the limit, but another dealer who conducts both a retail and wholesale establishment, quoted the same sugars at $3.60 per bag of one hundred pounds. For several days the situation remained unchanged, but at the close of the week the grocer who was the first to make the cut in sugar marked it down to $3.50 per bag of one hundred pounds.

The consumer is now happy, and he is smiling at his good fortune. Instead of buying a few pounds as heretofore, the consumer—that is, all who can possibly afford it—now buy a hundred pound bag. Lots of others who have ready money are laying in good stocks, as they feel sure that these prices cannot last long. Some persons are even laying in a supply for the next preserving season, and the confectioners are nearly all taking advantage of the present prices.

The refineries are still standing firm, and up to the present they have not reduced their prices one cent. This competition, however, must be having a serious effect on their business, as the ordinary consumer is scarcely able to distinguish the difference between the local refineries' granulated sugar and that of the Austrian and Scotch. Just what the refineries are going to do about the situation cannot be forecasted at present, but some persons predict that this miniature sugar war will equal in some respects the famous Havemeyer-Arbuckle sugar war in the United States some years ago.

During the week one of the steamers arriving at this port landed 2,000 bags of sugar, and with the stock previously in the hands of the dealers, it is expected that the "sugar war" will continue while the supply lasts.

Butter and Eggs.—The supply of good fresh butter coming to the market keeps up fairly well. Not only have the farmers marketed considerable butter of late, but the creameries also have increased their output. Prices, however, are firm, and no early decline is looked for. Creamery prints are quoted at 25c. to 26c., solids at 24c., small tubs from 24c. to 25c., and rolls from 22c. to 25c., according to the quality. There is very little butter being exported from these parts this season.

The egg market here remains about the same, and while the mild weather lasts no change is looked for in either supply or price. The local consumer can procure all the fresh laid stock required at 20c., the retail price being two cents in advance. The case eggs in cold storage are selling slow, people preferring to pay the extra price for the fresh article.

Apples.—The demand for apples has improved somewhat, but the stocks on hand are not large to choose from. One dealer said the other day there is not such a thing as a first-class No. 1 apple on the market. He pointed out the fraudulent packing which still exists, notwithstanding that inspectors are in different parts of the province. There is a laxity somewhere in the apple packing business. Either the inspectors do not show enough alertness, or the penalty imposed on the packer is not sufficiently great to make him realize that he must brand his apples according to the contents of the barrel. One dealer pointed out a barrel of apples marked "No. 1 Northern Spy." They were supposed to be fancy stock, and the dealer paid the commission man $4.50 for the barrel. Then the grocer opened the barrel and removed the first three rows, then came No. 2's, and below them No. 3's. This is a sample of what the trade has to contend with.

HAMILTON TRAVELERS AT HOME.

To-night (Friday, 23) is the date fixed for the Hamilton travelers' at home. The arrangements are most complete and a record success is anticipated.

B. C. News.

Vancouver, Feb. 14, 1906.

Alberta wheat to be ground into flour in Vancouver mills is a dream of long existence and now fast coming to realization. The first move in that direction, the building of the Hall elevator on the False Creek waterfront, is complete. Several shipments of wheat from the western prairies have been received, in all totalling 12,000 bushels or more. The new elevator has a capacity for 100,000 bushels. The Messrs. Hall announce that the mill project is to come along as an adjunct of the elevator and wheat shipping business.

Mr. Geo. Easterbrooke, of Tweed, Ont., an old mill man, is now moving rapidly in the direction of establishing a mill. Temporary quarters in the old Provincial Cannery, at Eburne, on the north arm of the Fraser River, have been secured, and Mr. Easterbrooke is busily engaged converting the buildings and adapting them to receive a flour mill plant. He will have direct connection by electric line with Vancouver for freight in and out, and the transfer charges are a very small item when compared with the cheapness of the location as to cost of site, taxes, etc.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Easterbrooke and associates built a flour mill at Delagoa Bay, South East Africa, and operated it for some years. It was a paying enterprise until after the close of the Boer War, and the consequent dull trade which followed. The mill is now shut down, and Mr. Easterbrooke, in looking for a new location, is firm in his conviction that he has found the best place for such a concern as he proposes. His mill will have a capacity of 100 bbls. per day at first, and the local trade will be sought largely to begin with.

Mr. F. V. Moffett, already a successful mill operator at Enderby, in the Okanagan district, is said to be contemplating the erection of another mill at the coast. Mr. Moffett has already been seeking foreign trade from his present mill, and no doubt would enlarge the scope of his enterprise if he built a mill here.

Alberta grain men, represented by John Lineham, of Calgary, are at the back of another elevator and mill enterprise, said to be destined for this point in the near future. Indeed it is asserted that the elevator they intend building will be ready in plenty of time to receive the next season's wheat harvest.

British Columbia hops are finding a favorable demand on the Old Country markets, and the requirements increase each year more rapidly than production has done so far. A number of large ranches at Chilliwack, Agassiz, (which is also in the Fraser Valley), Squamish, and at Vernon, in the Okanagan, are devoted to producing hops, and large drying plants have been erected. At Chilliwack Horst Bros., of San Francisco, are the largest growers. They ship a large proportion of the hop crop to the California market.

The Blue Funnel steamer Telemachus, on her out-bound trip on Saturday, took out several hundred bales of hops from B.C., billed to Old Country dealers. She also took out almost the last consignment of the 1905 salmon pack, 30,000 cases, valued at $90,000. Fish oil, salt herring and tallow were other consignments of considerable proportions on the manifest of the Telemachus.

Maple sugar from the soft maples so common in this province is a product shown by an enterprising rancher from Chilliwack. The article looks like maple sugar, tastes like maple sugar, is made from sap from maple trees, like maple sugar—in short, is maple sugar all right. It is about the same color as the eastern article; perhaps a little coarser in the grain, but almost as full-flavored.

The fruit growing districts of the interior are rapidly expanding in commercial importance. In the Nelson district of Kootenay the local association estimates the probable berry crop next season at $100,000. In the Okanagan district similar expansion is noted. Large areas of land round Vernon, following the example set in the settlements down the lake, are being filled up with settlers who are setting out plantations, and every year the acreage producing fruit is increasing. At Vernon a move is being made for a co-operative produce exchange, similar to a number already organized at other points. The large ranches in that district are giving place to new settlements of small holders, who cultivate a few acres each. These producers find the necessity of combining to place their products on the market of the Northwest district, thus cutting out as far as possible all sharing of profits with the middlemen.

City trade this week has been somewhat quieter, the wholesalers report. The movement of goods to northern and up-coast points has not yet begun, and the logging camps are not all opened up yet. By the end of the month business will be very lively, because by that time shipment of supplies to northern canneries will have begun, in anticipation of the approaching salmon packing season, which in Northern British Columbia waters is very much earlier than on the Fraser.

Several new canneries are to be erected this season, and all those now in existence on northern rivers and bays are to be operated. The off season on the Fraser makes the trade of that river a very small factor this year.

In the markets this week features are scarce. It is noteworthy that this is the scarcest season for butter. Eastern stocks are being diminished week by week, and local fresh made is not increasing, nor will it for some weeks yet. New Zealand and California makes are not in the market here yet.

Fresh eggs continue cheaper, and last week's quotation of 32½ might be cut to even 30c. now. Both Oregon supplies and local fresh-laid are coming in plentifully.

A USEFUL SOUVENIR.

S. H. & A. S. Ewing, Montreal coffee and spice mills, are sending out a very neat little pencil case as a souvenir to the trade.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, Feb. 21, 1906.

Business continues rather quiet. The first snow for almost a month came during the past week, and was greatly appreciated, particularly by the lumbermen in that section of New Brunswick along the Bay of Fundy, where, from lack of snow, the lumbermen have found it impossible to get their logs to the mill, even where distances were comparatively short.

Shipments of the winter port continue extremely large. In grain, the quantity is very much in excess of any previous year. Last year, the shipments were light. Our elevator capacity is taxed to the utmost, and it is said there are hundreds of cars awaiting their turn to unload.

Every effort is being made by the city to have increased facilities for the next season. The Government, which for a long time was exceedingly backward in granting any aid, although they were spending millions of dollars on inland waters, had allowed practically the full cost of the harbor facilities at St. John to be borne by the city, although the work was really a national one, have lately shown a better feeling, still the amount of money voted has not been large and the work not pushed forward as rapidly as is necessary. The increased size of the steamers demands increased wharfage, and our citizens feel that not only in our own interests, but in the interests of Canadian trade, immediate action must be taken by the Government so that steamers desiring to come here in the coming year will find accommodation We have no doubt the Government intend to do what is right. The difficulty is to get them to act with sufficient promptness

Markets.—The quiet demand is probably a reason why there are so few changes. Cream of tartar holds firm at the advance, and the tendency is higher prices. Figures, however, are still quite low. Nutmegs show quite an advance, but they also are still low. The market is said to be very firm. In rice, prices are a little easier than were anticipated, compared with other years. The price, however, is still a little higher than of late. The interest in molasses continues. The fancy Barbadoes, which previously has been imported free, has, on account of the sugar contained, been now charged a duty, which increases its cost between four and five cents a gallon. In dairy products rather lower prices rule.

Oil.—In burning oil demand, owing to the increased length of the day, begins to show a marked decrease. Prices continue low, and there is little prospect of any change. In lubricating oils there is, as usual, little change in prices. It is rather a matter of relative value of the products for the particular purpose intended. Business is now being particularly pushed, and fair average trade expected. In paint oils, prices will rule higher than last year. The linseeds, which some time ago advanced quite rapidly, hold firm. Turpentine continues extremely high, and the outlook would seem for even higher prices. In cod oil the season is almost over; quite high prices have ruled; the fishermen have had a particularly profitable season.

Salt—There have been fair receipts in Liverpool coarse salt. Demand being but light, there is considerable stock in hand. In Liverpool factory-filled there is just average sale. In fine salt at this season demand is light. In this line the sale is chiefly for Canadian. In Liverpool salt, this is the season when new arrangements are entered into. It is thought coarse salt may be sold slightly lower, but factory-filled will possibly be a little higher. So far, we hear of no changes in Canadian prices.

Canned Goods.—There is just a fair sale. Peas continue very low. Corn rather firmer. In tomatoes there is a fair stock held in St. John, and while prices are firmer, and perhaps a little higher, goods are being sold out of store lower than they could be replaced, and higher prices must very shortly rule. In fruits there is a good stock in all lines. Prices are unchanged. There is rather improved inquiry for gallon apples. These have been selling very low. We anticipate a rather higher figure in the near future. Oysters are firmer. There is but a light demand in this market for shrimps. Salmon have a steady sale at even prices. In beef there is little demand. Spring supplies have been purchased at low figures, and the market has shown little change. In domestic fish sales are rather light. There is a fair stock of sardines still held. Haddies and kippers are a light supply. Scallops are practically out of the market.

Dry Fruits.—Business in this line is quiet. Stocks of raisins not large. Our buyers were so disgusted with the California situation that when the market went off in January they would not buy. Since then the market has recovered at least a half cent. Prices are comparatively low. Owing to the extreme figures before Christmas, sales were very light, and what is usually a profitable business was entirely upset, and dealers will of course lose considerable on even the small stocks which they carried over. Malaga loose are still below the California product. They were quite freely sold this season, although there is less demand each year for bulk goods. Valencias are low, and have a fair demand on this account. In currants, stocks held are not large. The price is very firm, tending rather higher. Prunes are a light stock, particularly small sizes, which are very difficult to replace. There is a fair demand at rather firmer figures. Apricots and peaches are firm, with small sale. Peels are in very light supply and higher. There are a fair stock of dates. Price is low. Goods could not be replaced at present figures. There is very little sale for figs. Evaporated apples, owing to the high prices, sell slowly. Market is very firm. There is a slight demand for dried at quite full figures.

In onions sales are limited, Canadian stock keeping very poorly, which has kept price low. Valencias which are coming to hand do not show good keeping qualities. Prices on the other side have shown quite an advance.

Sugar.—There is a good steady sale at the present very low prices. There has been no change this week. After one year of steady advance, we have had one year of steady decline, and it is thought prices are about at lowest figures. In foreign sugars very little is being offered owing to scarcity of British cane product on the other side, and also the low prices in Canada.

Molasses.—As the spring advances there is increased interest. There has been a fair steady demand for Porto Rico. There is, however, still quite a full stock of old on hand. In old Barbadoes the market is practically cleaned up. There has as yet been none of the regular grade new stock landed, although some is now due. Several lots of fancy Barbadoes have been landed. Quality exceedingly good, and there has been a fair sale at full prices. There has been some inquiry in regard to the duty in this line. It was originally entered free. There has been some question, not only this season but last, just what should be the position of this grade of goods. It is understood the Government has definitely decided to charge a duty, but not a syrup duty, basing their charge on the duty on raw sugar. This will make a difference of some four or five cents in the cost. If importers are called on to pay this extra duty on the goods which have come in, it will of course very largely cut the profits. It is thought, owing to the splendid quality of these goods, that this increase of duty will not affect the sale, although of necessity it will mean higher prices. However, as the goods on the island have shown quite a decline since first importation, this will not be so noticeable. Just how the establishment of this grade of goods in our market will affect the demand for Porto Rico is a matter of considerable interest.

Fish.—Owing to the open weather it has been somewhat an uncertain season for fish, but prices have been well maintained, and the very open weather has very much assisted the fishermen in getting supplies, although, of course, it has affected the marketing of the goods somewhat. Prices, however, have been well maintained; in fact, perhaps the fishermen have had one of the best winters for some years. The only line, perhaps, in which there has been little success is smelt. These require continuous cold weather to handle at a profit. In frozen herring the larger part of the catch has probably gone to the American market, as they are prepared to pay higher figures than can be obtained here. In dry fish prices continue high. Stocks are light. It is thought, however, the figures are at the top, although little change is looked for, at least until after Lent. The West India market is only just fair. In pickled herring supplies are light, and full figures are still asked. Smoked herring are also held firm at comparatively high prices. The output of finnan haddies this year has been large, as owing to the open weather the catch has been good. The open weather, however, has affected the sale, and while prices have ruled at quite full figures, market has been rather dull.

NEW OFFICERS.

At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the John Campbell Milling Co., St. Thomas, last week, directors were elected for the ensuing year as follows: F. E. Freeman, R. D. Ferguson, Hiram Allin, M. Ostrander, Dr. H. Minshall, N. C. Sinclair, and R. N. Price.

Later the following officers were elected: President, R. N. Price; vice-president, K. E. Freeman; treasurer and managing director, N. C. Sinclair; secretary, C. H. Norsworthy.

At noon Mr. John Campbell, founder of the company and who for many years has directed its policy and established its success, and who is now retiring, entertained the shareholders to dinner at his hospitable home in Rosebery Place.

The new president, Mr. R. N. Price, has for years been associated with the company and is one of the most capable practical millers in Canada.

The new managing director, Mr. N. C. Sinclair, is an equally old member of the staff and has been intimately associated with Mr. Campbell in the administrative end of the business for many years.

A prosperous career for the company under the new anagement is anticipated.

FIRE AT TILLSON OAT MILL.

On Feb. 16 a serious fire occurred on the premises of the Tillson Co., Tillsonburg, Ont. The following letter has been received by The Canadian Grocer giving authentic information as to the damage:

"Dear Sirs,—We thank you for your letter of the 16th, sympathizing with us in our loss by fire on Thursday evening. We are glad to say that the fire was confined to one portion of the building and that from such hasty inspection as we have been able to make at this writing, it does not appear as though we would be long closed down.

The vital part of the machinery for making rolled oats does not appear to be greatly damaged, but our capacity will be much reduced for a short time. We hope to be making rolled oats within ten days, and at present have some little stock on hand which will partially tide us over the interval.

If we might make a request as to the use of your columns it would be for you to thank the trade in our name for the many expressions of sympathy that we have received by telegram, telephone and letter. The direct loss to us from partial disablement is made to look a good deal lighter by the sincere expressions of sympathy received from our trade friends.

FLETCHER MFG. CO, TORONTO.

Attention has been drawn from time to time, in the columns of The Canadian Grocer, to the spirit of improvement among the wholesalers of Toronto. Many of the older firms are making renovations and improvements, or moving into altogether larger and more important premises. The Fletcher Manufacturing Co., of 440-442 Yonge street, are among the most recent firms who have greatly improved their establishments. The whole frontage has been renewed and presents one of the finest appearances for business premises in the city. The long run of facia above the window is of the finest marble, upon which is to be mounted in elaborate letters the full name of the firm. A very fine double frontage of plate glass has been preserved, giving an excellent facility for display. The upper floor windows are of arched construction and very imposing.

The interior arrangements remain much as before, except that the firm have rearranged the lay-out of goods on the left side particularly. A very fine show is given of a variety of patterns of soda fountains, designed to meet any demand which may arise, either as regards size, handsomeness of design, or diversity of shape. The floor space for upstair show rooms has been greatly improved and extended. The work altogether has been done in a most substantial and up-to-date manner. We hope to produce an illustration of the building at an early date.

NEW ZEALAND'S INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION.

The Department of Agriculture announces that it is prepared to receive applications for space for Canadian exhibits at the New Zealand International Exposition, to be held at Christchurch, New Zealand, November, 1906, to April, 1907. The Canadian Government will erect a special building, which will be devoted exclusively to the accommodation of exhibits illustrating the natural and manufactured products of Canada. The Department of Agriculture offers to pay transportation charges one way only on all exhibits which are accepted. Space, installation and maintenance will also be provided free of charge. Owners of exhibits will have the option of having their goods returned to Canada at their own expense or they will be sold in New Zealand after the close of the exposition and the net proceeds, after deducting customs, shipping and packing charges, etc., remitted to them.

The foregoing will apply only to such exhibits as are accepted by the department for display on the Government space. Applications for space and correspondence relative to the exposition should be addressed to Mr. William A. Burns, Exhibition Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. The exhibition branch of the Department of Agriculture will have full charge of all arrangements, entries, etc., in so far as the Canadian Government is concerned.

higher price for their goods in consequence.

He spoke emphatically in favor of a pure food law as in the interests of the canners.

The Pure Food Man.

The apostle of pure food in the United States, Dr. Wiley, of the U. S. Bureau of Chemistry, had been invited to speak to the canners and gave an admirable address. One of the speakers declared that in Washington it was said that "Dr. Wiley was so smooth that he had to wear sandpaper on his pyjamas to keep him from sliding out of bed." The happy manner in which the genial doctor expressed his radical views would lend some color to the story. The doctor, who resembles in no small degree our own redoubtable Dr. Oronhyatekha, advocated the use of only first-class fruit and vegetables, pure tin plates, harmless solder, innocuous flux and no preservatives or coloring matter in the manufacture of canned goods and their packages. Sterilization was sufficient to keep canned goods without preservatives, which were more or less harmful, especially to invalids and infants. The chief point on which he was opposed by his auditors was his advocacy of the dating of cans.

At the conclusion of the doctor's address there was some little debate and than a practically unanimous vote in favor of a pure food law.

Machinery Hall.

Young's pier made a capital place for the machinery exhibit. It was commodious. It was light, and the whirr of the wheels gave one the impression of being in an actual factory.

Max Ams Exhibit.

Down the centre aisle as you came in was the exhibit of the Max Ams Machine Co. in charge of Mr. Chas. M. Ams, secretary-treasurer of the company, whose abundant energy was put to the supreme test by the multitude of canners not from Missouri who wanted to "be shown." Mr. Ams was assisted by Mr. Julius Brenzinger and a staff of attendants.

The chief exhibit of this company consisted of their machines for making the sanitary solderless sealed can, seaming the can without the aid of heat, flux or solder. This year they had several new types of machines on exhibition, double seamers both for round and irregular cans, etc. Nos. 25 and 35 double seamers were specially designed to fill sealed cans. The can does not revolve on these machines but stands still while being seamed. The rights to make these cans have been sold in several parts of the United States, and it is understood that arrangements are being completed for their manufacture in Canada. In addition to other machinery, a new style of press was also shown.

The Sprague Canning Machine Co.

This company had a very extensive exhibit including a new processing system in full operation. It is called the Polk agitator and sells at $10,000. They had also a new exhauster that excited comment, and a very ingenious little machine for re-cutting corn. Mr. Daniel G. Trench, of Daniel G. Trench & Co., Chicago, general agents of the Sprague Canning Machine Company, was in charge of the exhibit and was assisted by his secretary, Mr. Babcock, and a large crowd of salesmen wearing huge yellow badges with the Sprague imprint.

The other principal exhibitors were the Ayars Machine Co. with corn cooker-fillers, cappers, pea fillers, etc., under the watchful eye of President Maurice B. Ayars; the Sinclair-Scott Company, showing an enormous pea separator and a large number of other pea and tomato machines. Mr. W. H. Rife in charge; the Huntley Manufacturing Company, with pea machinery of various sorts. This company also manufacture coffee-roasting machines. An interesting corn cooker was shown by Morral Bros. In addition to these exhibitors a large representation of labelling machines were on exhibition as well as a very clever little peach stoner manufactured by the Mapes Machine Co.

An exhibit in the capping line was also made by A. Schultz & Co.

The seed men were well represented, including J. Bolgiano, of Baltimore, Everett B. Clark Co., Livingston Seed Co., Holmes Seed Co., H. W. Buckbee.

On Thursday night the convention were the guests of the American Can Co., at Young's Pier Casino, to witness the musical comedy, "The School Girl." The play was of a character to appeal to a crowd out for a lark, and was enthusiastically received.

On Friday the several sectional associations met and wound up the tag ends of business before separating.

A signal honor was paid Mr. James B. Campbell, of the Acme Can Works, Montreal, by the Machinery and Supplies Association, on Wednesday night, when he was made a member of the association—the first non-resident of the United States ever elected to membership. Mr. Campbell has fully justified the action by his untiring efforts in inducing the Canadian members of the industry to attend the great conventions of the canners of the republic.

Notes.

Pure Food is popular with the canners.

A grain cleaner of good lines was exhibited by Mr. Keith, of Silver Creek, N.Y.

Mr. S. C. T. Simonski, an old Toronto boy, represented Bertram, Bryan Co., of Philadelphia, at the convention.

A device for fastening the covers on glass jars, manufactured by the Victor Jar Co., of Detroit, was examined with interest by the jam manufacturers.

Mr. Arthur I. Judge, of the Trade; Mr. Redman, of the New York Journal of Commerce; Mr. Foxwell, of the American Grocer, and Mr. French, of the Canner, covered the convention for their several papers.

A novelty in the way of a self-heating can for pork and beans, and other picnic delicacies, was demonstrated by the Self-Heating Can Co. The food is in a can within a can, and by the action of water on unslaked lime in the enveloping tin, a good hot lunch is made ready in no time, with no further ado than piercing the tin that separates the water from the lime.

ARE YOU SOUND?

You may be smart, sharp, shrewd, cunning, long-headed, you may be a good scholar, very clever—even brilliant,—but are you sound? That is the question everybody who has any dealings with you will ask. Are you substantial, solid? Have you a level head?

Everywhere we see men who are very brilliant out of work, plenty of sharp men who wonder why they do not get responsible positions. But people are afraid of these one-sided, poorly-balanced men. Nobody feels safe in their hands. People want to feel that a man in a responsible position can keep a clear brain and level head no matter what comes, that he cannot be shaken from his centre no matter how much influence is brought to bear upon him. They want to be sure that he is self-centred, that he is sound to the very core.

The great prizes of life do not fall to the most brilliant, to the cleverest, to the shrewdest, to the most long-headed or to the best educated, but to the most level-headed men, to the men of soundest judgment. When a man is wanted for a responsible position, his shrewdness is not considered so important as his sound judgment. Reliability is what is wanted. Can a man stand without being tripped; and, if he is thrown, can he land upon his feet? Can he be depended upon, relied upon under all circumstances to do the right thing, the sensible thing? Has the man a level head? Has he good horse sense? Is he liable to fly off on a tangent or to "go off half-cocked?" Is he "faddy?" Has he "wheels in his head?" Does he lose his temper easily, or can he control himself? If he can keep a level head under all circumstances, if he cannot be thrown off his balance, and is honest, he is the man wanted.—Success.

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

The cheese market is in a most peculiar position at the moment; supplies are very limited, in fact under any ordinary consumption they are decidedly insufficient to cover the term of non-production before us. In spite of this, the leading retail shops in England have reduced their price to six pence per pound, which is considerably below the ruling market quotation for wholesale lots. It is hardly possible to get at a reasonable explanation of this policy, unless it is that the leading British import house, which now practically controls the situation and is largely interested in the most important retail shops in England, is making a bold bid for the control of the entire trade of Great Britain.

Meanwhile, the few holders of cheese here feel that every box will be wanted before the new season's make can come on the market, and they show no anxiety to unload at reduced prices bid by British importers, so it is at present a stand-off, and real transactions are few and far between.

Stocks of cheese on both sides of the Atlantic are very light, and if English retailers are willing to sell their goods at 6d per pound they must do so at a loss, and they will probably bring on an increased consumptive demand so that they will not be able to keep this policy up very long.

We have had a dull and dragging trade in butter for some time, but lately there has been a decided improvement in this market, and prices have been advanced a shade. The stocks are not burdensome, and new supplies cannot come in until the cows are calved. The weather has nothing to do with this, the consumption keeps on, and when it is found that supplies are running short prices will be advanced.

Altogether it is a very peculiar condition. Prices are high for both cheese and butter, which makes operators very careful, but the statistical position in both articles is so strong that no matter what the public sentiment may be, there is no chance for a decline, and every prospect for a further advance, in prices.

The recent dairy conventions have brought out many ideas of improvement. Individual cow testing has been one of the leading features of discussion, and if our farmers will go into this subject thoroughly they will undoubtedly reap the benefit of it in time. Cows which do not pay for their keep should be got rid of and substituted by paying stock.

Cheese and butter makers should be educated to make a first-class article. The Government provides schools for this purpose, and the makers should graduate from these schools with proper certificates of their efficiency. They should be licensed, and thus only really capable men employed to make the best quality of cheese and butter.

Another very important point was brought out by these recent dairy conventions, viz., the raising of hogs. Our farmers have neglected this branch much to their detriment. The raising of hogs is a very profitable part of farming, and should be encouraged everywhere.

There is another branch of farming coming to the front as a most profitable part, viz., the raising of poultry for the English market. This needs a little more care in the feeding, the killing and dressing than what is at present used, but properly fed and properly dressed chickens will bring very high prices in the London market, and there is undoubtedly a large opening for progressive farmers. The wide-awake farmer, particularly in dairy sections of the country, can make his farm pay well by attending to these suggestions, which are supported by the officials of the Dominion Government.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

The general situation has shown considerable improvement since our last report. At Ontario points there has been active competition for hogs, and prices have in consequence more than recovered the decline of two weeks ago. Quality, however, is deficient, the growth of hogs in many cases showing up anything but suitable for bacon purposes, which of necessity means a good deal of loss in manufacture.

The whole situation depends upon the farmer improving both his output and his quality. It is no exaggeration to say that the existing supply could be increased 50 per cent., and then would only give a moderate supply.

A few hogs can be profitably produced every year on almost any farm, and if these are increased by a few more there is scarcely a possibility of a loss from present indications. It would be unwise for people to rush headlong into the business on the basis of prices paid during the past six months, but the farmer who has staved steadily with the business, producing each year no more hogs than he has proper accommodation and other facilities to handle, has in the past had very little to complain of, and while in a few cases he may have sold at a loss, on the whole his hogs have paid as well as any other farm stock, and the guarantee for the future is just as good, if not a little better, than in any other department of farming.

In the Maritime Provinces trade has been fair, but a good deal of competition is in evidence. American pork is being sold at lower prices than domestic, which makes it difficult for packers at eastern points to pay the high prices demanded for hogs, and show profit in their business. Very little of the Ontario product is finding its way into that market.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

By Our Own Correspondent.

Feb. 10, 1906.

During the past week the general position of the London produce markets has undergone very little change.

As surmised in this correspondence of last week, buyers of butter were unable to refrain from making further purchases owing to the fact that their stocks were growing very low, and consequently the week opened with some signs of renewed activity. Apparently, however, buyers did not intend to depart from their previous methods, and bought only a very limited supply, so that during the last few days the demand has been very slow and small business has been transacted. Once more prices have been reduced, and the quotations for Australian, 101s. and 103s. for choicest, and 96s. and 100s. for finest, are within 1s. of the ruling price at this time last year. New Zealand quotations, 104s. and 106s. for choicest, and 100s. and 102s. for finest, are 2s. above last year's quotations. Again, heavy supplies have come in from the colonies, so that, when the stagnant state of the demand is taken into consideration, the outlook cannot be called very bright.

Cheese.—There is no change to report in regard to the position of the London cheese market. If anything, the slightly stronger demand, to which reference was made last week, has passed away. Very little business has been done, and there seems to be some inclination on the part of sellers to meet buyers in the matter of price. Although prices remain unchanged at 63s. and 64s. for Canadian choicest and 61s. and 62s. for finest, a reduction may be looked for. The demand for New Zealand cheese, although not very great, has yet been better than for other makes, and very little choicest remains. Dutch cheese has had another bad week.

Bacon.—There has been a steady demand throughout the whole week for Irish and continental bacon of the leanest description, and a decidedly more active call for Canadian "pea fed." There has, however, been no change in price. The continental killings have been estimated at about 30,000 hogs, the Irish killings at about 6,280.

During the past week a meeting of the Central and Associated Chambers of Agriculture was held, whereat a resolution was put forward and adopted urging that the Government should be approached with a view to the introduction of a bill which should regulate the quality of butter. It might be mentioned that such a ruling has become very necessary owing to the vast amount of fraud and adulteration that is at present going on over here. One member of the meeting suggested that a general inspection of places wherein butter is manufactured should be undertaken

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.

The provision market continues firm and unchanged, with live hogs scarce. General tone on all lines is steady. Bacon and ham in good demand. Fresh killed abattoir dressed hogs $10, and country dressed $9 to $9.50. Lard quotations are fluctuating. Special quotations will be found in last minute markets.

Cheese.

There is not much business going on in the cheese market. Dealers are asking 13c. for the finest but find it difficult to obtain that figure. They have had offers of less but are afraid to sell, as, owing to the present light stock, which is decreasing a little every day, they may be able to get 14c. or 15c. in the near future.

Butter.

The local market is steady. Choice creamery is selling at 22½c. to 23c. Some other prices have decreased a little also. The general tendency of the market is downward, and some dealers are inclined to shade quotations. Local demand is fair. Export inquiry is nil.

Eggs.

There has been a marked decline in all eggs since last week. Fresh laid sell from 18c. to 19c. One reason ascribed for the decline is the fact that eggs were offered in New York at 10c. It is very hard to give accurate quotations at present as the merchants cannot make up their own grades on account of there being no definite standard.

Provisions.

Trade continues fair and prices firm with here and there an upward movement. The packers have again advanced their buying price, owing to the shortness of the supply, consequently dressed hogs by the carload are up 25 cents and in small lots are up 25 to 50 cents. Large hams are a little scarcer and the price shows a ½-cent advance. Short cut is quoted 50 cents higher than last week.

Because not much stock is moving is given as a reason why choice beef has advanced 25 to 50 cents. Lamb, too, is ½ to ¾ of a cent higher.

Butter.

Creamery butter has firmed up slightly, but the dairy variety is lower. Last Fall many dealers anticipated a shortage as there was a year ago, and put away considerable quantities to meet it. The shortage has not developed and these stocks are now coming out. Creamery is ½c. to 1c. higher, and dairy 2c. lower. Very few dairy prints are offering and the majority of those offered are not of prime quality.

Eggs.

The mild weather is having the usual effect upon the hen, and the supply has so far overtaken the demand as to reduce prices for new laid eggs 2 to 3 cents. The fresh or cold storage variety have taken an even greater step down. Some commission houses quote as low as 13c. to 14c., and others as high as 16c. to 17c.

Provisions.

In barrel pork there have been several slight advances during the past week or two, so that prices at present are high. Chiefly American pork is being sold. There has been very little domestic pork offered, and when our local packers have stock to offer, they find it difficult to get a reasonable price compared with the cost, owing to American competition, even with the high prices. There is little Ontario pork offered.

In barrel beef, prices show little change. There is a very light sale.

Pure lard is quoted rather higher, and market continues to be supplied chiefly with the American product. Canadian refined compound is rather higher but still ruling low, as compared with pure. There is a good steady demand.

Smoked meats are high, with a limited sale.

In fresh meats, western beef is rather firmer. The price is still low. Domestic beef is freely offered, and is cheap. There is just fair demand. Lamb has a steady sale at full figures, and mutton is quite firm for this season. Sale, however, is not large. There is some veal offered, and price is a little easier. Pork continues high.

Eggs.

It is rather a peculiar feature of the market that for a long time eggs and butter have practically sold at the same price, that is comparing dairy butter with case eggs. These are also rather lower, and more freely offered. There is a fairly steady sale.

Cheese.

The high price has very much affected the sale during the past season. Stocks held are very light, and there is a steady tendency to higher ngures. Output in this province during the year was relatively small, but still sufficient to supply the local trade. For local business twins are demanded.

ENLARGED AND REBUILT.

The cheese factory at Welland Station, which was purchased by the Pure Milk Creamery Co., of Hamilton, Ont., has been largely rebuilt and improved, and new plant installed. It will now be used as a supply station for the business of the company at Hamilton and other points. The product will consist chiefly of milk and cream, but will also include butter, buttermilk and cheese. As soon as enough cream and milk can be secured to warrant it, the plant will be put in operation.

The cheese factory buildings have been greatly improved by the new company, and an ice house with a capacity of 400 tons built.

INSPECTORS FOR CHEESE FACTORIES.

Sanitary conditions of cheese factories is a subject which the Provincial Government is soon to be called upon to look into closely with a view to very necessary improved conditions. The instructors appointed by the Government can only ask the cheesemakers to comply with the regulations, but they have no authority to enforce them, and in some localities the cheese men have not the regard for cleanliness that should accompany the manufacture of cheese. Complaints have been numerous, and the remedy seems to rest in the appointment of cheese factory inspectors to compel the existence of proper conditions.

Mr. Putnam, superintendent of farmers' institutes, has just returned from Stratford, where he attended a meeting of the Western Dairymen's Association, and where it was decided to unite with the eastern association to urge upon the Government the desirability of appointing qualified sanitary inspectors. The committee chosen to see the Government is composed of Thomas Valentine, jr., Stratford; J. M. Pagett, Canboro; A. F. MacLaren, M.P., Stratford; J. McQuaker, Owen Sound; and G. H. Barr, the secretary of the association.

Mr. Putnam says he is making arrangements with the Dominion Department of Agriculture for a series of meetings to commence in June for the edification of farmers growing grasses and cereal seeds. These meetings will be held in the fields where the growing is going on, and the identification of weeds will be a feature of the movement.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The movement of grain has been more active from lake ports since our last report. Millers at outside points are having a varied experience in Northern and Eastern Ontario; deliveries of grain are not over abundant, farmers still show disposition to hold back supplies, apparently with a view to encourage improvement in prices. At western points, however, deliveries have greatly improved recently. The districts affected by the lumbering industries are complaining somewhat on account of the serious delay in operations on account of lack of snow for hauling. Prices of grain on the Ontario market have made a further downward movement, and the situation is considered unsatisfactory from a price standpoint. Much of the grain shows signs of smut, and it is more difficult to secure unblemished supplies.

Millers, with few exceptions, report that the demand from the eastern provinces is slow and uninteresting. The export demand for near-by shipments appears to be in a similar condition, but some large sales are reported to have been made for future shipment, the orders extending to the middle of the Summer. This would indicate that present prices are so low that foreign buyers are willing to buy for their requirements months ahead, in the same way that they have been purchasing wheat of late.

There has been a good demand for Ontario wheat for export during the week. Farmers' deliveries have been so light that there is a better inquiry for Winter wheat from the millers, who have been picking up odd cars of No. 2 mixed at 78c. to 78½c., but if the export demand for mixed continues, they will have to pay 79c.

The past week has been a quiet one in Manitoba wheat, as the demand from millers has been light, only odd cars being wanted either at North Bay or lake port elevators, but there is now more inquiry. Exporters claim that while they have plenty of bids for wheat, they are from ¼c. to 1c. per bushel below the market.

The closing of the cereal union is being felt generally in the trade, a good deal of competition is going on, and buyers, particularly wholesale and retail grocers, are finding quotations to show great irregularity and uncertainty, in fact present quotations are practically only nominal.

NEW C.P.R. TERMINAL

It is pretty well settled that the C.P.R. will make Victoria Harbor, on the Georgian Bay, an important terminal in connection with the new branch of which plans were recently filed with the Railway Commission. This branch will connect lake freighters with the main line at or near Peterboro' by a short run across country on easy grades. Victoria Harbor will therefore become, if not the chief point of transhipment of freight from lake bottoms, at least one of the chief points. Plans for its equipment have not yet been fully decided upon, but it will have proper facilities for the quick handling of large cargoes. This need not mean that Owen Sound will be abandoned in such capacity, for that port and Victoria Harbor are but two of the points where the C.P.R. vessels will discharge grain from vessels that have come down from Fort William. Goderich is another. When the second track between Winnipeg and Fort William is ready for operation a large grain fleet can be kept busy on the lakes, and that will naturally call for far greater accommodation on this side. But as Victoria Harbor affords the shortest and most economical possibilities for connection with the main line, eastward, it is morally certain that the bulk of the shipments for export will pass through the elevators to be built there. Owen Sound and Goderich will then have an opportunity to look well after the local Ontario demands.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

Flour.

There has been a reduction in the price of certain flours since last week. It is said on good authority that the bottom has just about been reached. It is unlikely that the prices will fall any lower. Probabilities point to a rise in the near future. Dealers on this side are inclined to refrain from stocking up very heavily on account of the unsettled condition of the European wheat markets, consequently there is not much business being transacted.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

In flour there is a steady sale at even prices, there being no change for some few weeks.

Feed is quite high, and there is a fair steady sale.

Oats keep high.

Oatmeal is quoted relatively low as compared with oats. There is, however, little or no sale. In local market prices show little change.

Cornmeal is quite low.

Beans are easier than a few weeks ago, but demand seems light. Yellow eyes and white beans are quoted at about the same prices, which means extremely low figures for the yellow eyes. They have shown little change since the price opened in the Fall.

In barley there is just a limited demand. Seeds continue to have attention from the trade.

American timothies are very largely bought here. Prices this season are rather higher than last. The demand is for good seed. The market is firm. In Canadian timothies there is a limited demand for some of the very best grade, irrespective of price. In clovers, Canadian seeds are sold. Prices opened quite high, and in red clover, and particularly Mammoth, rather high values already rule. Alsikes are somewhat more freely offered.

HALIFAX, N. S.

Flour and Feed.

The markets for flour and feed are steady, with the ordinary demand. Prices quoted here range about as follows: Straights, $4.10 to $4.25; ninety per cent., $4.15 to $4.30; eighty per cent., $4.65 to $4.75; seventy per cent., $4.70 to $4.80; Manitobas, $5.25 to $5.50; oats, per bushel, 46c.; middlings, $22.50 to $23.50; bran, $21 to $22.

Hill's mill, Sarnia, which is operated by the Sarnia Cereal Company, was visited with a disastrous fire Wednesday night, the 7th inst. The fire was discovered about 11 o'clock. It originated in the engine room and spread to the main portion of the building. The firemen worked diligently, but despite their efforts the mill and its contents were damaged to the extent of nearly $3,000.

The elevators at Lumsden this year handled over 500,000 bushels of grain. Over $300,000 in cash would be required to meet this turnover. Within a radius of nine miles from Lumsden there are ten elevators, and the combined elevators of Lumsden and vicinity will handle close on to a million bushels of wheat.

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS MEET.

The Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, at their monthly meeting Monday night, decided to join with the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association, and with the Retail Fruiters' Association, in urging the city council to appoint a fruit inspector for the fruit market during the Summer months.

Scarcely a package of fruit arrives here that is not topped, and you get mighty little satisfaction when you take any back to the wholesaler.

A resolution was passed also pledging the association's support to the approaching Pure Food Show. Some of the members thought it ill-advised to take any action as an association, preferring to confine their support of the show to what each might care to do as an individual grocer. The resolution was carried by a narrow majority.

GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

HOW ADVERTISEMENTS MIGHT BE IMPROVED

2. Typography.

Last week you were shown two first-rate advertisements. The two given this week cannot be so styled.

In the advertisements of Buell and Gould Bros., as pointed out before, there was balance, a harmony between type and space—in other words, a complete plan. The advertisements reproduced on this page were set without taste, without order—utterly devoid of plans.

The display type in Armand's announcement is large enough for a space double the size, and the lines about the telephone and farm produce could not have been hidden much better.

The chief trouble the compositor had to brush against was insufficient matter, but it is just in such cases that the ability of the compositor should show itself.

Instead of attempting to utilize the whole space, why didn't he design a space, have called into use more suitable type faces and given the advertisement shape.

"For Pure Groceries and Cheap" is a clumsy way of talking about the purity and cheapness of certain groceries.

"Malaga Grapes" should have been spread across as the legitimate heading of the advertisement and "choice stock" set either in a panel below it, or part of the matter set on one side and part on the other with some ornaments between.

The design at present is ponderous at one end and insignificant at the other.

Toye & Benedict's advertisement is another instance of waste space. Twenty-five lines double column have been chosen, when forty lines single column would have given a much better display.

The subsidiary parts of an advertisement should never be outshadowed. It is a consideration of this fact that leads a compositor of ability to choose his type faces by degrees of size rather than by indiscriminate selection.

It also leads him to make his display lines strong, but not grotesque, his indentations few, his ornaments tasty, but not gaudy, the divisions between the important and the less important clear, but not glaring.

The various parts of an advertisement must be harmoniously put together or the advertisement will not be successful.

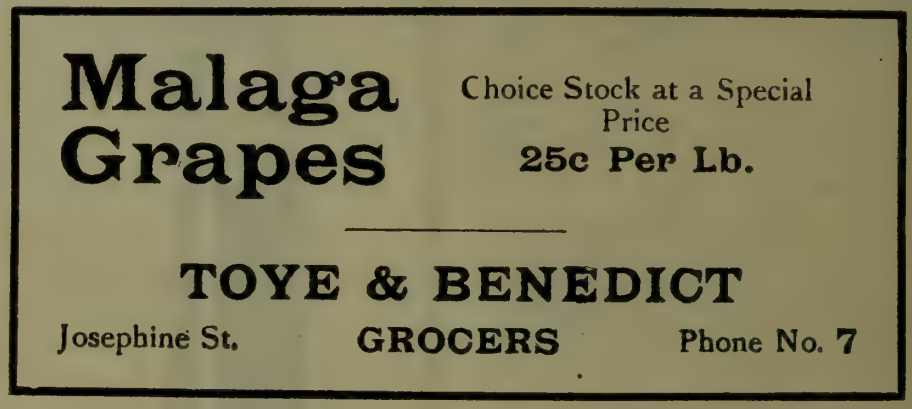
You may say, "But the people do not bother about all this." Display and taste in the typography of your advertisement are like cleanliness and order in your store—they attract.

A. A. B.



E. C. Armand's advertisement could have been set in just one half the space, and been set much nicer, too.

neat panel inside the border and set his matter within the panel? This arrangement would have given a complete white

The compositor who was responsible for Toye & Benedict's announcement fared a little better than his confrere in Arnprior, but he, too, failed in preserving type and space congruity.

BANQUET OF W. H. MALKIN & CO.

Following a precedent set by themselves some two years ago, the W. H. Malkin Co., Limited, wholesale grocers, entertained their employes at a complimentary banquet in the Badminton Hotel, Vancouver, on Tuesday evening, February 6. Some thirty of the members of the staff and the principals sat down to the board, which deserved the time-honored term "festive," if the menu, which is given herewith, counts for anything.

The toast list was heartily entered into, and the men who sell and ship staple groceries proved that they could speak well, too, on occasion. Not a little was added to the pleasure of the event by the announcement made by the president, Mr. W. H. Malkin, that a substantial sharing of profits would be given those employes who had been twelve months with the firm. This, too, is not the first instance in which the W. H. Malkin Co. has made a similar distribution. Some of the members of the staff have been with the house many years. The distribution is based on the total yearly earnings, each individual being given profits in proportion to his salary.

Some of the mottoes printed on the back of the menu cards were :

"Take hold and lift."

"He that doth hammer on one nail will drive it home at last."

"Every man is a genius did he but know it."

"The greatest of faults is to be conscious of none."—Carlyle.

"All things come to him who waits." But that is merely stating one feature of the case—you've got to hustle while you're waiting.

NEWFOUNDLAND NOTES.

The weather so far has been very mild for this time of year, in fact the oldest inhabitant never saw or heard of such a winter.

Mr. Clarence Crusshanks, representing the Armour Packing Company, Kansas City, has been in the colony the past three weeks, and, judging from the pleasant smile he wore when he left, his order book must show good results.

The Red Rose Tea agency is now in the hands of Mr. J. Urquhart, and it is safe to say that it will not suffer in his hands.

There promise to be queer developments in the tea business. It is on the tapis that there will be a fight to the finish in a very short time between two parties formerly interested in each other. The fur is sure to fly as both parties are fighters.

J. H. Roberts, Esq., general manager for the Vim Tea Company, of St. John, N.B., made a lightning visit to headquarters a few weeks ago. Mr. Roberts is one of the hustlers in the trade, bright, energetic, and full of work. He is sure to make a name for himself in the tea world, in fact he has already done so in this colony.

Mr. H. McConbrey, manager Standard Manufacturing Company, left by last Bruce on a trip to the States and Canada. He expects to be gone about four weeks.

Mr. T. T. Cartwright has returned from a visit to the States and Canada, where he went on business and pleasure. He brought with him several new agencies for his company.

Mr. Thos. Smyth, president of the Thos. Smyth Company, Limited, will leave shortly on an extended business trip in Canada and the United States.

Most of the buyers for the large houses are now in England for their respective firms.

Manager W. S. Harkins, who is a great favorite with the boys, has just closed a five weeks' engagement here. The company played to full houses each night.

The price of molasses seems to have gone about as low as it will go. There is a large stock held in this city.

Mr. Harry Crowe, manager Newfoundland Timber Estates, left for England last week in connection with the large Pearson deal.

The Newfoundland Produce Company shipped $37,000 worth of dry cod-fish to England by steamer, as they could not wait for a schooner.

Capt. Charles Dawe, one of the backbones of the country, was elected to the House of Assembly the other day. Capt. Dawe is senior member of the firm of C. & A. Dawe, one of the largest mercantile houses we have. This firm ships more fish from Labrador than any two other houses.

The addition to the Crosbie Hotel is almost completed and it will give them a lot more room.

At the annual meeting of the Thos. Smyth Company, our old friend, T. T. Cartwright, was again elected a director.

It is reported that Harveys, Bowering and Baine Johnston will make a merger in the sealing business.

Reports from Newfoundland say that business is excellent on the Island. The price of fish the past three years has been quite suitable to the business of dealers and if this state of affairs continues, the jobbers expect to do good business. The fishermen, a great many of them, will not take paper money in settlement of their sales, and consequently there are quantities of gold stored in different parts of the Island.

Provisions are quite high. The molasses market is "away off," and as is the case in Montreal and district, much money has been lost on it.

SHELLED ALMONDS ADVANCE.

New York cables from Malaga, says the New York "Journal of Commerce," reported an advance in the price of Valencia shelled almonds of more than a cent a pound in the lay down cost, now fully 25 1-4c. Stocks in the primary market are reported to be very small.

QUICK WORK.

A letter sent by The Grocer to San Francisco, Cal., on the 29th ult., reached its destination on Feb. 2nd, in the remarkably short time of three days and nineteen hours.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Reports which are to hand from various points of the Dominion, denote a general improvement in trade. The Maritime Provinces report business in general in a satisfactory condition, the demand for apples being particularly marked.

The export trade in apples continues active and advices from Europe report brisk sales with high prices for all good class fruit. The complaints which were recently reported in the daily press, are mostly of a trivial nature. and little notice is taken of such. The opinion freely expressed is that recent arrivals are satisfactorily packed, and that cause for complaint is the exception rather than rule. Prices at Liverpool have ruled high, Baldwins fetching $5.00 to $5.50, Spies and Russets, $4.50 to $5.00, while in Manchester and Glasgow prices are equally as firm.

Arrivals of Californian fruits are coming regularly to hand, and condition favorably reported. Pineapples have again arrived on the market and oranges are in fair evidence. Reports, however, from primal points denote a likelihood of prices developing into great firmness. Californian celery has been in abundance and has come to hand carefully packed and in most satisfactory condition, and has commanded good attention. Californian cauliflowers have now pretty well finished; one further consignment is due on Toronto market, which is expected to be the last for the season.

The fruit market has shown very healthy condition at all points during the season; never before has such interest been maintained, and in several lines, notably in grape fruit, great advancement has been made in public favor.

PREVENTING DECAY IN FRUITS.

Pasteur has proven that the rotting or fermentation of ripe fruit is due to the presence of living organisms on the surface—fungi and bacteria. With this assumption it naturally follows that if the bacteria could be destroyed the fruit would be kept in good condition for a much longer period of time; and experiments to this end in the Jodrell laboratory at Kew, demonstrated the inference to be correct.

The method of treatment is simple. inexpensive and perfectly free from danger. In the case of fruits of which every part is eaten, such as strawberries, etc., the fruit should be immersed for ten minutes in cold water containing 3 per cent. commercial formalin (40 per cent. of formaldehyde.) On removing the fruit from the solution, immerse it again in clear cold water for five minutes, after which spread it on a screen of some kind to drip and dry. When the skin or rind of the fruit is not eaten it is not necessary to give it the second treatment.

The fruits with which these experiments were made, were ripe cherries, gooseberries, grapes, pears and strawberries. They were not selected, but purchased from street vendors and stores, and the following shows the number of days the fruit that had received special treatment remained perfectly sound, after a similar quantity of untreated fruit, from the same lot, had become mouldy or decayed: Cherries, 7 1-2 days; gooseberries, 7 days; grapes, 4 days; pears, 10 days; strawberries, 4 days. These fruits were perfectly ripe, but similar good results were obtained with fruit that was not quite ripe. With this treatment the course of ripening and the flavor are not interfered with as they are when kept in a refrigerator.

It is commonly known that the decay of ripe fruits originates from bruises on the surface, and then spreads internally; but it is not perhaps so well known that the decay of the fruit is entirely due to the presence of germs which feed on the sugar and other substances liberated from the bruised parts, and develop rapidly. It is but a short time after the advent of fermentation and decay, until it spreads and affects the rest of the fruit in or near he same package, but if tested in the way outlined, the progress of decomposition can be stayed for a considerable time at least.

THE QUESTION OF GRADING.

There will be a Dominion conference of the Fruit Growers' Associations in Ottawa on March 20th, and a matter of great importance that will come up for consideration will be the securing of legislation to define "No. 2" fruit, pears, as well as apples. As it now stands the Fruit Marks Act of 1901 and 1902 is quite vague in dealing with "No. 2" fruit. It clearly defines "No. 1," which, it declares, must be first-class in every way, but gives no particular definition for "No. 2," which makes it possible to ship very inferior fruit under that mark, fruit that is seriously injuring the trade. About forty delegates are expected in addition to representatives from allied industries. This will be one of the most important fruit meetings ever held in the Dominion, and will probably attract a great many prominent fruit-growers and dealers in addition to the delegates.

B.C. SALMON HATCHERIES.

Thirty million salmon is a quantity almost too large for the ordinary individual fully to understand its meaning, but that is the number being taken care of at the Harrison Lake hatchery this season, says the Vancouver "Province."

They are all getting along splendidly and are now being liberated. Should they all return to the Fraser river, and fifty per cent. of them should be caught and canned, it would mean alone a pack of over half a million cases, so it can be readily seen how important the work of the hatcheries is.

The young salmon which are now being hatched at the Harrison Lake institution are sockeye, cohoes and spring salmon, but the sockeyes compose by far the greater part of the hatch. There are approximately twenty-six million sockeyes, two million spring salmon.

The ova were collected over a long season and consequently are hatching at various periods. The first eggs taken hatched out several weeks ago, and the young salmon are now being liberated, but the last eggs collected will not be out for a month yet, and it will be the end of March or the beginning of April before the last young salmon are given their liberty.

The young salmon are being placed in Morris and Silver creeks and other streams flowing into Harrison lake. Practically all the ova hatched there this year were collected at Morris creek.

AVAILABLE STOCKS OF BEANS.

A Western Ontario buyer estimates that there are probably 30,000 bushels of beans held by large shippers in Western Ontario, but that there are in the neighborhood of 20,000 bushels held by the farmers of Orford township, the same by both Howard and Harwich townships, while Aldborough has 10,000 and Dunwich 5,000, making a total of 75,000 held by the farmers, besides what is held by the local dealers, which is put at 25,000 bushels, or a total of 100,000 bushels in all.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

The demand in this market is fair. The prices have not changed very much since last week. California navel oranges are selling quite freely at $3.25 to $3.50. Valencias have advanced 50c. a crate on account of light receipts and the good demand. Grape fruit is going up.

The market is fair. Few changes are noticeable in the quotations. Parsley is now selling at 40c. to $1.25, quite a jump since last week, and home grown cabbage has also gone up. The peculiar state of the weather so far has not affected the state of the market a great deal. Dealers are never quite sure about their shipments arriving without being frozen. With mild weather they may ship in perfect safety, but business is not so good as it is when the temperature is low, as there is more money in circulation, and business generally is better when the latter state of weather prevails.

Cauliflowers are selling well at $3.75 to $4.00 per crate. Celery is going well at $4.75 to $5.00 but it is expected that prices will advance from 50c. to 75c. a case in the course of the next few weeks.

There is a slight falling off in the hot-house output, but prices remain steady. If this weather continues the dealers look for a big opening by first of April of all southern stuff. That will be in time for the Easter trade.

California celery is about done and reports indicate a considerable shortage. It is said as much as 300 carloads has been destroyed in the ground, and a dealer said that if they got 50 per cent. of their final orders which are now in they would do well.

The mild weather has rather aided in this line of business. There is a fair steady sale at present.

In apples a good demand for the best grades at full figures. Stocks are getting fairly well cleaned up. Ontario northern spies are considered the best apples in the market. There is still a fair stock of cheap Nova Scotia apples. In oranges, Valencias, which have been low, show higher values. This is the principal grade sold. Jamaica oranges are about out of the market. Such stock as is offered is very good. California oranges have not been successful this year. Prices have been high, and quality below the average. Florida oranges have not been given much attention. They prove wasty and high.

Lemons continue low, with just a fair average business.

Malaga grapes have kept well. Season is getting late. Prices have been unchanged.

Cape Cod cranberries are too high for business.

THE ART OF SAMPLING.

It is remarkable the results which will accrue by judicious sampling of a given district. First and foremost the storekeeper must be certain of his article. It should be the best of its kind, no second grade goods. The giving of a poor article will kill trade, not make it. Second. It should be neatly and attractively gotten up. The first impression is the lasting one. Given an attractive sample, the recipient expects a good thing—the first more in the direction of success. Third. Do not fail to have the name, address, and price clearly upon it.

Suppose you try this with your confectionery. A good corner of the street at the busiest time of the day; a neat, tasty confection handed to the passer-by by an equally neat and well-dressed boy with a well-worded notice of the fact in your usual advertisement space in the local journal, and you will welcome the result. A successful candy dealer in the United States has built up a large business in this way.

NOVEL CONFECTIONERY DISPLAY.

With the many kinds of confectionery that are used now, the variety of effective window displays that can be made is endless. Bon-bons and candies are of a multitude of shapes, sizes and colors, so that no matter what the particular window dressing calls for in this line, the material can be readily found, and so arranged that a novel and striking effect can be produced.

Nothing so quickly arrests the attention of the passerby as a centre display that has some striking characteristic not usually seen in windows, such as a representation of a church or public building, particularly if it is fashioned after a well-known, or locally known edifice. Perhaps a church offers the best example of what might bt done in this respect by the amateur. The structure, to insure safety should be made of thin wood or carboard, of the desired proportions and elevations, with windows and doors cut in it. The archs over these openings can be made of cardboard projecting from the wall far enough to receive the archstones that will be laid upon them. The floor should also project from the foot of the wall a sufficient distance to receive the "masonry" or foundation. The first few courses for the foundation would look well to be of a lighter color than the rest of the building, and a little heavier—say white or yellow cream. After this the walls proper should be built up with symmetrically laid courses of caramels or anything of that nature that are square and flat. The roof could be made to represent either shingles or tiles by using small flat chocolate bars. The tower, or steeple will perhaps present the greatest difficulty, particularly if it be of the round, spiral shape. This can be built, however, by putting fewer, and smaller "stones" in each succeeding course. A square tower with a belfry would be simply a continuation of the same class of work as the walls, and would be very easy to build. Mica would do nicely for windows, and the doors could be made of cardboard suitably colored and marked. A touch of green made from finely cut tissue paper, would serve as a lawn, and would give the whole a finished appearance.

Such effects as these are not lost. It is one way of advertising and keeping up-to-date in the public eye; and the amount of comment a store receives for a nice piece of work of the nature outlined, makes it well worth the time and thought given it.

A NEW CONFECTIONERY FACTORY

A four-storey factory and store building will be erected on Yonge street, Toronto, for Huyler's, of New York, confectionery manufacturers. It is expected that it will be opened early in May. The building will be thoroughly modern in style and conveniences, and will be built after the plans of Huyler's New York Fifth avenue store. The Toronto branch, which will be the manufacturing and distributing point for Canada, will be under the management of J. T. Roberts, of Buffalo.

WILLIAM CLARK'S SUGGESTIVE LIST.

The age in which we live is pre-eminently one of advertising, every available opportunity is eagerly seized to utilize for that purpose.

A folder, such as the Canadian Grocer has received from Wm. Clark of Montreal is perhaps one of the most effectual and yet inexpensive methods of advertising. The one referred to is freely illustrated with cuts of the many products of the firm, and the "get up" is altogether a fine recommendation for their goods. From it the grocer can readily select the lines particularly useful for his trade.

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

PUT LIFE INTO YOUR TOBACCO TRADE.

Tobacco sales are good, gradually and decidedly increasing each year; this year shows an increase on sales of the same season last year. There is little question that the use of tobacco has come to stay. The question for the grocer to ask himself is, "Am I getting my full share of the trade?" To judge from the small amount of interest taken by the average grocer in his tobacco department, it would not do for him to expect to materially increase his turnover on the lines he is going.

"Anything worth doing at all is worth doing well." If it is worth while running a tobacco department, then have a tobacco department in right down earnest; run it as up-to-date as your tea department. Set yourself to discover what are the lines in demand in your locality. Stock those lines, and find out all about them, the character of each, and the virtue of every one in particular. You will then be in a position to recommend the right brand to the right man. Get enthusiastic about your goods, be sure and have the best of its kind, believe in the goods yourself and your customer will soon believe the same, and catch on. The world approves of an earnest man in business, and there will be little difficulty in holding your trade if you know and believe in the goods you sell. If the grocer is indifferent to his tobacco goods, the customer will think the goods are indifferent, and the other fellow will get the trade.

Not only is there tobacco, but there are many accessories to it, all bearing good profit, and a demand all ready at your door. Have them nicely displayed in a good light, and marked in plain figures. Many a customer from time to time wishes to make a present to a friend, and a show like this will go a long way to make him decide.

Then, there are the women folks, constantly in and out of the store, they can often be induced to add the husband's tobacco to their weekly purchases, especially when the grocer's knowledge as to the most suitable is thrown in. Your tobacco opportunities are certainly great.

LIGHT COLORED CIGARS MAY BE SCARCE.

The U. S. Tobacco Journal in a recent issue says: "A possible benefit which may result to the retail trade from the leaf tobacco 'famine' is the mitigation of the craze for light-colored cigars. In a recent letter our Havana correspondent stated that the American market does not seem to be so exacting any more as regards color, and more of the Colorado and Colorado maduro cigars are being shipped to this country than hitherto. Of course, this only applies to imported cigars, which form but a small, and to the average retailer an unimportant branch of the trade; but still it may have a bearing on the domestic clear Havana product, for when good leaf is so difficult to secure, manufacturers are likely to be less particular as regards color, and ultimately the public may be forced to accustom themselves as to dark cigars, for lack of choice.

"As the demand for light-colored cigars is, in the main, a fad, and one of comparativtly recent origin, it may be that these conditions will bring about a revolution in public taste, and one for which the trade in general would be profoundly grateful."

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

The case of Granda Hermanos y Ca. vs. Joseph Hoolahan was decided in favor of the defendant. Justice Tellier occupied the bench in the Superior Court, where the case was tried. Mr. Hoolahan ordered from the plaintiffs a quantity of cigars, and had given in payment his cheque for $100. The cigar company did not, however, comply with one of the conditions of the sale, namely, to deliver the goods at a certain hour, and for this reason the defendant told his bank not to cash the cheque. The Grandas Hermanos v Ca. then took action, which was dismissed with costs, the court's decision being, as stated, in favor of the defendant.

"Find my Methods in my Cigars."—J. Bruce Payne.

I naturally have a high opinion of the

because I know personally what they represent.

It would be unfair, perhaps, to ask you to form your opinion from my opinion. I ask you to form your opinion from the cigars themselves. If you are a smoker try one. If you are not a smoker get a friend to try one. No matter who the smoker is, he will find that there has been methodical care in the selection of the tobacco and directed skill in the handling of the tobacco—combining to form "perfect taste."

Now, cigars like Pebble and Pharaoh have a great many adherents. But I do not say to you stock up. I merely say order 1,000 on trial, selling the Pebble at 5c. and the Pharaoh at 10c. At the end of three months, I will take back, at invoice price, all of your order unsold. Isn't that a generous offer?

P.S. I have never had to take any of my cigars back yet, though the offer always stands good.

ORIGIN OF THE "BREVA."

In 1797, when the original Cabanas opened his cigar factory in Havana, he packed his cigars intended for shipment to England, in cases, but before they were sent on shipboard they were pressed tightly together, exactly as figs are pressed for packing, and from that custom originated the fashion of calling such cigars "brevas," that being the Spanish word for figs.

KEEP UP ASSORTMENT.

It is a bad plan for a dealer to get out of any line which he is handling regularly—no matter if it be for the purpose of reducing stock. When a retailer gets a trade on any certain line, he should always have some of the brand in stock. No matter what substitute he may offer when he is out of a smoker's favorite brand, the smoker is apt to go elsewhere and buy, and a customer may thereby be lost. It is saving at the spigot and wasting at the bung-hole.

"Duty first, pleasure afterwards," the custom house officer observed to the gentleman from abroad who had brought over with him a couple of boxes of cigars for his own personal smoking.

An amusing scene occurred the other day in a Falkirk grocer's shop. Early in the day a little boy came in for a pound of a certain article which had gone up in price, and the change passed over the counter with the parcel was accordingly a less amount than would have been in ordinary circumstances. A couple of hours after the transaction of the sale the boy came back, this time accompanied by his mother, who did not seem to be in the best of humor. She demanded to know what change the salesman gave to her boy, and on being told an amount by twopence less than she expected, she was quite taken aback, while the boy's face clearly showed signs of a victory. The mother stormed, and wanted to know why the boy was not told that the article purchased had gone up in price. The boy, she explained, had brought home the change all right, had been charged with losing part of it, had stoutly affirmed his innocence, but had nevertheless got a sound thrashing from the pater-familias!

THE SHERBROOKE CIGAR CO., - SHERBROOKE, P.Q.

THE PROPOSED TARIFF INCREASE ON TINPLATE

ITS EFFECT ON THE GROCERY TRADE

The recent movement on the part of certain company promoters to induce the Government to increase the duty on imported tin plate to prohibitive basis, is one which, if successful, would have a most important bearing on the grocery industries, by reason of the many lines of manufactured tinware carried, and also on account of the enormous extent of the canned goods trade.

The Canadian Grocer has obtained some instructive information from the leading manufacturers of these goods, who are almost united in their condemnation of such measures.

Would Help Foreign Manufacture.

A representative of the Macdonald Mfg. Co., Toronto, an enterprise which consumes a large quantity of tin plates and sheets, said that the proposed change was a most drastic one, affecting, as it did, a large number of items in the tariff. Their industry has been built up by using free raw material, and a duty of 33 1 3 per cent. would put them out of business entirely, in which case a high duty would be of no advantage, so far as they were concerned; to a so-called tin plate industry, because the cost of the articles which they manufacture would be so enhanced that they could be made to better advantage abroad, and imported into this country. Their view was that the promoters of the tin plate enterprise desired to secure a duty solely in order to help them to unload their stock to buyers who could be influenced by Government recognition of their undertaking.

Winnipeg Jobber Opposes Duty.

"Yes, you may say that I am decidedly opposed to the imposition of any duty on tin plates," said Hyman Miller, of the Miller-Morse Hardware Co., Winnipeg, when asked his views.

"The imposition of a duty on tin plates would work a hardship on the consumers of the west. If a duty were imposed it would give McClary, Kemp, Davidson, and other large manufacturers of tinware a reasonable excuse for advancing the price of their products, and this would certainly be felt by every farmer and consumer in Western Canada. I think I am voicing the feeling of the west when I say we are opposed to any increase in the present tariff as a whole, and I certainly think it inadvisable to place a duty on tin plates."

Opposition from British Columbia.

British Columbia is vitally interested in the proposal, again renewed, to impose a duty on tin plates, hitherto on the free list, writes our correspondent. Last year the same applicants who are now active, urged the imposition of a 33 1-3 per cent. duty, as they were about to establish a tin plate manufactory at Morrisburg, Ont. The representations from this province were mainly responsible for the defeat of the application, and the same opposition will develop when the matter again comes up before the House. The very large quantities of tin plate used in canmaking for the seventy or more canneries in British Columbia, are largely drawn from the Old Country markets and brought by cheap freight across the ocean direct to this port. Were it not for the fact that it is on the free list and that no long rail haul has to be encountered, the cost of tin plate would seriously affect the salmon industry. To put on a high duty such as is asked for would virtually create a monopoly for the concern which proposes to enter the tin plate industry.

"When this subject was on the tapis last year," said a Fraser River canner, "the canners strenuously opposed any duty being placed on tin plate, which forms a most important item in connection with the canning industry. Mr. Macpherson, M.P. for Vancouver, was heartily in accord with the canners, and owing to the representations made by him the object of the applicants for a duty was defeated. It appears, however, from subsequent developments that it was only 'scotched' and not killed, as the message from Ottawa shows.

Tin Can Manufacturer's Views.

W. C. Breckenridge, president and general manager of the Norton Manufacturing Company, Hamilton, one of the largest consumers of tin plates in Canada, is decidedly opposed to the proposed duty and states his position as follows :

"The proposal to put a duty of 33 1-3 per cent. ad valorem upon tin plate and sheets imported into Canada, lately submitted to the Tariff Commission, appears to us to be open to most serious objection from a number of views.

Seriously Affect Industries.

"First, because of the disturbance such a duty would work in a great variety of industries of which tin plate or packages of tin plate are a raw material. The packers of hermetically sealed food products—fruits, fish, vegetables and meats—the manufacturers of biscuits, baking powders, concentrated lye, paints, ground spices, coffee, starch, syrups and cereals would all be seriously affected by a duty which would inevitably and materially enhance the cost of the package in which their product is put into the consumer's hands. For example, the manufacture of the ordinary corn or pea can requires not two boxes, as the special pleaders for the duty lately alleged, but practically two and three-quarters boxes of 14x20 tin plates for every thousand packages. The making of tomato cans takes three and three-quarter boxes of plates per thousand cans. A duty of a dollar a box on plates would increase the first cost of these packages at least $2.75 and $3.75 per thousand respectively, or 3.3 and 4.5 cents per dozen cans. The first cost of the familiar square biscuit tins would be enhanced at least 1¾ or 2 cents per tin, of coffee tins, ¾ cent each, and so on all through the list of cans and boxes, caddies and pails commonly made of tin plate. Furthermore, roofing materials, the stuff for eave troughs and conductors, the galvanized iron used for covering buildings and making tanks, and all manner of sheet steel products would be increased in cost. New and grievously burdensome outlays would be imposed, in short, upon industries established under existing conditions, and well adjusted to them, in favor of a trade in which, as yet, there is not even one going concern.

Need of Industry Not Proven.

"Second, because of the lack of sufficient evidence that a tin plate industry is needed in the Dominion. That promoters have obtained favorable concessions from this or that municipality in respect of power does not prove the point, nor does their willingness to make plates at a third more than the price at which they can be brought over seas complete the case. Further, it is by no means clear that a market of but some hundred and fifty thousand tons per annum of tin plates, terne plates, black plates, and galvanized sheets, is anywise so broad that enough competition would develop, under a duty, to bring domestic selling prices down to the basis now established by the enormous producers of Britain and the United States. Hence, without other, as yet invisible, support, the argument, from analogy, that American prices no longer being equal to foreign prices, plus freight, plus duty, falls flat to the ground. In all events, the American analogy is anything but reassuring, for domestic prices in New York are even now, after fourteen years of duty and with an estimated output of 600,000 tons of tin plates alone per annum, nearly fifty cents a box above the cost of foreign plates in bond.

Canada's Favorable Market.

"Third, because Canada, freight rates from producing points considered, is today the cheapest market for tin plates and sheets that can be found the world over. Both the English and American makers, keen to keep their mills busy, and willing to dispose of surplus over domestic needs at some concession, are in active competition for Canadian trade. They are making now, as they have both made for years, exceptional and persistent efforts, each to keep or better his hold. The consequence is that such material is sold in Canada, these days, at prices extraordinarily low.

Have to Import Labor.

"Fourth, because the proposal to impose a duty on tin plates is a proposal, on the one hand, to benefit persons who, if they have money to invest in exotic industries, can scarcely be said to need the country's help, and, on the other, to enable high wages to be paid to a few persons not now living in Canada and hardly to be considered as against the millions of Canadian consumers already here. For as the petitioners for the duty have themselves admitted, "the labor will have to be largely obtained from abroad." In other words, the Canadian workman or the Canadian householder is to be obliged to pay more, to the tune of a million dollars a year, for what he buys in tins or uses in the way of black, galvanized or lead coated sheets, simply that three or four hundred imported mechanics now in the United States or Wales may be drawing high wages down in Morrisburg."

NOTE—Hova Tea is meeting with great success—had to cable for duplicate order. If not already in store ask for free samples and prices.

"Send me another case of RED ROSE TEA, if it is as good as it was before."

"RED ROSE is the best tea I ever had. I hope you will keep it up to the standard."

DOZENS of times I have received letters, and also had customers speak to me personally in the way I have written the paragraphs above.

Why do they write or talk this way?

Why do they think that there is any danger of the quality not being kept up to the standard?

There must be some reason, and I think the old saying, "A burnt child dreads the fire," answers the questions fully.

All these dealers have handled other teas—they must have got BURNT in some way, and naturally fear they may suffer the same way with RED ROSE TEA. Well, perhaps they will, but another saying—"Don't cross a stream until you come to it," will fit in very well here.

What has put RED ROSE TEA where it is to-day? Just the fact that it is "GOOD TEA," the VERY BEST GOOD TEA that you or anyone else can buy.

"It will stay right there."

RE PEAS

DEAR SIR,—

Have you ever taken the time or trouble to explain to your customers the reason of the difference in price between Extra Fine Sifted Peas (Petit Pois) and the ordinary Standard Peas? Have you explained that the Extra Fine Sifted Peas are the choicest of the early pack? That they are very small, sweet, tender and simply melt away when eating; also that they are superior to imported French Peas in flavor, and are absolutely free from coloring with which the French Peas are treated, to give them a bright green color?

These Extra Fine Sifted Peas are especially suited for your highest class trade.

Take a little time with your customers to explain the difference in quality, and you will soon establish a trade for a high-class article with greatly increased profits to yourself.

Don't forget one important fact! That is, to carry in stock only the best brands, such as "Aylmer," "Log Cabin," "Horseshoe," "Auto," "Little Chief," "Lynnvalley," "Maple Leaf," "Kent," "Lion," "Thistle," "Grand River," "White Rose," etc., etc.

Yours respectfully,

CANADIAN CANNERS, LIMITED

"THE FAIRBANK PLAN"

LOOK INTO IT

and see just what "The Fairbank Plan" is. While we spend hundreds of thousands of dollars every year advertising the six great Fairbank specialties:

Gold Dust Washing Powder
Fairy Soap, Copco Soap
Fairbank's Glycerine-Tar Soap
Fairbank's Scouring Soap

and educating the public regarding them; and while we intend to continue doing this, we realize fully that advertising alone has not accomplished the splendid results we have enjoyed in the sale of these goods, but that "the man behind the counter" has been an important factor in extending and increasing our trade. It was the realization of this fact that gave birth to "The Fairbank Plan," as a method of rewarding the retail clerks for their earnest co-operation in selling these goods and, consequently, a portion of our immense advertising appropriation is now set aside for the recognition of the dealer and his clerks.

"The Fairbank Plan" is an absolutely fair method of rewarding the clerk in direct proportion to the interest displayed in pushing the six specialties, as each package of these goods is couponed in such a manner that the coupon can be easily removed before the goods pass into the hands of the consumer. For these coupons we offer many valuable articles.

If you will send for an illustrated premium list of "The Fairbank Plan" it will convince you that this is no cheap trading-stamp scheme.

They Cost Something, Of Course.

But enough Allison Coupon Books to last a year won't cost as much as the amount you will lose by the carelessness of your clerks in forgetting to "charge up" numerous small purchases; and disputed pass-book entries, where you have to allow your customer's kick, or lose him.

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

or $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? More Flavor or Less Flavor?

"All Tea Flavors are more or less the same," you say? Perhaps so; but see that you order the teas that have "more" of the flavor than "less" of it. If you order

A SURPRISING FIND

Collections of Half a Century Result in Extraordinary Accumulation Beneath a Cashier's Desk.

Mr. Wright, the National Cash Register Co.'s agent in Winnipeg, has in his possession an old drawer, which was taken from a general store in Kingston, Ontario, where it has been in use for fifty years. Through all changes of system from the establishment of the store, when the proprietor only had access to this cash-drawer, and when all the clerks used it, and during the period it was under the supervision of an individual cashier, the drawer was never changed, occupying a position beneath a cash desk. In the box-like arrangement where the cashier sat there was a false floor about six inches high, which did not cover the main floor entirely. When the proprietor tore out the cashier's desk recently, an assistant gathered up the refuse to throw out into the lane, when, at the suggesion of Mr. Wright, it was sifted.

After all the dirt had been carefully cleared away, one hundred and eighty-six dollars in small gold and silver coins of all denominations, and dilapidated bills, were rescued from this refuse. The proprietor's surprise can be imagined, and yet he said he had never missed the money, and never knew it was gone! The drawer itself is so badly carved and worn by long service, that one might wonder how it now holds together.

THE SUGAR CONTROVERSY

Mr. Robert Anderson Replies to Mr. Hugh Blain

The article in our issue of February 16, in which we gave some of the features of Mr. Robert Anderson's remarks before the Tariff Commission at Ottawa, and the reply in our last week's issue by Mr. Hugh Blain, have called forth wide interest. We publish herewith the following letter from Mr. Robert Anderson in reply to Mr. Hugh Blain :

Editor Canadian Grocer :—Though I have no desire to enter a general newspaper discussion, when I am attacked I am ready to defend myself, so must ask for space in this week's Grocer to reply to the interview with Mr. Hugh Blain, president of the Ontario Sugar Co., which appeared in your issue of 23rd inst., and to put you and your Halifax correspondent right on the situation that exists in that market at present in sugar.

I have already made my case to the Government at Ottawa, and it really should not be necessary for me to go over the ground again, but your readers have not been given an opportunity to judge the whole of my arguments. As my statements before the Tariff Commission appear to be interesting to the public, particularly those engaged in the sugar business, I suggest that you should print my address in full, a copy of which I have already sent you, and your subscribers will then be able to form their own estimate of my case, which I am prepared to stand by.

As I sent Mr. Blain a copy of my paper as presented to the Tariff Commission, I regret he apparently did not study it carefully before voicing an opinion even on one clause of it, for it is not pleasant to take issue with a friend in public. I gave Mr. Blain the opportunity to discuss with me personally any point on which he had exception to make, but as he has chosen your paper as the ring, I must perforce step in.

Mr. Blain's remarks read as if he was speaking for the regular sugar refiners of Canada generally, but I hardly think a practical refiner would have ventured to criticize me on the grounds Mr. Blain takes as his stand.

Mr. Blain's interests are complex ; he is president of the Ontario Sugar Co., which company makes refined sugar from Canadian grown beets, and its interests are antagonistic to the established refiners, who only refine from imported raws ; he is also a partner in the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, wholesale grocers, Toronto, who are members of the guild, and their interests are largely with the established refiners.

Mr. Blain spoke without knowledge when he tried to classify my standing in the Canadian market. My firm and those I spoke for before the Government are probably more correctly importers than any wholesale grocer in Canada. Mr. Blain seems to think we act as brokers for British and foreign sugar refiners, or companies, and gives the impression that we always make our commission no matter how much the Canadian refiners may choose to cut their prices. I only wish we did, but I have too much respect for the Old Country refiners to recommend them to put themselves at the mercy of the Canadian refiners' highly protected market. Robert Crooks & Co., Montreal, represent themselves, and I am manager of that firm, which stands on its own bottom. Robert Crooks & Co., New York, do not participate in the profits or losses of my business, and the fact of Robert Crooks & Co., Liverpool, investing their money in a Canadian enterprise is no different from English or for that matter American capital being invested in any Canadian venture. I understood it was the desire of every Canadian who has the development of the country at heart, to attract outside investors, and are not many of the shareholders in Mr. Blain's sugar company Americans ? The Acadia Sugar Refining Co., Limited, with refineries at Halifax, is a Glasgow, Scotland, concern. Does Mr. Blain take exception to its existence in Canada ?

Robert Crooks & Co., Montreal, purchase their sugars outright on their own account, and they alone have to face the music when the Canadian refiners drop the price on them.

We, the importers, are a small band, but we have a right to live, and we are doing our business honestly, without asking the people of Canada to pay a tax for our protection.

I spoke for the consumers as a whole, and the approbation that has poured in to me from all sections of the country, from people I never heard of before, of the stand I have taken for the people's rights is sufficient confirmation of the warrant I had for my assertion.

Now for the practical (?) part of Mr. Blain's criticism. He only takes one section of my paper, and omits to tell your readers that it is under the heading "Apparent protection to refiners in the tariff," or admit that my calculations in this clause are for comparison with the protection in the United States tariff to the American refiners on the same basis.

If Mr. Blain had done me the justice of carefully examining my paper, which he promised me he would do, he would have seen that when I dealt with the "Actual protection to Canadian refiners" I made allowance for "the loss in the process of making the sugar into the same quality," and that whereas the apparent protection to the Canadian refiners by comparison of the duties on raw and refined in the general tariff is 55c., the actual protection is on the average of the year 70c., and although the apparent protection to the Canadian refiners in the preferential tariff contrasting the duties on raw and refined, both of British origin, is 36 2-3 cents, the actual protection is on the average of the year 88 2-3 cents.

Mr. Blain shows a regrettable want of knowledge, for a refiner, of the practical working of raw sugar, when he resorts to theory to try to disprove my facts.

I was particularly careful throughout the preparation of my statement to the Tariff Commission to confine myself strictly to the experience of practice.

Mr. Blain says it would require at least 107 lbs. (the actual theoretical calculation is 107.47 lbs.) raw sugar testing 96 degrees to make 100 lbs. granulated, which might be true if a refiner wanted to turn out 100 lbs. of granulated and stopped there, but a refiner makes all the different grades of refined he can extract from the 100 lbs. raw, including the resulting by-products of molasses, the proceeds of which do not enter into the theoretical calculation that it takes 107.47 lbs. to make full 100 lbs. of granulated. In practice it works out that from 100 lbs. of 96 degrees raw melted the refiner gets 98 lbs. of refined; it is immaterial what proportion of this is granulated, but the general average is 80 to 82 lbs. of granulated or hard sugars, and 18 to 20 lbs. of softs, the actual loss in refining the 100 lbs. of raw being 2 per cent. In my calculations of the cost to the Canadian refiners of their granulated produced from 100 lbs. of 96 degrees raw I allowed them 8c. for loss in weight in refining, giving them credit for the loss of 2 per cent. on the average price of the refined article at 4c. per lb., not on the raw material only. The refiners' profit on the softs and other by-products is probably proportionately greater than on the granulated.

In Mr. Blain's appearance before the Tariff Commission at Berlin, as reported in your issue of December 9 last, when he was arguing for the interests of the Ontario Beet Co. he showed the average rate of duty paid on raw sugar imported, but pointed out it did not make any allowance for waste in refinery, "against which, however, must be placed the value of the by-products." The words quoted are Mr. Blain's as reported by you.

Mr. Blain failed to give me credit for advocating to the Tariff Commission that the alteration I proposed making in the duties would give the Ontario beet factories the added protection he asked for in his Berlin memorial.

When Mr. Blain says that my comparisons of the extremes in the tariff between the duties on raw and refined "soar away into the realms of absurdity" he is simply throwing mud at the Government. I didn't make the tariff, nor did I picture the importer buying granulated sugar from a foreign country under the operations of the anti-dumping clause. I was merely marshalling my forces to formulate my arguments, which Mr. Blain would have seen if he had digested my statement in full. I was showing the extreme difference in our tariff compared with the extreme difference in the United States tariff between the duty on 96 degrees raw and refined, and in my next calculation between the duty on imported granulated under the general tariff at $1.26½, and 96 degrees raw under the preferential tariff at 47 2-3c., showing a protection to the refiner of 78.83c. per 100 lbs. I was making a perfectly fair comparison, for again it was with the position of the United States refiner, as your readers will appreciate if you print my statements in full.

I am trespassing severely on your space, but must refer to the Halifax situation. Your correspondent in his market report dated 21st inst., page 38 of your last issue, would give your readers the impression that the "Austrian" granulated sold in Halifax is the genuine imported Austrian granulated made in Austria, which if it was would be one of the "absurdities" our friend Mr. Blain pictured, as Austrian granulated is subject to the special duty under the anti-dumping clause. The "Austrian" sold in Halifax is Canadian, made by the Acadia Sugar Refining Co., an inferior grade to their standard granulated, which they give a foreign name to for reasons best known to themselves. These are generally believed to be that before the days of the anti-dumping clause, when European countries, incluhing Austria, paid a bounty on export, Acadia, to discourage the importations of foreign sugar and prevent the importer doing his legitimate business, put out a very inferior grade of granulated packed in bags, and some say their sugar was not even refined, but simply raw beet washed, technically known as affined. It has even been said that Acadia imported the lowest grades of continental Europe refined granulated and repacked them into Canadian bags branded "Austrian," making the Canadian consumer pay more for the sugar than it was worth.

Your Halifax correspondent was astray when he said that "the importers outside of the combine started to cut prices." Your St. John, N.B., correspondent, in his report on page 40 of the same issue, knows more of the facts; he says: "In foreign sugars very little is being offered owing to scarcity of British cane product on the other side, and also the low prices in Canada."

The importers of Scotch sugar, and that is the only kind that could have been imported prior to the Halifax "war,"—none of any kind can be imported since the advent of that momentous event—are not crazy, and your Halifax correspondent will need to seek for the cause nearer home than bonnie Scotland, though the head office of the Acadia Sugar Refining Co. is in Glasgow.

I am not going to take up your space or weary your readers with the why or the wherefore of this, nor am I going to burden you with details of the cost of Scotch sugar duty paid in Halifax, but you can take it from me, which I am ready to vouch for if anybody is interested to know, that the "cash man both ways" or anybody else who is playing ducks and drakes with his money in Halifax, can safely put up his price of "Austrian" granulated at least 35c. per 100 lbs., before even second quality Scotch sugar will begin to hold up its head, and be noticed in the Halifax market.

Of course the consumer is happy, and if everybody got his deserts the consumers in Halifax ought to get up a subscription and give me a present for stirring up so much strife to give them cheap sugar, for, as a prominent firm of Halifax merchants wrote me in acknowledging a copy of my address to the Tariff Commission which I sent them, "We very much fear that one effect of this address of yours has been to reduce the price of Austrian sugar in this market 50c. below standard, which effectually puts a stop at present at any rate to the importation of Scotch."

But joking apart, there is a good deal of curiosity to know who is paying the piper for the Halifax "slaughter of the innocents." Your correspondent says "the refineries are still standing firm, and up to the present they have not reduced their prices one cent." Good for them, but it is hard to believe that Halifax wholesale grocers, guild members, mind you, are paying Acadia $3.70 for their "Austrian," and voluntarily losing 20c. per 100 lbs., if the selling price is correctly reported by your correspondent at $3.50, or Halifax retailers selling sugar for nothing, simply for fun. As a Montreal wholesale grocer said to me when I asked him what he thought, "I don't know what they may do in Halifax, but we would not be such —— fools in Montreal."

It really is too funny, when your correspondent says "this competition, however, must be having a serious effect on their (Acadia's) business, as the ordinary consumer is scarcely able to distinguish the difference between the local refineries' granulated sugar and that of the Austrian." I stop the quotation there, as while your correspondent includes "and Scotch," I give the consumer credit for greater discernment than to suppose he would not know the difference in it, and in any case it doesn't enter into the "war."

Pretty severe competition, that, for Acadia in their own sugar; it is having so "serious an effect on their business" that they are getting richer by it just in proportion to the number of consumers who "now buy a hundred pound bag," that is, all who can possibly afford it, and the more people "who have ready money," and "are laying in good stocks," also those who "are even laying in a supply for the next preserving season," and the confectioners who are "taking advantage of the present prices," the richer they are making the Acadia Sugar Refining Co. "Just what the refineries are going to do about the situation," indeed "cannot be forecasted at present," but I would like to be in it when they are dividing the spoils.

Those persons who "predict that this miniature sugar war will equal in some respects the famous Havemeyer-Arbuckle sugar war in the United States some years ago," must be the least enlightened of all the poor misguided Haligonians. The Havemeyer-Arbuckle fight was conducted at a dead loss to both the participants. Supposing Acadia are in the Halifax "war," let us see how badly it hurts them. The value of 96 degrees pure can raw sugar is at present $2.40 per 100 lbs. duty paid in Halifax. An official of the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal, declared in open court under oath that the cost of refining raw beet sugar, testing 94 degrees, is "about 55c. per 100 lbs. including the package." I leave your readers to decide whether it would cost more or less to refine 96 test sugar, but say the cost is the same and add 55c. to $2.40, and then throw in another 5c. to make the refiner happy, and you will get a total cost of any kind of granulated sugar you want to use, "Austrian," standard, or whatever you like to call it, of $3 per 100 lbs. Now, your Halifax correspondent says Acadia "are still standing firm," and "have not reduced their prices one cent," so they are getting $3.70 per 100 lbs. for their "Austrian" and $3.80 for their standard, net to them. As there are about 300 lbs. of sugar in a barrel, it does not take much figuring to show that at the prices quoted the Acadia Sugar Refining Co. are being enriched to the tune of $2.25 per barrel on every barrel of granulated sugar they are selling. How's that for "war," Mr. Editor?

If, as your correspondent says, the "sugar war" will continue while the supply lasts, I leave him to calculate the result of the "serious effect" it will have on the Acadia Sugar Refining Co.'s business.

J. W. Larkin, of Nobleton, has purchased the general stock of A. G. Hollingshead, Schomberg, who has gone to the Northwest. Mr. Larkin will remove the stock to his own store.

J. G. Reith, of the firm of Reith & Son, Grand Valley, has gone into business for himself. He has opened a very handsome general store, and considering the dull times, business is already good with him.

David Brocklebank, of Arthur, hardware merchant, is branching out and will by March 20 open a department store in his new building, which is about ready for occupation. He has not yet announced what lines the new business will include.

Hill & Co., of Orangeville, have secured the old stand of Marshall Green & Co., and having refitted it handsomely have put in a very large general stock and are opening one of the finest stores in the province. The firm was formerly of Deseronto.

R. C. Johnson, of Nicholson, Bain & Johnson, Calgary, is retiring from that firm. The name of the company will in future be known as Nicholson & Bain, the same as the Winnipeg firm. The Calgary management will devolve upon H. C. Andrews, who has had five years' experience in the Winnipeg office, and two at Calgary with the company there, so that he is quite familiar with the firm's western trade. A three-storey substantial warehouse is being equipped for the company at Calgary, into which they will shortly remove. The firm are contemplating opening a branch at Edmonton shortly.

BUSINESS AND ASSOCIATION MEETINGS

The Editor will be glad to receive reports and notices of any business meetings of interest to the readers of THE GROCER—short, gossipy and instructive.

MONTREAL.

Some good work has been done toward augmenting the membership of the Montreal Board of Trade. At the adjourned annual meeting, held recently, Mr. F. W. Mathewson, the newly elected president, in referring to the subject, stated that during the year 1905 there had been scarcely any perceptible additions to the membership, in spite of the fact that the business interests of the city are growing very fast. This, he thought, might be remedied by a little work from the officers and members of the council, and the first list of new names posted for membership indicates that considerable work has been done. The list is as follows :

Mr. J. A. Mathewson, of Messrs. Mathewson's Sons, by Mr. S. J. Mathewson; Mr. J. R. Meadowcroft, of the Garth Company, by Mr. John R. Garth: Mr. F. Monette, of Messrs. Fortier & Monette, by Mr. Alfred J. Brice; Mr. F. C. Jamieson, of the Canada Tag & Label Printing Company, by Mr. F. H. Mathewson; Mr. Clarence F. Smith, of the James McCready Company, by Mr. F. H. Mathewson; Mr. Charles W. Tinling, treasurer of the National Drug & Chemical Co., by Mr. F. H. Mathewson; Mr. D. W. Bole, Drug & Chemical Company, by Mr. F. H. Mathewson; Mr. A. Hamilton Gault, of Messrs. Gault Bros. Company, by F. H. Mathewson; Mr. W. F. Whitehead, of the Dominion Textile Company, by Mr. W. I. Gear, and Mr. Edward F. Schmidt, manager of the Canada Life Assurance Company, by Mr. F. H. Mathewson.

INGERSOLL.

The annual meeting of the Ingersoll Board of Trade was held in the council chamber recently, when Mr. George Sutherland, who during the past year was vice-president, was unanimously elected president for the ensuing term, in place of Mr. H. Richardson, who retired. Mr. H. J. Hollinrake was elected first vice-president, and Mr. W. J. Elliott as second vice-president. There was considerable discussion on various subjects.

The following new members were received into the board : R. A. Simister, R. B. Maybee, M. J. Comiskey, Dennis Howe, W. R. Smith and W. J. Knight. Mayor Boles and Town Clerk Smith were appointed honorary members of the board.

The election of officers was next proceeded with, and resulted as follows. The only contest was for the council, where twelve were nominated, of whom ten were elected, who, with the other officers, constitute the council of the board for 1906 :

President, Geo. Sutherland, first vice-president, H. J. Hollinrake: second vice-president, W. J. Elliott: secretary, O. F. Robinson; treasurer, H. E. Robinson: council, H. Richardson, A. B. Ord, Geo. Wood, J. E. Boles, S. King, Chas. White, Mayor Boles, W. H. Jones, J. F. Morrey, and C. C. L. Wilson.

In surrendering the president's chair to the newly elected officer Mr. Richardson said : "I have great pleasure in vacating this office in favor of one so worthy. Mr. Sutherland has been one of the most active members on the board, and he deserved the appointment."

Mr. Sutherland thanked the board for the honor conferred upon him

An industrial committee, composed of M. T. Buchanan, H. Richardson and O. E. Robinson, was appointed, to act in conjunction with a similar committee from the town council in endeavoring to bring new industries there to locate. Last year about $23 was spent by the board in advertising in United States trade journals for new industries, and it is probable that a larger amount will be spent this year.

TRAVELERS AND LOCAL OPTION.

The Western Ontario Travelers' Association met at London Saturday afternoon, the 17th ult., and decided to join with the Travelers' Club in an effort to prevail on the Ontario Government to either amend the Municipal Act, or the license law, so that when local option goes into effect May 1, the travelers will not suffer any inconvenience from the change. It is absolutely necessary for the commercial men that hotel accommodation be provided, and that it be as good or better than at present.

The following committee, consisting of the officers of the Western Ontario Travelers' Association, and three others, were appointed to confer with the committee from the Travelers' Club to draft a suitable resolution to be sent to the Government: President, C. W. Nichols, first vice-president, J. T. Green; second vice-president, J. C. Hazard; treasurer, W. L. Underwood; secretary, Alf. Robinson, and Messrs. P. M. Millman, D. Ferguson and W. Smithson.

The Travelers' Club committee is Messrs. Buttrey, Fisher, Ferguson, Glass, Dyer, E. W. M. Flock and President C. W. McGuire.

The two committees will meet to complete all arrangements for interviewing the Government.

The matter of proper hotel accommodation is of vital importance to the 16,000 travelers in the Dominion, and it is absolutely necessary that they be well looked after.

OTTAWA.

The council of the Ottawa Board of Trade met recently and organized for the year. Standing committees were appointed as follows :

Industrial—H. Allan Harvey, John Coates, J. McKinley, J. W. Woods, Thos. Workman, George L. Orme, C. Ross, James Ogilvie, John Bingham.

Municipal—J. R. Reid, J. W. Woods, P. Whelan, W. P. Hinton, George S. May, M.P.P.; D. M. Finnie, S. McClenaghan, Fred Cook.

Cheese and butter—W. H. Dwyer, J. R. Reid, H. S. Dowd, Ben. Rothwell, James Ballantyne.

Hides and leather — G. S. May, M.P.P.; A. W. Ault, Ed. Wallace.

Retail merchants — S. McClenaghan, J. A. Bryson, L. N. Bate, W. Strachan, S. Gamble, W. G. Charleson, R. M. McMorran, J. T. Fotheringham, R. McGiffin, G. H. Thorburn, H. J. Sims, H. G. Thorburn, J. A. Musgrove, H. G. Ketchum.

Mr. Andrew Holland submitted resolutions regarding the preferential tariff and the conservation of the power of Niagara Falls.

The motion regarding preferential tariff suggests certain restrictions as follows :

"Whereas an overwhelming majority has been recorded in the recent elections in the British Islands against the policy of preferential trade within the Empire; and whereas many of statesmen and influential newspapers in Great Britain have expressed the opinion that our preferential tariff has been of no practical benefit to the British manufacturer; and whereas many of our manufacturers represent that the preference of 33 1-3 per cent. in favor of imports from the Mother Country has exposed them not only to the keen rivalry of the British manufacturer, but also to unfair competition from foreign goods exported as of British manufacture through British ports,

"Resolved that, in the opinion of this board, Parliament should, at its next session, amend the preference clause of the tariff so that it shall apply only to goods imported through Canadian ports, and which are products of such countries as extend a preference to the exports of Canada."

The Niagara resolution follows :

"That in view of the fact that the Province of Ontario is largely dependent on foreign coal for industrial and domestic purposes, this board is of opinion the Federal and Provincial Governments should not enter into any arrangement that would interfere with the right of Canada to develop water powers at Niagara Falls or at any other point along the international boundary; and it is further resolved that legislation should be enacted to prohibit manufacturers of electric power in Canada from selling and transmitting the same across the border under any contract not terminable on one year's notice."

POSTPONEMENT OF THE ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, which was arranged for the 22nd and 23rd ult. at Montreal, has been indefinitely postponed.

There were several important matters to be dealt with, but owing to the legal matters pending at Hamilton it was considered well to await the decision of the courts; immediately judgment is handed down in the case the annual meeting will be called.

HAMILTON TRAVELERS AT-HOME

The At Home given by the Hamilton commercial travelers at the Royal Friday night last, was on all hands acknowledged to be one of the most enjoyable and successful of the many pleasant functions that have been managed by the genial men of the grip hailing from the ambitious city.

The Royal was in gala attire for the occasion, the spacious dining room being cleared, and the lights softened with deep rose shades, while banks of palms filled various recesses. Here the festivities began with a program rendered by Hamilton's best talent, presided over by Mr. George Matheson. The program was as follows :

Piano solo—Irish Diamonds .. ———

Harry J. Allen.

Trio—When I am Gone From Thee. Mrs. Sanderson, Mrs. Clyde Green and L. R. Woodcroft.

Song—There is a Land.....——— George C. Robertson.

Song—(a) Genevieve. ....———

Song—(b) I Know Not Why My Heart is Thine..... ....———

Mrs. Clyde Green.

Reading—Sterling Worth..... ———

Leslie McDonald.

Song—(a) A Chain of Roses....———

Song—(b) The Magic Month of May. Mrs. Sanderson.

Recitation—Spartacus to the Roman Envoys..... .... ——— Lieut.-Col. Stoneman.

Quartet—(a) Believe Me if all Those Endearing Young Charms.———

Harry J. Allen, accompanist.

An element of mystery is always a delight to the Hamilton traveler. The mystery of the program hung round the reading, "Sterling Worth," by Leslie McDonald. The chairman explained that as this was Mr. McDonald's first appearance in public, he would require the assistance of Fred T. Smye, Major J. H. Herring, L. R. Woodcroft and Ed. Dore. It turned out that the reading was an address of appreciation to the three gentlemen first mentioned, and a presentation by Mr. Dore to each of a pair of gold cuff links inscribed H.C.T. The presentation was a surprise, and was a most popular item, being a recognition particularly of the work of these gentlemen in promoting the travelers' gala day last Summer.

The address was as follows:

"Dear Sirs,—We, commercial travelers of Hamilton, have, in the course of many years' pleasant and profitable association with you, learned to admire you for your marked ability and sterling character. In all our relations we have already found you ready and willing to lend a hand in our various undertakings; indeed, we have grown to regard you as almost indispensable to the association. You have endeared yourself to us in many ways, and we desire to express our hearty and sincere appreciation of the noble devotion and self-sacrificing spirit shown by you on so many occasions in our behalf.

"As a slight memento of our esteem and regard, we ask you to accept the accompanying gift. To offer a worthy recompense for your services is beyond our means, and we hope that you will receive this gift, not considering its intrinsic value, but as representing the good wishes and esteem of the Hamilton commercial travelers.

"We trust that many years of good fortune and happiness may attend you and your good lady, and it is our sincerest wish and hope that you will long be spared to be with us, to brighten our meetings with your presence, to inspire us by your counsel, and to wield that great and good influence under which we have already come. Believe us to be your sincere friends, the Hamilton Commercial Travelers."

Mr. Smye responded felicitously, expressing on behalf of himself and fellows their pleasure in doing anything in their power in the interests of the brotherhood.

At the conclusion of the programme the guests, numbering some three hundred and fifty, sought the breakfast room and ladies' cafe, where was served a full course dinner after the excellent manner so well known by mine host of the Royal.

While the dinner was in progress a number of extras on the dance programme were enjoyed by some of the younger set, who would rather dance than eat, and it was somewhat past twelve when the real programme began. The Lomas orchestra was in attendance, and under the inspiration of their entrancing waltzes the gaiety was kept up till after three o'clock.

The Lady patronesses were: Mesdames Fred T. Smye, J. H. Herring, E. J. Fenwick, James Hooper, R. M. Stuart, John Stoneman and P. A. Sommerville.

The committee in charge of the At Home consisted of Chas. Smith, chairman; F. T. Smye, invitation and printing; Geo. Matheson, music; E. Dore and L. R. Woodcroft, dancing; Major J. H. Herring, treasurer, and George G. Austin, secretary.

The stewards were: E. M. Dore, E. J. Fenwick. F. T. Smye, E. E. W. Moore, Leslie McDonald, F. Small, J. Price, Major J. H. Herring, W. Jackson, jr., C. Smith. C. W. Griffin, C. C. Smye.

The travelers made ideal hosts and left no effort unspared to see that their guests had a good time, which, indeed, was no great task with the many fine looking, manly men and such an array of handsome gowned women, it was a poor spirit, indeed, who could not enjoy the dance to the greatest degree.

Notes.

The palm room was a favorite rendezvous.

Special cars left the hotel at convenient hours.

Lieut.-Col. Stoneman still reads his lines with true military fervor.

Secretary Austin was omnipresent and indefatigable in keeping the ball rolling.

Fred Smye has not yet recovered from his blushes on the occasion of the presentation.

Major J. H. Herring, treasurer, is likely to be able to declare a handsome dividend.

TORONTO.

The inaugural meeting of the council of the Toronto Board of Trade was held on Wednesday the 21st ult. The policy mapped out is quite a pretentious one. Thirty-two new members were received which were stated to be only a first instalment of a large influx. The meeting was preceded by a luncheon tendered by the president, Mr. Peleg Howland, and was a most enjoyable affair.

The chief business at the meeting was the striking of standing committees, the chairmen of which were as follos:

Freight Rates— John Firstbrook, president.

Legislation—C. F. Jarvis, president.

Municipal Taxation—W. T. White, president.

WINDOW AND INTERIOR DISPLAYS

A. PROVAN AND HIS GROCERY.

One of the oldest grocers on King street, Toronto, is A. Provan, old not in years, but in the trade. Last year he did a business of $65,000, and he began a quarter of a century ago with—well, the amount need not be stated here ; he tells it now as a joke. Last year's business showed an advance over the previous year's of 20 per cent., so that there is good reason for saying that Mr. Provan is progressive and up-to-date.

Mr. Provan (pronounced with the accent on the "van") is a Canadian, York county, in fact, but his strong, clean-shaven face, square cut, firm and self-reliant in every line, bespeaks a Scottish origin. His father and mother were Scotch, one from Glasgow, the other from Edinburgh. The elder Provan came to Canada looking for a home for a girl he had left behind him, and located at St. John, N.B. Later he removed to Ontario and settled at Schomberg, where the future grocer was born 49 years ago last Sunday. A letter, interesting to the Provan family, recently came to light. It was written by the father before leaving Scotland over half a century ago to friends in St. John, N.B., stating that he wanted to get married and was coming to Canada to settle. The letter was in the possession of the son of the man to whom it was addressed.

Interior of A Provan's store, King street east, Toronto.

Entering Bosiness.

Mr. Provan was past his youth and into early manhood when he left the farm and entered Sidney Leonard's store at Schomberg. Mr. Leonard is himself a link with early, almost pioneer, days. He conducted store at Schomberg for 40 years, then handed the business over to his son-in-law, who still has it.

At that time Mr. Leonard did a considerable trade in Toronto in butter and eggs. He opened a store in Toronto, a selling depot for his produce, on the south side of King street, just east of George, and placed Provan, then 24, in charge of it after a six months' trial of him in Schomberg.

A couple of years later Mr. Provan put his fortune to the test, his courage and business sagacity to the fire, and bought the business out. The shelves and fittings were hand-made ; that gives an idea how pretentious it was. But a good trade was done in butter and eggs and gradually a stock of groceries was added.

On the Move Up.

The next move, a few years later, was to buy out F. W. Humphrey, the present wholesale grocer, then conducting a retail business on the south side of King street at the corner of George. Nine years ago Mr. Provan purchased the present business, or rather the business at the present stand, 134 King street east, from R. A. Donald, lately manager of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., whose father conducted a grocery business there for many years.

Mr. Provan employs six clerks and a bookkeeper. The output of butter is 1,000 to 1,500 pounds a week, which gives a suggestion of the kind of business it is. Two years ago Mr. Provan bought the stock of Peter Macdonald, Church street, who had been carrying on his business for 40 years.

An Up-to-Date Plant.

Mr. Provan does business with an up-to-date equipment. His tea mixer and coffee mill are driven by electricity. He has continually installed the best equipment he could get for the convenient, economical and cleanly handling of his goods. As an instance of this he recently had put in 100 Walker bins, about 90 of them wall cases, the rest on the sectional bookcase plan. There is not a grocer in Toronto who would not agree that Mr. Provan's store was one of the last to need this sort of an improvement. He has a big business and an efficient store plant. But Mr. Provan is progressive. He does not wait to be overtaken by the need for improvement and partially crippled by the stock. He looks ahead and makes improvements when they will keep him at the head of the procession and not just in time to prevent his dropping out at the tail end.

The counter side of Mr. Provan's store as it now appears is shown in the accompanying illustration. The new bins and the shelf room divide the wall about evenly. The front of each bin is of glass and a movable back makes a bin for the display of the commodity within, a very cleanly and attractive way of showing bulk goods.

Two years ago Mr. Provan went with his wife on a two months holiday to the Pacific coast. They went by the C. P.R. to Vancouver, down the coast to San Francisco, saw a good deal of California, and home by Salt Lake and St. Louis, stopping a day or two wherever they felt inclined.

W. H. Roach & Co., dry goods merchants, Windsor, N.S., had a most attractive and unique window trim recently. It was a miniature circus worked by unseen mechanism. There was the big tent with the usual notice, the procession of animals, acrobats and riders, which all passed before the eye in the most natural manner. Mr. Rafuse invented and arranged the attraction and was much congratulated on his work.

CANADA FLAKES FOR GREAT BRITAIN.

Mr. Arthur Sutcliffe, of Sutcliffe & Bingham, Manchester, England, (manufacturers of Kkovah jellies, etc.) saw the ad of Canada Flakes in The Canadian Grocer some months ago. The result was correspondence and cablegrams culminating in his appearance in Peterborough on a special mission of securing control of Canada Flakes for Great Britain. We understand that an arrangement has been made with the Peterborough Cereal Co. accordingly. Canada Flakes should certainly receive proper care in Britain under such able management.

ORDER OF THE RED ROSE

Toronto was the scene last week of a conclave of the enthusiastic order of the Red Rose, otherwise known as the traveling staff of T. H. Estabrooks, the Red Rose tea man. The occasion of the gathering was the opening of the firms handsome new premises, 3 Wellington street east, and the installation of a new manager, in the person of Mr. George H. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell assumes his new duties under favorable auspices. He has for over five years represented Red Rose tea in Western Ontario, is thoroughly acquainted with the Ontario field and has that buoyant energy and pleasing address that means so much in successful salesmanship.

It is quite evident that Mr. Campbell was already secure in the loyalty of his staff and that an esprit de corps estisted among the men that presages good. The travelers present were: Walter C. Gaden, Montreal; B. R. James Norris, Kingston; Robert W. Vout and Bert A. Fisher, Brockville; Rupert Pratt, Walter A. Harrison, W. T. Chapman, George E. Taylor, and George H. Campbell, Toronto. Mr. Estabrooks was detained in St. John and could not be present.

Mr. G. H. Campbell,
Ontario Manager "Red Rose" Tea..

This was the first gathering of the travelers since the removal to the new premises and the men were greatly pleased with them. The offices are handsomely finished and furnished in quarter cut oak, are splendidly lighted and steam heated. The warehouse is large, airy and bright, and scrupulously clean, evidencing system and forethought in the arrangement.

The men arrived Friday and immediately began discussing plans for the season. In the evening a demonstration of Red Rose tea was given at the Young Woman's Christian Guild and the travelers seized the opportunity of serving the tea themselves. Red roses formed the decorations and were distributed as favors. The Red Rose song to the tune of "The Good Old Summer Time," led by Mr. Walter C. Gaden, made a great hit.

Saturday was a busy day, from early in the morning till seven at night with a slight intermission in the way of luncheon at the King Edward. But business concluded, "the enthusiastic order" went out on pleasure bent.

After dinner at the King Edward, the whole company with representatives of the press, made a very jolly box party at the Princess to see Richard Mansfield in Don Carlos. Every man was adorned with a handsome red rose on his lapel and sprays of red roses decorated the boxes. Speculation was rife in the parquette as to the significance of the red roses, and one perplexed individual advanced the theory that the decorations had some reference to the wars of the roses.

To wind up the evening's pleasure, supper was served after the theatre in McConkey's best style. Here again red roses formed the table decorations. Red Rose tea in pots took the place of cafe noir. The ice cream was served molded to represent red roses, and when finally, having done themselves credit as good trenchermen, the guests in the wee sma' hours rose to to seek their several beds, the Red Rose doxology was sung with fervor and effect.

It is just about 10 years ago that T. H. Estabrooks started in the tea business in a small way at the north market wharf, St. John, N.B. The success with which his Red Rose tea has met is known to readers of The Grocer. Five years ago a branch was started in Toronto and now the growth of Ontario business has made necessary the handsome building now occupied. With present facilities the outlook must be very encouraging both to Mr. Campbell and Mr. Estabrooks.

The song in which the travelers so delight runs as follows:

My name is Rosey Gearey,
I am bright as you can see,
I never drink coffee for breakfast,
But always take Red Rose tea.
It helps to digest my victuals,
I'm as happy as can be,
You will all bring sunshine to your homes,
If you drink Red Rose tea.

Chorus:

Dear old Red Rose tea,
You are the stuff for me,
If they should take you away from me
How angry I would be.
You make me well when I am sick,
And then I jump with glee,
No doctor need come round our house
When we have Red Rose tea.

FOOD FAIR IN MONTREAL.

The S. Carsley Company's food fair, which is an annual occurrence, opened on February 1st and will finish March 1st. The fair has attracted the usual amount of interest of the consumers of groceries who are in the habit of patronizing Carsley's. That part of the grocery department around the elevators on the east side, and near the centre stairs leading to the basement, was given over to the food fair. The displays were quite up to the usual standard, and aroused much favorable comment among visitors to that part of the store.

Khovah Jellies.

One of the largest and most attractive booths was that of Sutcliffe & Bingham, Ltd., Manchester, England, which was in charge of Mr. Bradwell, the company's Montreal agent. This firm, which is known all over Canada for its Khovah jellies, had prepared samples of all their goods, which were served out to those wishing to test the quality of the jellies and different dishes, such as blanc mange, in which they were used in the making. Custard and egg powders, lemon squash and marmalade all found places in the booth.

Comfort Soap.

Alongside this exhibit was the display of Pugsley, Dingman & Company, manufacturers of Comfort Soap. Their novel electric sign, which could be seen from any part of the grocery department, was much admired. The goods which they displayed were Comfort Soap and Handy Ammonia.

Orange Meat.

R. B. Hall & Son, Montreal, agents for the Frontenac Cereal Company, of Kingston, had a very tastily arranged booth which advertised the merits of "Orange Meat." Premiums obtainable by the thrifty who save the coupons enclosed in Orange Meat packages were on view also.

Wee MacGregor Oat Cake.

"Just like mother used to make," is the way the Wee MacGregor Company of Toronto describes their Scotch Scones and Oat Cakes which were handed out to lovers of things tasty and substantial who visited the fair. This company's exhibit was situated in a prominent place and showed up well. The aroma of the cooking scones and cakes carried all over the grocery department. It might be mentioned that the stand was in charge of Miss Syne, of Glasgow, Scotland, who has had some seven years' experience in baking these favorite Scotch cakes and work of this description.

W. H. Dunn's Exhibit.

Mr. Wm. H. Dunn had, as usual, a fine exhibit of Borden's Eagle brand milk and Peerless brand cream. Bensdorps Cocoa and Pure Gold Jellies, for which Mr. Dunn is eastern agent, both occupied places in his booth which was tastefully decorated with pretty hangers setting forth the qualities of the different goods on exhibition. Cocoa and jellies were served to visitors.

Bovril Exhibit.

The Bovril company had a nice stand for the first couple of weeks of the show, and the merits of this fluid were once more prominently before the public.

St. Charles Condensed Milk Co.

St. Charles evaporated cream, "Silver Cow," "Purity" and "Good Luck" milks were shown by C. D. Cowles, travelling representative of the company, and W. H. Halford, representative of S. H. Ewing & Sons, the Montreal agents for this cream and these milks. Ewing & Sons had a very nice display of "Club" brand coffee in connection with this booth.

Lipton's teas and coffees occupied a central position. The samples served sufficed to show the quality of the goods offered for sale.

Shredded Wheat.

Mr. C. Giltrap had charge of the Shredded Wheat stand. The manufacturers of shredded wheat and triscuit, The Natural Food Co., Niagara Falls, N.Y., always have a splendid stand, and this year was no exception. Chocolate eclairs, jellies, blanc mange and hot dishes served up made from shredded wheat with other ingredients were quite appetizing in appearance and did not deceive when tasted.

Grocers' Trading Company.

J. T. Eadie, of the Grocers' Trading Company, had a fine booth displaying the products of that firm: maple syrup, cream, butter and sugar.

Canada Flakes.

The Peterborough Cereal Company's display of Canada Flakes attracted much attention. The stand was in charge of Mr. Silock, Montreal agent.

Considerable extra business resulted from the food fair, as is always the case, and as a rule quite a number of shoppers were to be seen clustered around the different booths, eagerly sampling the goods offered for sale, discussing the merits of the same, and comparing them to other food stuffs in the same line exhibited perhaps just opposite.

The exhibition as a whole reflects credit upon the manager of the S. Sarsley Co.'s grocery department, Mr. A. Foreman, who, since its inception, has been most assiduous in assisting the managers and help of the various exhibits to a proper arrangement of the fair. From the Grocer's standpoint an improvement in the arrangement of the various exhibits could have been made by extending the large store-room space in the extreme rear of the basement and thus forming a square, around the sides of which the exhibitors' booths could have been arranged. However, the best possible use of the available space was made by Mr. Foreman, and no doubt visitors to Carsley's during the fair are thoroughly satisfied and instructed in the preparation of the various specialties and the exhibition will receive due advertisement.

CANNING FACTORY NOTES.

In an interview with Mr. David Marshall, of the Canadian Canners, last week it was learned that as a result of his trip to the canners' convention at Atlantic City the previous week a considerable quantity of new machinery had been secured for several of the factories belonging to the company. The new machinery includes several Hawkins cappers, also a number of tomato fillers. These machines will be placed in the factories at Delhi, Niagara-on-the-Lake, St. Catharines, Grimsby, Bolter & Sons, Picton; Sandwich, Miller & Co., Trenton; A. B. Saylor Canning Co., Bloomfield, Wellington and Leamington.

The canners are building a new factory at Picton, replacing the old A. C. Miller factory.

The new equipment is expected to facilitate the operations of next season very considerably.

THE POSSIBILITIES OF NEW ONTARIO.

A traveler for one of the large wholesale grocery firms, the member of the staff who circulates for business in the north country, speaking of Cobalt, which he visits every third week, said: "There are 30 or 40 places of business there, principally general stores carrying full stocks of all lines of goods. The number seems large, but they will not more than supply the demands of the multitudes expected to arrive in the new silver camp in the Spring."

This gentleman is thoroughly convinced of the importance and possibilities of the north country. "Sudbury," said he, "will in the very near future be a busy railway centre with the James Bay Railway and the C.P.R.'s new short line to Toronto. These with the Hutton iron mine behind it and the million dollar smelter at Copper Cliff on the west will make it one of the busy places of the earth."

He quoted Charles M. Schwab as saying recently that more money would be made in New Ontario by new men in the next ten years from mines than had been made in the United States in the past ten years from industrials.

ASSIGNMENT NOT JUSTIFIED.

W. J. McKissock, of Strathavon, near Owen Sound, farmer and general merchant, assigned recently to Osler Wade, assignee, acting for an important Toronto dry goods house. His assets amounted to $8,991.64, and his liabilities to $5,468.65, leaving a surplus of $3,522.99.

Why did he assign?

He had sent a letter to several of his creditors stating he would have to have an extension or they might come and take the stock. His replies came in the form of representatives of two assignees. Mr. Wade's man was first, because he moved faster, and it may be guessed, he did not twiddle his thumbs long before securing the assignment.

When the creditors met in Toronto the wholesale firm which had initiated the proceedings were surprised at the solvent condition of the estate. They were sorry the assignment had been made. An Owen Sound creditor objected that the assignment should not have been made, and the representative of the Toronto house agreed with him.

Mr. McKissock, who had started the store two years ago, had a $4,000 stock, a $3,700 farm, and did business in a year equal to about the value of his stock. That turnover could not make the business pay. The Toronto man said to the Owen Sounder: "Guarantee us our account, $520, and we will pay the expenses of the assignment thus far incurred."

The north country man could not see his way to do that, so the trade creditors agreed to take 85 cents on the dollar. The total expenses of the assignment will be about $125, and the 15 cents more than make that good. The local creditors undertake to see the trade creditors paid by March 1st, and the estate has been handed back.

A little enquiry by the wholesalers would have prevented this assignment, and a lot of trouble and worry. It was easier, however, to hand the merchant's letter to an assignee. The fact that Mr. McKissock was not displaying keen business acumen should have inspired consideration rather than peremptory measures. The wholesalers did not mean to be harsh; they just didn't think. They did what was customary.

This case should suggest that a little investigation, or at least enquiry, precede instructions to an assignee.

CANADA AND THE EAST.

Not the least significant of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statements at the Toronto banquet last week was this:

"Up to the present moment we have markets chiefly in Europe, but the time has come when we must seek markets in the Orient."

Sir Wilfrid urged that Canada should improve the natural advantages afforded by its geographical position as the nearest trade route between China or Japan, with their four or five hundred millions of people, and the European markets. The present time by steamer from London to Hong Kong via the Suez Canal is about 33 days. The C.P.R.'s new time via Canada is 22 days. Routes of trade and their changes have done more to make and unmake great commercial centres than all the wars and earthquakes in history. Babylon decayed as soon as the trade between east and west was sent by boat instead of by caravan, and Alexandria and Venice grew up. They in turn declined when Vasco de Gama rounded the Cape of Good Hope and Columbus discovered America. Empire followed in the wake of the trader.

Sir Wilfrid said: "I hope that I shall live long enough to see the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Grand Trunk Railway passing with trains full of passengers, full of wheat and flour, and bringing back tea and silks and passengers, and transmitting them to all parts of the civilized world."

Canada seems to have shared in the awakening of the east. In 1904 we sold to China and Japan goods to the value of $568,983. Last year that sum increased to $1,520,053, an increase of nearly threefold in one year.

But the total of Canada's trade with China and Japan during thirty years is a tale not so heartening. In 1873 it amounted to $1,709,856. In four years it fell to $455,755, and ten years later was up to $2,819,584. Since that time it has varied year by year, never going below two millions, seldom going much above three. High water mark was in 1896, $3,339,429. In 1904 it was $3,134,959; then last year made a new high record, $3,990,776.

The balance of trade throughout has been with the East. Canada has bought much more than it has sold. The highest point was reached in 1892, when our exports to China and Japan were worth $3,016,857. In 1904 the value was $2,565,976, and last year, $2,470,723.

It was the development of our sales to the East and the development of the carrying trade between Asia and Europe that engaged the Premier's attention, and his plea comes aptly upon the heels of what might be termed potentially an epoch-making advance in Canada's sales to Japan and China.

The Government of Canada has not become interested in this trade development any too soon. Mr. J. D. Allan, returning from a trip to the Orient in 1903, urged the immediate necessity of activity in that direction. In an article in the Canadian Grocer he pointed out what other governments were doing to secure their peoples a share of the Oriental trade awakening, and he pointed out the significance of the increase in the total value of exports to China from the United States, described by Sir Wilfrid as "our only competitor." Between 1880 and 1902 United States sales to China jumped from $1,101,383 to $24,722,906. Between those years Canada's exports to China and Japan combined increased from $37,546 to $570,586, the total last year was $1,520,053.

A LESSON FROM THE U. S. IN PURE FOOD.

True it is that "corporate bodies move cumbrously"; even necessity fails to arouse the needed animation. It has taken upwards of fifteen years of agitation to secure a move in the right direction by the United States Congress in the form of an enactment of a pure food law. Surely this should stand as a salutary warning to the Dominion Parliament. Are we free from the evils of adulteration? The Government reports from time to time conclusively answer that question in the negative.

In almost everything we eat or drink there are adulterations, many of them harmless, perhaps, but still adulterations that should not be permitted to deceive the consumer.

To adulterate food is an offence so universal, so insidious and so difficult to detect that it has been committed with impunity.

One reason for this laxity is perhaps due to the fact that when a retail merchant is detected selling adulterated food and the adulteration can only be shown by a chemical analysis, the feeling arises that so far as he is concerned, at least, the offence is only technical. The grocer is not a chemist, nor can he be expected to add an analytical chemist to his staff.

The wholesale merchant also is generally held to have done his duty in buying his wares from a reputable source without having every consignment of goods subject to a chemical analysis.

We are thus thrown back upon the manufacturer, upon whom the responsibility for adulteration really rests, and in his case it is necessary that the law should really anticipate the fraudulent practices of irresponsible factories.

A short time ago Prof. Wiley, chief of the Chemistry Bureau of the Department of Agriculture, declared that the food the people daily consumed was loaded with germ life of a harmful nature. The condition revealed by analysis of canned goods was shown to be a menace to public health. All this is worth considering in Canada, as it shows a condition to which we will inevitably drift unless Parliament acts promptly and adopts legislation enforcing the correct labelling of foods and drugs.

The law to which the United States Congress has assented makes it a misdemeanor to manufacture or sell adulterated or misbranded foods, drugs, medicines, or liquors in the United States, and prohibits the shipment of such goods from one state to another or to a foreign country. It also prohibits the receipt of such goods. Offences are punishable by a fine of $500 or by imprisonment for one year, or both. In the case of corporations, officials in charge are made amenable.

The law requires the Treasury Department and the Department of Commerce and Labor to agree upon regulations for the collection and examination of the articles enumerated, and specific provision is made for investigation by the Department of Agriculture.

The bureau also defines foods, drugs, medicines, and liquors, and also defines the standards for them. This is serious legislation, as it makes abundant provision for the enforcement of the law. Our own Government has an excellent example to follow.

CONFEDERATION WITH BRITISH WEST INDIES.

The movement for a close bond between the British West Indies and Canada has again come to the front, and is a measure which would be most heartily received by everyone who has given the idea consideration.

At a recent meeting of the grain and flour section of the Toronto Board of Trade a resolution was unanimously adopted to the effect that the British Government would be justified in making liberal terms with the British West Indies to accomplish the confederation. The advantages were fully explained in the following terms of the resolution passed:

"Canada would produce within its borders all the tropical products, and the citizens of this country would get the benefit of these without the payment of duty on the same, and we would also get the benefit of new markets for our agricultural products, without the payment of heavy duties, which are now largely supplied from the United States, notwithstanding the fact that they are parts of the British Empire. We further believe that the admission of the West India islands into the confederation would form a strong inducement to bring Newfoundland in, as it would give them a market for their fisheries without the payment of duties, and would place them in a stronger position to resist the demand of the United States for rights in the Newfoundland fisheries."

TORONTO'S APPETITE FOR INDUSTRIES.

Toronto's city council is in the throes of a controversy over the creation of a new office, the duties of which would be to bring industries to the city. A strong section of council is opposed to it on the grounds that the city is doing very well and that the present officials and the Board of Control can take care of the business.

One enthusiastic advocate of appointing a commissioner of industries made the ingenuous proposal that such an official might go through the smaller towns of the province and induce manufacturers there to remove to the city. That line of action would be suicidal. Toronto will grow as Ontario develops and not otherwise. To go through the country with a drag net to centralize manufacturing industry at Toronto would work a great injury alike to the city and the province, to the industrial and agrarian interests.

Surely the tide of young manhood and womanhood from the country to the centres of population is too fast and strong now. That is one grave consideration the aldermanic enthusiast overlooked. Another is that Toronto is growing fast enough for the comfort of its own citizens. But the most obvious is that to strike at the local interests centreing about even a village industry is to strike at Toronto as the industrial, educational and commercial capital of the province.

One word more. Does Toronto imagine that the small towns and villages and the smaller cities would lie down and take it? Toronto has been complaining for years that the smaller places have had unfair advantage in offering inducements to industries. The answer to such a campaign as is proposed would be swift and sure, and Toronto's council should remember that the city, compared to the rest of the province, cuts a small figure in moulding the acts of the Legislature.

ADVERTISING SUCCESS AND COMPETITION.

An English advertising expert tells of a prominent manufacturer whose principal output was an article which sold for a shilling, and which, being extensively advertised, was also extensively imitated.

In order to meet the competition of substitutes the manufacturer set apart a portion of his output and sold it at sixpence under another name.

The sixpenny article knocked out the competition, but though it was identical with the shilling article except in the name, it never sold as well. The shilling goods were advertised, the sixpenny goods were not.

The unadvertised product could not compete with the advertised product at half the price.

THE GROCER will be pleased to receive enquiries on any interesting subject, for answering on this page.

Ques.—A reader of The Canadian Grocer sends in the following question: "Would you kindly inform me through your valuable paper whether you reckon the percentage of gain on cost price or selling price?"

Ans.—The question our correspondent asks is one of universal interest. We will in consequence go to some length to answer it, and in doing so will embody some very forceful illustrations given by an ex-president of the U. S. National Retail Grocers' Association, Mr. George Scherer:

The figuring of profits is a vital point to every merchant. The question of percentage is a mathematical problem which seems to be a vexing one to many. Although there are a great many valuable things connected with the every day arithmetic used by all business men, the item of profits is the paramount issue, and extreme care should be used to be sure one is right when a per cent. is added to the cost, or taken from the selling price. A few examples are here given to elucidate our points.

The young man emerging on his business career will often fall into the trap of figuring percentage on a wrong basis. Take as an example: "A" buys a stock of goods and marks them for sale. It is thought a very good profit to mark them up 25 per cent., and that is usually done on the cost of the goods. At the close of the year if he finds that his expenses will average 20 per cent. that he figures on the sales as it is usually done, thinks that he is doing very well, allowing that he has figured on the expense account, the usual expenses, his own salary, interest on capital, and a reasonable per cent. for the depreciation of goods. Say his sales amount to $30,000 per year. He would at once figure that he would clear 5 per cent., which would make him $1,500 over and above expenses. For a starter that would not be so bad, but let us analyze this proposition. We will take one item for an example. Say an article costs 80 cents, he marks it up 25 per cent. on the cost price, the selling price would be $1. Now his expense is 20 per cent. We take it for granted in the above case that this item of expense is figured on the sales which the average merchant does. Twenty per cent. of $1 is 20 cents. Take that from the selling price, and you have your original net cost of 80 cents back, and the 5 per cent. is lost in the shuffle.

Take another example, if you wish to illustrate this a little further: Mr. "A" has buggies in his wareroom which cost him $40. He concludes to clean up some of his over-stock and advertises an auction sale. He agrees with the auctioneer to pay him 33 1-3 per cent. on the sales. Now he sells a buggy at $60, and tells the auctioneer to let her go. It cost him $40, he is figuring that he is making 50 per cent. on the investment. Good enough; he is paying 33 1-3 per cent. for the sale of the article, which means $20, and you will see that his 33 1-3 per cent. on the sale of the article has cancelled his 50 per cent. on the cost.

Take another example if you like: A party buys a large stock of goods. To cover depreciation and other charges or expenses, he marks the stock up 10 per cent. on the invoices. In the course of time the party concludes to sell the stock out at an actual cost, and after taking the figures down on the marked cost price, he agrees to take off 10 per cent. Did he receive his original cost? Let us see. We will say the original invoice was $100,000. He marked the same up 10 per cent.; that would be $10,000; marked invoice would be $110,000. Take off 10 per cent. of that amount and you will have $11,000, this amount taken off the marked cost would leave $99,000. He would be short $1,000 by this process.

It is evident that in figuring percentage of profits and expenses, there must be care exercised or the merchant will get the worst of it. We believe the only safe and good business plan is to figure profits and expenses on the selling price.

The following table will show the comparative result on selling price:

Cost.	Per cent. Profit.	Selling Price.	Per cent. Expenses.	Net Amount.
$1.00	25	$1.25	20	$1.00
1.00	50	1.50	50	.90
1.00	100	2.00	80	.40

REMOVAL OF OFFICES.

The Japan Central Tea Traders' Association, Mr. Shaw T. Nishimura, representative, has removed from the offices formerly occupied on St. Alexis street to new quarters at 55 St. Francis Xavier street. The new offices are much ahead of the old ones, being better lighted, situated in a more convenient district, and containing every modern improvement for the conduct of a business of this character, where plenty of light is required.

ONTARIO'S SALT SEA FISHERIES.

A syndicate has been formed, combining both capital and engineering ability, to open up a rail and river route between Lake Superior and Hudson Bay. This much information has been vouchsafed by the Monetary Times, which has begun a campaign in favor of a Provincial Government guarantee of the railway bonds to the extent of $10,000 a mile and a land grant of twelve sections per mile. The purpose of the enterprise is to give access to the Hudson Bay fisheries.

A pamphlet signed by Mr. Edgar A. Wills has been issued, entitled "Document 'A,' Monetary Times' Hudson Bay Commercial Access Series." It is accompanied by "Circular No. 1." a reprint of an editorial in last week's Times.

Mr. Wills' pamphlet deals with the importance of Hudson Bay fisheries, at present entirely neglected because of the difficulty and uncertainty by reason of ice floes, of entrance to the bay. The new route proposed is a railway from Jackfish Bay on Lake Superior 250 miles to the Albany River, then by river steamer 200 miles to the bay. The immediate value of the fisheries he estimates at $18,000,000 a year, with illimitable possibilities. He quotes the daily press to show that the American fish trusts make the price of fish to the people of Ontario almost prohibitive.

HOW GROCERS PLAY HOCKEY.

The hockey team of T. Kinnear & Co. made a great showing in the Markham tournament which closed last Saturday evening. It certainly speaks well for the quality of hockey played in the Toronto Grocery League, for the Kinnear team reached the finals and were then beaten by only a goal by the strong Fenelon Falls team, the score at the finish being 2 goals to 1. The Falls boys won the gold medals by that narrow margin.

The final game was played before the largest and most enthusiastic crowd ever assembled in Markham rink. Not till the bell rang for full time was either team sure of a victory. Fenelon Falls sent a special train with 150 rooters, while the Kinnears had a large following on the special train from Toronto. The immense crowd looked for the Falls to win by a large score, but the magnificent game of the Kinnears was a surprise to all present.

Fred Waghorne was a capable and impartial referee, nipping in the bud any tendency to roughness. Eleven Fenelon Fells and nine Kinnears decorated the fence. The teams:

Referee, F. C. Waghorne, Toronto.

DIRECTORY OF DIRECTORS, 1906.

Edited by W. R. Houston. Houston's Standard Publications, 83 Yonge street, Toronto, Ont.

When one considers the immense number of incorporated companies in Canada, and the rapidity with which new companies are being forced and launched, a book such as this becomes a necessity. The wonder is that it was not conceived years ago. At any rate, the present volume is a welcome one and should prove of value in many quarters.

Part I. of the directory gives in alphabetical order the names and addresses of all directors and officers, with the names of the companies with which they are connected. The names are printed in a black face type, making it an easy matter to pick out any name required.

Part II. is given over to a classified list of companies, their place of business, their directors and officers. The classification covers banks and trust companies, insurance companies, land, loan and savings companies, light power and water companies, telegraph and telephone companies, transportation companies and manufacturing and miscellaneous companies.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

The banana market was never so good as at present for this season of the year. Prices are easily 40c. bunch higher than last year. The open Winter is the reason given, which enables their being handled without danger of being chilled. White & Co., Toronto and Hamilton.

A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, report a very satisfactory and rapidly increasing demand for Imperial Peanut Butter, one of the latest table delicacies. It is now stocked in the first-class stores. Write for prices.

S. J. Major, Limited, Ottawa, are booking orders for vinegar for delivery in May. Best values both as regards standard strength and prices guaranteed.

The lemon market is very active with stocks very light. Two cars of "Home Guard" brand Messinas arrived on the market this week and were eagerly taken by the best trade. This brand is very popular in Toronto. White & Co., Toronto and Hamilton.

Laporte, Martin & Co. are offering great reductions on considerable quantities of French and Norwegian sardines, red and rose salmon, herrings, and red trout in barrels and half barrels. They also offer at great bargain 1,000 boxes of the best imported selected Spanish raisins.

Maconochie's products, such as fish, marmalade, pickles, etc., are meeting with a large and steady demand, and the selling agents, the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, are now taking orders for shipment on the opening of navigation. Their condensed price list of these goods will interest you. A post card will bring it.

The present is an opportune time for buyers to write S. J. Major, Limited, Ottawa, for special values in prunes, of which they carry a full stock at interesting prices.

Do you sell matches? If you are open for a match deal, communicate with A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited. They have something to tell you worth listening to.

Grocers would do well to see the travelers of Laporte, Martin & Co. to telephone or write their office if at any time they wish to obtain barrels or half barrels of first-class Labrador red trout. Laporte, Martin & Co., Limited, have received a large consignment of these fine trout, but owing to the scarcity of cod and salmon, the quantity remaining is not very large and dealers should buy before it is too late.

A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, advise an exceptionally heavy demand at this time for the popular first run sap Beauce maple syrup, no doubt due to the exceptional prices and terms they are quoting. Get them.

Grocers would do well to examine their stock of teas and to send to Laporte, Martin & Co. for samples of all lines which they intend to carry in stock. The stock of teas carried by Laporte, Martin & Co. is one of the most complete in the country and their prices are right. Samples will be sent for the asking, and the best quotations will be sent by return mail when asked for.

A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, report having some fine September and October cheddars and flats, texture and flavor A1, on which they will quote closest prices.

The California orange market continues its upward rise. At going to press to-day the ruling quotation F.O.B. California for extra fancy is $2.35 per box, which means $3.50 per box cost delivered at the Toronto market. It is, therefore, likely that considerably higher prices will prevail now.

White & Co., Limited, are handling the bulk of the California celery just now. The crop in California is exhausted, but White & Co. were fortunate in securing a few cases and storing.

L. Chaput Fils & Cie have about 200 cases of Bee Brand goods which they will sell to good buyers with a liberal discount. Communicate with them at once.

GROCERIES.

,Montreal, March 1, 1906.

Business in grocery circles during the past week is reported as fairly satisfactory. Orders, while still light from country points, are somewhat better than during the past six weeks. Collections are reported satisfactory and this is most encouraging, in view of the fact that trade has been light, owing to the weather conditions and the consequent bad country roads. Teas show better business, due, without doubt, to the generally strong position abroad. Sugars are unchanged, with a weak tendency, owing to the still unsettled condition of the foreign beet market. A decline of 3c. per gallon in molasses was made by the Quebec Guild last week., Buyers are getting interested in new crop Barbadoes. Coffees are unchanged and business quiet. An advance of 5c. per lb. in nutmegs and 3c. per lb. in ginger shows a revival of activity in these lines and has caused the spice trade to look with interest to the future. The position of canned goods is unchanged, principal interest centreing in tomatoes which advanced 5c., as noted last week. Several carloads were sold this week to the jobbing trade at $1.00. Peas are getting more attention, owing to the low price at which they are offered. Evaporated apples and beans are interesting. Firmness in the former and weakness in the latter. Fish of all kinds are reported in good demand. The provision market remains firm at unchanged prices. Eggs are weak, owing to the pressure brought upon this market by the enormous quantities of eggs available in New York, where last week over 65,000 cases were received and prices dropped to 14c. The cheese market is firm and unchanged. Butter market steady and unchanged.

Canned Goods—Good inquiry for tomatoes and the usual demand for other goods for consumption, sums up the canned goods situation very well. Beyond this little can be said. There is a possibility of there being a scarcity of small fruits such as strawberries, but this may not occur if the new crop is put on the market at a reasonably early period this year.

The low price of peas has caused somewhat freer buying.

Sugar—The sugar market remains unchanged, the general condition being one of weakness, due to the continued reports of weak foreign beet and raw sugar markets. Refiners report, however, a fair demand from the jobbing trade. Jobbers advise a better feeling for freer buying from country points, as the outside trade is commencing to realize that sugars have probably reached bed rock.

Molasses and Syrups—The molasses market has shown a tendency to decline. The local guild's prices were reduced last week to a basis of 30c. for puncheons, Barbadoes. Stocks on this market are light and business quiet. There is nothing particularly new to note. The latest cables from Barbadoes to Messrs. D. Rattray & Sons, agents for DaCosta, state that the market is active around 14c., with some odd lots offered by planters. We are advised of sales for Quebec of about 2,000 puncheons. Stocks of old crops are pretty well exhausted, with the exception of a small cargo held here since last season, for account of a Newfoundland house. The first shipment of new Barbadoes molasses is expected to reach Montreal shortly. this being a consignment from DaCosta and which has been placed to arrive.

Tea—Trade, while not extremely active, has shown an improvement during the week. Ceylon greens are firmer and in good demand, not many desirable teas, however, are offering. Ceylon blacks and Orange Pekoes are reported a shade higher. China blacks are quiet and little doing. There are few China greens held here, and what stock there is, is held at good prices. Ping Sueys and Gunpowders, Pinheads and Pealeaf are all higher. Japans are in somewhat better demand and a fair amount of trading is noted.

Coffee—The market shows no change. The New York reports indicate a fluctuating market, from 5 to 15 points being about the running margin. The latest report from Brazil is that the weather conditions are unfavorable. Local trade is quiet and no interesting features to note, only a fair amount of business being reported by roasters and grinders. Mocha coffees advanced 1 1-2c. Messrs. Watt, Scott & Goodacre, in their report of the 27th, compile the review of their Brazil and New York correspondents as follows:

Receipts continue very small and unless something, not in sight, transpires, the current crop will not be over 10,000,000 bags for Rio and Santos, although a 12,000,000 bag crop was predicted by the same interests that are predicting a 11,000,000 to 12,000,000 bag crop for the year 1906-07.

The valorization scheme, to be backed by the Brazilian Government to advance the price of coffee by various methods to a basis profitable for the planter, has seemingly secured new life, and while the success of this scheme is uncertain, there is no uncertainty that the world's stocks are decreasing rapidly, and that even if predictions of the bears come true, and we have a 12,000,000 bag crop, production for this year, and the coming year will be considerably below consumption.

The liquidation of March contracts is about over and the position has been strengthened by the retiring of tired longs. Europe has none and Brazil has little coffee to sell us before July 1, and while consumption is taking coffees for immediate requirements in small quantities, the aggregate results in heavy deliveries. In these deliveries there is no sign of buying for speculation whatever.

Foreign Dried Fruits—Trade is, generally speaking, quiet, as is usual at this season of the year. The currant market in Greece is firmly maintained, the syndicate now controls all the remaining stock, with the exception of only a moderate quantity. Valencia raisins show no change. The Denia market closed. Dates, spot stocks are rapidly going into consumption at firm prices. Almonds show an advancing tendency. Walnuts are improving in demand, owing to the higher prices abroad.

Spices—There has been an advance of 2 1-2c. on ginger since last week. Nutmegs have also gone up five cents. Wholesalers state that nutmegs have been sold too low lately and that the advances which have been recorded were bound to come sooner or later. The demand for spices at present is not very brisk, they, like most other grocery lines, affected by the state of the weather.

Rice and Tapioca—There is not much to be said of the rice situation as it stands now. Pretty well all imported has been cleaned up. Prices have not changed in any brand since last quotations. Tapioca is a very interesting proposition at present. The price is steadily going up. This week an increase of 1-4c. is noticeable. Wholesalers state that it is possible to buy cheaper from Liverpool than from the very ground whereon tapioca is raised, Singapore, so heavily are English firms buying. Such a state of affairs is likely to exist until the new crop next Fall, so that in all probability prices will go still higher.

Beans—The market is in a very unsettled condition at present. A recent letter published in certain trade journals has caused much excitement in bean circles. Dealers are very cautious, and do not care either to buy or to sell. A prominent western dealer in Montreal this week said that notwithstanding the above fact, large buyers in the West are quietly buying up the beans at prices which will not permit them to sell at less than $1.58 to $1.65 track Montreal.

Maple Product—Maple sugar is advancing. Pure Townships is selling from 8c. to 8 1-2c. now, and pure Beauce County from 8 1-2c. to 9c. The demand is about as usual.

Evaporated Apples—From present indications those who want evaporated apples this season will have to pay a good stiff price for them. Jobbers still quote 11 1-2c. The demand continues good despite this price. Stocks are growing smaller constantly, and it is in the range of possibilities that prices will go higher in the near future.

Fish—Now that Lent has begun the demand for fish of all kinds has become brisk and constant. The recent mild weather stopped the sale of frozen fish to a great extent, and prices in many lines will be lower in consequence. Salt fish continue scarce and prices are firm. This applies especially to salt herring.

With cold weather the dealers expect to do a good business from now on.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, March 2, 1906.

The grocery trade is holding its own against the season and the weather, and that is about all that need be said. Prices are ruling about as last week.

Canned Goods—In the subjoined quotations there are a few corrections rather than changes. One firm was found with some canned Canadian asparagus at $3, so it is in the list again. The supply is not large. Another firm's price expert said they were selling California at $3.50 to $3.75. It is a luxury anyway. Beans, 2's, refugee, are scarce. Beets, 3's, whole, can't be had under $1. Baked beans, 1's and 3's, with Chili sauce, are up 5c. There is a 10c. reduction in canned meats. Tomatoes are still firm, and there is nothing under $1.

In some houses white Niagara grapes are off the list and no more are obtainable.

Sugar—There is no change locally and no change in New York refined.

Beet sugars have advanced 3d. per cwt. to 8s. 2 1-4d. per cwt., f.o.b., Hamburg, February and March. This latest advance has increased the differential between canes and beets to 34c. per 100 lbs., nominal quotation for 96 test centrefugals being still $3.36, duty paid, New York, while the New York parity of 88 per cent. beet is now $3.70.

Some attention is now being paid to prospective European sowings. But it is too early to forecast these, though there is nothing at the moment to indicate that there will be any appreciable falling off as compared with last year, and any opinions expressed are the merest conjecture.

At the moment the general tone of the market is firm, but there are no special indications of change in the near future. Local prices remain unchanged as advised below, and demand still continues on the hand to mouth basis.

Tea—Colombo markets are firm, and the demand at London is still for choicer grades. The quality thus far is rather disappointing. Business locally is seasonable, that is quiet, and there are no quotable changes in price.

McMeekin & Co., of London, Eng., in a review of the tea trade of 1905, says of the outlook:

"The immediate prospects have been somewhat clouded by the reception in London of considerably more tea from India and Ceylon than was anticipated, and by the scramble in January to realize stocks, irrespective of the effect upon the future of the market. It is a difficult matter to get prices up again when once they have been knocked down, and no general advance is probable until the aggregate stock bears a more reasonable ratio to the consumption. It would be a good thing if tea growers generally could be brought to realize that the regulation of output and of realization after tea has arrived could have more influence upon promoting favorable results for the tea industry than any reform of British or foreign tariffs. There are no clear indications that tea consumption has ever been seriously affected by duties imposed or remitted, and in Great Britain at least the recent repeated changes have had surprisingly little effect. In India there appears to be in the aggregate some reduction in the area planted with tea, and the additions of recent years, either there or in Ceylon, cannot be large."

Coffee—Locally the market is unchanged. In New York the week ended with a slight decline, Rio 7's the same, but Rio 4's down 1-4 to 1-8c., and Santos 4's down 1-8c.

Willett & Gray, New York, say of the situation:

"The figures, as they appear from day to day, show a remarkable condition as compared with expectations. Not only are the receipts much below anticipation, but the deliveries from the seaports since January 1st, are running much ahead of last year. The buying from the country is not spontaneous or voluntary, but it is done to cover actual necessities.

"From competent sources in Brazil it is reported that the next Santos crop can only result from the July and [or] September flowerings, as the fruit from the other blossomings had fallen and was lost. Notwithstanding this, the July and September flowerings were abundant and the trees presented a very hopeful aspect.

Foreign Dried Fruits—The market remains steady, and the week has shown no changes in quotations.

Foreign Nuts—There have been substantial advances in the primary market for shelled walnuts, due to the short crop last Fall now resulting in diminution of the supply. Hides—The market has not yet reached a stable basis. About five days ago a report was circulated in Chicago that there had been a very heavy sale of hides. One or two big dealers persisted in the statement, although nearly every other dealer denied all part in or knowledge of the deal. Later reports, however, confirmed the transaction and at slightly better prices than at first stated. This, in view of the heavy stocks on hand in Chicago, has tended to still further demoralize the market and has had little or no effect on the small holders in the country. Among those thoroughly in touch with the situation the opinion is gaining ground hat the near future will see distinctly better prices, or at anyrate, that the bottom has been reached in the present slump.

Last year at this time prices were 2c. lower than now.

Lower prices, scaled down about 1c., went into effect locally on Wednesday.

B. C. News.

Vancouver, Feb. 22, 1906.

Wholesale shippers here and buyers in the north are waiting expectantly for the announcement of Alaskan freight rates to prevail this season. The shipment of the year's supplies north will begin before many weeks and the Alaskan Steamship Association, comprising companies operating steamers between Puget Sound and British Columbia ports and Skagway, has not yet announced its 1906 schedule. There have been a number of meetings at which discussion of this subject was the chief item of business. It is known that there is to be an effort to increase the rates very materially.

The steamship companies are acting on the policy that the shippers cannot get any great advantage by shipping to St. Michaels and thence up the Yukon. Freight rates on the lower Yukon are very high, river navigation on that stretch of the river is precarious, and lastly the steamship companies operating to St. Michaels and Nome are pretty well combined too, as to rates. The fact that the tonnage carried last year showed a very marked decrease from previous years is affecting the situation and may affect rates on the White Pass Railway and river steamers as well. Though there were transported two large dredging outfits complete, and all the construction material for the Klondike Mines Railway, the total tonnage was less than formerly.

Effort is being made to secure privileges for the Hall Elevator Co., which has already built an elevator in Vancouver and now proposes to build a flour mill. The city council has under consideration a proposal to exempt the company from taxes for a number of years and also to give free water for the mill.

Heavy shipments of supplies for Northern British Columbia canneries have begun to go north in preparation for the coming season. Though the run of salmon on the Fraser river is not expected to amount to anything this year, in the north the run is fairly regular every year, and large preparations are made every year. This year there will be several new canneries, Messrs. J. H. Todd & Sons having the New Beaver on Rivers Inlet, Malcolm-Cannon Co. the Dominion on Skeena River, and Buttimer & Dawson on Rivers Inlet.

R.M.S. Aorangi, of the Canadian-Australian line, arrived in port nearly a week ago. She brought the first shipment of New Zealand butter, and the first of Australian onions to arrive this season. The principal items of the cargo were 250 boxes butter, 480 cases onions, 1,621 carcasses frozen mutton, 100 cases canned meats, 301 crates pineapples (from Honolulu), 910 bales hemp, 452 bales wool, etc.

Groceries.—In California dried fruits peaches are getting scarce, pears of good quality are very scarce and the apricot market is being reduced to smaller proportions. Prices run 12½c. for peaches, cots and evaporated apples (this item being Eastern Canadian product), pears 12½c. for halves and 7c. for quarters, prunes 5 to 9½c. All lines are held up somewhat stiffer than recently.

Canned goods show a little freer movement, though stocks are being held up anticipatory of the usual northern shipments. The new stock eastern goods do not get here early enough in the Fall for the whole of the northern orders to be left dependent on that. Some might go short if that course were adopted. Prices are steady, with no recent changes.

Sago and tapioca remain firm and stocks not over large. Prices at present quoted are 5¼ and 5½c. per lb. One firm reports big sales of MacIntosh's toffees and Peters' chocolate, two English lines which are strongly advertised by the owners.

Sugar is quoted down an eighth since last Saturday, the change applying to all grades.

Produce.—The first consignment of New Zealand butter captured the market at 32½c. to the trade, which is less than local fresh creamery, the latter still holding firm at 35c. The New Zealand article is strictly fresh grass butter and very choice. Some eastern creamery still remains. It sells at 27c. and 28c., the latter in 1-lb. bricks.

Case eggs are almost off the market. Local new laid are sold as cheap as 30 and 35c per dozen. The fact that California fresh eggs are being shipped in and sold at 27c. is knocking prices down rapidly.

A car of cheese is expected in from the east in a few days to fill the local market up a little, held stocks having reduced to rather small compass. Present quotations are 16½c., but the new goods will cost more by the time they are landed.

Lard is now selling at 12½c. per lb. in the small sizes.

Fruits.—Apples are high in the market and all cleaned up to a limited stock of choice fruit. Prices are now $2. A car of Coldstream packing is expected in this week and these may be a shade over $2. Some Washington stock was brought in this week, in limited way, and it sold at the highest price going locally, $2.

Prices for oranges are stiffening, a 25c. raise this week having followed the same increase at the end of last week. Growers and shippers are getting the California crop sized up now and the estimated shortage below last year's crop is now placed at 9,000 cars, while earlier in the season it was thought to be only 5,000 cars short. This and good demand east is running the price up. The lower grades are not now being brought forward to this market, it being unprofitable at present prices. Quotations are for fancy and extra fancy, covering from $3 to $3.75. Nearly all are navels as yet, though a few medium sweets are quoted.

A fine car or two of bananas from Limon arrived a few days ago, selling at 5½c. per lb., the weight price being preferred by most dealers. The Aorangi brought in a shipment of pines from Honolulu. Some were over-ripe, but on the whole the shipment was good. It sold at $3.50 per dozen.

Rhubarb, mostly from local forcing houses, is on the market in fair quantities, selling at 10c per lb.

Vegetables.—Australian onions, a liberal consignment of which arrived by SS. Aorangi, are selling at 3c. per lb. Oregon stock was bringing 2 and 2½c. Asparagus is new on the market from California this week. It sells at 25c. per lb. It is very choice. Ripe tomatoes from California are now selling at $3 per crate. Cucumbers, also from California, are offering in limited quantities at the high price of $2 per dozen.

Cauliflower and celery are getting pretty well through. These are California stock and bring yet $1.75 per dozen and 75c. per dozen respectively. Cabbage from California is selling at 3½c. per lb. A limited quantity of radishes, Brussels sprouts, green onions and parsley is in the market.

Lettuce is still scarce, the local hothouses not being able to keep up to the demand. The price is now $1.75.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, March 1, 1906.

With the beginning of the first Spring month improved business may be expected. This will be welcome, for there is no use denying the fact, that it has been a quiet Winter, particularly since the Christmas holidays. There can be little doubt Spring will open early. The Winter has been the mildest for years. The opening of navigation is the opening of Spring business. It is, however, somewhat doubtful if it is in the best interest of business that the season should open too early; in fact, it is considered a disadvantage; we get Summer late, and apart from business it means a long cold unpleasant season.

In markets nothing of particular interest. Flour is rather lower and beans easy; this, with sugar still extremely low, does not improve matters. In spices some lines are higher. Nutmegs in particular, after ruling firm, tend upward, and higher prices expected. Ginger firmly held. Tapioca high and tending upward. One feature of the market is the lower price in eggs and poultry.

Oil—Burning oil is still held at the low figure which has ruled now for some time. Season is getting late for big business. In lubricating oils, which now have much attention, the outlook for a good demand has improved. In paint oils, linseeds, in original markets, showed lower values for a few days, but quickly recovered. Dealers took advantage of the situation to buy quite freely. Turpentine is still held at extreme high prices. In cod oil, season about over; prices continue to rule firm. The last few years has shown a very marked increase in the demand for gasoline.

Salt—There is a fair sale only for Liverpool coarse salt, but the outlook for Spring business is reported good. It was suggested that prices would rule rather lower, but this is very doubtful. In fine salt it is early for business.

Canned Goods—The situation is largely unchanged. While in the local market tomatoes are a fair stock, and still show little advance; considering the outside situation, it is felt higher prices must soon rule. Corn is firm. Peas are still extremely low. In fruits nothing of interest. Apples show rather an improved demand. Canned meats are low; it is yet too early for much business. Salmon unchanged. Oysters firm. In domestic canned fish business rather dull, except sardines, stocks are extremely light.

Dried Fruit—There is just fair business in seeded raisins; as there is some stock carried over, every effort is made to hold up prices locally. An advance on the coast is expected, and holders hope not to make the full loss of the present decline; New York seeded are not as well liked as the Californias. Valencia raisins have had quite a sale this year, not only were they lower than other grades early, but the very low prices later created a demand, and dealers found they bought rather too lightly. In muscatels, Malagas have held the market. In prunes, small sizes scarce and firmer; a fair sale. Currants are somewhat higher. The demand is for cleaned in cartons. Local cleaned command the best prices. Figs scarce. Peel high, but a very limited sale. Dates are higher. Evaporated apples firm at full figures. In onions market dull, Canadian cheap. Valencias are higher.

Sugar—There is nothing new. Dealers continue to carry light stocks. Prices are extremely low and little change expected. Little foreign sugar is being offered.

Molasses—This is, and has been, for some years, perhaps chiefly owing to local conditions, a matter of much interest here. This is a large consuming market. For a few years lately sale was chiefly for Porto Rico; there was somewhat of a change last year, Barbadoes again becoming popular, particularly a fancy grade newly imported, and this season there is a special sugar duty on this line. Prices all round are rather easier. The situation is watched with interest.

Fish—The season has been rather mild for business in fresh fish. Stock has been quite plenty. Herring are rather lower. In dry fish high prices still rule. Pickled herring a light stock and high. Smoked herring sell at full figures. Finnan haddies are rather dull.

WESTERN ASSOCIATION NEWS

"The Canadian Grocer" the Official Organ.

Address all communications for this department to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 511 Union Bank Building, Winnipeg, Man.

Joint offices have been opened at 53 Scott building, Main street, Winnipeg, by Secretary Coulson, of the Western Retail Merchants' Association, and Secretary McRobie, of the Hardware Association. Western merchants are invited to visit these offices when in the city in order to keep in touch with association work.

Files of The Canadian Grocer and the other MacLean trade papers will be found on the tables, and one or other of the two secretaries will be there to give information concerning association affairs. The work has grown to such proportions that a permanent office has been needed for months back and the association executive have acted wisely in securing these offices.

Secretary Coulson has been in Winnipeg since the close of the convention superintending the opening of the new offices and attending to a great mass of detail work. He will shortly visit a number of the local sections in order to organize them properly for the handling of Spring produce.

Mr. J. Whitelaw,
President of Edmonton section of Western Retail Merchants' Association.

At the annual meeting just closed there was a strong feeling that it is poor business to compel the secretary to spend so great a proportion of the association funds in traveling expenses to collect the annual dues. It was decided to make drafts on the members for these dues at fifteen days, and to notify them in good time that these drafts would be made. The work can not be carried on without funds, and it is hoped that members will respond promptly.

Mr. A. Macdonald, office manager for Mr. John Sloan, has gone on an extended vacation to California. He expects to visit British Columbia later and to return by way of Denver.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

There is a decided improvement in the cheese market. A number of deals have transpired within the last week, so that stocks for sale have been further depleted, and, as one of our large export buyers put it a few days ago, if he had an order for 5,000 boxes of cheese he feared he would not be able to fill it. At any rate, there is a great scarcity of colored cheese this year, and at present there are practically none to be had on this side of the Atlantic. If we take the total quantity of cheese at present unsold in Canada at from 15,000 to 20,000 boxes, we are making a very liberal estimate, and a very few orders would soon absorb this quantity.

The situation from every standpoint is decidedly "bullish," and last season's make will undoubtedly go out at very high prices. This is not very encouraging for the merchants, for the coming season, no doubt, the new make will start at unreasonably high prices, and, while we must expect steadily declining prices as quantities increase, there will be hardly room enough for a sufficient decline to bring prices to a safe low level to stimulate operators, and to create a general feeling of confidence in the future.

There was recently held a very interesting meeting of farmers at Waterloo, and Mr. Drummond spoke particularly as a practical farmer, stock breeder and raiser. His remarks were on the selection, breeding and feeding of dairy cattle and of the bacon hog. He dealt at great length with the importance of raising hogs that would produce the best and greatest amount of bacon. He claimed that we, as farmers, were at the turning point, that is, to produce for the English market more and better bacon, or get out of the business entirely. If the bacon trade of Canada is to continue to improve, it is quite necessary that hog raisers adhere to the class of animals most suited to the English market requirements. Let the Canadian farmer go back to the thick, fat type of hog, as many talk of doing, because they feel they have a grievance with the packer, and it will not be long before the price of Canadian bacon will have fallen to a level with the United States product, which is usually from 10 to 15 shillings per cwt. lower than the prices quoted for the Canadian Wiltshire sides. He claimed the three breeds most favored by the English markets, which has been proven by various experiments, were the Yorkshire, Tamworth and the Berkshire, which produce pork as cheaply as those of the Poland China, the Duroc Jersey breeds and the Chester White. He quoted Prof. Day, of the Ontario Agricultural College, for his authority. He spoke at some length on cattle raising, the care, the judging of cattle by points, the selection and individual records of dairy cows. These topics embraced a wide range of practical knowledge which every intelligent and up-to-date farmer should possess in his business.

A most important part in carrying cheese for any length of time is the cost of loss in weight. Cheese, containing a certain amount of moisture, loses weight in storage by the natural evaporation of moisture. A process to prevent this loss of weight was adopted first by the Dominion cool curing rooms by dipping the cheese in heated paraffine and giving them a thin air and water tight coating of wax. First experiments met with a great deal of opposition, but the Government officials continued to advocate this system against all objections, which came principally from British markets. British importers instructed their friends in Canada not to ship them any paraffined cheese. Englishmen are proverbially slow in accepting new business ideas, but in spite of this the practice continued and spread. The average loss in weight per cheese is calculated at about three pounds in say six months of storage. Recent tests of a number of lots of paraffined cheese show them to weigh out almost to the ounce after the goods had been kept in storage for three months; further, the surface was clean and free from mold, while cheese not paraffined were dirty in appearance and showed a considerable loss in weight besides during the same period. The original opposition from British importers has been weakened considerably by their holding cheese in storage here for future shipment, and now Mr. D. M. McPherson, of Lancaster, comes out with a new patent paraffining plant, which is bound to meet with the general approval of the trade. It is simplicity itself, the cost is small and we think the time is rapidly approaching when every cheese will be paraffined. We know of cases where paraffined cheese, held for two years, did not lose an ounce in weight. Mr. Publow of the Kingston dairy school states emphatically that paraffined cheese will cure better than ordinary cheese, and properly paraffined cheese will not suffer by getting wet, as no outside moisture can penetrate the skin or rhind of the cheese. No doubt the paraffining of cheese is a step in the right direction and is bound to be generally adopted in the near future.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

The situation has shown no particular change since our last report. Arrivals of hogs are considerably on the short side, and are in indifferent condition. The larger factories are still on short time, and judging from the present rate of deliveries it will be some considerable time before anything like sufficient supplies are forthcoming. Fears are entertained that some of the older and more experienced factory hands will look round for other means of employment, rather than wait on on short time till trade improves.

The export demand continues good, and prices appear to be continuing firm, but there is no disposition to any further stiffening on the European markets; in fact, the indication is that buyers would resent any attempt to further movement.

Canadian bacon is undoubtedly advancing in favor abroad as against American bacon, and the feeling is growing on English markets that the time has arrived when a system of skin branding should be adopted. A prominent importer on the British market recently gave expression to the following remarks:

"We are more than satisfied with the Canadian bacon. It is making wonderful advances, and our customers, especially the better class, invariably prefer Canadian to American, and although we are generally able to judge from appearances as to whether the sample produced is American or Canadian, still we should like to have a skin brand on the Canadian, so that we can always be sure we get the genuine article. Whenever a certain line of bacon is in demand, inferior kinds are often foisted on the English buyer, instead of the original, but a skin brand would solve the whole difficulty."

The only safety for Canadian producers is to see that what they market is properly branded as "Canadian," and that the year of production is also stamped on the goods. Take no chances. If we have a good thing let us prevent its being injured by fabrication or misrepresentation.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

The general position of the produce markets here remains with very little change. A somewhat more lively demand for butter has been reported, but there is no change in the demand for cheese. Although the demand for bacon is fair, the quality of that commodity is still far from satisfactory.

Butter—Although, as was said in last week"s report, the general reports of the 10th inst. were to the effect that the demand had dwindled away, and left sellers in an unenviable position, the past few days have seen more activity than was hoped for. There were two or three importers who claimed that they could see signs of better business this week, but their opinions were scarcely noticed. But they were right, at any rate in part. The renewed activity has certainly not been on a very large scale, and is probably due to the fact that retailers have been purchasing such very small quantities that it is difficult to tell when they may require more. The small supplies of butter that have arrived during the past few weeks must also have helped matters on. Sellers are now assuming a more confident tone, and there are some who express the convicition that there will be an advance of at least 1s. per cwt. in the near future. One has to be very wary in accepting such statements as these, however. There were some who, early in the week, said that the advance would take place before to-day. As a matter of fact, quotations are practically unchnged; nor has there been any change in the Danish official quotation.

Ever since supplies of butter from Canada ceased to arrive on this market, supplies have grown more and more short. Shipments from the colonies for the past month were 36,472 cwt. less than in the corresponding month of 1905.

Cheese—No change has come over the state of this market, although sellers are more inclined to meet buyers in the matter of price. The demand for New Zealand cheese, which, as stated in our last report, was somewhat more active than other makes, has now grown very quiet. According to advices to hand, shipments of cheese from Canada have been on a very small scale of late, and equally insignificant quantities having been despatched to other markets, it is probable that stocks here will grow smaller ere long. At present, and for some while past, stocks in warehouse have remained on very much the same scale, and demand and supply have been evenly balanced. This fact, coupled with constant reports of dull business from sellers, shows that the retail trade is buying on the hand-to-mouth principle, the idea being, no doubt, to be prepared for eventualities. February is known to be the worst month of the year, both for buyers and sellers of cheese, but apparently the consumptive demand for this commodity is smaller now than usual at this time of the year. There is no explaining this state of affairs. It has been suggested that the general elections have had something to do with it, but it is a question whether they would affect the consumptive demand to any extent. The elections certainly have kept many provision men away from the markets, but with busibessiness so slow they could well afford to stay away.

The butter market is steady at present, but is not very strong. There is plenty offered, but dealers do not feel inclined to take hold freely. Choice creamery sells at 22c. to 22½c., good to fine from 21½c. to 22c.

Holders are asking 13c. to 13¼c. for cheese at present. The latter price is hard to obtain. The feeling among exporters is firm and some of them are now quoting 13½c., and although this price cannot be obtained yet, it may rule later on. Private advices from the other side report a probability of a strong market within a few weeks.

Eggs.

A still further decline has taken place in eggs. At 17c. guaranteed fresh laid eggs may now be obtained. Cold storage or pickled are to be bought from 11c. to 11½c. As long as the stock of held eggs lasts there is a possibility of the slaughtering prices continuing. Nobody seems to know where so many of these eggs come from. Each day seems to reveal a new stock. New laid eggs cannot be obtained in sufficient quantities to supply the demand.

Provisions.

The provision market has maintained an even gait in regard to prices this week, with the exception of eggs and street lots of hogs. The packers' price for live hogs is unchanged, maintaining last week's advance, but the farmers have been bringing in more dressed and the price has gone off 50c. Otherwise the following quotations remain as last week. Trade is generally reported fair and the cured meat market firm.

Butter.

The better grades of butter have firmed up somewhat and some commission men would quote slightly higher than last week, but the majority would leave prices as quoted last week. There is considerable dairy butter offering and supplies seem to be very large. The quality of that coming in is not very satisfactory. Either the storekeepers dispose of the best at home or they do not keep it carefully until they get enough to ship. Perhaps both causes contribute to the result.

Eggs.

The egg situation was getting interesting last week, but anxiety was allayed by the public getting into the game and consuming sufficient quantities to nearly off-set the increasing industry of the hen. The public quickly realized that eggs had come within reach of the ordinary purse, with the result that prices have sagged only a cent or a little better, and the quotations this week are 17c. to 18c., and perhaps a straight 17c. would better represent the situation. Lent will be a factor in increasing the demand. It is not now expected that there will be any sudden break in the price for new laid. Naturally the price will be downward until April.

For cold storage eggs, termed "fresh," the quotation is 13c. to 15c. But naturally the stock is large owing to the new laid being several weeks ahead of scheduled time.

In barrel pork the high prices still rule. There is little except American offered. Business is quiet. Beef is unchanged, sale very light. Smoked meats hold at full figures. In fresh meats, beef is very freely offered and is low. Mutton holds at quite a full price. Lamb is now scarce. Veal is more freely offered, good prices rule. Pork continues high.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The present outlook is gloomy and uninteresting; very little interest is shown by buyers, and brokers are finding it difficult to do business on any basis. Millers at all outside points reprort deliveries as slow and small. The export grain market has been of an inquiring nature, but little real business maturing.

A decline took place in the price of wheat during the week, and the highest price at which it is reported that No. 2 white sold for export, was 79 1-2c. and No. 2 mixed at 79c. At the close, however, white was offered at 79c., but exporters were not anxious to buy, although a few cars of No. 2 mixed would still be taken at 78 1-2c. on the Canadian Pacific railway.

Some Manitoba wheat for May delivery from Fort William was sold during the week. Several lots of 10,000 bushels and 5,000 bushels are reported as having been put through. The price declined in sympathy with the drop in Winnipeg and sales were made as low as 83 1-2c. for No. 1 northern and 2c. less for No. 2 northern. Prices of wheat at elevators this side of the lakes have been very irregular.

The flour market has been exceptionally uncertain, domestic trade being particularly dull, with prices so indifferent that any reliable quotations are difficult to state.

Although very few sales of flour are reported, there appears to be a slight improvement in the demand from the Maritime Provinces, and as any change from former conditions would have to be an improvement, there is a somewhat better feeling in milling circles. While the mills do not report any sales for export, flour brokers state that the demand during the last week or ten days has been better than for a couple of months, but they have been compelled to work on very close margins, for while they were able to get 22s. 9d Glasgow freights for an occasional car, the bulk of the business has been put through at 22s. 6d. As, however, ocean freights declined about two cents per 100 pounds on flour the first of the week, 22s. 6d now is about equivalent to 22s. 9d on the higher freights.

The competition in the selling of oatmeal is reported to have been even greater than in flour and it would appear that rolled oats at $1.75 per bag delivered must be below cost.

The domestic market in breakfast cereals is in a most unsatisfactory condition; cutting in price is playing havoc with business; one well-known mill is reported to have offered to customers a cut rate 10 cents better than any other mill, consequently markets have run wild. Dealers are of opinion that some action will have to be taken to bring a rational basis to trade.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

Flour.

Business is not very brisk in flour at present. It is the old story—bad weather. The milling companies are inclined to look forward to good business in the near future, however, as there is sure to be a very strong demand for all kinds of flour as soon as the roads make it possible to carry on business in country districts. Glenora and Manitoba, which were both selling at $4.00 last week, are now quoted $4.10, otherwise there are no changes to report.

Grain.

Prices have fallen in the grain market. Oats are very weak. For No. 2 white oats dealers ask 39 1-2c. to 40c., while No. 3 brings 38 1-2c. to 39c. No export business is being transacted in peas, which have fallen one cent.

Feed.

Bran and shorts are very scarce. The demand for both is strong. Prices remain unchanged, but it is thought that the scarcity, combined with the great demand for these feeds, will have the effect of raising them. Manitoba bran is higher, having advanced 50c. per ton owing to good demand and light supplies. Ontario bran is scarce and western mills have ready sale for their output at local points. Maritime orders are also more profitable for any surplus they may have to ship.

Hay.

The market is very quiet at present. Mixed clover, quoted at $6.50 last week, is now obtained for $6.00. The prices are likely to remain as they are for some time as farmers do not care to risk taking less. There is nothing doing in the export market. The demand in the U. K. is not heavy and the supply is large. Prices are the same as last week. Liverpool is importing an extra large amount of hay this week and this, it is expected, will cause a fall in prices on that market.

Export inquiries coming to hand lack animation, and very little volume of trade has resulted. Movement of grain at outside points has been unimportant, and millers reports rather point to farmers holding back supplies.

CEREAL MILL FOR CALGARY.

The Brackman-Ker Milling Company, of Vancouver, B.C., is about to erect in Calgary a mill for the manufacture of rolled oats and breakfast cereals, as well as for a sorting elevator and storage. Work will be commenced on the building as soon as the season permits. The machinery will be nearly all manufactured from plans prepared by the company, and will embody all the up-to-date mechanical appliances which the large experience of the firm has perfected. The supply of grain will be drawn from Alberta. Mr. Ker, manager of the company, looks to the irrigated lands of that province to contribute largely to his firm's wheat supply, and Alberta wheat has been proved very suitable for the purposes of the firm. The oats will be taken from all portions of the province. Mr. Ker is very much pleased with Calgary's progress, which he characterizes as a steady, natural growth, without anything of the boom element.

EXTENSIVE WHEAT PROJECT.

London, Eng., February 16.—The greatest interest attaches to the report of the recent Canadian deputation of the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society upon buying and growing wheat. The British co-operative societies represent 1 1-2 million co-operatives and over a million dollars share of capital. The Scottish co-operators alone grind 72,000 bushels of wheat per week. The deputation strongly recommends the opening of a branch at Winnipeg for the direct purchase of 2 1-2 million bushels yearly of Canadian wheat, so as to save at least 25,000 dollars yearly to the society, also to free the society from manipulation and American wheat corners. The deputation also strongly urge the societies to secure at once 100,000 acres of land from the Saskatchewan Land Company, as the best form of investment for the society's funds if, as is probable, the recommendations be adopted. The great co-operative societies of Lancashire, Yorkshire, will likely follow suit and inaugurate an Anglo-Canadian movement of a great political and commercial importance.

Mr. C. H. Crysdale, of Crysdale & Son, Oshawa, was in Toronto on Tuesday. Mr. Crysdale reports business in Oshawa good. "In fact," said he, "Oshawa is the best town on the line.

TRANSPORTATION AND THE MARKETS OF THE ORIENT.

By Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

A question we have been asked to deal with in the past and shall have to deal with in the future is that of transportation, the question of questions. The present administration have done a great deal for transportation ; we have done a great deal to facilitate transportation between this country and other countries, between the different provinces of our country. We have prepared and organized the construction of another transcontinental railway. But this great project did not come one hour too soon. It came at the right time, and not only did it come at the right time, but, although the railway is not yet constructed, it is easy to see that before many years a third, and perhaps a fourth, railway will be necessary through the interior of the country to the coast.

For the New Settlers.

We have been told by some friends that we are putting too much money into the construction of railways. Let me dissent altogether from that suggestion. We have not put too much money into the construction of railways. It is easy for the man who is in the neighborhood of Toronto or Hamilton or London, who has three or four railways passing by his door or within a few miles, running in all directions, it is easy for him to say, "No more railways ; no more money in aid of railways." But I want that man, whoever he may be, to think of the settler in the outlying provinces, who to-day has to cart his products to the market, as he himself had to do forty years ago. The railways have been helped in the older provinces, and so we must help the railways in new provinces and we must have great trunk lines to take our products to all parts of the world.

Markets of the Orient for Us.

Up to the present moment we have had markets chiefly in Europe, but the time has come when we must seek markets in the Orient, in Japan and China, in those countries where there is a civilization 2,000 years old, which has been unchanged and unmoved, and has crystallized during 2,000 years, but which is at last awakening to the civilization of the western land. We more than any other portion of the civilized globe are in a position to profit from this market. Here are we, occupying the apex of this continent. In the centre of our country we are developing what is perhaps the choicest part of it for the growing of wheat. It is certain that for many generations, and perhaps forever, the three provinces of Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan will produce more wheat than can be consumed in Canada. We have been seeking our markets abroad, chiefly in Europe, but we would be blind to the times if we failed to realize that there is a market of four or five hundred millions in the Orient of the old world.

An Example.

If we want to know what can be done by activity and enterprise in the way of developing trade, look for a moment at the tea trade. It has become an article of primary necessity in every home. Whether it be in the mansion of the rich or the cottage of the humble, you find the cup that cheers but not inebriates. English merchants two hundred years ago discovered the valuable properties of tea, and brought it to England, till now it has become an article of primary necessity. Wherever tea is grown wheat is not grown. The article of food is rice.

Between Europe and the East.

I want Canadian merchants to bear wheat and flour into that 400,000,000 market of China and Japan. We have to get not only the wheat trade, we have also to get the passenger trade. The Orient is awakening. With these four hundred million of people in China, forty million people in Japan and three hundred million people in India, there will be moving to and fro from the Orient to Europe and from Europe to the Orient. Hitherto there has been only the Suez Canal. We have a better route over the Pacific. Mark my words, by-and-by we shall have train upon train carrying passengers from the Orient to Europe and from Europe to the Orient.

Yokohama to London.

We can only have one competitor—the United States. The Canadian Pacific Railway this year are going to open a new line. A steamer will leave Yokohama for Vancouver ; there a train will be waiting to take the passenger to Quebec, where there will be a steamer waiting to take him to Europe, and in less than 22 days he will have completed his journey. These are some of the ideals which will impress every Canadian ; but when I think of the magnitude of the task I am tempted to say, with some despair, "So much to be done ; so little done," and I rely upon the courage of the Canadian people, on the courage of the Canadian Reformers who favor those ideas. I cannot hope that I have many years to live at the present time, but I hope that I shall live long enough to see the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Grand Trunk Railway with trains full of passengers for the Orient, and trains full of wheat and flour, and bringing back tea and silks and passengers, and transmitting them to all parts of the civilized world.

Canada Newest of Nations.

We are the last of the civilized nations to come to the front. It is within our grasp to profit by the experience of the past, to improve upon their virtues, to avoid their mistakes. It is for us to employ the energy, the activity, the enterprise, the competence, the brains and the brawn, and I rely upon the Canadian people to do it. Let us rise to the height of our opportunities. Let our civilization be such a civilization as never existed before in the world, a civilization based, and exclusively based, upon peace and the arts of peace. Let us see that in this country of Canada there shall be work for all hands and the best remuneration for all work. That is the thought that I have to give you at this moment, if I may be permitted to in my capacity as leader of a political party, to give you now as the guiding star in the struggle for the advancement and prosperity of our country.

The general condition of the domestic market is one of firmness at all points. The great run since our last report has undoubtedly been on oranges and in consequence quotations are firming to advance. At Montreal this has already occurred, whilst in the Maritime Provinces complaint is being made of the quality of fruit arriving. At Ontario points, however, the most recent arrivals are reported as above usual quality, and the excellent color and sweetness has been no small factor in commanding the market.

Apples are still holding a high place. Recent reports from English ports speak of high prices being paid for Canadian apples. Some western shippers are reported as receiving $4.50 net per barrel for some recent shipments.

It is estimated that not more than 25,000 barrels are held at western points and stocks of good sound fruit on the Montreal market are in very small compass, much smaller in fact than for years past at this season, and although prices are high, there is a fairly good local demand.

The situation is a specially strong one. Domestic demand is active, and export trade is in full cry, so that there is every facility for placing stock.

Reports from California speak of weather conditions being in every way favorable to the growing crops. The warm weather has not yet entirely passed away and this condition, combined with the moisture, is bringing out the grass and the blossoms with much despatch. Sugar beet planting is in progress in the various sections of the state where this industry thrives. Orchards and vineyards all show signs of good crops later. Peach and almond trees are in full bloom in San Louis Obispo county, and the latter in the San Joaquin Valley as well. Such early development presages an early crop according to some authorities, but since such conditions are only found in a few places, it does not necessarily follow that such will be the case. Last year the fruit season came upon us three weeks earlier than usual, but a repetition is improbable.

FRUIT-GROWING ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

Some idea of the growth of the fruit-growing industry in British Columbia may be gathered from the fact that in 1902 the Dominion Express Co. carried 41,205 packages, aggregating in weight 974,706 pounds, and last year it carried 96,988 packages weighing 2,351,413 pounds, an increase of 111 per cent. in three years.

That statement was made by the secretary of the British Columbia Fruit-Growers' Association at the sixteenth annual meeting held on Feb. 14 in Vancouver.

The keynote of the meeting was the protection of the British Columbia orchards from insect pests. To that end the secretary urged perseverance in spraying with the Bordeaux mixture, and Mayor Keary, of New Westminster, manager of the Dominion Exhibition, suggested that the Government be urged to take measures to enlighten all citizens upon the subject of insect and fungus pests and that the citizens be urged to use every possible precaution and remedy for the prevention or cure of any insect depredations and diseases that effect vegetation.

Vice-President T. A. Brydon declared that British Columbia had the climatic and other favorable natural conditions to become one of the leading fruit-producing sections of the continent if the insect pests were kept away.

Mr. H. Harris advocated bulb culture, and declared that in that branch of horticulture British Columbia might rival Holland.

A resolution was passed heartily approving the action of the provincial fruit inspector in placing all citrus fruits on the list of fruits to be inspected before being removed from any dock, warehouse or station in the province This action was taken because San Jose scale had been found on citrus fruit.

A pure food resolution was passed favoring the compulsory printing of the formulae on the labels of all jams and jellies.

A resolution was passed calling for the establishment by the Dominion Government of experimental orchards in the Dry Belt on Vancouver Island and in the Kootenay.

These officers were elected: President, Thomas A. Brydon, Victoria; vice-presidents, James Johnston, Nelson; H. Kipp, Chilliwack; M. Fletcher, Armstrong; secretary and treasurer, W. J. Brandrith, Victoria; executive, Messrs. Palmer, Metcalfe, H. Kipp, W. J. Brandrith.

PREMATURE BUDDING OF PEACHES.

On warm Winter days such as we have had lately, and in the early Spring, peach buds are induced to prematurely swell, only to be nipped by the frosts that follow. To prevent this, some fruitmen have found spraying the buds with whitewash to be very beneficial, as the whitened buds reflect the heat rather than absorb it and thus prevent too early maturity.

Green Fruits.

Prices remain about the same in green fruits. Florida oranges and Tangerines are going up. There is a strong demand for navels also, and it is probable that they will be quoted at a higher price in the near future. Apples continue in

Vegetables.

Few changes are noticeable in vegetables. The present state of weather is causing a loss to many dealers. Having stocked up with different vegetables in the Fall, the dealer finds that he cannot easily sell them, as grocers are able to obtain most lines from the farmers direct, who are able to bring their vegetables to town without their being injured by frost. Parsley has come down twenty-five cents since last week. Boston lettuce, celery and spinach have all gone up. celery especially, which is now selling from $6 to $6.50.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

The fruit trade continues brisk. The open Winter with little interruption of building operations has kept money in circulation and the result has been distinctly apparent in the betterment of the fruit trade. Prices remain practically unchanged. Oranges are high and firm, but the price is justified by the improved quality, sweetness and flavor of the golden fruit.

Apples are getting into the class of luxuries. "I don't know that you could find 3,000 barrels in the city," said a leading dealer yesterday. "There is a very large American demand notwithstanding the duty."

The total export from Canada and the States to February 21 was 2,092,020 barrels, and last year 2,032,906, while to the same date, 1904, the number was 3,090,338. In the season of 1904-05 apples were bought on the trees as low as 50 cents a barrel. In the season of 1905-06 they ran from $1 to $1.50.

Vegetables.

Prices, with a few corrections, range as they did last week, with the exception of California celery, and as suggested last week, that has advanced, the crop being about all in. Potatoes are slightly lower and there is a feeling that they may go lower still within a month.

Owing to the American market being off, Ontario is getting a larger share of the New Brunswick Green Mountains and Delawares. The New Brunswick farmer has learned better methods in the culture and handling of potatoes than the Ontario agriculturist. They are more careful about the seed and the injured and small potatoes are not marketed.

A leading commission merchant said yesterday that for his own eating he would rather have at this season of the year Ontario celery that had been properly kept than the more expensive California variety. There appears to be a good business awaiting Ontario growers who will look after their product properly.

POPULARIZING YOUR STORE.

How Are You Doing It?

What are you doing to make your store more popular in your locality? Nothing, you reply, and do not propose to. Then you are making a blunder. One store is all the time striving to please and be the popular store in its community. Another is doing not a thing and considers it amateurish and even foolish to entertain the suggestion on this subject.

Again we ask, what are you doing to popularize your store? For it is an important subject. It makes business, this effort to be popular. Popularity is an asset to any person, and it is also an asset to any store.

Do the customers in your town and vicinity come into your store as if they were stockholders? Do they shove the door of your store open and walk up the aisles with entire composure? Do they address your clerks and yourself in a friendly and free manner?

Is your store spoken of at entertainments and social gatherings in a complimentary way? And do you know positively that it is?

Ask the Clerks.

It would be interesting and supply valuable information perhaps to many merchants to put that question to some of their clerks. Find out what the public is saying about your store. Are you in favor with the people? Popularizing a store is not the easiest thing in the world for some merchants. They themselves are "grouchy" and wear an expression which attendants at funerals are supposed to wear.

Entirely apart from being cheerful and popular because it is the easiest way to go through the world, the quality is also a valuable acquisition to the business. The idea prevails in some offices and stores that the highest type of a man is the cold, cross individual.

The sooner that idea is replaced by good horse sense the better it will be for the merchant, his store, his family and his acquaintances. Of all the crazy ideas of the twentieth century that of the business world attitude to help in the above particular is the limit.

Scaring help to secure better service and greater honesty—how absurd. Such treatment of help is not even selfish, but it is diabolical.

Considerate Treatment Fundamental.

There are signs that these methods will shortly disappear. Managers of help are more considerate of them because it pays to be so. This is one reason, and at present the principal one, for the establishment of rest and reading rooms for help and many other facilities for the comfort of employes.

The public does not enjoy hearing an employe scolded and criticized. We are a nervous people. Under the strain of the pace which we are going the incident of angry words between manager and help jars one's nerves and is likely to upset for the remainder of the day.

To make your store more popular with the public, therefore, it is fundamental that your help be treated as men and women. Most people are democratic. They do not desire to do their shopping with a lot of slaves.

When you treat your help as such you accordingly create in the minds of your customers that you are a slave driver; and the service of slaves and weaklings is not agreeable to the average buyer. Indeed, the department store practice of hiring cheap help at starvation wages is gradually destroying much of the pleasant experience formerly a part of shopping.

The old time habit of customers chatting with the clerks and asking their opinions on style, color and quality is disappearing. Does the average patron of stores really at heart enjoy that sort of thing? It is extremely doubtful if they do. After a while we will get out of breath from our fearful pace and when we sit down from exhaustion and seriously consider several things and the subject of shopping it is more than likely that the heartless, needless, wasteful habits which we have drifted into will be revised and the saner policy of the past be revived.

The merchant who expects his store to be popular in the largest degree will extend always a gentlemanly bearing and address to them. The public will respond to such treatment and be more generous in their patronage to the store doing this.

Another Reason for This.

While upon this subject of courtesy on the part of a merchant to his help an important subject is brought to mind. Many merchants have repeated the story that their help is becoming a greater problem all the time. This scarcity of help is not confined to any one line of work, but is appearing in a number.

Farmers are complaining because they cannot get the help necessary to do their work. This is an absolute fact and is not the experience of any single locality, but is reported from a number of directions.

The clerk problem is also one that has steadily been growing more important. Good clerks are scarce. Bad clerks are wasteful and accordingly costly. For these reasons it behooves merchants to exercise tact and courtesy in their treatment of help. It is easier to lose a good clerk than to hire a new one.

Keep your clerks as continuously as you can. Treat them right. Be liberal in salary and surprise them frequently with an outing or banquet.

Do Favors for Your Trade.

The store which is seeking to be popular will express a desire to do favors for the patrons who leave their money with it. One merchant in a southwestern state has brought his store to a surprising position in popularity by making a special effort to do favors.

Customers are told that special merchandise will be ordered for them without any profit to the store. Windmills, milk separators, plumbing goods, etc., and a variety of goods of which the number is almost legion are ordered gladly by this store and not one cent charged by them. Does any merchant fail to see that such a practice will come pretty nearly making a store doing this exceedingly popular? Of course it will do this. It cannot fail to do so.

The trouble with too many merchants is that they are a little too mercenary in this matter. They want too much profit or profit on too many goods.

Take the trade into your confidence once in a while on some such deal as this and without profit. Show them the invoice and let them know you are sincere. It is first-class [illegible] for any store. It is merchandising that brings good return[illegible] about it.

Then the investment is [illegible] cash is received when the [illegible] Then, also, it does not affect the regular line. The relation of such work, however, upon other lines in town is a subject requiring thought, and only the strong merchant will tackle these suggestions.

But the merchant who is doing this is a hustler. He has been doing things for the last ten years. His sales last year were pretty close to $190,000. The profits for the ten years have been $115,000. So he is entitled to express his views.

Specific Illustration.

Not long ago a new firm came into this merchant's town. The newcomer is an oily fellow who is out after business.

One day a farmer went into this new merchant's store and the visit afforded an opportunity to do some personal campaigning for his trade. He asked him if he could not have a share of his patronage. The reply was that he is trading in the store which is described above. "But I will do just as well," replied the merchant.

The farmer contended that he doubted it and said the other store was popular and willing to do favors such as ordering goods. To this the new merchant said that he would do the same and only charge 5 to 10 per cent., whereupon the farmer informed the newcomer that his store ordered many things without any charge. The idea was ridiculed by the merchant, but the farmer maintained that he was right and that he had seen the invoices himself.

That's becoming popular with good effect. How do you line up? Will your customers plug for you as that farmer did for his store.

If your customers will not and do not get in good licks for you such as this it is time to try ways and means of accomplishing the desirable end. Popularizing your store means easier business and better profits. Are you the popular store in your town and locality? If not, why not?

CONFECTIONERY CHAT.

It is well known that the success of the department store is to a large extent attributed to the method by which each department is made self contained ; attention is concentrated on each section as though there were no others.

The grocer might take a profitable lesson from this, and apply, in principle, this rule to the separate lines in his store. If he were to treat his confectionery department in this way he would soon have a department equal to any section of his store. The general public are getting more and more to look upon the grocer as their great source of supply.

There is no doubt grocers have to a large extent neglected the confectionery opportunity. They have been content to let it run itself, and confined their attention to a few low-priced, badly displayed lines. The order of things is fast changing, however, and the modern, up-to-date grocer is providing every convenient device to encourage confectionery sales.

It is time for each storekeeper to pull himself up and ask the question, "What am I doing ?" The day of the sleepy, crawl-along grocer is past. There is nothing left but to "fall in line or clear out." The progressive fellow will get the trade, and he is keen enough to know there is no better way to get at the coming trade than to keep hold of the young folk by his confectionery line. See to it that you buy good goods, sell them reasonable and keep them fresh.

TICKET YOUR CONFECTIONS.

Have a price card upon your bonbons. It should not be too large, but the lettering on it should be distinct and clear. It facilitates business, saves time, and lets the purchaser know at the outset just what he can get for the amount he wishes to expend. It is a good idea to quote prices for half or quarter pounds, rather than for whole pounds. If a particular line sells for thirty or forty cents per pound, it is better to ticket them at fifteen or twenty cents the half pound. There is an attraction in anything offered for a small amount of money. The price creates the first impression usually ; then to see what can be got for that amount is the next consideration. The name by which the confection is known should also be put on the card. A customer is helped in making his purchase if he is able to call by name the article he wants. Names of confections are constantly changing, new names are given new creations, and it is well that the buying public are familiarized with these names. It helps to keep up the interest.

$200.000 FOR A BISCUIT FACTORY.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has almost completed negotiations for the purchase of the factory site of Viau Freres, biscuit manufacturers, Notra Dame street, Montreal. The price agreed upon is in the neighborhood of $200,000.

The company purchases the site for the purpose of extending its freight yards at Place Viger station, an undertaking which has already involved the closing of several streets in the east end of that city. This scheme is actually being opposed by the Montreal Brewing Company, which claims that its property has been hemmed in as a result of the improvement of the freight yards.

With the purchase of the Viau factory the Canadian Pacific Company will have acquired the whole of the property which it has been seeking to acquire in that neighborhood.

Viau Freres will not vacate their premises before a year from next May.

COCOA DEMONSTRATIONS.

Suchard's cocoas and chocolates, for which Frank L. Benedict & Co., Montreal, are Canadian agents, are being demonstrated in the leading Montreal grocery stores. This week Z. A. Lambert, corner Bleury and Sherbrooke streets, is having a most satisfactory demonstration of these goods.

BOY BUNCOED GROCERS.

For some time Salem grocers have been bothered by a boy who has been giving bogus c.o.d. orders for groceries This week a boy was rounded up in one of the stores, and turned over to the police. The boy's father was notified, settled the case and probably nothing more will be done about it. The boy would go into a store and give an order for a lot of different groceries, such as a pound of coffee, ten pounds of sugar, some flour, tea and perhaps half a dozen oranges. The stuff he ordered sent c.o.d. to some fictitious address.

Then he would say that as his folks were in a hurry for the oranges, or some such stuff which would be appreciated by a hungry boy, he would take that particular package along with him, and they could send the other stuff along with a c.o.d. slip for the whole.

When the grocer or marketman would send the stuff to the given address, he would find no such person living there, and also that no order had been authorized. He would then awake to the fact that he had been buncoed out of a dozen of oranges, or some apples, or figs or something of that sort, which the boy had lugged home with him.

It is necessary to go below the surface for the true value of things. Some biscuits look nice in the tins. They are eye-winners. But the trouble is that the eye is not the final judge. The tongue is what has to be pleased. So the real test is not in the "seeing" quality but in the "eating" quality.

are put up with an eye to satisfaction all round—both "seeing" quality and "eating" quality.

The packers in our factory are just as careful and as skillful as the bakers, the bakers as the mixers.

So PERFECTION CREAM SODAS are "complete" biscuits. They assume no virtues. They have them all.

Would you like to sell the "look nice," "solid quality," "always best" biscuits, the "three-in-one"—PERFECTION CREAM SODAS?

"Time Writes No Impress on 'Honest' Cigars."—J. Bruce Payne.

Here I am down in Granby making honest cigars and I was doing the same years ago. The same names are still on repeat orders and there is the same call for 1,000 of the

Pebble and Pharaoh

"Always good, always will be good," should be stamped on every box of these leaders.
I have often told you just how the Pebble and Pharaoh cigars are made—what from, who by—and when I speak of my methods I am confident that if at any time I had "wavered," my cigars would have quickly become back numbers. You have seen this very fate befall "others" but you have never seen it befall any from the Payne factory.

And to be candid with you, isn't this just the reason you entrust your cigar business to me? You know that you cannot afford to experiment; and you know just what I will do and just what I will not do.

If any grocer, not included on the list of those who know Bruce Payne and his methods, should read these statements let that grocer consider well what my record is, what the Pebble and Pharaoh cigars represent in "smoking" value and "selling" value, and what the conditions of his own business demand.

If he will do this I will have no doubt as to the outcome.

J. BRUCE PAYNE, LIMITED, Mnfrs., - Granby, Que.

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

MAKING THE MOST OF OPPORTUNITY.

The quickness with which one man will make use of an opportunity whilst another will let it slip, is most noticeable in the manner various grocers handle their tobacco department. Just a little more attention to the stock already carried, and what is now a side line could easily be made one of the important features of the store.

Entering a small but well appointed store recently, a neat and nicely arranged show case was one of the first things which caught the eye; in this case was to be seen a well assorted stock of cigars, pipes, tobacco, etc., well laid out on glass shelves, in a most suggestive manner. The stock was not large, was not expensive, neither was it elaborate, but the storekeeper was more than satisfied with the profit he made.

Another store close by was the contrast to this one, and carried no special show case or anything else for its tobacco department. Upon being asked for a cigar, the clerk in charge dived down to some hidden boxes and fished out one containing a number of cigars in various states of preservation, broken wrappers, dried up, and altogether uninviting. Is there any wonder that the latter store condemned its tobacco trade? Better wipe tobacco out altogether than play at keeping it.

Nothing will pay better, properly handled, than tobacco and its accessories. The price of a simple show case in which to display the lines carried is infinitesimal compared to the result reaped. Many a friend is often at a loss to know what to buy for a present; a show case nicely set out comes like an inspiration at such times, and the grocer reaps the result of his enterprise.

THE POPULARITY OF TOBACCO.

Tobacco has had a very chequered history as far as its introduction into Europe is concerned. In America its use is lost in antiquity, although smoking dried tobacco leaves is spoken of as being in practice among the Indians of Hispaniola as early as 1526. It found its way into Europe in the year 1559; was introduced into England in the year 1565 by Sir J. Hawkins, and in 1573 it seems to have been pretty generally known there. During the year 1586 it was made famous by Sir Walter Raleigh and Sir James Drake. About this time its use was made the butt of the popular wits. The clergy strenuously denounced its popularity, and King James I. issued a pamphlet against its use.

Kings, popes and sultans are all found arraved against it, and smokers of the soothing weed were condemned to cruel punishments. In the canton of Berne the prohibition of the use of tobacco was put among the ten commandments. In Turkey smoking was made a capital offence. In spite of this category of denunciation and prohibition tobacco smoking has become the most extensively used luxury in the world, from peasant to king.

TOBACCO YIELDS $166 AN ACRE.

The tobacco crop of Lancaster county, Virginia, of which 70 per cent. has been delivered to the buyers' warehouses, amounts to 22,500,000 pounds. It was grown on 15,000 acres, the average yield being 1,500 pounds. At a fair estimate the crop will return to the growers $2,500,000.

That means that each acre yields the grower $166.66. One crop of that kind more than pays for the land. One grower is reported who got $5,500 from 26 acres, $211.50 an acre.

The growers report the new crop A1, free of every defect that could lower its value, and it is "sweating" satisfactorily. Some of the "bulk sweated" tobacco will be on the market by March 1.

A SMART IDEA.

An unique competition instituted by one firm invited answers to the query, "What proportion of men are clean shaven?" Five substantial prizes, two in cash and three in cigars, were offered to the persons sending in the nearest estimates to the number of clean shaven men in 10,000. The solution was arrived at in the following manner: All the figures given by all the competitors were added together and divided by the total number of competitors. When the average had thus been ascertained, the prizes were awarded to the contestants whose estimates came nearest to the average. The only condition attached to the competition was that estimates must be made on cards furnished by the firm, and that those wishing to enter the contest must call at the store in person for the cards.

"Batger's" Strawberry Jam

If you carry this line of jam on your shelves it sells itself. The appearance of the new style glass jar is good and the Whole Fruit inside invites tasting.

It is made from the finest English garden strawberries and granulated sugar, by a firm that has been in the business for over 150 years.

Once tasted, Batger's Strawberry Jam will be ordered again. If you are not already selling Batger's, why not order a trial case of 4 doz. and see for yourself?

CUP QUALITY vs. STYLE

CUP QUALITY WINS OUT EVERY TIME.

We critically test all Teas in the cup before purchasing; therefore flat, insipid and "Bodiless" teas are never sold our customers.

On the above grounds, we respectfully solicit your business.

Arguments in favor of the use of

are numerous and forceful—

The most convincing one is that where your customers have once used it, and enjoyed the thorough fragrance and deliciousness of this tea NO ARGUMENTS however plausibly put, will get them to use any other—are your most satisfactory and profitable Teas to handle.

Hamilton, Feb. 26th, 1906.

Dear Sir,—

Last week we suggested that you call your customers' attention to Extra Fine Sifted Peas (Petit Pois), and no doubt you found yourself well repaid for your trouble.

We have another grade of Peas, Extra Sifted, labelled "Sweet Wrinkle", considered by some the choicest Pea Packed, and as the difference in price between our Sweet Wrinkle and the ordinary Standard Peas is slight, by taking a little trouble to explain the extra fine quality of these Sweet Wrinkle Peas you will be able to sell larger quantities, at the same time reaping a larger percentage of profit for yourself.

Our Sweet Wrinkle Peas should not be confused with those of other packers, as some of them label their ordinary Standard Peas as Sweet Wrinkle, whereas our Sweet Wrinkle Pea stands next in quality to the Petit Pois.

Our aim in packing Peas is to produce an article which when opened will present a bright, clean liquor, Peas evenly graded, uniform in color, tender sweet and attractive in appearance. Our Sweet Wrinkle Peas will be found up to this high standard of quality. Our Canned Peas are even more desireable than fresh Peas for the reason that they are thoroughly sterlized, and are packed within a few hours after picking, thus possessing a tenderness and sweetness that is usually lacking in Green Peas purchased on the market.

Don't forget our brands, viz.: "Aylmer", "Log Cabin", "Horseshoe", "Auto", "Little Chief", "Lynnvalley", "Maple Leaf", "Kent Lion", "Thistle", "Grand River" and "White Rose".

Yours respectfully,

CANADIAN CANNERS, LIMITED

DIRECTIONS FOR PEAS—Open the can, empty contents into a colander and thoroughly rinse with hot water, then turn into a saucepan ; add butter about the size of a walnut, or if preferred half a cup of sweet cream, and heat thoroughly. Season to taste.

CEYLON TEA (green and black) preserves in perfect proportion the necessary quantity of "essential oil" for refreshment and exhilaration.

CEYLON TEA (natural green) contains full measure of that important alkaloid "theine." An agreeable stimulant and envigorator.

CEYLON TEA is proved by analysis to contain sufficient — and only sufficient — "tannin" to give necessary vim to the other component parts.

CEYLON TEA is absolutely "pure" and free from extraneous coloring matter, such as is often used in other teas.

CEYLON TEA, in its manufacture, combines all the most sanitary, up-to-date, and scientific methods known to the world.

MORAL—Inasmuch as the great aim of business is to give pleasure to the buyer whilst securing profit to the seller, the merchant grocer must buy only the most excellent goods, which in Tea means "buy only Ceylon Tea" for both pleasure and profit.

You can drink it yourself

Probably the worst thing a grocer ever did, was to push a cheap low grade tea.

One dose of it is usually enough. Wouldn't it be if you had to drink it.

Does the man or woman who drinks it, have a a pleasant recollection of the visit to your store ?

Don't do it. It you push tea, push one you know is good.

The percentage of profit may be smaller, but the gross profits in a year will be more, and you will be building up your business, not driving it away.

Push Red Rose Tea and the results may surprise you—

It is good tea—a tea you would like to drink yourself.

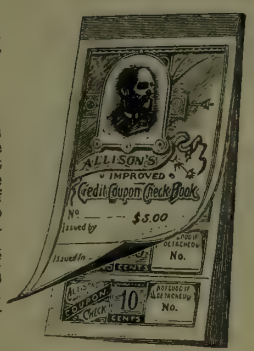
A Two Cent Mistake



Don't amount to much in any business, but the striking point is that a clerk is just as liable to make a mistake of $2.00 as he is of two cents, and a few mistakes like this would pay for enough of Allison's Coupon Books to last a year or more. With these books mistakes are impossible.

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

or $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? A SURPRISING FIND

Collections of Half a Century Result in Extraordinary Accumulation Beneath a Cashier's Desk.

Mr. Wright, the National Cash Register Co.'s agent in Winnipeg, has in his possession an old drawer, which was taken from a general store in Kingston, Ontario, where it has been in use for fifty years. Through all changes of system from the establishment of the store, when the proprietor only had access to this cash-drawer, and when all the clerks used it, and during the period it was under the supervision of an individual cashier, the drawer was never changed, occupying a position beneath a cash desk. In the box-like arrangement where the cashier sat there was a false floor about six inches high, which did not cover the main floor entirely. When the proprietor tore out the cashier's desk recently, an assistant gathered up the refuse to throw out into the lane, when, at the suggesion of Mr. Wright, it was sifted.

After all the dirt had been carefully cleared away, one hundred and eighty-six dollars in small gold and silver coins of all denominations, and dilapidated bills, were rescued from this refuse. The proprietor's surprise can be imagined, and yet he said he had never missed the money, and never knew it was gone! The drawer itself is so badly carved and worn by long service, that one might wonder how it now holds together.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION FOR THE GROCER

There will be established in the Technical High School, Toronto, at the opening of the next Fall term in October a course for the technical education of grocers and grocers' clerks. This important announcement is made by Dr. Packenham, principal of the school, and the undertaking is contingent only upon the grocery trade manifesting sufficient interest to make it worth while.

Technical education for grocers and grocers' clerks was suggested by The Canadian Grocer of two weeks ago. Dr. Packenham, as the highest authority in Ontario, probably in the Dominion, was asked by a representative of The Canadian Grocer for his views on the proposal. He took a day or two to consider it and has forwarded the following interesting article :

Trade Conditions.

More is required of the grocer's clerk to-day than was required fifty years ago. He must know more. Increase in wealth and comfort has involved an increase in the demands of the buying public and in the variety of the objects that go to satisfy those demands. Splendid improvements in transportation have made all corners of the earth tributary to the grocer's shelves. Discoveries in physics and chemistry have added to the number of food materials and created new ways of preparing and preserving these materials. Sharp competition has come upon the scene with good and evil in its train. On the one hand it has developed a host of questionable methods in the exhibition of food materials and a greater host of spurious or adulterated operations in the preparation and preservation of such materials. On the other hand it has developed a distinct type of business man in the grocer. He must be honest, alert, resourceful, and intelligent. He must understand the economics of his business, must buy wisely, exhibit well, and sell profitably. He must appreciate the modern demands of hygiene and sanitation in the administration of his business, and he cannot neglect, in the daily ordering of his shop, the growth of a new sense in the people—the artistic sense.

The Clerk's Position.

Working amid these conditions the grocer's clerk must know more, and yet his environment teaches him less. He is badly paid. Excessive competition may account for much of this. The unhappy tradition that any kind of youth may act the part of a grocer's clerk accounts for more of it. The pay is low, the work exacting, and the prospects, to a youth without capital, very uninviting. As a result the grocer's clerk is a bird-of-passage. He enters the grocery an immature youth and before he learns the rudiments of his business he passes out into another sphere of activity. Even if he remains in the grocery for years his opportunities for learning are few. His exacting duties leave no room for thought or study. His employer is too busy to instruct, and frequently, far too frequently, is incompetent to instruct.

Duty of Technical School.

If the shop fails to teach him all he should know the grocer's clerk must fall back upon the schools. The schools should do something for him. The Technical School in particular should do much for him.

It has tried to do something. It has provided classes in arithmetic which train in accuracy and rapidity of calculation. It has offered instruction in the dietetic values of different food materials, their preparation and preservation, in the commoner adulterations and their effects on the human organism, and in the simpler principles of marketing.

But on the whole these classes have not appealed to the grocer's clerk. They have not referred specifically to the clerk's daily work, and they have not received the endorsation of the grocer himself.

What is Proposed.

The Technical School now proposes to venture further afield, provided that it has the sympathy and support of the employing grocers. It proposes to organize for the session beginning in October next a series of lectures or classes for grocers' clerks to be conducted in the main by experts in the various branches of the city's grocery trade. These classes will be held in the evenings at the Technical School, will be practical so far as possible, and will be open to grocers and their clerks. Some of the subjects treated in these classes will be the following : Teas, coffees, chocolates, etc., their sources of supply, preparation, adulteration, etc. ; meats, curing, preservation, sale, etc. ; canned goods, kinds, preparation, adulteration, etc. ; sugars ; vegetables ; economics of shop ; exhibition of goods, etc., etc.

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

J. Dickie, Pickering, was in Toronto Friday.

W. Ellison, Penville, was in Toronto this week.

A. U. R. Atkinson, Caledonia, was in Toronto this week.

A. D. Carley, King, made a trip to Toronto within the week.

F. W. Hicks, Pine Grove, spent a day in Toronto within the week.

Mr. Scott, of R. Scott & Co., Mount Forest, paid Toronto a visit last week.

R. W. Oliver, of the R. W. Oliver Milling Company, Limited, is at present in Winnipeg.

S. Torrens, Oshawa, is giving up his grocery department and intends devoting his attention wholly to dry goods.

George Goff, for long a resident of Niagara-on-the-Lake, and in the grocery business there about a year, died last week.

H. R. Barnard, Canadian representative of Hunt & Co., Yokohama, is on a business trip to Toronto, Hamilton and before returning will visit the Chicago branch.

Lieut.-Col. Hughes, of Newtonville, general merchant, was in Toronto last Friday attending the annual banquet and reunion of the Durham Old Boys' Association.

C. W. Gregory, lately with Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, has joined the traveling staff of the Blue Ribbon Tea Co., Toronto. Mr. Gregory's territory will be the Maritime Provinces.

Alex. Anderson, selling agent for Mr. Shaw T. Nishimura, of the Japan Central Tea Traders' Association, was on a business trip to Cleveland and other cities in Ohio during the past week.

Allison Trites, of St. John, N.B., has come west to become a member of T. H. Estabrooks' traveling staff in Ontario. His territory will be west of Toronto to Waterloo and north in the peninsula.

W. T. Chapman has joined the selling staff of T. H. Estabrooks and will represent Red Rose tea west of Hamilton. That district was formerly governed by the New Ontario manager, Geo. H. Campbell.

J. Drummond, representing Carter, Moey & Co., Yokohama and New York, was a caller upon the tea trade of Montreal during the past week. Mr. Hutchens, who is agent for Carter, Moey & Co., introduced Mr. Drummond to the trade.

T. Z. Webster, merchant, of Lakefield, met with a very painful accident a couple of weeks ago and is still confined to his room. He was making some alterations in his store and fell, striking his knee-cap. The leg has been in pretty bad condition since.

Mark Baggallay, representing Jardine, Matheson & Co., Yokohama, was a caller upon the Canadian trade during the past two weeks. Mr. Baggallay during his stay in Montreal made his headquarters with S. H. Ewing & Sons, Canadian agents, and called upon the trade in company with Mr. W. H. Halford. Both gentlemen visited Quebec, Ottawa, Toronto and other western centres.

Geo. Clavet, mayor of Port Arthur, of the firm of Marks, Clavet & Dobie, whose name is known as one of the largest and most progressive firms in Northern Ontario, visited Montreal during the past week. The Canadian Grocer met Mr. Clavet at the Windsor and found him one of the most optimistic merchants of that very progressive town and district. There is no place like Port Arthur, to Mr. Clavet's way of thinking, and he looks forward to the development of that lake port with pride. Himself a pioneer, he has seen it rise from struggling Thunder Bay, and now that a great future is assured for the port he is naturally more than proud. It does one good to talk to so sanguine a man as Mr. Clavet, and it is small wonder that with such men dealing with the destinies of a town that progress is sure.

The Triumph of Pure Food in U. S. Senate

Full Text of the Law to Come in Force July, 1906.

The serious attention which the subject of "pure" food supplies is receiving in almost every part of the world is bound sooner or later to take definite form.

It takes a good deal of agitation to bring about stringent legislation, and many a movement dies off in the process.

The subject of pure food, however, is one of such vital importance, and the evil results of adulteration so very manifest, that protective measures are as sure as daylight follows night.

It has taken upwards of fifteen years of persistent agitation to bring forth the necessary measure of protection in the United States, but at last the Senate and House of Representatives have brought into being an enactment which is of a most solid and sweeping nature. The measure contains so much which will appeal to the grocery interests that we give the text in full for the consideration of those of our readers who have been devoting attention to this subject :

Full Text of the U.S. Bill.

An Act for preventing the manufacture, sale, or transportation of adulterated or misbranded or poisonous or deleterious foods, drugs, medicines, and liquors, and for regulating traffic therein, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that it shall be unlawful for any person, association of persons or corporation within any territory, district, or insular possession of the United States, to manufacture, sell, offer for sale, or deliver for shipment, or to cause to be delivered, shipped or transported from within any state, territory, district, or insular possession of any state, territory, district, insular possession, or foreign country any article of food, drugs, medicines, or liquors which is adulterated or misbranded, or which contains any poisonous or deleterious substance within the meaning of this Act ; and any person, association of persons, or corporations who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and for each offence shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not to exceed five hundred dollars, or shall be sentenced to one year's imprisonment, or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court, and for each subsequent offence and conviction thereof shall be fined not less than one thousand dollars, or sentenced to one year's imprisonment, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 2. That the introduction into any state, territory, district, or insular possession, from any other state, territory, district, or insular possession, or from any foreign country, or the shipment to any foreign country of any article of food, drugs, or liquors which is adulterated or misbranded, deleterious or poisonous, within the meaning of this Act, is hereby prohibited ; and any person, association of persons, or corporation who shall ship or deliver for shipment from any state, territory, district, or insular possession to any other state, territory, district, or insular possession, or shall export or offer to export the same to a foreign country, or who shall knowingly receive in any state, territory, district, or insular possession of the United States from any other state, territory, district, or insular possession of the United States, or from any foreign country, or who, having knowingly received, shall deliver in original unbroken packages, or shall offer to deliver to any other person, persons, or corporation any such article, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction for such offence shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars for the first offence, and upon conviction of each subsequent offence shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars or be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

That in the case of any violation of the provisions of the foregoing two sections by any corporation, the fines and penalties imposed therefor may be enforced against the officers of such corporation personally responsible for such violation, and any violation of any of the provisions of this Act by any corporation shall be deemed to be the act of the officer of such corporation directly responsible therefor, and such officer may be punished for such violation as though such violation was the personal act of such officer.

Regulations for Collection and Examination.

Sec. 3. That the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall make uniform rules and regulations for the collection and examination of specimens of foods, drugs, medicines and liquors manufactured or offered for sale in the District of Columbia, or in any other district, territory, or insular possession of the United States, or which shall be offered for sale in unbroken packages in any state other than that in which they shall have been respectively manufactured or produced, or which shall be received from any foreign country, or intended for shipment to any foreign country, or which may be submitted for examination by the chief health officer of any state, territory, district, or insular possession, or at any domestic or foreign port through which such product is offered for interstate commerce, or for export or import between the United States and any foreign port or country.

Sec. 4. That the examinations of specimens of foods, drugs, medicines and liquors shall be made in the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, or under the direction and supervision of such bureau, for the purpose of determining from such examinations whether such article is adulterated or misbranded, or contains any poisonous or other substance deleterious to the health of human beings or domestic animals ; and if it shall appear from any such examination that such specimens are adulterated or misbranded or contain any added poisonous or deleterious substance or ingredient injurious to human health when used in the prescribed or usual manner of use of such article, the Secretary of Agriculture shall cause notice thereof to be given to the parties from whom such samples were obtained, and after final judgment of the court public notice of facts shall be given by publication in such manner as may be prescribed by the rules and regulations of the Department of Agriculture. Any party who may be charged with violation of this Act shall be given an opportunity to be heard, under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed as aforesaid, and if after such hearing it is found that any of the provisions of this Act have been violated by such parties, then the Secretary of Agriculture shall at once certify the facts to the proper United States district attorney, with a copy of the results of the analysis or the examination of such article, duly authenticated by the analyst or officer making such examination, under the oath of such officer.

Sec. 5. That it shall be the duty of each district attorney to whom the Secretary of Agriculture shall report any violation of this Act, or to whom any health officer or agent of any state, territory, district, or insular possession shall present satisfactory evidence of any such violation, to cause appropriate proceedings to be commenced and prosecuted in the proper courts of the United States, without delay, for the recovery of the fines and the enforcement of the penalties as in such case herein provided.

Definitions.

Sec. 6. That the term "drug" as used in this Act shall include all medicines and preparations recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary for internal and external use; also any substance intended to be used for the cure, mitigation, or prevention of disease.

Sec. 7. That the term "food" as used herein shall include all articles used for food, drink (other than malt, spirituous, or vinous liquors), confectionery, or condiment by man or domestic animals, whether simple, mixed, or compound.

Sec. 8. That the term "liquor" as used herein shall include all malt, vinous, alcoholic, and spirituous liquors and combinations of them used or intended to be used as beverages.

Adulterations and Misbranding.

Sec. 9. That for the purpose of this Act any article shall be deemed to be adulterated :

In case of drugs :

First. If, when a drug is sold under or by a name recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary, it differs from the standard of strength, quality, or purity, as determined by the test laid down in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary official at the time of investigation ; provided, that no drug defined in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary shall be deemed to be adulterated under this provision if the standard of strength, quality, or purity be plainly stated upon the bottle, box, or other container thereof although the standard may differ from that determined by the test laid down in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary.

Second. If its strength or purity fall below the professed standard or quality under which it is sold.

That such drug shall be deemed to be misbranded :

A SHORT RESUME ON PROGRESS.

Among the business enterprises growing up with the little village of Huntingdon, near Montreal, Que., there is one whose growth has been, to say the least, surprisingly rapid. This refers to the firm of John Hunter & Sons. It has such a standing, and is so long established, that a little sketch of its progress, and of the man whose energy up-built it, may prove interesting.

John Hunter began business on his own account in Huntingdon 46 years ago, in the Fall of 1860, opening a general store. His push and business integrity soon found recognition among his fellow citizens, and his business prospered until he found it necessary, in 1901, to build a new store much larger and more modern than the old building

Mr Hunter also purchased a flour and grist mill and has built up an active trade in this line. The flour mill turns out three different brands of flour, which are known not only in the village, but in many outside localities as well. These brands, Gold Standard, Clover Leaf and Royal Oak, are all manufactured from Manitoba wheat. The mills also turn out large quantities of rolled oats, buckwheat flour, oat and corn meals and other products of like nature.

Besides the flour and grist mills, Mr. Hunter owns a sash and door factory and saw mill, which is doing a large business, and is rapidly expanding. The village and many private residences are lighted by electricity supplied by the electric plant which Mr. Hunter acquired from the Henderson estate.

With all these business interests Mr. Hunter found it necessary to have some help to ensure proper management, and in 1903, took into partnership his three sons, George T., Arthur E., and Frank H., and since that time business has been carried on under the firm name of J. Hunter & Sons.

Mr. Hunter has a long and untarnished municipal record, having been a member of the council for fifteen years, during which time he has done much to help along the commercial and other interests of Huntingdon. In educational circles too, his hand has been felt, as, in the capacity of chairman of the Huntingdon board of school commissioners, he has proved himself a man quite worthy and capable of filling that responsible office

Few men can point to such a long and honorable business record, which shows such perseverance and push in the many constantly growing commercial interests, and the municipality in which resides such a man, and in which are situated these varied industries, has indeed good reason to be proud of itself.

NEW WAREHOUSE IN PETERBORO

T. Kinnear & Co., wholesale grocers, Toronto, are so well satisfied with the outlook for their branch business at Peterboro that they have purchased a large lot on George street, in the business section, and will proceed with the erection of a fine new warehouse shortly. The lot has a frontage of 117 feet on George street and runs back 116 feet to the C.P.R. Plans and specifications for the new warehouse are now being gotten out. It is to be 30 feet by 75, three storeys with a basement and will be of solid brick construction. Chas. Rishoe is the firm's Peterboro manager. The new warehouse will be an attractive addition to the business section of the city.

WINDOW AND INTERIOR DISPLAYS

WINDOW DRESSING ADVICE.

Window dressing is undoubtedly attracting more attention from retailers of all varieties of goods than ever before, but even though that be true, it is quite as true that not enough retailers are practicing it, at least in the right way. After all that has been said upon the subject, after trade papers have for years been teaching the art and urging their readers to take it up with the purpose of making it of some importance, it is true that very many, probably a majority, still neglect it and their windows repel instead of attract. There is no excuse for this condition of affairs, excepting laziness or failure to comprehend the value of such work. Neither is it possible to understand why retailers and others should fail to appreciate the advantages which accrue to all who dress their windows properly.

Cleanliness a Necessity.

First of all the windows must be clean. Dead flies and spiders and bits of paper and string and such clutter must be forever banished. Perhaps each one of you will shake your heads wisely and declare that that doesn't apply to you. But maybe if you examine your windows you will discover something that will interest you. After one becomes familiar with a condition one overlooks some of the most repulsive features and it is to be feared that many dealers are in that position. They have seen their windows until they have become accustomed to them as they are now, and they do not realize just how badly they look to others. Therefore, it is repeated, clean your windows thoroughly. That is the first essential in attractive window dressing.

Paint Attractively.

Next, if the paint is scratched or broken, give it a good coat. It doesn't matter so much what color, though a neutral tint is better since it doesn't emphasize contrasts so strongly and serves as a satisfactory background for almost any sort of trimming one may care to put in. Sometimes the floor of a window is painted white, partly because it helps the light and partly because it assists in showing the goods to advantage. But there is another reason which should have weight. It is easier to see the dirt that accumulates on a white floor and it is much more likely to be kept clean. If the back of the window is solid paint it some neutral tint. If it is solid up only part way, it will stand a shade or two stronger tinting than it will under other conditions, but it isn't wise to make it white all the way up. It becomes too staring if that is done.

Shelving a Good Idea.

For most varieties of goods excepting dry goods, a set of shelves is essential in some trims, at least, and a sort of movable shelving is most desirable. They can be taken out and the window left without anything, if desired. It is better to make them of fresh boards, but if it is a question of expense, as it is in some instances, shelves made of old packing cases serve the purpose quite as well and cost nothing excepting the expense of putting them together, which would be extremely light. They can be made like steps without backs, and if the window is wide, in two parts. This will enable one to handle them easily, and sometimes it is desirable to have a trim with only a part of the window shelved. It isn't easy to say what one should do with such matters without understanding each specific case. Only suggestions are given here which can be modified and worked out to suit individual cases. One who is attempting to establish a scheme of decoration will find it comparatively easy to adapt these suggestions to his own particular requirements.

Look After the Floor.

After the window is ready the back and floor, if so desired, can be covered with crepe paper, which is inexpensive and very rich looking. Lacking that, plain white or tinted paper will answer but scarcely anyone but can afford crepe paper. It is cheap, durable and can frequently be used a number of times. It doesn't pay to attempt to make up decorations too cheap. They often fail of their principal purpose under such circumstances.

Makea Centre Attraction.

Sometimes a portrait of some national character will add to the finish. Let it stand on an easel in the middle of the window, facing slightly sidewise so as to get rid of the staring, set effect, and over and around it drape the national colors. The effect is pleasing, and at the same time is not such as will arouse anything but the noblest thoughts and feelings.

Show Seasonable Goods.

Having completed this arrangement, next put in such goods as you want to advertise. Sometimes it will be one thing, sometimes another, but the main thing to be remembered is that it should be seasonable goods which you offer. Make them applicable to the time and the season, otherwise your window and your decoration will appear incongruous. Seasonable goods, with neat price tickets attached will not fail to attract buyers.

Not Difficult at all.

Like almost all other things, window dressing is not as difficult as it looks. Frequently one takes it up for some special day like this and continues it because of the excellent results it brings. Trade is fickle to a certain extent, and all sorts of plans must be devised to secure the attention of buyers, but an enterprising dealer will bring buyers in plenty by adopting devices like this which will appeal to purchasers everywhere the same.

Use Opportunities.

Perhaps there is going to be some special celebration in your town this Summer, or in your vicinity. If there is, never fail to make use of such an opportunity. It will add to your prestige and will assist materially in advertising your business. Make your window decorations suitable for these special occasions and you will establish a reputation for enterprise which cannot be beaten.

Get busy and there will be many things which will be used with a good deal of profit by every dealer who begins the work in earnest. It is not so difficult as it looks, and the dealer who undertakes to do as well as he can, will end with doing much better than he expected and his business will improve accordingly.

WASHINGTON CLUB'S COMBINE.

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 28.—A federation of all the commercial clubs in the Spokane country has been perfected at a meeting largely attended by delegates from commercial corporations, boards of trade, and similar bodies from various small towns and cities.

It is believed this organization will be far-reaching in the work of developing the Pacific Northwest. An executive committee was chosen consisting of six members from as many different clubs. They will prepare constitution and by-laws; Spokane will be the headquarters of the association of Inland Empire Commercial Clubs, and a meeting will be held in Spokane each year on the first Tuesday of February, and also the last of September or first of October. It was provided that each commercial club or county shall provide for an exhibit of the resources of its district, which shall be kept in Spokane in connection with the Spokane Chamber of Commerce.

Nothing that worries you individually can be of equal importance to any one else.

BUSINESS AND ASSOCIATION MEETINGS

The Editor will be glad to receive reports and notices of any business meetings of interest to the readers of THE GROCER—short, gossipy and instructive.

MONTREAL RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association was held in their club rooms at 88 St. Denis street on Thursday, March 1. A goodly number of members were present. The chair was occupied by the president, Mr. P. Daoust.

The secretary, Mr. Beaudry, read the minutes of the last meeting, after which an animated discussion was held as to the payment of the expenses of the delegation that recently visited Quebec to interview the Government re the proposed changes in the license law.

The Contract Plan of Buying.

The secretary brought up the question of the retail grocers of the city approaching the manufacturers of grocers' specialties and certain well known and advertised staple lines, to place their goods in the hands of the trade on the contract plan; by this means cutting of prices would be done away with, and business more satisfactory all round. A number of the leading manufacturers had expressed their willingness to conform to the proposed plan providing the retail trade would see that the arrangement was adhered to. Among the firms to be approached are the following: Lever Bros., Limited, St. Croix Soap Co., John Taylor & Co., Edwardsburg Starch Co., Christie, Brown & Co., Limited, Model Baking Co., International Food Co., Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., E. W. Gillett Co..

The letter to the manufacturers is as follows:

"We, the undersigned retail grocers of the city of Montreal, believe that the one price system is the fair and proper system to do business upon, both for ourselves and for our customers, and that price-cutting is injurious to sound business principles.

"We therefore strongly urge upon you to place your goods on the contract plan so that our customers will not accuse us with overcharging them when they purchase your goods from a bargain counter.

"Trusting that you will grant us our request as early as possible, we remain,

"Yours truly,

The contract plan proposed to be adopted is virtually the same as that of the Canadian Wholesale Druggist Association and the drug section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, and reads as follows:

"In consideration of the agreement on part of the —— Company, under which we become entitled to purchase the preparations of the —— Company that are now manufactured, or that may hereafter be manufactured by the —— Company at the prices set out and provided in Schedule 'B,' we agree with the —— Company not to sell directly or indirectly, by agents or otherwise, the preparations of the said —— Company, whether now in stock and owned by us, or to be acquired after the date hereof, wheresoever or howsoever obtained, to any person or persons, corporation or corporations, at less than the prices set out and provided in Schedule 'E.'

"And for the consideration aforesaid, we further agree not to sell said preparations at any price, to any dealer or merchant who has not signed and conformed to the agreement with the said —— Company to the same effect as this agreement.

"Provided that any of the said preparations of the —— Company, supplied by way of bonus or at special prices or discounts, shall be otherwise subject to the terms of this agreement as if supplied at the prices hereinafter specifically stipulated or provided.

"And in consideration of the agreement above set out, the said —— Company agree with the other party hereto, that the said party may purchase the preparations of the said —— Company at the prices set out in Schedule 'D.'

"It is understood that this agreement shall remain in full force and effect until either party to it shall have terminated it."

Every member present (about thirty) was prepared to sign this petition.

It is readily conceived from reading the petition to manufacturers that the object is to prevent the sale of these special articles to the department stores and the cutting practiced by these institutions, a consummation devoutly to be wished.

The Pure Food Fair.

Mr. Beaudry drew the attention of the members to the proposed pure food fair to be held at Victoria Rink, Montreal, from May 14 to 29, inclusive. This fair is under the Montreal retail grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. About 130 booths have been arranged for, and quite a number of the most prominent manufacturers have already taken space. It is expected that every booth will be taken up. Victoria Rink is well adapted for the holding of a fair of such pretensions; it is large, and conveniently located in the centre of the city, being immediately in the rear of the Windsor Hotel. Special excursion rates will be arranged for, to permit the country merchants and public to take advantage of the fair.

As this will be the first pure food show of any magnitude (outside of one departmental fair) the public will look forward with interest to the novelty. A vast amount of hard work is in store for the executive, but no effort will be spared to inspire confidence for another fair next season.

SACKVILLE, N.B.

The annual meeting of the Sackville Board of Trade was held recently.

Mr. Stewart, the secretary, read the report of the council, in which it was stated that the following matters had been dealt with satisfactorily, viz.:

(a) Urging the railway and shipping committee to take strong action on behalf of the board with reference to improved accommodation at the Intercolonial Railway station for both passengers and freight.

(b) Action had been taken with reference to the matter of wharf improvements.

(c) To appoint a member on the committee to secure a train on the N.B. and P.E.I. Railway to arrive each Monday morning. This committee reported through the chairman, Geo. E. Ford, that he had interviewed the president of the road, who was considering the matter. Since then the steamer "Stanley" had been placed on the Capes route. As a result the train arrives each day about noon.

Among the recommendations passed for consideration by the board were the following:—

(a) That the board take up the matter of freight rates on the I.C.R.

(b) To appoint a member of this board to the council of the Maritime Board of Trade.

(c) To appoint a member on the committee of the Maritime Board of Trade associated with the preserving of historical places in the Maritime Provinces.

The following officers were elected:—President, B. C. Rayworth; vice-pres., W. W. Fawcett, Jr.; treasurer, Thos. Murray; secretary, Chas. D. Stewart; members of council, Dr. Andrews, F. B Black, C. W. Cahill, A. B. Copp, Geo. E. Ford, Thos. Murray, F. T. Tingley, A. E. Wry; representative on council of Maritime Board of Trade, C. C. Campbell.

The meeting decided to send a delegation to Ottawa for the purpose of pressing Sackville's claims for an appropriation to repair the wharves. Messrs. A. B. Copp and B. C. Rayworth were appointed.

KENTVILLE, N. S.

The 13th annual meeting of the Kentville Board of Trade was held in the court house, President W. E. Porter in the chair. F. C. Rand, secretary, presented his report. This showed the finances of the board to be in good condition, corresponding well with the reports of the four years which Mr. Rand has held his position.

President Porter then read a most comprehensive and encouraging report of the work of the board, and enumerated several matters which, in his opinion, the board should discuss. Thirteen meetings of the board have been held during the year and thirty-five new names have been added to the membership. Mr. Porter then spoke of the many natural advantages of Kentville for the location of manufactories, calling attention to the head waters of the Gaspereaux, which are within six miles of the town and will, when developed, give an unlimited amount of power for all purposes at the least expense, and so, with its easy transportation, central location, good social and moral conditions, Kentville should in the future be one of the most desirable places in the province for capitalists, and with its beautiful surroundings, as a residential centre it could not be surpassed.

The following officers were elected: President, G. E. Calkin; vice-president, D. J. Murphy; secretary-treasurer, F. C. Rand; auditors, B. Roscoe, S. L. Cross; council, W. P. Shaffner, H. D. Burns, W. E. Porter, C. O. Allen, R. C. Dickie, H. M. Bain, A. E. Calkin, J. W. Ryan, Jr.

PURE FOOD FAIR FOR MONTREAL

The Montreal Retail Grocers' Association has decided that Montreal shall at last have a real food fair on a large scale. This was decided at a meeting of the association, and the dates for the fair will be from Monday, May 14, to Thursday, May 24, both days inclusive. Victoria Rink has been secured for the exhibition. The rink will be properly decorated for the occasion, and something like one hundred booths will be erected. These stands will be occupied by as many exhibitors. The display of foods, flours, cocoa, coffee, syrups, and numerous other sundries to be found in the grocery shop, will indeed be awe inspiring to the average man-on-the-street who is unaware of the extent of Canada's products in this line.

As is done at smaller food fairs, the various exhibits will be demonstrated so that visitors to the fair may satisfy themselves as to the merits of the different goods sampled. The fair will be under the auspices of the Retail Grocers' Association, which will do all in its power to make the first large food fair of this kind a tremendous success.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

H. W. Nelson & Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
Leon Languay, Montreal, Que.

WHAT IT WOULD MEAN.

If the promoters of the Canada Tin Plate & Sheet Steel Co. are successful in their endeavor to impose a duty of 33 1-3 per cent. on all importations of goods which they intend to manufacture, it will mean a great revolution in the trade conditions of this country. So many branches of business would be affected by any change in the tariff relating to these sheet metals, that this duty would make a tremendous difference to consumer, retailer and manufacturer.

The consumer would be the chief sufferer. He would pay an advance of from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent. on present prices of all goods whose raw material is tin or terne plates, black sheets, Canada plates, or sheet steel. Every kitchen utensil, every milk can and other dairy necessities would be made more expensive, and this would be more than a hardship. Every article of food which is done up in Canada, from salmon to peas, corn, tomatoes, would cost more—in some cases fully a third more—for it is a well known fact that in many varieties of canned goods the cans themselves furnish the chief item in the cost of production. How will the housekeeper view the prospect of paying out more of her not too large allowance, for the food she buys?

There is another respect in which this duty would affect the consumer, especially in the far west, where lumber is so scarce—in that section of the country the number of metal roofs is increasing rapidly. Farmers are building barns of great capacity, and find it much more satisfactory to use metal roofs than those of wood. Metal laths, ceilings, etc., are also making good headway. What will the dwellers in the Northwest think of the proposal to raise the price of these goods by upwards of 33 1-3 per cent.

The retail hardwareman will, of course, be seriously affected. When an extra third is added to the price of tinware, he will find that customers will curtail their needs in that line. His paints, oils, varnishes and everything else that is handled in tins will be higher in price. The tinsmith will find it very difficult, if not impossible, to persuade his customer that a metal roof is better than one of wood, when the price is so much in advance of the present quotations. And the grocer will find his sales of canned goods persistently falling off, when he tacks on a few extra cents enabling him to make a profit on the advanced price he himself will be forced to pay.

As for the manufacturer, he will be hard hit, and, in some cases, put out of business. The manufacturer of tinware will undoubtedly be compelled to pay 33 1-3 per cent. more for his raw material than he is at present, as it is ridiculous to suppose that the Morrisburg concern will be able to produce tin plates at any lower price than that figure. Even if a corresponding duty be imposed on finished tinware, it would not relieve the manufacturer, so far as a curtailment of consumption is concerned. An increased price would undoubtedly decrease the demand.

The manufacturer of cans will be similarly placed, with the added difficulty that he will probably not be able to get the quality of tin plate he requires, from the Canadian mill. Especially in the matter of cans for lobsters, which contain a high percentage of ammonia, the very best tin plate is required and the Welsh mills are the only ones which have produced a satisfactory quality.

But, perhaps the manufacturer of metal roofing, ceilings, sidings, lath, etc., will feel the effects of the proposed legislation most keenly of all. This business has grown to splendid proportions, owing to the fact that the metal which is generally much more ornate than wood, besides being fireproof, is also almost as cheap. There are now several large factories in this country producing nothing but fireproof building material. Where will they find themselves if they have to add a third to the cost of manufacturing their goods? Even if the Canada Tin Plate & Sheet Steel Co. were able to produce their black sheets as cheaply as the Welsh mills (which is an absurd proposition) these manufacturers would still be compelled to buy most of their gauges and sizes in foreign markets. The Morrisburg mill will certainly not be equipped with a sufficient variety of rolls to meet all the requirements of such manufacturers.

Briefly, the only people who can possibly be expected to benefit by this tin plate concern, are the small group of promoters. The request for an imposition of a duty on the goods named, should be opposed by all classes, in all parts of the country.

ORGANIZATION THE CURE.

Representatives of a hundred and thirty leading wholesale grocery firms in Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania met in Philadelphia on March 1 and organized the Wholesale Grocers' Association of the states named, and 80 per cent. of the firms represented joined. Robert Burst, of Philadelphia, was elected president.

The principle discussion in the convention was on the relative positions of the manufacturers, jobbers and retailers, the same vexed question that has agitated the trade in Canada and which the Wholesale Grocers' Guild was organized to solve. There were quite a few representatives of the manufacturers at the meeting and they expressed themselves in favor of confining their sales to the wholesalers.

Most of the delegates were in favor of becoming identified with the national association to be formed in Buffalo next June.

THE SUGAR TARIFF CONTROVERSY.

The correspondence which has been going on on the above subject is no doubt of great interest at the present moment, and one which requires a good deal of thought and study before a final judgment could be reached. The Canadian Grocer has sought to give full opportunity to ventilate the subject at various times.

Mr. Robert Anderson's letter as a reply to Mr. Hugh Blain would have been read with equal interest to our previous publications on the subject. The Canadian Grocer had an opportunity to obtain from Mr. Hugh Blain his opinion of Mr. R. Anderson's letter, and he expressed himself as follows:

"As you are aware my interview was given for the previous week's issue of the "Grocer," and as Mr. Anderson says, only dealt with one section of his paper, which you had kindly shown me before I received a copy from him direct.

"I was altogether too busy to criticize it at all, and what I dealt with was the practical aspect of the case. Mr. Anderson does not dispute my figures, nor the accuracy of my argument, except as to the item of 107 lbs. of raw sugar being required to make 100 lbs. of granulated. His explanation appears to me as begging the question, because when you take the loss of two per cent, which he admits, and the quantity of granulated sugar, and the quantity of soft sugar made from 100 lbs., the result is practically the same in dollars and cents.

"I am not interested in the United States tariff, or the relative protection which the refineries of the two countries receive.

"The Canadian refineries, as far as I can make out, is governed entirely by the conditions as to the per cent. of his protection he takes."

Another prominent man in the beet sugar industry also gave the Canadian Grocer his views on the subject, which were as follows:

"Regarding your query as to the evidence given by Mr. Anderson, I can only say that there is too much truth in his contention, although he is an importer and has colored his material to suit his purpose considerably. The fact remains, however, that did the Government desire to give the Montreal refiners a bonus they could not have manipulated matters to better advantage than through the agency of the preferential tariff, for as they control all the channels of import and distribution nearly the entire preference has found its way into the pockets of the refiners and at a future date can be used as a club to hammer out of existence the beet sugar industries which are now in operation in Canada.

"The suggestion to raise the duty on raw sugar would add to the revenue and also be a protection to the beet sugar industry, consequently I could not view with disfavor such a move. This in turn would leave a narrower margin for the refiner to work on, and consequently a better opportunity would be given Anderson to import refined sugars, the object he has in view.

"I would prefer to see the duties equal on both raw beet sugars and raw cane sugars. This would give a larger market to draw from, and if the beet refiners find they are unable to pay the present price for beets, could import raw sugar and refine, the same as the Montreal concerns, and in this way keep moving. The extraordinary high price of sugar last year has caused an enormous over-production, and the result is that we are now going through a period of depression, which is more severe than at any time in the past, with possibly one exception.

"Assisting the production of beet sugar at home either by means of bounty or tariff, will insure a supply of sugar on the average at more reasonable prices, I believe. This can be more easily understood when we recall the fact that the great raise in prices the past year was caused by a shortage in the beet crop in Germany, so that it is advisable for us to not be entirely dependent upon foreigners for our requirements of sugar."

Mr. Anderson in his letter makes serious complaints against the Halifax correspondent of The Canadian Grocer, apparently forgetting that our reporter's duty is merely to report the situation as he finds it with the general impressions of the conditions prevailing. He is not an expert at the many industries he has to review, neither could he be expected to be. We are pleased, however, to publish Mr. Anderson's remarks, whether they be regarding ourselves or others.

FOODSTUFFS AND EDUCATION.

Technical education has been a marked feature of industrial development in Europe during the past decade or two. Agricultural development in some of the northern countries of Europe, particularly Denmark, that has far surpassed anything known in Great Britain or America, may be said to have been based upon an educational propaganda. Agricultural education is firmly established in Canada, and has achieved very considerable results, especially in Ontario. Technical education for the industrial classes has begun in Canada, but it is still feeling its way and is in a very formative state.

It has been considered right and expedient to include in the technical school curricula a course in commerce with special subjects to fit students to undertake office work. A very prominent feature of technical school work has been a course in domestic science, the main object of which has been to teach how better to select, care for and prepare foodstuffs.

The grocer handles practically the entire food supply of the country. Why should not technical education be provided for him? Sanitation, hygiene and diatetics are subjects of every domestic science course. If grocers, and especially grocers' clerks, could be thoroughly instructed in these subjects, a transformation of the average grocery would result. Then why should not grocers know something about the goods they handle, where they come from, how they are grown or manufactured, the conditions that affect the market? It would make every grocer a better salesman and a better buyer. The grocer would not benefit any more than would the public by cleaner and more intelligent service and more sanitary conditions for the storage of foodstuffs.

NO "CORNERS" IN FRANCE.

In France manipulation of prices for speculation in the necessities of life is a criminal offence. It has been so, says U. S. Consul Miller, at Rheims, in Daily Consular and Trade Reports, since 1793. So hard is the prohibition that it is an offence to allow merchandise of prime necessity to perish, including grain and its products, bread, meat, wine, vegetables, fruit, butter, vinegar, coal, wool and silk.

The penalties are fine and imprisonment, and the cost of police supervision of the offender's business for from two to five years. For a second offence the penalty is said to be so severe that almost any firm would seccumb to it.

The French, as a consequence, have no "corners" in food stuffs.

FORCING TOO MANY GOODS.

A prominent reader of The Canadian Grocer wrote concerning the article in last week's number regarding the unnecessary assignment of W. J. McKissock, of Strathavon:

"I am very much pleased with the article on page 30 of this week's issue of The Canadian Grocer, and I think Colonel MacLean is doing good not only to the retailer but to the wholesaler. There is just such a thing as selling to a country storekeeper or forcing onto a country storekeeper too many goods, and in the next place there is such a thing as forcing a man into insolvency when he would not have failed but for that."

NO DUTY ON TIN PLATE

Is the Unanimous Demand of the Foodstuffs Trades of Canada.

The Canadian Grocer has so far as possible obtained the views of users of tin plate among the grocery, provision and canned goods trades throughout Canada in reference to the movement directed towards securing a duty of 33 1-3 per cent. on tin plate to encourage a factory being promoted at Morrisburg. If the Government in the face of such universal opposition as is everywhere manifested grants the protection asked it will assuredly be ill serving the great foodstuffs industries of this country.

The object of a protective tariff is to bar foreign competition and enable the producer to charge the consumer more. But that is not all; the consumer, who is the merchant, the artisan and the agriculturist, is supposed to receive some compensating advantage in increased trade, more work and enlarged markets.

Toronto Solid Against.

The objection to the proposed duty on tin plate is that it would increase the cost of many food staples to the consumer without any compensating advantage. That is the consensus of opinion held by representative manufacturers of Toronto who put up their products in tin cans. These men are protectionists, their undertakings are begotten of the tariff, but in this proposition they see only serious disturbance of business conditions affecting, in the aggregate, very large investments, an added burden for the consumer and in return a very remote possibility of any substantial advantage to the country. Practically all the tin cans used in Canada are made here. The industry is protected.

Let in American Goods.

"The proposed duty," said Warren W. Shoemaker, manager of Armour's, "would bring the Canadian manufacturer's cost up to the American's with duty paid."

The inference was that the Canadian tin can manufacturer's business would be gone unless additional protection were granted him. But that was not all. It was repeatedly pointed out that it would be impossible for any one mill or set of mills to supply anything like the variety of sizes of plate required for the tin can trade. If the tin can industries survived, the importations would have to go on, the result being the embarassment of an established industry and nothing to show for it.

Help the Old Country.

A member of one of the large packing firms said:

"The consumer would pay. It would destroy the protection we now have. You take imports of tinned goods from Great Britain which get the preferential: it would place us at a disadvantage with British imports. While we are strongly in favor of protecting Canadian industries, we are strongly of the opinion that there is no prospect of Canada at the present time manufacturing tin plates. The arguments in favor of the proposed duty are therefore merely theoretical."

Why Not a Bounty.

This gentleman made the suggestion that if the Government desires to encourage the establishment of a tin plate industry in Canada it should be done by bounty or rebate. That would furnish assistance on the basis of actual performance and would not disturb established business conditions.

Pretty Serious Matter.

Geo. H. Macfarlane, assistant general manager of the E. W. Gillett Co., said: "This is a pretty serious proposition. Anyone can see it is going to be very serious not only to users of tin plate but to householders throughout the Dominion. The way we look at it is this: Some concern proposes to start business in Morrisburg and they have applied to the Government to remove tin plate from the free list. Suppose they get going, they cannot supply the trade here, nor one-tenth of it. Tin plate will still have to be imported, and why should every householder in Canada pay a tax simply for the purpose of allowing this company to start business? This tax would increase the cost of our packages 25 per cent."

Mr. Macfarlane represented his company in Western Canada a number of years and he is at home on the trade conditions of the prairies and the coast. "This duty would hit the Northwest hardest," he said. "Were you ever in a grocery store in the west? About four-fifths of their stock is in tins."

Mr. Macfarlane stated that arrangements had been made for a deputation of interested manufacturers to wait upon the Government in regard to the matter.

Mr. Mitchell, of Todhunter & Mitchell, spice manufacturers, viewed the matter in practically the same light. He foresaw a serious disturbance of existing trade conditions and a considerable additional burden for the consumer without any likelihood of compensating advantage.

Hamilton Protests.

Probably no firm in Canada in the foodstuffs trade at least would be more affected by the proposed duty than the Canadian Canners, Limited, with their 35 or 40 canning factories scattered all over the Province of Ontario and their consumption of tin cans that must run into something like 20,000,000 a year.

A representative of The Grocer called at the head office of the firm in Hamilton and interviewed the executive officers. He found them very strongly opposed to the proposition.

In the first place it was contended that the factory at Morrisburg would not be able to produce more than one-tenth of the volume or variety of plate required by the Canadian trade.

The result of the duty would be to raise the cost of 2-pound cans $2.80 per thousand, of 3-pound cans $3.75 per thousand and of gallon cans $7.00 per thousand. On an average year's pack this would mean an increase in the cost of their tins to the Canadian canners of about $107,000.

This increase must necessarily be added to the cost, the selling price and eventually be paid by the consumer in the way of higher prices for their corn and tomatoes. Higher prices would mean decreased consumption, and the loss reflected to a degree on the producer and all concerned.

Moreover, this company have at no small expense, opened offices at London, Glasgow, and Liverpool, and have worked up a large export trade in competition with the United States, France, Italy and other foreign countries. This trade is done on a narrow margin and any increase in the cost of their raw materials would injuriously affect this growing trade.

The importance of using the best grades of tin possible is fully recognized in the canned goods trade. Now the canners have the British and U. S. markets to choose from. Restricted competition might result in deterioration in the quality of plate that could be secured.

These conditions apply as well to the other canning companies in Ontario not included in the Canadian Canners, Limited.

Our $3,500,000 is invested in Ontario in the canning industry with an annual turnover of $5,000,000. Over 6,000 farmers are engaged in growing fruits and vegetables for the factories, and 21,000 acres under cultivation.

It is a serious matter to disturb an industry of this importance for the problematical advantages of a tin plate mill.

The United States, with a consuming population of 80,000,000, had to impose a duty of 80 per cent. to establish the tin plate industry in that country, and they are still importing a number of lines on which the home mills can not compete.

Fowlers Canadian Co.

Mr. Walker, of Fowlers Canadian Co., Hamilton, was opposed to the duty. "It will increase the cost of our lard pails," he said, "and will consequently increase the cost to the consumer."

Tuckett Tobacco Co.

Mr. Lemereaux, of Tuckett's Tobacco Co., was not as deeply interested as the canners, but as the tariff would mean a considerable additional expense to them, he was opposed to it.

Mr. W. C. Breckenridge, president of the Norton Manufacturing Co., can manufacturers, had little to add to his exhaustive statement in The Grocer of February 23, except the very important fact that if a duty of 33 1-3 per cent. were placed on tin plate it would upset our whole tariff system. Tin plate is the raw material for an extraordinary large number of industries in the grocery, hardware and building lines. If you put a duty of 33 1-3 per cent. on the raw material of these industries you wipe out their protection and immediately there would be a clamor from all sides to have the tariff raised proportionally on the articles that are manufactured from tin plate. Otherwise, you protect the raw material and leave open to foreign competition all the industries above referred to.

Montreal Dissents.

Wm. Clark, the canned meat man of Montreal, said to a representative of The Canadian Grocer: "You may say for me that I am opposed to the imposition of any such duty as 33 1-3 per cent. on tin plate. My reason for this is that even if the proposed factory were established it would be utterly unable to supply the demand of Canadian manufacturers of tin goods. It would certainly mean that the price of all goods packed in tin for consumption by the grocery trade would be enhanced in cost very materially to the consumer, as every manufacturer would have to add the extra cost to his present prices. We are very large users of tin, and the extra cost to us would mean in the neighborhood of $10,000 to $15,000 per year."

Peter Laing, of the Laing Packing Co., also of Montreal, said: "I certainly do not approve of the imposition of the proposed duty, as it will mean higher cost of all goods put up by us. This cost would fall upon the consumer. We are large users of tin pails for lard, and tins for canned meats, and the extra expense to us would be very high."

John Anderson, of Chase & Sanborn, the coffee house, who, by the way, is on the committee having in hand the agitation against the imposition of the duty, was seen, and naturally expressed very decided disapproval of the proposed removal of tin plate from the free list. He stated that the extra cost to them per year would run fully over $5,000. This cost in the case of themselves and similar concerns would in a large measure have to be borne by them, as coffee is an article upon which a radical advance could not be made to the consumer.

Canada Not Ready.

The Bloomfield Packing Co., who put up the "Quaker" brand of fruits and vegetables, briefly stated their views as follows: "Regarding the duty on tin plates we have nothing to say on the subject, believing that the consumer will have to pay the duty, as we believe it will be impossible to make tin plates in Canada to compete with English makers. The U. S. had a population of seventy millions before they attempted to establish tin plate industries."

Menace Canning Industry.

Geo. E. Fisher, president of the Burlington Canning Co., said when asked his opinion of the proposed duty: "We think such a step would be disastrous to the canned goods trade, and have no hesitation in recording our objection. Anything that has a tendency to increase the cost to the consumer inasmuch as it lessens consumption is a serious menace to the business. We are continually aiming at cheap production, and do produce as cheaply as it is possible for us to do and maintain the quality of our goods. This is necessary to effect sales, for although the quality may be all that can be desired if the price is advanced the demand falls off at once, and if such an item as this proposed duty were added to the cost of cans the cost of the finished product would be so enhanced that not nearly so much would be required. We thing this new company is quite in advance of the requirement of the country, and would very much prefer that no such industry be started in Canada at present."

A Fatal Blow.

The Belleville Canning Co. were equally pronounced in their view that the proposed duty would work a serious injury to the packing industry. They said:

"We are strongly opposed to such a measure. To the canners of fruits and vegetables such a proceeding would be most harmful, and the increased cost of manufacture from the imposition of such a tax would create a serious effect on the consumption of canned goods. While it is the consumer of the goods packed in tin packages that would really have to suffer if such a tax were imposed, yet any cause or interference that would tend to increase the price of such goods would certainly tend to impair trade, and the canning industry to-day, while it is progressive, would certainly receive a fatal blow should such a tax be placed on tin plate."

Sacrifice of a Great Industry.

G. A. Fraser, of the Thames Canning Factory Thamesville, put the whole position of the canning industry very succinctly. He said:

"In regard to the proposed tin plate industry at Morrisburg, I may say that we have not given much attention to this matter, as the idea of fostering one premature industry at the expense of the development of the natural product seemed so unreasonable that we thought it impossible that such a proposition could appeal to the good judgment of the Tariff Commission.

"Tin plate containers at present represent about 40 per cent. of the total cost of canned vegetables, and as there seems great possibilities for the consumption of canned goods in foreign markets, as well as in the home land, and as there is unlimited possibilities for the production of these goods in this country, it would seem unreasonable to expect that the Government would sacrifice this industry even in the interest of a great manufacturing concern."

The Salmon Industry.

The salmon canners of the Pacific Coast would be placed in, if possible, even more unfortunate position. They secure their supplies by water from Wales. If the duty were imposed the freight rates would make it impossible to use the Morrisburg plate. They would still import from Wales, pay the 33 1-3 per cent. duty, and with no compensating result to anyone.

The Promoter.

J. Wesley Allison, the principal promoter of the Canada Tin Plate & Stamped Steel Co., the name of the proposed Morrisburg concern, is not unknown in Canada. He promoted the Cramp Steel Company at Collingwood, which, after heavy expenditures, was a sad fizzel. He operated in Montreal about two years ago to the regret of several prominent financiers, and he is even better known in the United States as a promoter. There, also, his undertakings have not been uniformly successful.

THE LATE F. W. FEARMAN, OF HAMILTON.

Frederick W. Fearman, head of the F. W. Fearman Packing Company, and one of Hamilton's oldest and most prominent citizens, died at an early hour of the morning at his residence, 90 Stinson street, on March 1.

He had been ailing a long time, but was taken seriously ill only a few days previously, having a stroke of paralysis on Monday, from which he never recovered.

Frederick W. Fearman was an Englishman of a fine type. He was born in Norfolk county in 1825. In 1833, when deceased was a boy of eight years, the family came to Canada and settled in Hamilton soon after their arrival, the then village impressing his father, the late Mr. William Fearman, as a place of great possibilities. Frederick W. was educated here, in the schools of the late Mr. Counsell and the late Dr. Tassie, although the family lived at York village, on the Grand River, from 1836 to 1840.

At the age of 22 deceased joined the crew of Captain Sutherland, then a prominent lake vesselman, and sailed the Canadian waters from 1847 to 1854. He retired from that life to begin business as a provision dealer in the latter year, and by business ability, care and industry laid the foundation of the great pork packing business which has for so many years been known by his name, and of which he was the head until he retired from active business a few years ago, leaving the management of so important an industry to his sons. Under his able direction the business soon became one of the most prominent in Canada, and the name was a household word from end to end of the Dominion.

Mr. Fearman was an ardent son of St. George and a lifelong member of St. George's Society, of which he was also president. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, although it was not until quite late in life that he joined.

Deceased was married in 1851 to Elizabeth, daughter of the late Mr. Robert Holbrook. He is survived by his seven sons and one daughter. The latter is Mrs. Shearer, wife of Mr. H. A. Shearer, of Rochester, N.Y., and his sons are Messrs. F. Chester, Robert C., Harry H. and Frank D., who carry on the business; William J., of the Hamilton Gas Company; George D., accountant of the Cataract Power Company, and Edward, of New York. Deceased also leaves a widow—his second wife.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, March 9, 1906.

Business picked up a little this week owing to the cold spell experienced, but orders from country points are still far from being as large as might be expected. Collections, most houses say, are better than it was thought they would be, but trade generally is not up to what was expected. Many houses report very serious complaints of dullness, and travelers talk blue. Few failures are occurring, however. Teas are in better demand and improvement is shown in the trade. The advance of 10c. per 100 lbs. in sugar has stimulated buying, and orders are getting larger from country dealers. Tomatoes have advanced again and are selling at $1.10. The supply is becoming exhausted and it is expected that a further rise will take place before the new crop is put on the market.

The demand for evaporated apples continues very strong and supplies, which are very scant, are almost cleaned up. Ginger has advanced slightly since last week, but the local market is not effected materially. The new crop of maple syrup is being anxiously awaited by manufacturers, who report many calls for new crop goods. Another rise is reported in tapioca, which is selling at 6c. Owing to the uncertainty of the market in the Barbadoes the local market in molasses is rather weak, but prices are unchanged. There has been a falling off in prices of fish, the demand for which has been very brisk since the beginning of the Lenten season.

Canned Goods—Tomatoes have advanced another 5c. and now bring $1.10 The scarcity of tomatoes is keenly felt by dealers, and it is expected that prices will continue to advance until the arrival of the new crop. The only other way in which the situation may be bettered is by the arrival of southern packings, which is altogether an unlikely event, considering the high prices asked. In other lines there is nothing new to mention. There is the usual demand for canned goods for consumption, but the supplies are good, and these demands are easily met. Corn and peas are in store sufficiently to fill all orders.

Sugar—The sugar market shows an improvement this week. The advance of 10c. per hundred, which went into effect on Saturday last, the 3rd inst., has had a tendency to stimulate buying on part of jobbers and country buyers. As noted in The Canadian Grocer, the opinion that sugars had possibly reached bottom has been verified by the recent advance of 10c. Refiners report good business.

Tea—Business in tea circles locally is reported generally improved and a better feeling obtains in the trade. Ceylon greens are very much higher in the East than locally; and it is expected that an advance is likely to follow here. In Ceylon blacks all low grade teas are firmer and all desirable teas in good demand. China greens are strong. There are very few of low grades, pealeaf and pinhead obtainable. Top prices being secured. There is a better demand for Japans and more business has been turned over lately.

Coffee—There is not a great deal to say about coffee. The prices remain as they were last week. The demand is not larger than is usual at this time of year, and supplies are large enough to meet all demands.

Watt, Scott & Goodacre, in their weekly report of March 6th says: "The past week was marked by further large decrease in the world's visible. Brazil has remained very firm owing to belief there in the success of the valorization scheme. Confidence therein, however, has not been sufficient to influence consuming markets materially. The statistical position has not been as strong for many years. Any one of numerous possibilities may arise to attract public interest, as an investment or a good gamble. Such interest would produce sudden and important advances."

Foreign Dried Fruits—Trade shows a little improvement over last week, although a firmness in the currant market in Greece has stimulated some buying in that article. Almonds of all kinds, shelled and unshelled, are held for higher prices in primary markets. Walnuts in the shell are sluggish, but the shelled variety show more life and we have to report, as predicted, quite a considerable advance in price. Dates, Valencia raisins, prunes and figs show no change.

Spices—Another advance is noted in ginger, but this, it is claimed, will not affect the local market materially, as the supply is fairly good. Dealers expect that there will be a scarcity of ginger in the near future, but it does not bother them very much yet.

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKETS.

Montreal, Thursday, March 8, 1906.

BUTTER—Market steady, choice creamery selling 22c. to 22½c. Prices unchanged on other brands. Demand good.

CHEESE—No change in situation, fair trade in small lots. Prices unchanged at 13c. to 13½c.

EGGS—Market easing off. Sales being made at 18½c. to 19c. for fresh. Dealers losing on held eggs, which are quoted at 14c to 15c.

PROVISIONS—Lenten season has not curtailed local demand, hams, bacon, etc., selling quite freely. Dressed hogs unchanged. Abattoir dressed, $10 to $10.25; country dressed, $9 to $9.50.

Beans—The market is a little easier this week. Choice prime are quoted at $1.65 to $1.70, and lower grades from $1.60 to $1.65. Spot stocks are fairly large.

Choice prime beans	1 65	1 70
Lower grades	1 60	1 65

Honey—An improved demand is noticed for honey since the advance in prices. The stocks, however, are ample to take care of all orders.

Maple Products—The new syrup is expected to arrive in about a week. Dealers are anxiously awaiting the coming of this new crop. They report that they have had many calls for new crop goods. Owing to the scanty supply of new syrup expected this year, however, they will not be able to fill all these orders. Already in some points in Western Ontario new syrups are being used. Pure Townships sugar has experienced a slight advance and now calls for 8c. to 9c.

Evaporated Apples—There is a continued demand for evaporated apples at 11 1-2c., and dealers are at a loss to fill orders. The supply is becoming cleaned up very quickly. One dealer to fill a rather large order found it necessary to make an assortment of six different brands.

Fish—The recent cold weather has boomed the fish business considerably. Dealers report particularly good business all this week because of the three extra "fish days." Since the Lenten season came in there has been a noticeable increase in the demad for all kinds of fish, especially frozen fish. In salt fish green cod are a little easier in price, but salt herring are very scarce and prices are high. There has been a decline in prices in several lines since last week, as quotations will show.

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

H. J. Stevens, of Montreal, was in New York the early part of the week.

B. F. Blakeslee, Toronto, representing "Egg-O-See," is a visitor to Montreal trade this week.

Shaw T. Nishimura, Canadian representative of the Central Japan Tea Traders' Association in Montreal, left for Japan on Wednesday, February 28. Mr. Nichimura journeys via Chicago and San Francisco, sailing from that port for Yokohama. His trip in Japan will be in the interest of his trade, looking after the orders of his clients and making personal selections from the plantations of the teas most suitable for this market. Mrs. Nishimura accompanies him.

TORONTO.

Tomatoes—Are up 5c. and going up another 5c.

Acadia Sugar—Is up 15c., others 10c. Market strong.

Molasses—Are advancing.

Dried Apricots—Are getting scarce.

Spices—Market strong. Ginger up 5c., cream of tartar 3c.

New catch of fish coming in higher.

Butter market fairly firm; choice dairy scarce.

Eggs up to 18c.

Fresh vegetables getting cheaper.

GROCERIES.

The advances in sugar on the 2nd and 3rd inst. have brought with it some improvement in trade generally. It stimulated purchasing. Generally speaking, markets are firmer, and these are advances not offset by any declines.

Canned Goods — Tomatoes advanced another 5c. this week, and even a 10c. advance is being asked in places. The probability is they will go higher. It is thought not unlikely they will be $1.25 before the new pack comes in. Canned fruits are going well into consumption, and prices are firm all round. Corn, too, is said to be getting into a better position.

A report from the Pacific Coast states that the California asparagus pack, which will begin this month, is estimated at 800,000 cases, and will be the first of any account in three or four years. It has all been sold in advance.

Sugar—The advance in sugar last week was based upon an increase in the price of raws. On March 2 Acadia advanced the price 5c., and on the following day all the refineries, including Acadia, added on 10c., making a total advance for Acadia of 15c. The market is firm at these prices and while further advances are not looked for immediately, it is thought the future holds a further upward movement. The advance put a little ginger into trade generally, because, as one old dealer put it, when prices begin to go up most people begin to hug.

Willett & Gray, New York, in their latest statement on the raw sugar situation, say:

"A change for the better has come over the market. The principal refiners remained withdrawn as buyers, but other refiners, in looking for supplies, found that holders' views had advanced, and they were obliged to pay 1-32c. and, later, a further 1-32c., above the prices for distant sugars current last week. Cuban centrifugals for March shipment are now quoted firm at 2 1-16c. c. and f., equal to 3-42c. landed, at which a fair business has been done.

"A cable from Brazil reports that rains have set in and that the outturn of crop will be much less than expected. Brazil sugars have recently been sold for shipment to United Kingdom at fully 1-8c. above the parity of the American market."

The planting of sugar beets by farmers in Western Ontario will be greater this year than last. Mr. Hugh Blain has received from the agent of the Berlin refinery a statement regarding the farmers' contracts during last week. It says: "We received 91 contracts of 212 1-2 acres, making a total of 1,343 contracts, comprising 3,055 1-4 acres.

We have this year at this date 252 more contracts and 572 1-2 more acres than for the corresponding date of 1905."

Syrups and Molasses—The market has become established in a firm position. New Orleans has advanced 2c. in New York, and as stocks here are light, the advance is being asked here by some. Barbadoes also show a very firm tendency, but fancy is still quoted at 42c. to 48c., and fine at 32c. to 42c. Quotations generally remain as last week.

Tea—The cables this week from Ceylon indicate a continued shortness of supplies and a strong market. The quality is good. The Calcutta market for India tea has closed and will probably reopen about the first of June, and meantime there have been free offerings of Calcutta teas afloat and for reshipments from London. Commonest grades show good value; strictly fine liquoring teas are scarce and bringing high prices.

Japans—The stocks in Japan are entirely exhausted. This has had little influence on the spot, as the demand is not brisk and buying is confined entirely to a hand to mouth process.

Gow, Wilson & Stanton, London, on February 23, state." "There has been a slight improvement in the demand for Indian tea, and the depression noticed in the market during the last few weeks has not been quite as marked. No actual advance, however, has taken place in prices, though the presence of some better liquoring teas from Assam and Darjeeling, as well as a few from the Dooars district, has imparted a rather better tone."

The export of tea from Ceylon last year was a record, reaching 172,629,960 lbs., which was 13 1-2 million pounds more than the export of 1904, and 23 1-2 millions more than in 1902. The bulk of the increase went to the United Kingdom. The total was divided: 112,620,026 lbs. to the United Kingdom; 60,009,934 lbs. elsewhere.

Coffee—Quotations continue unchanged, but the situation is firm. Willett & Gray say:

"It appears probable that the figures of the world's visible made up for March 1st will be two million bags less than the same date a year ago. The movement of the crops at Rio and Santos continue to run far below expectations and the statistical figures of the coffee position are becoming stronger from day to day. On the other hand, the coffee world is inundated with reports that the next Santos crop may be immense.

"Brazil advices confirm that the coffee states have signed an agreement on the valorization project. It is also reported that the capital has been amply secured and the coffee states are now asking Congress to fix a standard rate of exchange at which the convertible notes will be redeemed. They realize that an advance in the currency price and in the rate of exchange cannot be established both at the same time. Coffee people cannot fail to appreciate the fact that the effect of the valorization law will be to afford financial assistance, so that the planters will not be obliged to sell their coffee as fast as it comes in, as they have been doing of late years."

Foreign Dried Fruits—Here again the markets are showing a tendency to advance. In currants the market abroad and also in the United States is quite firm, and the position is considered strong. The valencia raisin stocks are exhausted in Spain, but the fruit continues to sell freely here without any advance in prices. Higher prices are expected for sultana raisins. The crop in Smyrna is nearly exhausted and the ber. Apricots are getting scarce, but ber. Apricots are getting scarce, but no advance is yet announced.

Spices—Eastern cables report a slowly advancing market in nearly all spices.

Cables indicate a slightly stronger market in peppers. There has been a bear movement in pepper in London, Eng., which has forced the market down, but the demand of short sellers to cover in the past week has brought about an advance of about 3-8 of a penny.

James W. Phyn & Co. report the following shipments in tons from Singapore and Penang during the last half of February;

Black Pepper—United States, 80; Great Britain, 30; continent, 125.

Rice and Tapioca—No further advances are quoted for tapioca this week. The market, though, is firm at the high price established, and tapioca is likely to remain a scarce article in Canada for many months yet.

The New Orleans Board of Trade is conducting a campaign against the lowering of the duty on rice from the Philippines as proposed by the Philippine tariff bill. It is asserted that while the change would ruin the rice industry in the Gulf coast country of the United States, it would not help the Philippinos who import rice now. It would, however, encourage speculative export of the annual crop of 8,000,000 bags to the United States, and cheap Indian rice would be brought in to take its place.

B. C. News.

Vancouver, Feb. 28, 1906.

A meeting of steamshipmen interested in northern shipping was held in the board room at the C.P.R. general offices here this week, to discuss the question of freight rates for the approaching season in the Yukon trade. All apprehensions of the trade that rates would be increased have been relieved. Announcement that no increase would be made was given out, and a comment made by some of those present was that re-arrangement of classification would result in actual decrease in some cases.

The fact that the White Pass & Yukon Railway, controlling the river transportation on the Yukon, as well as the rail line from Skagway to White Horse, was not inclined to stand in on any raise which might jeopardize the freight business over their route, had some influence on the steamship companies. The White Pass people carried less freight last year than in any year of their operation, and they do not want to see a further diminution this year. A sharp increase in through rates to Dawson and Lower Yukon points would throw a large quantity of freight to the St. Michaels and Nome steamers at this early stage of the season. The quantity of freight to be sent in is limited, and almost might be considered a fixed quantity so the White Pass very wisely, and very naturally, does not wish to divide that any more than necessary.

Preparations for the season have already begun, as there will be quite a movement of passengers bound to reach Dawson "over the ice." It is likely that two or three of the steamers laid off all Winter will be started in on the route to Skagway early this month. The severe weather of a few weeks ago is now reported as being much moderated. Traffic on the Winter trail is active but freight is not yet moving for through shipment.

Now that attention has been turned to the possibility of wheat and flour traffic for export trade from this port, coming to Vancouver from Alberta, projects for erection of flour mills are of ordinary moment. A number of well-known local men, associated with eastern capitalists are negotiating for a desirable piece of waterfront property which also has rail facilities. If this is secured the statement is positively made that the intention is to erect a 5,000-barrel mill, to engage in the export trade.

Because the Chinese are boycotting American goods at the present time it is asserted that large quantities of flour are being shipped to the Orient, marked Canadian, which originated on the other side of the line. The possibilities of Japanese and Chinese trade in Canadian flour are causing the many projected mills to be discussed. That Canadian flour is in demand across the Pacific is indicated by an inquiry received last week by the Columbia Flouring Mills Enderby, B.C., for 500 tons of flour for immediate shipment to the Orient. While the mill is a very complete and well-equipped plant, and such an order could be filled if time enough were given, Manager Moffatt had to inform the inquiring purchaser that his mill was not equal to the task of turning out such a big order for immediate shipment.

Spring salmon are running, though the season is a little later than usual. As a rule fishing Springs begins early in the year, sometimes even at Christmas. Most of those so far caught have been secured in the Gulf round the many islands. They have not yet come into the Fraser River in any numbers.

The fishermen met at New Westminster yesterday and decided to ask 8c. per lb. for red springs, 4c. for white springs; this price to hold till April 15, and from that date until the end of May or of the run of Spring salmon, 5c. to be the price per lb. for red springs, and 2½c. per lb. for whites.

The halibut run this season has been phenomenal. The New England Fish Company's steamers, New England and Kingfisher, have been reaching port with very large catches. The Kingfisher arrived on Tuesday night with 160,000 lbs., caught at Dixon Entrance, Hecate Straits. The halibut vessels operating from Seattle have also been getting big catches, one steamer reaching the Sound port this week with 225,000 lbs. of fish.

Some fresh frozen halibut has been sent down from Port Simpson for shipment east, the Wallace Bros., of Claxton, being engaged in freezing fish, as well as in curing and salmon canning. Another competitor is said to be about to enter the traffic in halibut, a company having been formed in Vancouver to buy a steam trawler in England. This vessel is expected to reach port at any time on her long trip round the Horn. This will be the first establishment of trawling for halibut, though the method is regularly employed in the Old Country.

W. D. Code, a wealthy Englishman who has large property holdings on Graham Island Queen Charlotte group, is said also to be contemplating engaging in fishing for halibut, making his place on Graham Island a base of operations. The Queen Charlotte Islands are almost in the centre of the halibut banks. Mr. Code is having the fishing schooner Nellie Thurston fitted out for his new enterprise.

Markets.—Features of trade are scarce this week with the exception of a little brisker buying by retail grocers on orders dated for first of the month. This is the ordinary practice at the end of the month, but the fact that business has, of course, not been heavy for the past two months makes the present buying a little more noticeable.

Trade prospects never were brighter. The season is apparently opening up early, and so many industries show expansion, while new projects are being exploited, that the supply trade is likely to be very much larger this year. The most active factor at the present moment is the outfitting of northern logging camps, and the northern canneries come close second. By the middle of the month the supplies for the canneries will be moving very rapidly forward and will lead in volume of trade. By that time the Yukon supply trade will begin to move a little, first for some last minute "over-the-ice" shipments of special goods, and then of goods for holding at White Horse to await the opening of the river.

Grocery prices show slight change or movement this week. The advance in sugar of 1th, noted last week, holds. Mr. B. T. Rogers, manager of the B. C.

Sugar Refinery, leaves to-morrow on the Australian steamer for Suva, Fiji, where the company has large sugar plantations.

Produce market is unchanged. The New Zealand butter moved out of wholesale hands very rapidly, and the next shipment is expected in about two weeks. Some eastern butter is arriving, and the supply of local fresh creamery is keeping up fairly.

Eggs have dropped down as predicted. Local fresh can be bought at 30c. on the New Westminster market, in jobbing lots. Some Oregon and Washington shipments continue to be received, and the price is about as quoted last week.

In fruit the orange market is active, prices ruling as last week and stocks of fine quality.

Apples from Washington are being received and selling at $2.50 per box, though their fancy appearance is their chief recommendation. Local stocks are small, Coldstreams being practically off the market. Some apples from Lytton and other up-country points are in the market in a limited quantity. Prices are $2 and $2.25. The pineapples received ex Aorangi have been pretty well sold down, the fact that they were rather too ripe when received preventing their being held.

In vegetables the market shows no new features. Lettuce still brings $1.75 per crate, and scarce. Potatoes are moving slowly, and no change is marked in prices.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, March 7, 1906.

The grocery trade has improved some since last report. Jobbers say that orders are coming in more freely. Prices have not varied very much, all lines being fairly steady. A heavy fall of snow during the week has added stimulus to the business, persons from outside points being able to move about much more easily with the improved condition of the roads. Collections on the whole are very satisfactory.

Eggs — Contine in good supply, and there is a fair demand for the fresh laid article. The eggs in cold storage are likely to remain there, as the holders cannot market them at any price. Generally the surplus stock here can be worked off on the American market, but there is as great an over supply there as here, both as regards the cold storage eggs and the fresh laid. The jobbers who have these eggs in storage here will be hard hit. They bought when the market was strong and paid a high price for them. Some dealers here quote fresh laid eggs at 17c., while cold storage can be bought several cents below that figure. If the weather conditions remain the same there will not likely be any change in the market.

Butter—Is in good supply, and the calculations of those early in the season that the price for butter would reach record figures is not likely to be realized now. There are lots of Ontario and Quebec butter in stock here, and the local supply is improving greatly. The farmers are sending in more fresh butter at this season of the year than is usually the case. Creamery is quoted at 26c.; solids 24c. to 25c.; dairy tubs at 22c. to 23c.; rolls from 21c. to 23c. Some choice rolls bring as high as 25c. Cheese is steady at last quotation.

Sugar—The local sugar war for the time being seems to be at an end. There has been an advance here of 10c. per hundred pounds in the price of Austrian granulated, but other grades are about the same. The retail dealer who was selling this sugar at $5.50 per bag of 100 pounds has removed the quotations from his window. The price quoted now by the wholesalers is $3.70. Some of the retailers are still selling at former quotations, viz., 27 pounds for $1, and the man who is going one pound better for the same money is still doing business at the same old stand.

Flour—The millers have reduced some grades of Manitoba flour 10c., but the cut is not general here. The dealers here were anticipating an advance, not a decline. The quotations here at present follow: Manitobas, $5.50; seventy per cent., $4.70; eighty per cent., $4.60; ninety per cent, $4.25; straights, $4.15. Rolled oats are quoted here at $4.75 to $4.85.

Fruits—Good apples are scarce on this market at the present time. Northern spys and the best grades of russets are fetching $4.50 per barrel, and some highly colored Baldwins (not better than good No. 2's) are selling at the same figure. There is a general complaint here about the packing and the marking of the apples, and there seems no redress. The nominal fine imposed by the inspectors does not appear to have any good effect hereabouts. The opinion here is that the grower should be well satisfied with $4.50 per barrel for his apples. Evaporated apples are also advancing, and it is expected the price will go still higher as the market becomes free of green apples. They are now quoted here at 10½c. to 11c.

Naval oranges are quoted here at $3.75 for all counts, and lemons at $2.75 to $3 per case of 300 count.

Grapes are scarce here, and those now on the market are quoted at $7 per bag.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, March 8, 1906.

Business begins to show improvement after a rather quiet Winter. We have had one of our heaviest Winter storms during the past week. The snow was welcome, particularly by our lumbermen in some parts of the province, as for a great part of the Winter in some sections the ground has been bare. The lumber interest affects New Brunswick as nothing else.

The retaining of the I. C. Railway by the Government is a matter of present interest. There would seem some western influence is toward its being sold. The Maritime Provinces are a unit against such action. The boards of trade are taking the matter up. There are too many reasons against its sale to attempt to mention them here. One, and it should be a sufficient one, is that a Government road was a promise made to the Maritime Provinces at Confederation and to allow the road to pass to private control would be a breach of faith. The Government bear the expense of the maintenance of the canals and they are now free "even to American commerce." A deficit, even if necessary, which we do not admit, is not a sufficient reason to sell the railroad.

Oil.—In burning oil there is still an active sale. Prices continue low. It has been a Winter of cheap oil, but still well above the prices in the U. S. Lubricatings have much attention and a good outlook for trade is reported. This is a line in which there is little change in values. Paint oils will rule quite high this year, linseeds being much higher than last season and turpentine even higher than the extreme prices then ruling. Cod oil has but a fair movement. Quite full prices rule.

Salt.—In Liverpool coarse salt this is rather a large market. The Winter is the quiet season. The outlook is little, if any, changed. Fair stocks held. In Canadian fine, dealers are beginning to get in Spring stocks, prices unchanged. There is very apt to be delay a little later in getting deliveries, in dairy salt in particular.

Canned goods.—There is nothing of interest. Vegetables continue low. Tomatoes while somewhat firmer are still sold below the cost of replacing. Fruits have but a limited inquiry, apples having perhaps the best demand. Salmon in good supply. Oysters are firm. Lobsters hold at the high prices which have ruled for some time. In domestic fish a fair stock of sardines; other lines somewhat short.

Dried fruit.—Some California seeded raisins at the lower prices have been received, but market is quite firm. There has already been an advance at the coast. In other lines of raisins but a fair business. Prunes are higher, particularly small sizes, stocks light. Apricots and peaches but a fair sale, prices quite firm. Currants are rather higher, but local prices little changed. Dates tend upward. In peels the outlook is for high prices, particularly citron. Onions dull. New Valencias are offered, quite full prices asked. Canadian onions Wintered badly. Evaporated apples high.

Sugar.—Prices still low and little change expected. A fair business only.

Molasses.—There is still interest in reference to the duty on fancy Barbadoes. The department, it is said, have decided that on the early importations duty will not be charged, but that after this duty will be collected. It is thought this will apply to any molasses testing 52 degrees and over. However, little if any molasses outside the fancy Barbadoes will do this. Prices are little changed.

Fish.—There is a fair business in fresh fish. Supply this season has been good and prices well maintained. In dry fish high prices still rule. Pickled herring are in light supply and full prices are asked. In smoked herring prices are still high. Finnan haddies rather dull. There is now quite a sale for prepared smoked herring.

Association offices, 53 Scott building, Main street, Winnipeg.

Secretary Coulson is sending the western trade this week the following circular letter :

Dear Sir :—Our annual meeting has come and gone and it is very gratifying to each of our members to know that in the very short time we have been organized our membership has increased to 600 with the prospect of an equally large increase in the year just entered upon. As the result of the work of the secretary and the local associations much good has already been accomplished, but much still remains to be done along the lines of curtailment of credit, discouraging and preventing the unnecessary and unreasonable multiplication of business places, preventing price-cutting, obtaining a more equitable assessment law and a cheaper rate of fire insurance by the establishment of a Merchants' Mutual Fire Insurance Company. There is also much to be done in preventing the wholesale trade from selling to consumers, in obtaining legislation to prevent misrepresentation both in the advertising and the stamping and labeling of goods and in inducing manufacturers to sell staples on the price contract plan, thus doing away with price-cutting in department stores.

In order that the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada may have the influence it desires and requires for the protection of its members it is necessary to secure the co-operation of all merchants, for the stronger we are the greater good we can do and the greater pressure we can bring to bear to accomplish our undertakings. To this end we have joined forces with the Retail Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association of Western Canada, who have a membership of about 300, thus making a joint membership west of Winnipeg of almost 1,000. We have also affiliated with the Dominion Retail Merchants' Association, who are very strong in Eastern Canada. We want retailers of all classes in our association and trust that each member will do his best to assist the executive and induce others to join us.

Some are apt to become disappointed or discouraged if they do not at once see financial results, but it should always be remembered that the association is in good working order in many towns and that, as soon as the secretary can do so, he will do the same for all towns. Let us appeal to you to be patient and help the organization work along in your own town. The conditions which confront us were not brought about in a day or a year and it is not reasonable to expect the immediate settlement of all grievances. You can rest assured that the association intend to accomplish, and are endeavoring to accomplish, all they can and if we can not succeed when united in an association how much less are our chances of success from individual effort ?

The wholesaler, the manufacturer and the Government will very seriously consider a request from an association with a membership so large and representative as ours, when they could afford to ignore an individual request. From the full report in The Canadian Grocer of the proceedings at the convention February 13, 14 and 15, you can readily see what the association has done in the past year, and what benefits have been derived by its members.

It is most necessary that district and local associations be organized to discuss and arrange matters pertaining to separate districts, and that such districts work harmoniously with adjoining districts and keep in touch with each other. If you have a grievance which cannot be righted locally, e.g. the consumer being supplied directly by the wholesaler, the selling of staples under cost, or any matter affecting the trade, please advise your secretary promptly, giving him full particulars. Respectfully yours.

W. A. COULSON.

An effective scheme for the collection of bad debts is now being put in operation by the secretary. Members of the association in good standing are being supplied by the secretary with blank forms from the credit, reporting and collecting department. When an association member has trouble in collecting an account from a dead-beat he fills out one of these letter forms which read as follows :

Dear Sir : Our account amounting to $ has not been settled yet, according to your promise. Unless we hear from you, and you adjust it in a satisfactory manner before the we will hand it over to the credit, reporting and collecting department of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada, of which association we are members, and which include among its membership nearly all the retail merchants of all classes in the western provinces, and which is formed for self-protection. We would regret being obliged to do this, as the account thereby goes into the hands of a very strong and influential organization, and every member is informed thereof. We dislike to believe that you purchased the goods with the intention of not settling for them, so we expect you will not fail to call in and see us before the above date.

Yours respectfully,

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

The cheese market remains about unchanged. Prices are very firm, there is a steady demand and available supplies are getting into a very small compass. At present everybody on this side of the Atlantic holding any goods feels like selling regardless of the future. The argument is, we are in March and prices are high. There is no incentive for speculation, it is merely supplying the present consumptive demand and this demand is largely curtailed by the prevailing high prices.

But, after all our present stocks of cheese are sold, there will be a shortage and it is likely that the new season's make will start in at higher prices than what are at present obtainable for finest September and October goods.

It is difficult to look into the future, but we have had a very peculiar Winter, very little snow, and the pastures may suffer on this account. Further, we are likely to start the new season's make with the old stocks all cleared, and a strong demand for the new goods.

Taking supplies and demand as a regulator of the trade or market, we are likely to face another season of fairly high prices, and, as far as the merchants are concerned, this may mean another unprofitable season.

In storing cheese for any length of time, the shrinkage in weight is a very material item, and, as we have pointed out before in these articles, the paraffining of the cheese will to a very large extent overcome this loss. The British retailer, cutting up the cheese for the consumer, claims he is losing in weight, and that is where the main objection to paraffined cheese comes from, but, taking cheese properly paraffined, it will cure better and become more palatable food, and if subjected to any outside moisture it will not be affected by it. Further, it will retain a clean surface and thus be more attractive to buyers. All these are good reasons why the paraffining of cheese should be more generally adopted and it is to be hoped that ere long every cheese will be paraffined before storing or shipping.

To farmers we wish to impress again the question of individual cow testing. Keep a clear record of the production of each animal, and get rid of those who do not pay for their keep. This is the age of close competition and we must look out sharply for all points of economy.

The raising of the bacon hog is another important question for our farmers to consider. The American hog has made a number of millionaires, the Canadian bacon brings a premium in British markets over the United States product, and there is a big chance for progressive Canadian farmers. The raising of hogs is said to be a nuisance, but it certainly seems to be a source of profit.

A very serious point is the adoption of cream separators by individual farmers. This practice is growing in our most prominent dairy section of the Eastern Townships. Farmers in this section are proverbially progressive. Certainly they have been successful in establishing a reputation for producing the finest quality of butter of the Dominion of Canada, but by putting in these cream separators they are going a step too far.

The fact is that Ontario butter is not considered as good as butter made in the Province of Quebec, which is principally due to the "gathered cream" system, and if our farmers in the Eastern Townships will now go into the "gathered cream" system by putting in cream separators, they will put their product down to the level of Ontario creamery butter. This is suicidal policy. Carting cream, gathered two or three days, over rough country roads in hot Summer weather cannot possibly make as good butter as can be produced from fresh milk delivered daily to the creamery.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

There is very little change in the provision situation since our last report. Business continues much in the same way as it has been going the last few weeks. Arrivals of hogs are getting small in volume and prices continue to rule high. It is usual to experience a drop in supplies about this time of year, but of course the present shortage is particularly felt on account of the full supply of the last few months being sadly below requirements. One large Toronto factory reports having received sufficient hogs at the close of last, and the commencement of this week to place their men on full time, a fact worth noting under the conditions of short time which have been ruling for some while.

Under usual conditions farmers should begin to market fair quantities of hogs early in April, but whether they will do so this year is yet a matter of conjecture; it is questionable whether they will have stock sufficiently mature for the purpose.

The position of the packer is not an enviable one; he is in reality the necessary medium between the farmer and the public for the placing of the farmer's product in marketable form, yet with the odds seriously against him, for whilst the farmer can hold back his supplies if the market does not suit his idea, the packer must take them when he can get them, and manufacture forthwith, whether demand is active or not. At no far distant date there will be several new factories in operation. The Gunn Bros.' factory is nearly completed at Toronto and the Wm. Davies Company at Montreal is in a near touch of completion, so that competition for hogs will begin in right down earnest. This, with short supplies, will mean high prices somewhere and it needs no great insight to see that the general public will be the sufferers.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

The improved demand for butter, to which reference was made last week, has happily continued. Choicest parcels of both Australian and New Zealand makes are doing well, the former realizing from 102 to 104 shillings, and the latter 106 to 108 shillings, these figures being within reasonable level of prices at this time last year. The inferior grades of colonial butter are not, however, selling with such freedom, and, indeed, when the quality is taken into consideration, the quotations, from 98 to 103 shillings, certainly seem high. Sellers are hoping that the demand will continue to be good, for, although arrivals for this week have been on a somewhat large scale, receipts due next week are to be considerably less.

No doubt Canadian shippers will be interested in the following paragraph from a contemporary:

"The president of the Board of Agriculture has promised to appoint a Select Committee of the House of Commons for the purpose of exhaustively threshing out the question of the blending and adulteration of butter, with the object of stopping the 'faking' and adulteration at present so extensively practiced. The appointment of the committee should meet with universal approval, as it is the best and most efficient way of dealing with the subject."

This will be good news to colonial exporters of butter, for, in the past, they have suffered to no small degree by the unfair competition of this cheaper and adulterated produce. Certain firms in Holland are said to be great offenders in this respect.

There is not much to report in regard to the cheese market, but what there is is satisfactory. Both Canadian and New Zealand makes are meeting with a readier sale, and prices have advanced 1s. per cwt. Prices now stand at 64s. to 65s. for choicest Canadian, with finest quality 2s. lower. This works out at about 12s. more than at this time last year.

In regard to stocks on hand, up to the present receipts have been on a somewhat small scale, and the demand is slowly, almost imperceptibly, surpassing the arrivals. On February 22 stocks in warehouse here in London stood at 91,155 boxes. Of course, over and above this, importers have a few thousand cheese in their own small stores.

The quality of Canadian cheese continues to be very fine; there are few complaints, and the packing is certainly better than last year.

Mr. C. W. Bowman, manager of the Montreal Packing Company, of Montreal, is at present recuperating his health at Bahama. Mr. Bowman hopes to be back in a few weeks completely restored to health.

COLD STORAGE OF POULTRY A MENACE TO HEALTH

A good deal of excitement has been aroused in the Chicago provision trades by a declaration on behalf of the Illinois State Board of Health and the pure Food Commission to the effect that the storage of poultry in cold storage under usual conditions is dangerous to the public health. The two state departments will issue a joint communication to the mayor and city council urging the passage of an ordinance forbidding the sale of any slaughtered poultry, fish, game or any animal used for food purposes, refrigerated or otherwise, "which has not been properly drawn and prepared by removing entrails at the time of slaughter."

The ordinance recommended provides a penalty of a fine not exceeding $100 or by imprisonment not to exceed thirty days, or both.

The communication, which reads as follows, will be sent to the mayor of Chicago and all the other mayors and municipal and village authorities of the state.

Poisons Are Generated.

"The necessity for such ordinances and their enforcement is plainly indicated by the rapidly growing custom of storing poultry, fish and game containing the entrails and other viscera and offering them for sale long periods of time after being killed, and the danger to public health caused by this custom.

"It is known to all physicians and physiologists that there are generated in the body of any animal poisons of the highest degree of toxicity. The intestines and other digestive organs contain at all time materials which have undergone putrefactive changes. If this material be permitted to remain in the body after death the poisons generated may infiltrate the entire flesh, making it dangerous to the person who gets it. The body, in which the viscera are permitted to remain, undergoes decomposition much more rapidly than when such viscera have been removed. Decomposition is further hastened by leaving the blood in the animal.

"It has become the custom of wholesale poulterers and packers to purchase poultry during the early summer, when the prices are lowest, and to keep it in cold storage until winter or until the prices are highest. Such fowls are killed without bleeding, often plucked before death, and placed in cold storage without removing the entrails and other viscera. Frequently they are not offered for sale until several months after killing.

Freezing Not Effective Process.

"The process of decomposition and putrefaction begins at once. Cold storage and freezing may limit the rotting process, but do not stop it. When poultry or animals are taken from cold storage and thawed out for exhibition and sale the decomposition continues with renewed energy, impregnating the flesh with poisons. Flesh in which the blood has been permitted to remain is particularly susceptible to such decomposition, and this susceptibility is increased by the long period of freezing and thawing.

"Even with poultry that is 'freshly killed' there is frequently a period of several days between the time of slaughtering and sale. Not only is it dangerous, but it is repugnant to our sense of decency that the flesh we are apt to eat shall lie for several days in close contact with putrifying animal matter.

"Undoubtedly undrawn poultry, flesh and game has caused many cases of poisoning which have wrongfully been attributed to other causes. The poisoning resulting often resembles that caused by other poisons administered by persons or taken with suicidal intent.

Consumers Buy Waste Material.

"We are advised that the reason for slaughtering poultry without bleeding is saving in the weight of the fowl, and this reason is doubtless also one for storing poultry and offering it for sale without removing the viscera. There is, however, no reason why the consumer should be compelled to purchase a large percentage of excreta, offal, and refuse with his poultry."

CANADIAN BACON GAINING IN FAVOR.

United States exports of bacon to Great Britain, according to British returns for the fiscal year ended December 31 last, decreased from £7,370,000 in 1903 and £6,209,000 in 1904 to £5,828,000 in 1905. During the same period the imports from Canada into Great Britain increased from £1,690,000 in 1903 and £1,865,000 in 1904 to £2,750,000 in 1905. These two countries and Denmark form Great Britain's chief sources of supply, but Denmark also shows a decrease from £4,532,000 in 1904 to £3,970,000 in 1905.

These figures are adduced to bear out a recent official report of Canada's commercial agent at Leeds, England, that Canadian bacon is gaining in popularity every day as against American bacon.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS,

MONTREAL.

Provisions.

There is no change in the local provision market. The hog market continues steady and prices are unchanged. Some Manitoba hogs are offered from $9.25 to $9.50 per 100 lbs. Good steady business is being done in smoked meats. Fresh killed abattoir dressed hogs $10 to $10.25; country dressed, $9.00 to $9.50.

Butter.

Prices are firm on the strictly finest butter, which is getting rather scarce. There is still a good quantity of butter on the market which is not the finest which is pressed for sale. The market for this class is rather weak. A few shipments are being made to outside points.

The price asked for the finest cheese is 13 1-2c. There is not a great deal for sale, but it is hard to get this figure. In some quarters it is claimed that the best goods, colored, may be obtained for 12c. but this is rather low, and 13c. to 13 1-2c. is considered about the right price at present.

Eggs.

Eggs are steady. There is a very good demand for fresh laid at 20c. to 21c. per dozen, which is quite an advance on last week's quotations. Cold storage are obtainable at 14c. to 15c. Receipts are light, but it is likely that the market will ease off a little from now onward.

Trade is brisk and the market is firm. The receipts of live hogs are light and present prices are considered stable for a time. Long clear is ranging a 1-4c. higher. The prices for beef are firm, which is usually the case at this season of the year, though Lent has somewhat checked consumption. Choice carcasses are 25c. higher. Not much more will be done in carlots of hogs this season, but the quotation stands as last week. Shoulder hams are 1-4c. higher.

Butter.

Creamery is a little scarce and so are dairy prints of choice quality. The English market continues somewhat soft; should it harden sufficiently to absorb the surplus here, prices may be expected to remain pretty firm. Otherwise they must come down with increased production. Just now the industry is loitering at the opening of the season. Some factories are making large quantities, others not much. Of the less desirable grades of dairy butter there is too much. Some dealers say it has been kept too long by the country storekeepers, others that the country is eating its best and sending in only the rest. Some dealers are quoting creamery prints as high as 27 cents.

Trade is good; the last month having shown a marked improvement. There is a good demand for butter, eggs and meats.

Eggs.

There was a flurry in eggs at the end of last week and 22c. was paid for them on Saturday. The market has got back to, or near, the level of a week ago, and new laid are quoted from 17c. to 19c. Lent has created a marked increase in consumption. The high price of meat of late years has been another factor in popularizing the egg.

In barrel pork rather higher prices are asked; business is quiet. Beef shows little change. Smoked meats are high. Pure lard is high; chiefly American seen. Refined compound has a large sale; while price is firm, it is relatively low. In fresh beef, market is still very dull, low prices being named. Some nice veal offered, and obtains good prices. There is little lamb, but mutton holds at fair figures. Pork is high.

CANNED GOODS IN BELGIUM.

Until the past few years Belgium was compelled to draw on France for her canned goods of all description. There have been importations from the United States, but these were of little importance. This industry, however, has been created in Belgium with the result that the domestic goods are put upon the market at a price better within the reach of the people. The industry is in an imperfect condition, and the market is yet open for the introduction of Canadian canned products, which enjoy a reputation of merit throughout Belgium.

M. Cole, of Lindsay, has made up his mind to go to the Northwest and is arranging to dispose of his business.

Retail Book-keeping

The New System of Retail Book-keeping for Grocers.

What advantage has the Copeland-Chatterson System over other methods of accounting? That is the question generally asked by the grocer when he is approached on the installing of this system in his business, and really the very best reply that could be suggested would be in the nature of some advice: "Ask the man who is using a Copeland-Chatterson System."

The kernel of the argument is, however, that the loose leaf method, as installed by the Copeland-Chatterson Company, is a labor-saver; it facilitates the handling of business; simplifies the bookkeeping to a remarkable extent, and is, broadly, a money-making investment in every way.

Instead of having a multiplicity of cumbersome books, clogged with dead accounts, for the handling of a retail business, there is but one active book. Now, one active book outside the original entry covers the entire service to the Recapitulation Sheets, and provides in a simple way for the prompt distribution of the monthly accounts.

A few years ago, under the old system, it was the usual thing for accountants to work every night over their books until ten or eleven o'clock. Now it is a most uncommon occurrence for an accountant to be at his desk after the regular closing hour of business, and this radical change is due entirely to the introduction of the Copeland-Chatterson System. This is not only a labor-saving method, but assures the correct keeping of records. These individual records, by almost automatic process, take their places in proper rotation in their respective binders, and are always on hand for instant reference. If a customer asks at any time for his account, it is at hand. If the account is to be sent to him there is no delay. It is already written out, and needs only totalling and mailing.

The strongest recommendation for the Copeland-Chatterson System, probably, is the list of great and small business houses covering this continent, and scattered over Europe, who employ this method of accounting. If any of the subscribers of Canadian Grocer are interested they should write The Copeland-Chatterson Company, at Toronto, for information; it will be cheerfully sent.

must appeal to the grocer looking for a class of trade the certainty of which is assured.

This is how ORANGE MEAT appeals to Young and Caven, Aylmer, Ont.:

"We might add that we are very well pleased with our trade in ORANGE MEAT. When we explain to our customers the value they get compared with other cereals, they invariably take ORANGE MEAT without any hesitation. We will give this line our attention, as we believe we can cancel other lines and and save carrying extra stocks."

The opportunity to do a thriving ORANGE MEAT business is not confined to one grocer.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The dull and uninteresting situation referred to in our last report still further developed itself after our going to press, and in the end reached a point where prices had fallen to an almost impossible basis for present holders. The Chicago market led, and quickly reached a 5c. decline. There was no course left but for the Canadian dealers to reduce proportionately, which was done. There has, however, been a partial recovery, and present quotations stand, at time of going to press, at about 1c. below quotations of a week ago.

This movement appears to be the effect of the heavy wheat supply on hand. The universal demand has fallen considerably short of the amount available, and foreign buyers have shown a firm disposition to cut prices below quotations. The apparent result has been to bring down the markets.

It would have been thought that when prices reached more nearly to the export basis that trade would have immediately jumped ahead. This, however, is not so. Export business is as dull as ever, and millers are showing no disposition to take hold, apparently believing still lower prices will rule.

The situation is evidently an interesting one and worthy of study. Stocks in U. S. appear to be gradually increasing, instead of decreasing, as the new season approaches. Whilst Russia is hurrying her wheat into every available market—she is probably using her available stock of wheat, which is believed to be large, as a financial proposition to create funds—the late war and internal eruption make no difference to her wheat resources. She apparently held immense reserves to use on emergency.

India has entered the field as a producer, and Australia is also a competitor to be counted upon. It will thus be seen that with the enormous supply of the Great West, which in itself is sufficient to supply the world, that the export buyer is in a more independent position, and that to a large extent he is master of the situation.

It is getting more difficult to close business in export flour. Enquiries continue good, but English importers are getting hard buyers; no new business of importance has been effected, the prices offered being too much below margins.

The domestic flour trade has shown improvement. Some of the best posted millers and flour dealers say that a good demand may spring up at any time now, as stocks are repocted to be very light, both in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, and this, combined with the demand which is always looked for with the opening of navigation, may cause a good demand for flour shortly, and will strengthen the situation materially and probably cause a sharp advance in prices.

QUAKER OATS TO ISSUE NEW STOCK.

President Crowell, of the Quaker Oats Company, in his statement to the stockholders at their annual meeting, says the company was never in a stronger financial position. The income account, which includes all the subsidiary companies, shows total receipts of $1,119,572, and a surplus of $578,540 after the payment of $541,032 as dividends and interests on bonds. This is for the year ended Dec. 31, 1905. There is $80,529 cash on hand, and the surplus is $959,433.

The real estate and plants of the company, together with the stock and securities in the subsidiary companies, are valued at $11,026,682. There is due $400,208 from the under companies, the inventory foots up $2,783,587, and the accounts and bills receivable total $1,691,344. Accounts and bills payable aggregate $1,539,597.

In his report President Crowell says: The directors have decided to call in and cancel the bonds of the American Cereal Co., amounting to $1,600,000. Notice is to be given on March 1 and the bonds are to be paid June 1, 1906. The retirement of these bonds leaves all the milling properties of the company unencumbered, subject only to claims of the preferred stock.

The directors have also decided to adopt the policy of issuing and selling new stock for the purpose of furnishing money for new construction and developments, instead of taking them out of the earnings, as has previously been done. They will issue a call for a special meeting in March to consider an increase of $1,000,000 in the preferred stock and $500,000 in the common stock. This is to be offered to shareholders at par. Since the company formed there has been expended out of earnings or capital about $1,000,000.

The company expects to erect new mills during the present year. The company's mill at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has been entirely rebuilt. This crippling of the company's capital made it necessary to ship products from mills not so conveniently located, reducing the usual profit. The company's development in foreign lands is advancing with rapid strides, and the outlook there is fully as promising as at home.

PASSOVER FLOUR.

Passover flour will probably never secure widespread importance as an article of commerce, but it forms an important factor in the present operations of an American mill at Shelbyville, Ind. The firm has taken the contract to furnish the Jews of Chicago 1,500 barrels of Passover flour for the holidays which will come in April. In order to manufacture and ship the flour in the state of superlative cleanliness required by the Jewish religion, it was necessary to have the mill cleaned throughout, and new bolting cloths placed on the bolting machines. Both the mill and the wheat had to be inspected by the rabbis, who pronounced the mill to be in entirely satisfactory condition and the wheat to be the best for the purpose they had ever seen. The entire work of grinding the 1,500 barrels of Passover flour will be done under the inspection of two rabbis.

Rolled Oats.

It is very hard to give correct quotations on rolled oats at present. Each mill has its own price. The market is in a very unsettled condition. The prices quoted hereunder may be taken as a fair average of what millers are asking.

Feed.

There is a good demand for all feeds except feed flour. The supply of good bran and shorts, for which the demand is greatest, is rapidly decreasing. The only hope for a remedy is that the milling may become more active, otherwise the situation is not likely to improve until well on towards the end of Spring.

Hay.

The present demand for hay is very light. The prices continue low. Clover mixed sells for $6 and clover pure from $5.50 to $6. These prices are considered very low for clover, but nothing better can be expected as long as the stocks remain as heavy as they now are.

Shipments of hay from this side to the United Kingdom show a falling off since last week. The market over there is at present rather quiet. It is expected that when the farmers get to work the middle of this month, prices will be better. At present the quotation in Liverpool is 57s. 6d. c.i.f. London is about the same.

TORONTO MARKETS.

Flour.

Domestic inquiry has been fairly active since our last report and prices are ruling firm at slightly advanced quotations. The market does not appear to be affected by the recent eccentric movements of the wheat markets; this is probably due to the fact that most of the stocks are held by millers, and whilst local demand at various points continues good there is little probability of them desiring to rush sales.

Grain.

The grain market has been a universally uncertain one during the week under review. In last report a downward movement was remarked with continued weakness. Since that, however, the weakness developed to a totally unexpected degree. In Winnipeg at one time a drop of 3c. was reported, whilst at points across the border the drop was equal to 5c.

Whilst the drop was to a large extent the outcome of a steadily declining market, still there is no doubt that the movement to a certain extent was with an object to stimulate trade. Prices, however, have recovered from the low points reached, but still stand from ½c. to 1c. below last week's prices.

GENERAL STORE WRECKED BY EXPLOSION.

The explosion of a keg of gunpowder on the evening of March 1 wrecked the store of Aaron Wenger, in Ayton, Ont. One of the clerks, A. Wagner, was weighing out some powder and had replaced the lid of the keg. Some grains of the powder fell on it, and a customer suggested putting a match to them to test the powder. Young Wagner did so, but the powder did not burn. He lit another match and as he was about to apply it the explosion took place.

Wagner was hurled clear out of the store and was found on an embankment in the rear, his clothes on fire, himself frightfully burned, and so seriously injured that his recovery was despaired of. Three customers who had watched the attempt to test the powder, Messrs. Widmeyer, Votier and Hocmings, were badly burned, but escaped wonderfully well. Doctors were quickly called to attend the injured.

The interior of the store was badly wrecked and the windows, with sashes, were blown out. Fire started and, though quickly extinguished, the loss by smoke and water was estimated at $2,000. The shock of the explosion was felt through the town.

The man who signs any contract without reading it deserves what he usually has befall him—to get cheated. This is one of the bad habits of too many retail grocers. Thus, for instance, did you read the contract for futures that you signed?

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

The present time might well be described as "between seasons," and to a large extent this is the ruling characteristic at all points. In the Maritime Provinces and at eastern points reports are of fair trade for good fruit, for which high prices are obtained. Montreal and places outside are steady buyers, and all good quality fruit is maintaining firm prices. In Toronto and western points the ruling conditions are practically the same.

A most noticeable feature of the situation is the way in which oranges have held public attention. The earlier arrivals from California were marked by immaturity and inferior growth, but after the action of the packers there in holding back for a short time until matured, quality has made great improvement, and in consequence trade has developed beyond the ordinary.

It may also be a feature that the very high prices and scarcity of apples have tended to turn attention to oranges, which have been somewhat abundant. At present, however, the markets are by no means over supplied, advices from primal points denote only moderate quantities being sent forward and values are consequently trending upward.

Lemons are also getting attractive to the Canadian market. The unusual situation of last season has made dealers quick to notice any irregularity, and there are clear indications that available supplies on the primal markets are, at least, short of expectations. Recent sales on the N. Y. market are clearly indicative of a very firm situation, the quantity of European offered was small and coming on a market absolutely bare of supplies, so far as both first and second hands were concerned, the offering met with a very active demand, and prices advanced sharply, closing fully 50c. a box higher than at previous sales. California lemons brought the highest prices that have been paid since last autumn. The supply was small, amounting to but six cars. Sales of fancy were made up to $3.50, and some choice brought within 20c. of that price.

The export apple trade is still running on at rapid rate, and continues to maintain high prices. Although many complaints have been made during the season by the foreign dealers, as to bad grading, the trade appears to have continued upwards, and most of the recent complaints heard of are really old cases brought again to the front, and again dished up. It is, however, evident that some drastic measures must be taken by the Government before another season, to secure correct and perfect grading for foreign markets. The coming convention of fruit-growers and dealers at Ottawa on March 20, is expected to fully deal with the situation as well as that of uniform packages, and other matters.

The unsettled and unseasonable weather which has been in evidence has not yet had any appreciable affect on the orchards. It is yet too early to cause serious harm, as budding has not yet appeared. The danger at present is more to the trees themselves, any seriously heavy frost getting at the roots, through the soft ground, would probably result in killing off the young and yet tender trees.

FRUIT CONFERENCE AT OTTAWA.

Official notice has been sent out announcing the date of the Dominion conference of fruit growers at Ottawa on the 20th of March. Delegates should arrange, the notice says, to be in Ottawa by the evening of the 19th.

The conference has been called by Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, upon representations made from time to time to him, particularly by a deputation of fruit growers and others who waited upon him last Winter, urging that such a meeting be called for the purpose of discussing various questions of national import bearing on the fruit industry.

At the annual meeting of the Victoria District Fruit Growers' Association it was decided to send a delegate according to the wishes of the Minister of Agriculture, and at a subsequent meeting of the directors James A. Grant was chosen to represent them. Mr. Grant will leave for Ottawa about the 10th of March. He has made a study of local fruit growing conditions and requirements for the past eighteen years, having as well recently received a diploma for a course in the Horticultural Correspondence School of Springfield, Mass. He is therefore well qualified to speak for the industry on Vancouver Island.

There will be present at the conference two representatives from Prince Edward Island, four from Nova Scotia, two from New Brunswick, five from Quebec, nine from Ontario, one from Manitoba, one from Saskatchewan, one from Alberta, and four from British Columbia. The departments of agriculture of the several provinces and the agricultural colleges will be asked to send one officer each in addition to the regular delegates, and the various officials of the Dominion Department of Agriculture and experimental farms will be in attendance in an advisory or expert capacity.

ROTTEN APPLES.

"I've been down in the suller sortin' over the apples, an' they's beginning to rot bad," said Old Twilight, who smelt like a cross between a cider mill and a mince pie.

"This is the one time o' year fer them to spile," said Aunt Lucy, comfortingly.

"That's it" agreed Old Twilight — "that's it 'zactly. Every day in the year something or other is in season to rot. If it ain't apples it's turmots; if it ain't turmots, it's some other blame thing. Dang! Whenever I take my walks abroad what rotten things I see! Turn where I will, I see something spiled or spilin'. Every fambly has a skeleton in the cupboard, and something rotten in the back yard. I upsot a barrel of apples this afternoon, an' one out of every three was only fit for the hogs to eat."

"Why wasn't they fed to the hawgs when they was sound?" snapped Aunt Lucy. "Durn you, Willyum, anyway! You're jes' like the rest of the world, you never give away anything till it's rotten.

"Thur's Missus Jones. She'll make a mince pie or angel cake, and she'll put it by in a cupboard, she's that close an' mean, an' there it'll stay till it's blue moulded an' not fit fer a body to eat, an' then she up'n puts it on the table—help yourselves!

"Missus Meany, she'll buy a piece of dress goods, and she'll cram it away in some old closet till it's moth-eaten, and then she'll make a present of the measly thing to her darter-in-law, and stay with her two months on the head of it.

"Folks wait till yer dead, and then go round sayin' what a good feller — what a smart pusson he was. That's rotten. Burns died hungry and pore, and before he was stiff the jackasses began to bray 'He was the greatest poet of them all,' an' now they are buildin' monyments over a man who never heard tell of himself when he was alive."

"That was certainly rotten," said Old Twilight.

"Ef you've got any apples to give away give 'em away when they're sound and sweet, and they'll do some good. Ef you've got any kind words to say, say 'em when they'll help, an' not wait till the ears that would have drunk them in with delight kin hear them no more.

"Mos' everybody is throwing away rotten apples, or giving fruit to the hawgs that might have made thousands of homes happy. An obituary notice and a funeral sermon are both on 'em rotten apples. Some people die of a broken heart, an' melancholy, jes' because they think nobody appreciates them. Say, Willyum, it's enough to make a body cry to hear a preacher get up an' let whang for an hour about his good qualities an' all that, and the pore feller's boxed up in front an' can't hear a word to save his soul."

"There's something funny in that, tho, that's human, that is," mused Old Twilight.

been brought about partly by what I have mentioned, but more especially by the excellence of the fruit, and in the evenness of the grading and packing, etc. This is true with very few exceptions, but there are a few dealers who apparently desire to place their fruit on the market here, irrespective of the packing regulations and irrespective of the detriment which their conduct occasions to Canadian prospects. I am looking into two or three cases at the present time, and will send full particulars to your department at an early date, and I hope that such fraudulent packing will be stamped out.

"I saw a shipment of 1,000 barrels of apples delivered at Hull a few days ago, which arrived in very fair condition, and on an average were fairly well graded and packed, and I understand that although XXX apples are generally exceedingly well graded that the same care is not taken with XX apples.

"It is just as necessary that the XX apples should be as well graded and packed as the XXX is; in fact, three barrels of XX apples can be sold here at a fairly remunerative price if well packed, for every barrel of XXX, and it is from these apples that the farmers of Canada would make their largest profit, because if they are not shipped they are an absolute loss.

"Several of the large firms in this district are now fully alive to the fact that the only way to secure the best apples is to deal direct with Canadian exporters themselves, in preference to buying through the Liverpool Fruit Brokers' Association, as has been the custom for years, and several will send out special representatives next year in time for the apple crop.

"In Hull there has been a special demand for XXX apples and especially for those in boxes, and also Russets, Spies and Baldwins in barrels for re-export to the continent. I saw barrels of Baldwins the other day which were sold for export to the continent and which were transhipped at Hull, the price paid being 34s., or $7.25 per barrel."

NOVA SCOTIA APPLE EXPORT.

Nova Scotia's apple shipments from Halifax to the Old Country markets amount so far this season to 300,000 barrels. There are 25,000 barrels yet to be shipped, which will make a total of 325,000 barrels, 50,000 less than last year.

Chief Fruit Inspector Vroom says the falling off in the shipment is solely the result of crop shortage, as the demand across the water is just as good as last year, while the prices are fully one-third better. The varieties commanding the higher figures are the King, Golden Russets, Blenheims and Baldwins, the average net to the grower or shipper being $2.50 per barrel.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Trade in green fruits is steady. Early this week two cars of navels were received in Montreal, which sold freely from $3.35 to $3.50, being the first consignment of oranges to arrive which were of good color and flavor. Dealers expect that all navels will do well now. Chances are that there will be a 25c. rise in a short time. Lemons are selling quite freely at $2.50. There will probably be a rise here, too, in a short time, owing to scarcity. In connection with navels it is estimated that this year's supply is 7,000 cars short of the supply of last year.

Vegetables.

There is little change in the vegetable situation. The demand is not very brisk at present owing to the Lenten season. Dealers do not expect to do really good business again until Easter. All Florida vegetables are high just now. Florida tomatoes are selling at $6.50 to $7 a crate. Spinach brings $3.50 to $3.75 per barrel, while $8.50 per barrel is asked for new potatoes.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

The fruit market continues active on increasing demand. Of course the trade is as variable as the weather, but the oncoming of Spring is heralded by that occasional burst of temperature that inspires an appetite for fresh fruit.

Oranges are higher, so are lemons, and the tendency is still in that direction. At any rate the market is very strong. "Never saw it so strong," is the comment of one leading house. "All cars coming now are iced, and that means 25c. a box," said another dealer. The quality of the fruit, however, continues fine and makes some return for the increased cost.

Florida strawberries are beginning to come in in small consignments and are going at 60c. a full quart box. The first carload was shipped to New York last week. Very mild weather will bring them here in quantities. Indications point to an excellent crop both in Florida and North Carolina. The weather has been favorable and there have been no setbacks.

The prospect for pines, both Cubans and Bahamas at reasonable prices, is very good. Small shipments are coming in now and they will be brought in in quantities as soon as the weather permits.

The first cases of the new crop of California asparagus have arrived. It is quoted at 65c. a bunch.

Vegetables.

The vegetable market is showing signs of Spring and trade is lively. The new stuff is beginning to come in from the south, potatoes from Bermuda, asparagus from California, tomatoes from Florida. The week also shows a number of price variations. Onions by the bag are 15c. to 20c. cheaper because of a light demand and ample supply. Radishes are down 10c. with the increasing supply. There is much greater range for cucumbers. Parsnips are 15c. a bag cheaper, the milder weather increasing the supply. The potato trade holds normal with prices unchanged from last week.

WALL PAPER

WHAT provision have you made for making new business and increasing your net profits during the coming season? Money is to be made in business. Many men are making comfortable fortunes.

Are you going to be satisfied with the same business, the same customers, and the same profit this year as last? Or are you going to strike out into new lines and compel new business in your store? These are pertinent questions and they are asked to you, the reader. Is it not enough for you to consider them general propositions which are subject to general theorizing. The point is for you to apply them to yourself and to settle what you yourself are going to do to answer the questions practically and profitably.

The above shows pattern 380 with Grasscloth ground, from "The Menzie Line" for 1906. This effect is specially adapted for dining and reception rooms, and gives most pleasing results when used in two-third treatment with plain Grasscloth 510, for lower.

Wall Paper Department! Probably some merchants have never thought of such a thing. If so, don't let the novelty of the idea scare you. Carpets and curtains are manifestly a part of the general stock, and wall papers are essentially part of the same department. They pertain to the same class of decoration. It would be in the last sense arbitrary to say that it was right to sell decorations and coverings for windows and floors and not for the walls.

Nothing can be urged against the inclusion of wall papers as a department of the general store. On the contrary, the reasons for doing so are numerous and apparent.

MORE CARE AND THOUGHT NEEDED.

The question for the grocer is, how to make the candy trade more profitable.

In the first place candies known through the reputation of the maker to be as nearly pure as possible should be the only ones purchased. It will pay best to lay in the stick and sugar candies, peppermint, licorice, etc., for the country trade, with a few trays of higher grade chocolates for the class of trade that will demand them.

It will also pay to get a neat, attractive glass case in which to display the candies. Keep the bulk candy in an attractive looking pile, and the higher grades neatly arranged on their trays. Have the interior of the case as inviting as possible. Use some soft tinted, crinkly paper on the floor of the case and be careful to keep flies out of it, and any other extraneous matter that might accidentally get inside the case.

Have the case where it can be seen to advantage, and it would not be a bad idea to run in your newspaper ad now and then a paragraph calling attention to your line of candies.

COMING OF THE MAPLE SEASON.

With the sap season probably close at hand, the prudent sugar-maker will be ready in ample time to make the most of the flow. The wood for fuel ought to have been cut months ago, but if not, yellow birch can be used fresh cut and will answer fairly well. The outfit should be gone over and the spouts, pails, tanks and evaporators scalded and cleaned. The market has slight use for dirty or tainted sugar. In large groves the pipe lines should be inspected and the roads cleared of brush.

Cost of Equipment.

Many small producers are handicapped by lack of modern equipment, a drawback which means waste of labor and fuel and a smaller and poorer crop. To equip a fifteen-acre grove with spouts, covered buckets, tanks, sugar-house and evaporating machinery costs about $35 per acre. The interest and wear would amount to perhaps ten per cent. yearly or $3.50 per acre, an amount which in average seasons would be repaid several times over as compared with the net results when using out-of-date, worn-out equipment.

Small Cost of Labor.

A sugar grove, especially an early flowing one, can be made to pay good rent and good interest on the cost of equipment and material, also cost of extra labor in gathering, and tolerably fair pay for the working foreman, who should be the owner. That is about all that is to be expected under average conditions. The sugar crop is no bonanza, provided everything is reckoned in a fair market basis. But it comes at just the time when the farmer, his family and the men have the time and inclination for work of this kind, for which they receive just a fair return, not much more.

Should Sell Higher.

To be sure there ought to be a wider margin of clear profit to compensate for the uncertain, variable nature of the crop, and in consideration of the fact that the farm owners in certain limited localities have virtually something like a monopoly of the commercial maple sugar business. Maple sugar of high grade ought to sell, not for eight or nine cents per pound, but for at least the price paid during the period from 1882 to 1885, when the range was twelve and a half to thirteen cents.

Effect of Adulteration.

Since then the product of genuine maple sugar and syrup has not increased, although the population to be supplied and the total demand are vastly larger. The fact is that the various adulterations and mixtures have been gradually killing the market.

CANADA BISCUIT CO. DIVIDEND.

The assets of the Canada Biscuit Company have all been realized upon by the assignee, Mr. Osler Wade, except the book debts, which are spread all over Canada and amount to about $5,000. Mr. Wade recently announced a second interim dividend to the creditors of 20 cents on the dollar. The previous one was also a 20 per cent. dividend. The shareholders who invested $225,000 sustain a total loss.

CANDY DEPARTMENT AS AN ADVERTISEMENT.

The candy department of the country store is one of the lines which, in most instances, does not receive the full amount of attention. A candy department can be made as profitable as any of the other departments if a larger amount of space and attention is devoted to it, and it will form a profitable side line and trade bringer.

The candy department, as a matter of fact, can be made into a natural advertiser for the store. When a good customer and her child come into the store to buy a bill of goods it would be mighty good advertising during the course of their shopping to unostentatiously go behind the candy case, when they reach that part of the store, pick out a few nice pieces of candy, suitable to the standing of the customer, put them up in a neat paper sack and hand it to the child.

There is nothing that so warms the parent's heart to the storekeeper as to witness this little act on his part. A grocer once lost a valuable customer because he failed to recognize the good advertising that lies in the distribution of a few pieces of candy in this manner. This particular parent had traded at the store for years, and on its changing hands traded with the new proprietor the first month. Previous to that time the old proprietor had always sent a little bag of candy home to the children of the family when the monthly bill had been settled or else gave it direct to the child when it happened to accompany its parent. The new proprietor, however, entirely overlooked the procedure and the upshot of it was that the customer got to buying at other stores and finally lost interest in the old store altogether and traded at another place where they found a more thoughtful proprietor.

If the country storekeeper will pay more attention to the candy department he will realize that the demand for confectionery from his country patrons is larger than he thinks. It may be difficult for him to try to get the village trade for his candy department, especially if there is a regular candy shop in the immediate vicinity. The farmer, however, is a sure customer; his family in most instances has not had its taste cultivated for the more costly grades of chocolates, bonbons, etc., but its desire is for the good, old-fashioned stick candy and cheaper sugar candies.

If he could see the little toddlers in the country home urging papa "not to forget to bring home some candy," and the happy smiles with which they welcome the candy bag on its arrival home, the country storekeeper would realize more keenly that the candy department is one that he should have in his store and one that he cannot afford to neglect when he has it, because the chances are ten to one that the parent will do his trading where he can buy the sack of candy.

"'Haste breeds delay' in cigar-making"—
J. Bruce Payne.

Pebble and Pharaoh Cigars are genuine. Everybody must admit that.

Grocers, I honestly believe that this genuineness is largely attributable to the fact that at the begining I went slowly—always distinguishing between the worthy and the unworthy both in materials and methods. Here you find one of the foundation-stones of the Payne Principle.

Now and then a new cigar "lights up" on the firmament, makes a glare and dies out, and then another history is written in smoke.

My cigars, the

Pebble and Pharaoh

keep on pleasing the public viewing new arrivals with no alarm. Cigars of "P.P." calibre (even if I say it myself) are not easy to find, because they are not easy to make and because from them the manufacturer get no big profits. The "profits" go into the cigars—perfect Filler, perfect Binder, perfect Wrapper.

It must be patent to any Grocer that from me he will get the best satisfaction the best "cigar with," the best terms, and through, me the best trade.

I ask you to look at the Pebble and Pharaoh—1000 assorted proposition—in that "light."

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

THE CRISIS ON THE HAVANA MARKET.

To the grocer who has worked up an interest in his tobacco department the present situation of the foreign raw leaf market is one of great interest and importance.

There appears to be no shadow of doubt that the excessively unfavorable season, to which reference has been made in earlier issues, has seriously affected the crop, and that, in consequence, the available stocks held at primal points are much below the requirements of manufacturers.

Manufacturers Caught Napping.

The Havana market has recently been the scene of some strangely exciting moments. The manufacturers themselves appear to have been at sea as to the real state of things and positively refused to accept the situation as laid down by their commission men, and pooh-poohed the situation, saying they would find tobacco at cheaper prices than their commission merchants informed them were ruling.

On their arrival, however, after visiting a few warehouses the first day, and then "talking the situation over" at night time with other buyers who had arrived either at the same time or a few days earlier, they finally concluded that the information given them by their commission merchants was correct and pitched in to buy without further delay, as they easily saw that it was a question of paying the price or getting left.

Soaring Prices.

As each day goes by, the stocks of leaf tobacco in the various warehouses decrease, notwithstanding that owners are just as stiff in their asking prices.

Quite a few parcels have been sold several times over, from one dealer to another, and finally the last to get hold of it, has had to pay a big price.

There seems to be a regular "tobacco fever" raging, and one buyer was overheard remarking to another, "We must be all going crazy" to pay such tremendously high prices. How in the world are we going to get our money back?

The Retailers Position.

The possible effect this situation will have upon the retail trade is one of supreme importance to both the retailer and wholesaler. The first inclination on the part of the dealer is to "kick" against advancing prices, for a manufacturer to raise his prices individually is generally considered to be a mad project, as the average retailer will not stand for any higher figures than he has been accustomed to pay, and the idea that he gets is that an undue advantage is being taken of him.

It is of the first moment, therefore, that the retailer should take in the situation, and realize at once that if quality is to be maintained, prices must advance in proportion to the market values. No manufacturer who has regard for his good name can afford to reduce quality in order to hold prices, and in this he should be fully supported by his retail friends.

CIGAR STORE WINDOW SIGNS.

In the window of Goldvogel Bros.' uptown store, St. Catherine street, Montreal, is an attractive window device which is new to Canada and which should prove of considerable value not only to the retailer as an attraction to his store, but also to the manufacturer who wishes to familiarize the public with the name of his cigars.

It is an immense cigar over four feet in length, and which, despite its large size, is a most natural looking smoker. It is constructed of papier-mache and asbestos, covered in exact imitation of tobacco leaf.

The end of the cigar has a most natural looking ash and one could easily believe it was the real thing. Inside are two electric lamps connected to a patent thermostat which is automatic, causing the current to jump from one lamp to the other—that is to say, while one lamp is lighted the other is out. This condition is reversed every few seconds. It is entirely automatic, depending upon resistance of the electric current for its working, and needs no winding or attention of any kind. One of the lamps is in the ash end of the cigar, which lights up red, exactly as does a real cigar when being "pulled." When this light goes out the word "cigars" appears in brilliant letters on the side. There are no marks on the outside to show where this wording comes from, so that the flashing in and out of the name on the apparently solid tobacco leaf gives quite an illusionary effect.

The "cigar" is most effective at night, or where an artificial light is used. The device is one which should be of interest and is well within the reach of any retail tobacconist who is on the lookout for an effective window attraction.

GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

ESSENTIALS TO SUCCESSFUL ADVERTISING

1. Must be Well Written.

A good deal has been said and written about preparing advertisements, but to the retailer, in the small town especially, books and addresses do not always appeal. When the capital is small the methods are necessarily small. It is principally to the merchant of small capital, therefore, that these remarks will be addressed.

You are not going to spend much money on advertising because you have not got it to spend, and you are going to be solicitous about results. Also you have no time to look into "reason why" styles except that you hope to develop along this line by persistent practice.

Any person who has a knowledge of the English language can write, though there are a number of people who write without that knowledge. The number of words necessary for everyday conversation has been placed at 3,000. Ostensibly this means plain language, but the number or size of words is never as important as the way the words are formed into clauses, then into sentences. And clarity of statement is so essential to a successful interpretation of an advertisement that it is well worth some study. By "study" I do not mean the perusing of books or the probing into theories, but simply working with a consciousness of weakness, holding to the task with the conviction that "anything will not do."

If you can, in your store, convince people that your goods are meritorious, you can convince them of the same thing through the press and reach an infinitely larger number of people. It is a matter of presenting what you have for sale in the best light.

2. Must Be Well Set.

The value of artistic typography has been both over-estimated and under-estimated. The writer who goes to the trouble of marking type names all over his copy puts too high an estimate on typography, and the writer who never asks to see a proof puts too low an estimate on it.

A good deal can be entrusted to the average compositor. He knows more about type and display than the average ad writer. When a writer has served his time in the composing room and made good use of the knowledge gained he is able to talk authoritatively.

But the real trouble arises not so much from leaving the choice of type to the compositor, but from leaving everything to him. Perhaps he gets a piece of wrapping paper on which is scrawled some names, some prices and general statements. The compositor has first to size the copy up, next to make it out, and last to display it advantageously.

Now, the fact is an ad writer can map out his advertisement as he wants it to appear in print. When he does this he gives the compositor a good chance to select suitable type faces and to devote his talent towards getting balance, chasteness, etc.

Advertisements in manuscript look a hundred per cent. better when written within a ruled space. The edge of the paper is clear and the rudiments of a design is suggested. It does not matter what size of an advertisement you are going to write, rule off a space with your lead pencil (larger than the space you are going to have in the paper because your writing will "spread" more than type) and write within that space. Of course, when the compositor is helped in this way, and the particulars are legibly written, a proof is not absolutely necessary.

3. Must Have an Individuality.

Make your advertisements distinctive. Do not take too much notice of what competitors are saying, for then their expressions are apt to get intermixed with your own. It would be impossible for me to suggest to you ideas that would be individualistic. The moment they left me they would cease to have an individuality. I cannot talk through you and neither can you talk through your clerk. But a theme satisfactory to you can be taken up by a clerk and it is surprising how much of your individuality can be wrapt around it.

You never take much notice of how other merchants talk to customers. Each merchant has his own way. Why shouldn't it be the same when it comes to advertising in a newspaper? If you approach your patrons in an off-hand way in the store adopt an off-hand style of writing. If you employ clear-cut business tactics as a store salesman let the same characterize your advertisements, and so on.

From having seen some half dozen of their advertisements I believe I could select certain merchants' announcements even if their names were not on them. Nothing but the individuality of the advertiser pervading his writings could enable me to do that. It is because writers select first one style and then another that their advertisements are robbed of impressive characteristics. And it is because other merchants choose to be themselves always that the people entrust their confidence to them.

4. Must Agree With Store Policy.

There is a great tendency in modern-day publicity to misrepresent goods. It grows upon a writer to exaggerate virtues and gild weaknesses. But while plausible statements read nicely, truthful statements usually get the business. By being moderate in your newspaper enunciations you keep in better touch with your store—maintain harmony between your outdoor and indoor policies, as it were. Did you ever notice how certain goods have been advertised with tremendous enthusiasm and how the clerk who sold them was lifeless? The enthusiasm of the advertising was not misplaced, but some of it might have been engendered into the clerk.

It is absolutely necessary that salesmen should follow the wording of the advertisement to the letter. I have gone into a store where a clerk has confessed he didn't know certain goods were being advertised at a certain price. Imagine the amount of business such a clerk would personally gather in!

5. Must Follow Up Systematically.

That sounds like mail-order house phraseology, doesn't it? But by "follow-up" I mean that you should form some estimate of sales made from advertising and should always be preparing to push another line of goods "next week."

What you will principally be governed by is season, and while this somewhat limits your scope, you can accomplish a lot by being timely. The moment it is opportune, advertise certain lines, then pass on to others. Articles that sell at a very low price, and sell quite frequently, will not have to be advertised to any great extent unless your competitor makes some move.

If you are announcing a special sale through the papers you can form some estimate of what the announcements did for you by looking into the orders. If you think the patronage extended to you was not representative, then it is time to get out a circular.

You cannot perfect your advertising policy, but you can and ought to know if you are appealing to the people by way of "needs," if you are presenting your case in the best light, and, most important of all, if you are gradually but surely building up a permanent list of customers.

A. A. B.

TRUTH ABOUT ADVERTISING.

Said a man who has had a wide experience in advertising of all kinds: "New advertisers, especially retailers, make a serious mistake when they look for the total net results from advertisements inserted in too short a space of time."

The money invested in advertising earns profits sooner than money invested in any other line of goods that a man can put his money into, but they don't come as soon as some people expect.

You take $100 around to the savings bank to-day, and a year from now $4 will be your profit.

You buy a bill of staple goods to-day, and unless the article is an unusually good seller, your profits will be tied up in the transaction from three months to a year.

In a retail business probably it will be found to be a fact that profit—the profits that a man can spend or invest in other things—cannot be declared more than once a year.

When a man runs an advertisement in a newspaper, for some reason or other he expects to get his profits the next day, at most the next week. He counts his chickens before they are hatched.

A retailer of my acquaintance who started in business some five or six years ago with a good line of credit, but mighty little capital, told me that he can trace results to advertising and circularizing that he did more than five years ago.

As an actual experience he told me that in 1890 he distributed a few thousand circulars among farmers outside of his territory. The direct results were not unusually satisfactory, and he figured at the time that the investment of about $20 was practically lost. But what happened? Five years after that date there came to him a farmer with a little old faded pink circular that he had sent out. The merchant looked for the goods advertised, but long since they had been sold. However, the farmer bought something else, opened up an account, and has been asteady customer ever since. This one farmer's business is probably worth considerably more than the total investment.

An old land advertising agent who places the business of many order advertisers, tells me that he has known of direct results being received from advertisements inserted as long as ten years ago.

I am to-day receiving replies from advertisements as far back as 1902.

I do not believe that there is an investment of any kind that begins to pay the dividends that the right kind of advertising does.

Certainly the good will of the business obtained partially by advertising is worth considerably more than a business obtained without.

Do not look for results too soon.

Do not decide that an advertisement has been a failure for at least five years.

Be patient.

It takes time to do things in this world.—Ralph Harris in Brains.

FAIRBANK'S STRIKING ADVERTISEMENT.

The N. K. Fairbank Co., Montreal and Chicago, are conspicuous among the prominent advertisers on this continent for the effectiveness of their work and their striking advertising material. Aside from the now world-famous Gold Dust Twins, who have figured prominently in the cartoons of United States and Canadian political campaigns, this company's latest and undoubtedly one of the most attractive and chaste signs is the little "Have you a fairy in your home?" soap display card, copy af which is reproduced above. This card is a stand for the grocer's counter or show case and measures some 24x18 inches. The lithographic work is of the best and the display of the card is a good trade reminder, as well as an ornament to every grocery. Application to the N. K. Fairbank Co., Montreal, will bring information as to how the card may be obtained. It is certainly worth writing for. A post card will bring reply.

"Have you a fairy in your house."

Crescent BM&Co. TRADE MARK Brand

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

RE EARLY JUNE PEAS

Dear Sir,—

A few weeks ago we emphasized the handsome profit to you in selling Our Extra Fine Sifted Peas (Petit Pois), and we took occasion to point out the merits of these goods and their superiority over the imported article, thinking to assist you in making sales.

Last week we discussed with you our second highest grade of Peas—the Sweet Wrinkle, and we trust that you have put some of these Peas into stock, if you did not have them before.

This week we call your attention to our Early June Peas. Our Early June Pea costs you only a trifle more than the ordinary Standard Pea. At the same time it gives you a larger margin of profit.

As we mentioned last week, our aim in Packing Peas is to produce an article which when opened will present a bright, clear liquor, Peas evenly graded, uniform in color, tender, sweet and attractive in appearance.

While our Early June Peas are, of course, not as fine as our Sweet Wrinkle Peas, they are of excellent quality, and are good enough for the most fastidious. Do not forget to impress upon your buyers that our Canned Peas are preferrable to fresh Peas, as they are thoroughly sterlized, and are absolutely pure.

Do not forget our brands, viz.: "Aylmer", "Log Cabin", "Horseshoe", "Auto", "Little Chief", "Lynnvalley", "Maple Leaf", "Kent Lion", "Thistle", "Grand River" and "White Rose".

Yours respectfully,

CANADIAN CANNERS, Limited

Still Forging Ahead !!!

Alarmists would have you believe that Ceylon Tea—that great favorite of the Canadian public—is fast falling short, in fact, is almost in its death throes.

Be not deceived by such self-constituted advisors. The growth of Ceylon Tea was never more flourishing or more perfect. The official statistics are now available and state that the quantity of Ceylon Tea distributed during the year reached the excellent total of 172,629,960 lbs., which was 13½ million in excess of the figures of 1904, and 23½ million in advance of 1902.

Ceylon Tea has "forged ahead" on intrinsic merit alone. The grocer who would "forge ahead" of competitors must see to it that he sells only Ceylon Tea (Green and Black) Canada's Favorite.

THE HOUSE FLAG

One of the big Ocean Liners might be delayed or wrecked through a screw loose or some defect in one of her engines. The passengers woud'nt know why—but the Chief Engineer would. He knows it was the fault of the builder of the engine—it wasn't made right.

People often ask "Why is it that other teas are not as good as Red Rose?" They know there is a screw loose somewhere; but don't know why.

I do, because I am like the Chief Engineer of the Liner. I know Tea as he knows an Engine; and I employ skilled men whose sole business is to make Red Rose Tea without any loose screws—to make it as good as tea can be made. This is why the Red Rose ship is always breaking records and pleases her passengers.

The officers and crew are alive to your slightest wishes. Will you book a passage for the next trip?

One of my travelling passenger agents will call at your bidding.

The Man Behind the Counter

is the one we recognize. We want the co-operation of the retail clerks throughout the country in extending and increasing the sale of the great Fairbank specialties:

Gold Dust Washing Powder
Fairy Soap, Copco Soap
Fairbank's Glycerine-Tar Soap
Fairbank's Scouring Soap
Fairbank's Sanitary Soap

We are willing and anxious to acknowledge the service they can render us by rewarding them in direct proportion to the interest they display in pushing these goods. Our method of rewarding is "The Fairbank Plan," which is a system of couponing our specialties in such a manner that the coupons can be easily removed when the goods are sold, and giving for these coupons useful articles, the best that money can buy. Our whole aim is to give the clerks the best value we can secure.

The products embraced in "The Fairbank Plan" are easily sold because they are the best value and give the greatest satisfaction to the consumer. They increase the trade of the store and "The Fairbank Plan" rewards the dealer or his clerks for selling them.

Send for a copy of "The Fairbank Plan" illustrated premium list. It will pay you.

will eventually consume the biggest cheese, and the loss of pennies, nickels, dimes and dollars, if it don't "bust" the biggest business, will reduce the profit to an alarming extent. And you're bound to lose more or less if you do a credit business, and depend on ledger balances taken from the day-book. Throw out your day-books and other time-wasting devices, and adopt the modern Allison Coupon System.

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

or $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? Little Sermons on Advertising

Delivered by John C. Kirkwood, in MacLean's Trade Newspapers, on Behalf of Trade Newspaper Advertising.

Theme: The Man Behind the Counter.

LOBBYING is a practical method in modern politics. Indeed, it is a practice in almost all cases where the ballot-box determines the issue.

It is not necessarily a corrupt or corrupting practice. It is oftentimes legitimate. In any event, it is by common consent considered effective.

There is a class of men in every community, whose votes are highly desirable when it comes to a question of influence or decision, a class commonly known as the retail merchants. These men stand between the manufactureror wholesaler and the consumer. Whatthey decree goes. They constitute a class of men worth while cultivating, or "lobbying," if you like this word better.

Here is a merchant or one of his salesmen serving a customer, who is asking for a door-lock. The customer says, "What lock do you recommend? Have you the Oxford lock? I have heard that it is a good lock."

So far so good.

Advertising to that consumer is bearing fruit. He is actually inquiring concerning the Oxford lock.

But listen!

"Yes sir, we have the Oxford lock, a very good lock too. But here is a lock quite the equal of the Oxford at a dollar less. We have sold hundreds of this lock with never a complaint."

What lock sells, the Oxford or the other?

There it is, you see—The man behind the counter. Worth lobbying that man? He casts votes; he influences sales. He can kill advertising to the consumer.

Why did he "knock" the Oxford lock?

The answer is: the makers of the other lock, the S. & T., cultivated him very thoroughly. They persuaded him to believe that the S. & T. lock was as good as any other lock made. They showed him that the S. & T. lock yielded him 15% better margin than did the Oxford, even at a dollar less in the retail price. They treated him with full consideration. They recognized his place of influence. They advertised to him. No wonder the merchant favored those that showed favor to him.

And the Oxford people, what about their methods?

First of all, and chiefly, their point of view was wrong. They placed their confidence in the consumer and disregarded the distributor. Advertising to the consumer is good, but advertising to consumer and distributor is far, far better. And if one cannot advertise to both consumer and retailer, select the retailer for the campaign of influence. He is the strategic point in the selling plan. Cultivate him, he will be pleased, and will respond.

Advertising in the retailers' trade newspaper is business wisdom. It is business insurance.

NEW RAILWAY FREIGHT RULES

As a result of the complaint made by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association against the car service rules and demurrage charges as imposed by railways, new regulations have been drafted to go into effect on March 1, and as these are of interest to all branches of mercantile industry they are reproduced below.

It will be observed that an extension of time has been secured for the unloading of coal, coke, and lime in bulk, and for the loading and unloading of lumber. An additional allowance of 24 hours is made for clearances of customs when freight is in bond, and Rule 4 states that car service charges shall not be collected when customs officials are responsible for delays. Rue 8 requires notice of arrival (unless waived by consignees), and satisfactorily provides for additional time for transmission of notice through the mails. The time for loading or unloading is changed by Rule 2 so that if cars are not placed by 11 o'clock a.m. free time does not commence until the folowing morning. Inclement weather conditions and bunching of cars in transit are satisfactorily covered by Rules 6 and 7, which provide for extension of free time without collection of demurrage charges.

The rules are understood to be of a provisional character. Representations were made to the Railway Commission looking to the establishment of reciprocal demurrage charges or an average arrangement. The board states that this subject requires very careful investigation and cossideration, but has deemed it advisable to provide in the meantime for the substitution of an improved set of car service rules for those formerly in effect. The impracticability of framing rules adequate for all cases is recognized, and the railways are expected to interpret the rules liberally, but without any unjust discrimination or undue preference, while the merchants and manufacturers are asked to give the new regulations a fair trial.

All freight traffic, in carloads or less, which is, or is to be, loaded or unloaded by the shippers or consignees thereof, shall be subject to the "Canadian Car Service Rules" approved by the Board of Railway Commissioners, as follows.

Toll.

Rule 1.—When cars are held under load, or waiting loads, beyond the free time allowed by Rule 2, for any reason for which the consignee or shipper is responsible, a toll of one dollar per car, per day of twenty-four hours, or any part thereof, shall be charged to, and paid by, the shipper, consignee, or other party responsible therefor, in addition to all other tolls paid, or payable, in respect of the goods carried, or to be carried, in or on such car.

Free Time.

Rule 2.—Twenty-four hours shall be allowed the consignee, after notice of arrival, in which to pay the tolls or charges (if any), and give orders for special placing or delivery; (subject to Rules 11 and 15).

Forty-eight hours free time shall be allowed for loading or unloading (except as hereinafter provided). On cars placed for loading, or unloading, before or at 11 o'clock a.m., the free time shall begin at 1 p.m. following; if placed after 11 o'clock a.m., the free time shall begin at 7 o'clock a.m. following.

Exceptions.—(a) Twenty-four hours additional free time shall be allowed for unloading coal, coke, and lime, in bulk, and for loading or unloading the following descriptions of lumber only, namely: boards, deals, and scantlings.

(b) Five days' free time shall be allowed at Montreal and at tide-water ports, for unloading lumber and hay for export.

(c) In the portion of Canada to which the Manitoba Grain Act, 1900, and its amendments, apply only twenty-four hours free time shall be allowed for loading grain.

(d) Twenty-four hours additional free time shall be allowed for clearance of customs, where the destination is a port of entry, making the allowance for clearance of customs, and for giving, placing, or delivery orders, forty-eight hours in all.

Where the destination is not a port of entry, forty-eight hours shall be allowed for clearance of customs at the outside port of entry.

Rule 3.—No car service toll shall be charged for Sundays or legal holidays.

Rule 4.—Car service tolls shall not be collected from the consignee for any delays for which the customs officials may be responsible.

Rule 5.—Cars shall be so placed as to be easily accessible at all times during the period allowed for loading or unloading. At stations where such placing is at the time reasonably practicable, cars shall be placed so as to be easily accessible on both sides. Time lost to the shipper for consignee through interruption, either by movement of trains, or shunting of cars, or any other cause for which the railway company is, or may be held to be, responsible, shall be added to the free time allowance.

Inclement Weather.

Rule 6.—If wet or inclement weather, according to local conditions, renders loading or unloading impracticable during business hours, or exposes the goods to damage, the time allowance shall be extended so as to give the full free time of suitable weather. But if the parties neglect or fail to avail themselves of the first forty-eight hours, or seventy-two hours, as the case may be, of suitable weather, they shall not be allowed additional free time by reason of such neglect.

Bunching.

Rule 7.—When, owing to conditions for which the railway company, or connecting railway companies, is or are responsible or to any neglect or default of its or their agents or employees, or to storms or floods, or to accidents on a railway, or accident to the equipment of the railway company or companies, cars are tendered to the consignee in numbers beyond his ascertained reasonable ability to unload within the authorized free time, such additional time shall be allowed as may be necessary, with the exercise of due and reasonable diligence on the part of the consignee, to unload the cars so in excess.

Notice of Arrival.

Rule 8.— The consignee shall be promptly notified of the arrival of his freight, and shall be held to have been notified when notice of arrival has been delivered at his address, or place of business; provided that, if such notice be given later than 6 o'clock p.m., it shall be considered not to have been received until 7 o'clock the following morning. If notice be mailed, the consignee shall be held to have been notified at 7 o'clock a.m. of the day following.

Rule 9.—If the consignee fail to give placing or delivery orders within the twenty-four hours allowed by Rule 2, the car shall be considered to be intended for public team track delivery, and shall be placed accordingly; and, if not unloaded within the free time, such car shall be subject to the car service toll.

Placing Cars.

Rule 10.—The railway agent shall notify the consignee or his carter, on application, where his car has been placed for unloading. Any time within the free time allowance lost to the consignee in so doing, for which the railway company is responsible, shall be added to the free time allowance.

If a car has been placed before 7 o'clock a.m., and at that hour the agent or his representative is unable or fails to inform the consignee or his representative, on application, as to the placing of the car and where it has been placed, then the free time shall not commence until 12 o'clock noon following, unless the consignee commences to unload before noon, in which case the time so lost to the consignee shall be added to the free time allowance as aforesaid.

Rule 11.—Freight for which the railway company holds previous standing orders from consignee for placing on designated tracks or private sidings, shall not be entitled to the extra twenty-four hours allowed by Rule 2 for paying freight charges and giving placing or delivery orders, but when in bond shall be entitled to the twenty-four hours allowed by Rule 2 (d) for clearance of customs.

Rule 12.—When both cars and tracks are owned by the same private party, no car service tolls shall be charged.

Rule 13.—The delivery of cars to private tracks shall be considered to have been made when such cars have been properly placed on the tracks designated or when they would have been so placed but for some condition for which the shipper or consignee is responsible. If cars cannot be so placed the railway company holding them shall so notify the consignee, in order that he may have the opportunity of designating some other siding on which he is willing to load or unload, if he so desires.

Replacing.

Rule 14.—If, after placing, cars are ordered to another siding on the same road, at the same station, to complete loading or unloading by the same shipper or consignee, the free time shall be computed from the original placing, less the time occupied in replacing the car.

Rule 15.—If, after arrival at destination, a car is reconsigned under switching arrangements, the original consignee alone shall have twenty-four hours in which to give orders for special placing or delivery, and he shall pay one dollar per day, or any part thereof, for all time in excess of the twenty-four hours, so that the final free time of forty-eight hours, or seventy-two hours, as the case may be (authorized by Rule 2), shall still remain to the party who accepts delivery.

Congested Sidings.

Rule 16.—If an authorized employe upon a railway which performs switching services gives notice that such railway is unable to receive cars for private sidings, owing to conditions for which the shippers or consignees are responsible, then any other railway company having cars for such consignees shall so advise them, and the car service toll shall be charged until the cars on such private sidings have been unloaded or loaded, as the case may be, or until such sidings have been otherwise cleared.

Cars Waiting "Orders."

Rule 17.—Cars held for transit for inspection, grading, cleaning, bagging, completion or change of load, or change of destination, under a through rate from the original shipping point to the final destination, with or without a stop-over charge, and detained over the time allowed for such purpose in the published tariffs, shall be subject to the car service toll. If such shipments are transferred to other cars, the car service tolls shall follow on the cars to which transfer is made.

Logging or Industrial Roads.

Rule 18.—Manufacturers, lumbermen, miners, contractors or others, who have their own tracks and motive power and handle cars for themselves or other parties, shall be charged car service tolls on all cars delivered to them from the time placed upon the interchange tracks until returned thereto, after allowance has been made for the time necessary for them to do the switching (not to exceed twenty-four hours), and for the free time authorized by Rule 2.

Miscellaneous.

Rule 19.—Cars shall not be held back for the purpose of evading these rules. Loaded cars held back for cause must be reported.

The Canada Hay Co., Limited, Montreal, has purchased the mill owned by Messrs. McPherson & McBean and will operate it from now on. The mill is situated in Mile End, Montreal.

S. Ballachey, of Paisley, is reaping the harvest of enterprise. He recently moved into his handsome new store and since the first of the year business with him has been all that could be desired.

P. D. Martin, who for some years has conducted a fine grocery at Gerrard and Sackville streets, Toronto, has purchased the business of T. Maciver, Queen street east. Mr. Martin will conduct business in a progressive manner.

H. J. Colville, Arthur, has added a gents' furnishing department to his store. Mr. Colville is a very large shipper of produce to the Old Country, and he says business is eminently satisfactory.

The Carey Dry Goods Co. have purchased the Ritchie bankrupt stock at Wingham. They are putting in much new stock and the business will be a valuable addition to the trade of the town. Mr. Clarence Carey will be manager.

The Canadian Grocer's reporter got into wireless communication this week with C. M. McCallum, of Brantford, but he was too busy to express himself in the code. He is educating his customers to use the better class of goods, and it pays.

McEwan Bros., Goderich, have purchased the stock of G. M. Elliott, of the same place, and will continue the business. They are enterprising merchants and trade at both stores will hum. Will McEwan will have charge of the new undertaking.

W. A. Sherwood & Co., St. Catharines, has established a branch at Port Dalhousie. Their head clerk, Chas. Livingstone, has been installed as manager.

C. E. Blackburn, grocer, has removed from Dundas street and St. Clarence avenue, Toronto, to 1010 Bathurst street.

Mathison Bros., Whitby, have fitted up the flat above their grocery to accommodate their crockery department, which, hitherto, they have conducted as a separate store. A stairway is being put in and the consolidation of the business in one building will be a decided improvement.

T. J. Leary "The Chocolate Man," Montreal, has removed from D'Youville square to 30 Vallee street. The growth of "Leary's Chocolate" trade has been phenomenal during the past six months and since the opening of the new confectionery store on St. Catherine street, (which by the way is one of the finest in the country) business has boomed still more. In the new premises the company will be in a position to promptly fill all their out-of-town and city orders.

Mr. L. M. Buckle, representing Spratt's dog biscuits in Canada, was seen by the Grocer in Montreal this week. Mr. Buckle has opened up a branch at 988 Notre Dame street west, Montreal, where the various lines of the Spratt Co., Newark, N.J., will be carried in stock and shipped for the convenience of the growing Canadian trade. "Everything for the dog," as Mr. Buckle put it, will be carried in stock. Mr. Fred. Hughes, who has represented the company in the east for many years, will still continue to look after Montreal, Ottawa and Quebec.

FORGING AHEAD

(Review of Enterprise and Progress.)

BIG GROCERY GETTING BIGGER.

Michie & Co. will shortly undertake extensive improvements to their store premises at 7 King street west, Toronto. Major Michie last year purchased the building adjoining the store on the east, and the company contemplate using a portion of it in connection with the projected alterations. Every detail of the improvements has not yet been determined, but they will be carried out with the two-fold purpose of providing increased facilities for the building and improved fire protection.

The facilities of the present grocery store are equalled by very few stores in Canada, but such is the development of the firm's trade that every department is crying out for more room. First among the improvements, first that is to meet the public, will be a new store front. Improved natural lighting will be another feature of the changes, and it is expected to pay a dividend in economy of electric current, while making it one of the lightest long stores in the city.

Offices to be Moved.

Space will be found for Major Michie's office in the newly acquired building, and the general offices now at the Melinda street end will be raised a storey. Thus the entire ground floor space, thirty feet by one hundred and seventy, will be devoted to the purposes of the store and there will be separate shipping and receiving entrances on Melinda street.

Better Fire Protection.

Much attention is being paid to the feature of improved fire protection and expert advice has been obtained, and what is to be done will be in accordance with the latest approved regulations. All this will entail considerable expense. Two objects are sought, to isolate the store as far as possible from the danger of fire from the outside, and to meet fire within the store by the slow-burning method, that is, to adopt construction that will confine it to the apartment where it starts for a period long enough to permit the firemen to cope with it effectually. Wire glass and metal windows will be used at all exposures. Wire glass and metal doors will be used to reduce the exposed area, that is, to confine fire for a considerable period to the part of the store it starts in. All stairways and the elevator shaft will be enclosed. Water buckets and fire extinguishers will be installed and possibly a stand pipe. The entire electrical equipment will be thoroughly overhauled. While matches are not considered as dangerous as they once were, it is probable a separate air-tight compartment will be constructed for them.

Established Seventy-One Years.

The Michie business has exceeded the scriptural age of man and was never more flourishing than to-day. It was founded on the present location on May 1, 1835, practically 71 years ago, and has remained in the control of one or more members of the Michie family ever since. It is one of the most profitable grocery businesses in America, the profits having amounted in a single year to the handsome sum of $40,000.

Michie & Co., Limited, were incorporated last year with the following directors: President, J. Forbes Michie; secretary-treasurer, Chas. E. Stone, C. A.; H. J. Reeve, managing grocery department; Alexander Anderson, managing the liquor store. All the present directors have been associated with the business for periods ranging from 18 to 25 years.

MONTREAL'S NEW INDUSTRY.

Montreal is to have a large new industry in full operation in the near future. The Smart Bag Company, Limited, is the name of the new company, which will manufacture jute and cotton bags, Hessians, buckrams, paddings, ropes and twines. Mr. Charles A. Smart, the organizer of the new company, was for fifteen years with the Dominion Bag Company and for the past seven or eight years was the secretary and manager of that company. When the Dominion Bag Company amalgamated with the Canadian Jute Company under the name of the Canadian Bag Company, although offered a position with the combine Mr. Smart declined and formed the new company, with a capital of $1,000,000, of which amount $400,000 will be paid up.

The Smart Bag Company, Limited, have purchased the canvass and bag business of John Dick, Limited, with factories in Toronto and Winnipeg. It is the intention of the company to erect in Montreal a bag factory which will be the best on the continent. The necessary options have already been secured and building operations will commence immediately. The Toronto and Winnipeg factories will also be enlarged and made so that the company will be able to cope with the increase in business which they expect in the coming season.

Mr. Smart is one of the best known and most popular men in the bag business in Canada to-day. He has traveled from Halifax to Vancouver and has made the acquaintance of all the millers. Mr. Smart's business ability became known when he was with the Dominion Bag Company and in Montreal he is recognized as an honest and energetic business man.

Mr. Keene, who was for many years Mr. Smart's assistant, has resigned his position with the Dominion Bag Company to assume the office of secretary-treasurer of the new company. Mr. Keene is also well known in the milling trade. The new company has opened up offices in the Board of Trade building, Montreal.

A BRANCH IN WINNIPEG.

Mr. Fred. L. Ratcliff, of Douglas & Ratcliff, Limited, wholesale paper dealers, Toronto, has just returned from Winnipeg, where he was attending to the opening of a new branch office and warehouse.

This company has had gratifying success in their trade relations in Ontario, having built up a very substantial business, and it is therefore not surprising that they should be reaching out to the great western territory.

Mr. Ratcliff reports that his firm have been appointed sole agents for the Soo Paper Mills, whose building papers are largely in demand in the west, and who also manufacture manilla wrapping papers suitable for grocers' and butchers' use. Mr. Thomas Gam, who was for many years manager for the Lincoln Paper Mills, in Toronto, and more recently with Douglas & Ratcliff, Limited, assumes the position of manager for the branch house, with quarters at 58 Victoria street, Winnipeg.

TRINIDAD EXHIBITS AT THE MONTREAL B. O. T.

Some months ago it was proposed that in order to stimulate a further interest in Trinidad trade a permanent exhibit of its principal products should be placed in Montreal, and, on representations being made to the council of the Board of Trade, they generously offered to receive the exhibit and to allow it to remain in their hall. This was communicated to Mr. J. Russell-Murray, the representative of the Imperial Department of Agriculture of the British West Indies, who, by the way, was the originator of the idea, and the Agricultural Society of Trinidad took an active interest in carrying out the proposal and supplying the entire exhibit, which has been completed and transferred to the custody of the board through their secretary, Mr. Hardrill.

The exhibit consists of sugars, molasses, cocoa, coffee, asphalts (crude and refined), manjak, copra, cocoanut oil, angostura bitters, balata, petroleum, etc., and is placed in a very handsome oak and plate glass show case, specially built in Montreal.

The island of Trinidad is the most southerly of the West India islands, and lies at the mouth of the Orinoco river, the great waterway to the interior of Venezuela. Under a more stable government, Venezuela would be an immense source of trade to Trinidad, and in course of years that may be realized.

The population of Trinidad numbers about 240,000, of which 80,000 to 90,000 are East Indians. The chief industries are agriculture, cocoa and sugar being the principal products; fruit shipping is being encouraged and it is to be hoped it will prove a success.

The imports and exports, which form an attractive subject for review, have been ably compiled in a condensed form by Prof. Carmody, the government chemist of the island, and are available in pamphlet form. One of the features that calls for special remark is the limited percentage of trade done directly with Canada in comparison with the United States, in products equally produced in both countries, the imports being as follows for 1904 :

Imports.

	From U.S.A.	From Canada.
Biscuits, bbls.	6,454	1,746
Flour, bbls.	225,537	5,264
Meal	9,920	54
Potatoes		£8,369
Oil meal, lbs.	4,849,020
Oats, bushels	3,734	194,236
Maize, bushels	29,499
Hay and bran	£2,793	£377
Butter, lbs.	43,708	28,723
Cheese, lbs.	204,883	26,961
Meat, lbs.	6,918,289	100,326
Fish	289,998	6,500,593
Lumber, feet	9,982,363	1,807,321

Exports.

	To U.S.A.	To Canada.
Sugar, crys. cwts.	326,261	47,364
Molasses, gals.		44,222
Bitters, gals.	11,178
Cocoa, cwts.	136,543
Cocoanuts	4,245,530
Asphalt, tons	138,311
Balata	£3,140
Hides	£13,463	£11,220

The imports from the United States, however, contain a proportion of Canadian shipments estimated at 20 per cent. at least, but the figures as a whole show to what extent the United States has secured the trade. Does it not appeal to all men interested in the development of export and import trade to inquire into the reason why the United States should have such an overwhelming share of the trade in products so largely produced in Canada ? It is true that a small increase in trade is apparent since 1900, but it is far short of what it should be, and in the exports from Trinidad to Canada there has been a heavy falling off in lines such as

Sugar, crys. cwts.	59,647	47,364

One of the comparatively new industries of the island brought to a successful issue is the mining of manjak. This high-grade bituminous product is found in veins at 60 to 300 feet underground, and is used in the preparation of varnish, insulation, and for addition to certain classes of pavements. Of considerable interest are the crude petroleum samples from the southeast coast of Trinidad. where a Canadian syndicate is engaged in exploiting the concessions. Very little has been reported for the information of the public beyond that there are good prospects for a successful issue of their labors ; analytical chemists report very highly on the quality of the petroleum.

It is under such auspices as these that business interests can be extended, and why should not Canadian business men reciprocate such efforts in their own special spheres ? These are the stepping stones to increased trade, to preferential tariffs, better steamship communications and reciprocity.

AN INVASION OF THE SOUTH.

Mr. F. Menzie, superintendent sales department of the F. F. Dalley Co., of Hamilton, dropped into the Toronto office of The Canadian Grocer the other day to renew old acquaintances and to express his appreciation of the work The Grocer was doing for the trade.

Mr. Menzie had just returned from a trip down through the Southern States and was brim full of anecdotes concerning the sunny south.

Mr. Menzie did not make the trip alone. He was aecompanied by Mrs. Menzie and eight bright young men, six of them Canadians, and his mission was to introduce Two in One to gentlemen of the south. Starting in at West Virginia, the party swept the seaboard states down to Florida, around the Gulf, taking in Texas, and back up the Mississippi to St. Louis. The party included W. H. Thompson, Thos. Davies, W. C. Dowrie, F. Cairns, Hamilton ; Bert Seaman, Niagara Falls ; Frank Thies, St. Catharines ; W. H. Pugh, Philadelphia, and W. C. Gladding, Brooklyn.

The trip Mr. Menzie reports to have been both successful and enjoyable. He was enthusiastic in his description of southern hospitality.

"Hello, brother, come in and sit down," is the customary salutation to the traveler. After a comfortable visit the southerner stretches out his legs and drawls, "Well, brother, what have you got to show to-day ?" Selling goods in the south is one grand, sweet song.

Mr. Frank Menzie
Superintendent of Sales of the F. F. Dalley Co.

The party set out in November and have just returned. Until they got down in Georgia no very marked difference in climate was noticed, but the negroes were everywhere. Of the blacks Mr. Menzie had not much of good to say. About two days a week was all the work that could be got out of them.

The lack of respect for human life, especially in Texas, was impressed very forcibly upon the Canadians. All the natives went armed.

At Navasota, a prettily situated little town in Texas, Mr. Menzie was admiring the place to a citizen, who replied appreciatively :

"You're right, stranger ; I tell you we'd 'a' had a right smart town here if there hadn't been so much killing."

In spite of the number of homicides, very few are ever brought to justice. Political influence is usually strong enough to get the culprit off.

Mr. Menzie has been with the F. F. Dalley Company about ten years, and reports business to be in good shape. The Two in One for the United States is manufactured at the company's factory at Jersey City.

Before leaving Mr. Menzie remarked that attractive as the south was, Canada would do for him. "You need this cold climate to feel good," he added, buttoning up his overcoat.

ENTERPRISE MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Taking advantage of a few hours in Philadelphia recently the representative of The Canadian Grocer made a visit to the works of the Enterprise Manufacturing Company, whose specialties have for some years been exploited in the advertising pages of this paper.

The works occupy a whole block bounded by American, Third, Dauphin and Susquehana streets, and employ a staff of some eight hundred men.

The visitor was courteously received by Mr. H. R. Zesinger and shown through the several departments where cutting, grinding and pulverizing machines of all descriptions were being manufactured and assembled. They included coffee mills, bone grinders, meat and food choppers, sausage stuffers for hand or power propulsion. The coffee mills are of all sizes and are fitted with electric driving attachments if desired.

Among the other specialties made by the Enterprise Company are fruit presses, cherry stoners, raisin and grape seeders, vegetable slicers, meat shavers, syrup pumps, etc.

The company has its own printing plant for the printing of tags, bills, circulars, etc. They are just now engaged in getting out a new catalogue of their lines which will be distributed shortly.

A railroad runs right by one side of the plant and with an electric traveling crane the work of receiving and sending out shipments is greatly minimized.

ILL AWAY FROM HOME.

Mark Baggallay, of Jardine, Matheson & Co., Yokohama and Kobe, Japan, who has been calling upon the Canadian trade with Mr. W. H. Halford, representing S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, the Canadian agents, was taken ill in Toronto last week. Recovering after a few days he went to Hamilton and while calling upon the trade there was taken ill with another severe attack. It was found necessary to remove him to the hospital, where it developed that the illness was a recurrence of a severe attack of malarial fever contracted by Mr. Baggallay while in Formosa some six years ago. Inquiry on part of The Canadian Grocer this week elicited the information that Mr. Baggallay was somewhat better and is slowly recovering. His many friends in the trade in Montreal and other Canadian cities who have been concerned on receipt of the news of his illness will be pleased to learn of his convalescence.

The Union Bank of Canada has opened a branch at Waskada, Man.

GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

Now is the appropriate time for fruit advertising. It is true some popular lines are rather scarce, but this fact serves to give the enterprising grocer an excellent opportunity to make attractive announcements.

More Fruit Publicity.

As a rule grocers do not devote much space to fruit advertising. Occasionally a good fruit ad is seen, but the number might well be augmented.

The Sales.

To make fruit-selling a success the turn-over should not be dragged out one day longer than necessary.

Newspaper Potency.

Good newspaper advertisements will, more than any other single factor, help facilitate fruit sales.

Specimen Ads.

Three specimen newspaper advertisements have been drawn up for this reason. With some slight changes these advertisements are suitable for any grocery store.

Advertising Space, Etc.

As will be noticed, different sized spaces are given to the different advertisements—45 lines to one on apples and grape fruits, 25 lines double column to oranges and pineapples, and 65 lines to fruit and vegetables.

"Apple" Opportunity.

The fact that apples are scarce and prices high gives the grocer an excellent chance to bid for custom in his particular field.

Grape Fruit Season.

Grape fruit is plentiful but the season will soon be drawing to a close so that a fruit advertisement might well incorporate this line.

Vegetables Also.

Combining fruit and vegetables in the larger advertisement presents the grocer with an opportunity to enumerate some of the seasonable arrivals, and considering prices, those most likely to be called for by the majority of buyers.

Oranges.

Just at present oranges might well be advertised, for the scarcity of some other fruits is counterbalanced by a plentiful supply of oranges.

"Now or Never."

Then as regards the marmalade oranges, it is a question of "now or never." Both the seller and the buyer have to be alert.

The Pineapples.

Cuban pineapples are due and profitable mention can be made of them.

Anent Dimensions.

The space apportioned to the different advertisements is representative, but for particular cases it might be found necessary to either add to or cut down.

Adaptability.

Where advertisements run in certain newspapers each week and the matter is grouped off into departments, why, then fruit and vegetable advertising would have to take its place in the general advertisement. A. A. B.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE.

A traveler put up for the night at the leading hotel in a small town, and, before retiring, left very particular instructions to be called in time for an early train. Early in the morning he was disturbed by a lively tattoo upon the door.

"Well ?" he demanded, sleepily.

"I've got an important message for you !" replied the bell boy.

The traveler was up in an instant, opened the door, and received from the boy a large envelope. He tore it open hastily, and inside found a slip of paper, on which was written in large letters, "Why don't you get up ?"

GET IN LINE FOR THE GROCERS' CLASS.

Nothing so important to the grocery trade has occurred in a long time as the announcement in last week's issue of The Canadian Grocer, by Dr. Packenham, principal of the Technical High School, Toronto, that at the opening of the school next Fall a free evening course of technical instructions for grocers would be established. He made it conditional upon a sufficient interest being shown by the grocers themselves to justify the new departure. Concretely that means a class of forty or more to start with.

There are several hundred grocers' clerks in Toronto, and a large number of grocers also, who would greatly benefit by taking the proposed course of lectures and demonstrations. What each one of them should do now, right away, is write to Dr. Packenham and state that they will become a member of the class. With a sufficient number of such assurances in hand Dr. Packenham will be encouraged to undertake the work of organizing the course. It is no light task.

The wholesale grocers owe this move a very hearty and substantial support. Dr. Packenham would be very glad of any suggestions from them, and their must be men in their employ who, with a little encouragement from them, would attend the course.

This departure in education is of scarcely less interest to the general public, because the great proportion of the food stuffs of the people is handled by the grocers, and every one will admit that there is wide room for improvement.

THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS' TAX.

The smouldering flame of discontent which has been burning and rankling in the breasts of business men in the Province of Quebec ever since the law was passed imposing a license fee on all non-resident commercial travelers doing business in the Province of Quebec broke out into a fierce flame of anger recently when it was learned that a commercial traveler representing an American house had been arrested and temporarily imprisoned for non-payment of this license.

The facts of the case are very well known to the trade. The revenue police, hearing that a commercial traveler representing an American house was selling goods in Montreal without the required license, visited his hotel and found this to be true. They left the hotel, however, without making an arrest. But they returned the next day and, explaining why they did so, arrested him. He made no protest, but said that he had not had his lunch. He was told, however, that he would not be detained very long and that he could wait. As soon as the arrest was made the collector of provincial revenue was notified and he endeavored to inform the attorneys for the revenue department by telephone, but they were not in their offices. Meanwhile the traveler had been taken to the magistrate's office, where he was, on his own request, allowed to telephone a friend. He was not able to get him at first, but after a number of trials was successful. Others were ahead of him, and consequently he could not be taken before the magistrate at once, but after a little while he was taken in. On being questioned by the magistrate, he admitted being a representative of an American commercial house, trying to sell goods in Montreal from samples. When asked if he pleaded guilty, he said he did not know, but that he supposed he did. He explained that he had telephoned his friend, who would be present shortly, but that he was not prepared to say anything until his arrival. The magistrate said this would be satisfactory, and asked for what date the case should be fixed and said that meanwhile a plea of "not guilty" would be entered. The case was fixed for two days later, and the traveler was asked if he had bail. He replied that he would have to wait until he saw his friend. When it was decided when the case should be continued, the revenue officers had done their duty and had left, leaving the traveler in the hands of the officers of the court, who did not, it is said, put him in a cell for some little time. It is not known just how long it was until the arrival of the friend, when bail was given, but it is said that it was not longer than an hour, or an hour and a half, as the remand was made out about half-past two and everything was done before four o'cock, the usual time for closing court. Later in the week the traveler called upon the collector of provincial revenue and admitting that he was liable for the tax and fine, saying that he did not know how to make out the former, asked if the proceedings could not be dropped if he took out a license. He was told that he would be given a license at once if he wished, and that it would be a good thing for him to have his lawyer write the department stating his case, when it was probable that a large portion of the fine would be remitted. This was done, and it turned out that the honorable treasurer dropped the prosecution, the traveler paying costs and taking out his license. But meanwhile the case was not proceeded with on the second day after the arrest, so that the lawyer might have time to write the department. The traveler took out a license immediately, and proceedings were dropped.

This story, which was set forth in a letter from the collector of provincial revenue and which appeared in one of the Montreal dailies, seems to be very reasonable, and most rational business men are inclined to think that this is about the way the whole thing occurred. The traveler claims that he was locked up with a criminal all afternoon. From the statement of the revenue officials, he could not have been locked up more than two or two and a half hours, as the proceedings took only three hours. The traveler said that he was not permitted to telephone his friends. He was allowed to use the telephone as much as he desired. He claimed also that he was not allowed to take his lunch. This is true. Perhaps there is no excuse why he should not have been allowed to lunch, but the law cannot be expected to stop in its course in a case like this. The traveler's story seems to be somewhat exaggerated, which is excuseable considering what the state of his feelings must have been after this treatment.

The tax itself, however, is another matter. It is obnoxious to the non-resident commercial traveler and the house he represents; it is condemned by boards of trade; it restricts trade; it does little good and considerable harm. This law has its good points, certainly, otherwise it never would have been passed. Probably the strongest argument in its favor is that it prevents American houses demoralizing the Canadian market by "unloading" here whenever they find it convenient. In this way it is a protection. Through enacting this law foreign houses, thought the Government, would probably find it more profitable to establish branch houses here than to pay the license every time their representative made a call. The benefit which has been realized in this direction is small indeed.

Others reasons might be advanced in favor of the license; the action of the Government in enacting such a law might be defended in other ways; but the fact remains that the law itself is a poor one when the good of the majority is considered.

MARKET MEANINGS OF WORDS.

When J. Stanley Cook, assistant secretary of the Montreal Board of Trade, and secretary of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, was on the stand in the Hamilton Police Court recently as a witness in the preliminary investigation into the charge of conspiracy against the officers of the guild, the prosecuting attorney asked him if he knew the difference between a jobber and a wholesaler. He replied that he did not, and none of the eminent lawyers or wholerale grocers present seemed ready with an explanation.

As a matter of fact the words are used interchangeably. They are not, however, commercially symnomous. A correct classification of traders in strict terminology of commerce, indicating the several relations to the trade, seemed quite worth while. In Britain it is as follows:

Merchant.—The original importer. It is immaterial whether or not he is foreign or where he lives. He is the man who puts the goods on the market.

Broker.—The agent who acts for the merchant or for the buyer.

Dealer. — The wholesale buyer who buys from the merchant through the broker.

Wholesaler. — (General) for distribution to the retail trade.

In New York the classification is practically the same, except that the dealer in usually called a jobber.

Any one class of trader may, and sometimes does, conduct business in a dual and even a triple capacity. But on the market when the word merchant, broker, dealer or wholesaler is used, the man of commerce knows what is meant.

The exact commercial significance of those words cannot be got from the dictionary. Chambers's definitions are as follows:

Merchant.—One who carries on trade, especially on a large scale; one who buys and sells goods; a trader.

Broker.—One who transacts business for another.

Dealer.—One who deals; a trader.

Jobber—One who buys and sells as a broker.

Webster gives these:

Merchant.—A man who traffics or carries on trade with foreign countries, or who exports and imports goods and sells them by wholesale. In popular usage, any trader, or one who deals in the purchase and sale of goods.

Broker.—An agent or negotiator who is employed by merchants to make and conclude bargains for them for a fee or rate per cent., or who transacts other business for his employers.

Dealer.—A trade, a trafficer, a shopkeeper, a broker, a merchant; a word of very extensive use, as a dealer in dry goods, a dealer in hardware, a dealer in stocks, a dealer in leather, a dealer in lumber, etc.

Jobber.—A merchant who purchases goods from importers and sells to retailers.

Wholesaler is not recognized, and jobber is given to signify what is now usually termed a grafter.

BETTER ACCOMMODATION NEEDED.

Canadian banks are attracting a great deal of attention to themselves by the palatial buildings which they are erecting, even for their branches. The fact that it is impossible to float a bank with any possible success without a very large paid up capital to begin with makes the banking business a practical monopoly. As a consequence, in spite of the fact that the older banks, at least, are paying ten or twelve per cent. dividends, they are piling up surpluses of over one hundred per cent. of their capital.

It is time the public received some benefit from this prosperity. An English business man who recently visited this country, mentioned as one element which counted strongly in making up the industrial prosperity of Lancashire, the fact that money could be borrowed very cheaply. This enabled the small spinners to buy in advance and set up their plants at the minimum expense.

The same result would follow here if the banks reduced their rates on commercial paper and extended accommodation more liberally to the industries of the country. The great profits which are accruing from the banking business show that a reduced rate of interest on loans is quite feasible. The expenditure on buildings might easily be curtailed; the stability of the institutions does not require the heaping up of a colossal reserve fund. Banking institutions are protected more than any other business by Government enactments. Consequently they owe a fair service to the public. This service should consist primarily in making loans at a reasonable rate, where the security is sufficient.

The complaint is made with great insistence that it is next to impossible to get reasonable accommodation in the smaller towns. The deposits are sent to the head office, where investments can be made in greater amounts. It would be well for bank officials to give heed to public criticisms of this kind. The many advantages of our banking system with its branches are quite apparent and we are sometimes soothed into forgetfulness of the defects which occur as a consequence of it. If the big banks do not grant more favorable terms it will only be a matter of time till some other system is devised to carry on the work. A lower rate of interest on loans would be a fair concession to the commercial interests of the country.

FLYING TRIP EAST.

Wm. C. McCuaig, of the Walker Bin & Store Fixture Company, Limited, Berlin, Ont., manufacturers of the Walker Bin Modern Grocery Fixtures, is making a flying trip through the Maritime Provinces. All merchants interested in this excellent line of grocery fixtures, and desiring more definite information with reference to them, would do well to address Mr. McCuaig, care of The Canadian Grocer's representative, Mr. J. Hunter White, 3 Market Wharf St. John, N.B.

THE SUGAR TARIFF CONTROVERSY.

The following correspondence on the above subject will be read with interest by those of our readers who have followed the various developments:

Editor The Canadian Grocer.

Sir,—I cannot let Mr. Hugh Blain's remarks in The Canadan Grocer of 9th inst. go by default. A good memory is essential when one enters a controversy, and I am afraid my friend Mr. Blain overlooked this fact when he begged the question by pleading his criticism was of necessity cursory, because he had not had an opportunity to study my paper I sent Mr. Blain a copy of my address to the Tariff Commission on Feb. 15, accompanied by the following letter:

"Dear Mr. Blain,—As you are naturally interested in the subject and probably have so far only seen newspaper references to the statement I made to the Tariff Commission at Ottawa on the sugar question, I take pleasure in enclosing copy of my address.

"I shall be glad to hear from you if there are any points you would like to discuss with me.

"Yours faithfully,

"(Sgd.) ROBERT ANDERSON."

To which Mr. Blain replied dated:

Toronto, Feb. 16, 1906.

"Dear Mr. Anderson,—I am just in receipt of your esteemed favor of the 15th inst., kindly sending me a copy of your address before the Tariff Commission, which I shall take pleasure in carefully examining, and should I find it necessary, will accept the privilege kindly extended to me, of writing you further with reference to it.

"Thanking you again for kindly sending me a copy, I am,

"Yours truly,

"(Sgd.) H. BLAIN."

Mr. Blain, therefore, had my paper before him for a whole week before his interview appeared in The Canadian Grocer, but he did not communicate with me, and his remarks in your issue of Feb. 23 were the next I heard from him. I did not send you a copy of my address until Feb. 23, but even if you got a loan of my paper from a mutual friend in Toronto and showed it to Mr. Blain previous to his receiving a copy from me direct, he had ample time either to amend his criticism or withdraw it after he had heard from me before his interview published on Feb. 23 went to press.

The rest of Mr. Blain's remarks read like an attempt to envelope the issue in a haze, but I think I let sufficient daylight into the matter in my letter in The Grocer of 2nd inst. to prove to your readers that Mr. Blain's dealing with "the practical aspect of the case" in his interview which you published on 23rd ult., was purely theoretical and not in accordance with the experience of practice.

Mr. Blain says he is not interested in the United States tariff, or the relative protection which the refineries of the two countries receive, but I venture to say that the consumers in Canada are deeply interested to know that the Canadian refiners are granted over 50 per cent. more protection than is given to the sugar refiners in one of the "great high tariff countries."

I defy anyone to disprove the facts of my arguments as a whole.

ROBERT ANDERSON.

Manager Robert Crooks & Co.

The following letter from our correspondent at Halifax, N.S., in reply to Mr. R. Anderson's comments on his reports, illustrates the wide attention that is given to this subject:

"Mr. Robert Anderson, of Montreal, manager for Robert Crooks & Co., seems to be a little disturbed over the sugar situation in Halifax. He evidently knows it all, but I fail to see where he is entitled to any "bouquets" for the recent cut in the price of sugar in this city. In fact, but few persons hereabouts knew that such a person as Robert Anderson, of Montreal, existed.

"Mr. Anderson carefully avoids mentioning the fact that the local refineries are attempting to force the Scotch sugar from this market. Mr. Anderson's letter in The Grocer was read with much interest in these parts and a portion of the local press also republished it. Some paragraphs of it were found most interesting, particularly that one referring to the cost of the sugar and the quality of the Austrian brand. Mr. Anderson, however, might have given the cost of the Scotch sugar, so as the consumer could really see how much he was paying for that article in camparison with the other.

"It is quite evident, however, that Mr. Anderson has an axe to grind, and the information that he is supplying the public with, is not alone for the benefit of his health, or for the sole purpose of philanthrophy. Strange, is it not that Mr. Anderson was not heard from long ago on this subject. The public of Halifax have been weighed down for years by the high price of sugar, and surely Mr. Anderson must have had some knowledge of the conditions and the prices here. After paying five and five and a half cents for Austrian sugar, and six cents for higher grades, the recent cut was most welcome to the consumer who could secure a bag at 3 1-2c. per pound. Surely that fact is worthy of special note, and it is needless to say that the benefit was very great, even if the Austrian sugar is not the equal of second grade Scotch.

"I have no apology to make for drawing Mr. Anderson out. It is an old saying that when the "cat is out of the bag," somebody squeals, and this fact is quite evident in the present case.

"Since my last report the refineries here have advanced the price of all grades of refined sugars ten cents per 100 pounds in sympathy with the Montreal and New York markets, and it is probable that before another week passes, a further advance of 10c. will be made. Now, if there is any way that Mr. Anderson can see to check this advance, he will certainly win the good graces of the "Bluenoses," and it will not be necessary for him or his friend, the Montreal Grocer, to think that we are such —— fools down this way after all."

AN ACTIVE BOARD OF TRADE.

Kentville, Nova Scotia, is a small town of 1,800 inhabitants, but it has a board of trade with enterprise and public spirit. It takes an interest in the town. At the recent annual meeting standing committees were appointed to deal with the following subjects: Schools, streets and public buildings, tourists, immigration, the press, trade and transportation, fire alarm, sewerage.

Why, the list reads like a subdivision of work by a municipal council. And these committees are not ornamental; they work. The annual report of the tourist committee should be laid before every board of trade in Canada, just for its suggestiveness.

Kentville has the kind of board of trade that is needed throughout Canada. Business men should be very much alive to their duties of citizenship, and how better or more effectively can they exercise their influence than through their business organization.

THE E. B. EDDY CO'S NEW PRESIDENT.

William Horsley Rowley, heretofore secretary-treasurer of the E. B. Eddy Company, Limited, of Hull, Quebec, was at the annual meeting of the company elected president and managing director in succession to the late E. B. Eddy.

Mr. Rowley was born at Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, in the early fifties. He began his career in 1870 when he entered the service of the Merchants' Bank of Canada at Montreal. He was afterwards stationed at the bank's branches in Windsor, Kingston, and Ottawa, respectively, and in November, 1880, was appointed manager of the Ottawa branch of the bank. This position he resigned on the formation of the late E. B. Eddy's business into a joint stock company, in 1887, when he became secretary-treasurer of the new company.

BRADSTREET'S IN CALGARY.

The Bradstreet Company, who have had a representative stationed in Calgary for some time, have decided to open a fully equipped office in that city. This move on their part is greatly appreciated not only by the local bankers and wholesalers, but also by all that trade which is more or less tributary to Calgary.

GROCER'S APPRENTICE TO SENATOR

Hon. Robert Jaffray, who was created a Senator last week, was of Scotch farmer stock, and began life for himself as a grocer's apprentice. The question that arises is: How did he do it? It is a far cry from the Edinburg grocery of J. R. Dymock to the Red Chamber at Ottawa; it is 60 years less one from the raw country lad and new apprentice of fifteen, just from school, to the tall, broad shouldered, athletic-looking old gentleman, financier, director of many companies, trusted counsellor of political leaders and captains of industry, now taking his seat in the Dominion Senate. How did he do it?

Unless there is no truth in the old adage, "The boy is father of the man," Mr. Dymock found his new apprentice absolutely trustworthy, generous, unobtrusive in manner, wonderously industrious, energetic and selfreliant in a marked degree. Latent then, but rapidly developed, was a keen, shrewd business acumen, combined with a farsightedness often remarkable.

Call of the New Land.

It is not surprising that such a lad, having served his apprenticeship of five years and grown to a young man of twenty, should respond to the call of the new world. He arrived in Toronto in 1852. There were 30,000 people in the then capital of Upper Canada, but the most northerly store on Yonge street was where what is now the corner of Louisa street, and it was kept by his brother-in-law, J. B. Smith. It was a grocery and provision store, and Mr. Smith, having other interests, placed his brother-in-law in charge of it. The young Scotchman found the business in an unsatisfactory financial position, but there was no daunting him. He was selfreliant and he obeyed the eleventh commandment, "Don't worry."

It is said of him at this time that he would go home at night with heavy obligations to meet on the morrow, and little in sight with which to liquidate; sleep soundly and come down in the morning as cheery as a lark to grapple with his difficulties. Well, in five years he was a partner and the year following decided to give his whole time to his other interest, and Mr. Jaffray took over the entire business. That was in 1858.

"I knew him well in those days," recently remarked the general manager of one of Toronto's banks. "I can see him now running down in his shirtsleeves to our bank to make his deposits; and his deposits were not very large in those days either."

The city grew past Louisa street. The business grew apace and added a wholesale department. That was before the railways had diverted traffic from Yonge street and the hundreds of farmers who teamed to Toronto dealt at the Yonge street store. A dozen men were employed and a manager.

From Grocer to Financier.

Gradually Mr. Jaffray relieved himself of the details of management and left himself time for other interests which his increasing means invited. He became one of the organizers of the Land Security Company, and an associate with him in that company was H. M. Alexander MacKenzie.

It is time to mention politics. Like most Scotchman in Canada, Mr. Jaffray was by profession and profound conviction a Liberal; his indomnitable energy had made him a worker of acumen; his capacity for organization, his sound judgment, clearsightedness and breadth of view had made him a leader in the counsels of his party. When Mr. MacKenzie became Premier in 1874, and was looking about for some one to represent the Government on the directorate of the Northern Railway, what more natural than that he should hit upon his friend Jaffray, whose business capacity and industry he knew. Parliament had made large advances to the railway and things were not looking too well. The Premier's choice could not have been bettered. Through the representations of Mr. Jaffray the Government instituted an inquiry into the affairs of the railway that resulted very beneficially, and largely because of Mr. Jaffray's efforts the indebtedness to the country was eventually paid.

The Honorable Robert Jaffray of the Canadian Senate, and a credit to it.

Met Geo. A. Cox.

In good or evil ways one thing leads to another. It was not luck that brought Geo. A. Cox and Robert Jaffray together in the management of the Midland Railway, then a small affair from Port Hope to Peterboro with a branch to Lindsay. Sometime before this, how long it doesn't matter, Hon. George Brown had said to a friend and business associate whom he knew to be a friend of Mr. Jaffray, "Why don't you bring your friend Jaffray down? I would like to meet him." It shows Mr. Jaffray had become a man to be known. This request was complied with and the two Scots became and remained intimate friends.

The Philadelphia Centennial brought to America a Scotch gentleman prominent at least in his own town. Having a friend in Toronto he came on to Canada to see him, and a few leading Caledonians were got together to dine with him, among them Hon. George Brown and Mr. Jaffray. It came out in the course of conversation that Mr. Lyle, that was the visitor's name, had invested £6,000 in the bonds of the Midland Railway, and was much disgusted because it had never paid interest and there didn't appear much choice of saving the principal.

"A good property, but badly managed," declared Mr. Brown. "Why don't you get a good man on the board to look after your interests there?"

He wouldn't even go and look at the road, but the suggestion was not lost, for a year after a letter came from him stating that he and other bondholders were prepared to place to the credit of Mr. Jaffray and any one else he would select sufficient interest in the road to make them directors. Mr. Jaffray consented to undertake the task and decided his associate should be a Peterboro man. He did not know any one at Peterboro, but he knew others who did. Mr. Cox was selected and within a day or two the matter was arranged. When they took hold they found many of the employes unpaid and things in rotten shape. Within a year the bonds that had been worth nothing were quoted at 50 per cent. of their face value, and the Scotch holders offered to sell out at that to their two Canadian trustees. Messrs. Jaffray and Cox said "No, we'll do better than that," and they did. Finally the road was absorbed by the Grand Trunk under a 99 years lease.

The association of business interests between Messrs. Cox and Jaffray then established has been continued and has meant much to both of them. Probably there are not in Canada to-day two men of sounder judgment, keener business acumen or more industrious.

Varied Interests.

Of business and finance it only need be added that Mr. Jaffray is, since last month, vice-president of the Imperial Bank, after thirty years on the directorate; vice-president of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., director of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation, of the Canadian General Electric Co., and president of the Globe Co.

His Great Single Service.

It is only as president of the Globe that Mr. Jaffray has become widely known. He was never much of a public speaker and so his political work was not of a kind to bring him before the footlights. He came upon the Globe directorate in 1880, and eight years later succeeded in the presidency Mr. James Maclennan, K.C., who had been transfered to the bench. It became his chief ambition to see the Globe a great newspaper, and in pursuance of that ambition Mr. Jaffray has probably rendered his greatest service to the public of Canada. It was not as a great party paper he was ambitious for the paper. He wanted it a newspaper eminently fair and absolutely reliable so far as its news columns were concerned. The fair conduct of a great newspaper is worth more to a country, and especially a young country, than many industries. Mr. Jaffray pursued his ambition with infinite patience and determination. For years the financial posi

GROCERIES.

Montreal, March 16, 1906.

Trade generally is reported quiet in grocery circles. Orders are light and travelers report that country buyers are complaining of dullness and consequently securing only small orders. Collections are, however, tolerably satisfactory and considering that this is settlement month, renewals are above the average. The sugar market is keeping buying still somwhat unsettled and buyers seem in a quandary as to whether to buy or to hold off. Teas have shown an improvement in demand, due to the firmer market in the east and London, also the fact that stocks in the country must be replenished soon. Canned goods interests centre around the Toronto situation, market being strong and inquiries for same active with holders disinclined to let go any quantity. Foreign dried fruits, contrary to normal conditions prevailing at this season of the year, are interesting, and the market being closely watched. Fish trade is flourishing, due to the extra Lenten demand. Eggs are interesting and the market vacillating. New fresh laid eggs are arriving freely and upsetting calculations of holders of any cold storage goods; these latter buy in small compass, however.

Canned Goods—Tomatoes continue in great demand. Supplies at present are very small, it being impossible to obtain tomatoes in quantites demanded. The price is unchanged at $1.10. A rise of 10c. is noted in all cherries, but it is not looked upon as serious, as it was probably made to draw out the held stocks. Gallon apples are offered from $2.75 to $2.77 1-2, but are subject to withdrawal or advance in price at any time owing to the scarcity of apples in any shape or form, and the high price asked for such as are obtainable. There is the usual demand for the corn and peas Sugar—There is no change to report in the condition of the market this week. Business is reported fairly good by jobbers, and orders from the country are satisfactory, though not of the volume desired. The recent advance of 10c. per hundred is cheeringly being taken advantage of, and although there was indication on part of country buyers to order more freely since the rise last week, the general conditions that have prevailed during the past year, have weakened confidence in a steady and rising, as well as permanent market. The foreign beet market, as well as the raw markets, are steady and indicate a firmer tone.

Molasses and Syrups—No change at all is reported in the state of the local molasses market. A gain of one cent a gallon in the price at the Barbadoes, however, has a tendency to strengthen holders' views here. Latest advices from the Islands say that there is a good demand there at present, and sales are being made to points which hitherto very seldom purchased. Price is still 14c. Tea—Business during the past week has been fairly good, though no very large amount of business has turned. Ceylon and Indian blacks have shown considerable activity on spot and in London. Also in Autumnal Indians, ranging from, Ceylons, 6 1-2d to 8 1-2d, and for Autumnals, from 7 1-2d to 10d. Ceylon greens have also been in fair demand, principally for Young Hysons and Hysons No. 1. Japans have met with rather slow sale, except for teas from 12 1-2c. to 16c., but as this grade is somewhat scarce, it is quite likely that lower grades will be fetching more money before the season opens. There is no change to note in China greens. The market is steady. Formose Oulongs and sented orange Pekoes have been in fair demand, several parcels having changed hands during the week.

Coffee—The market locally is quiet. The conditions reported from New York and Brazil are proving somewhat puzzling to the trade, as despite the statistics which indicate a very great shortage in stocks on hand, and for future, the market is easy, with a tendency to weakness. In some quarters this is attributed to the manipulations of speculators. In the meantime it can be said that the market is in an unchanged position.

Foreign Dried Fruits—There is little of importance to note in connection with the dried fruit situation. The market is rather quiet.

Currants: The market is firm abroad. At the slight advance for the week, import orders have been general throughout Canada. Figs: Contrary to usual condition at this season, demand for choice layer goods has been active at prices that have proved attractive. Shelled Walnuts: It is reported that E. M. Dadelszen, Bordeaux, now control the greater part of the small stocks remaining in France. Shelled Almonds: Most Malaga sales have withdrawn, owing to the scarcities of supplies. This scarcity is due to a further drop in Spanish exchange and has brought about considerable augmentation of import costs. Taragona Almonds: Spot stocks continue to be obtainable at somewhat less than import quotations, but are rapidly getting into small compass. Valencia Raisins: Very good values are offering on spot and to arrive consignments, both in selected and four crown layers. Locally such deliveries are obtainable at below parity of New York or London markets. Anything of a desirable quality from Valencia has been cleaned up some weeks since.

Rice and Tapioca—The demand for rice continues strong, and supplies are such as to cause no uneasiness as to the filling of orders. One large wholesale house said that they had done a very much larger business in rice during the winter 1905-6 than they did in that of 1904-5. Tapioca continues to advance and is scarce and hard to get, holders being unwilling to part with any quantity. The price demanded now is 6 1-2c.

Beans—The position of beans ought to interest merchants at present. Choice prime are quoted $1.60 to $1.65. There seems to be very little demand even at this figure. Sales the past winter have not been so large as usual, consequently stocks are a little larger than they might otherwise be. It is said on good authority that certain western buyers are buying up beans at such a price as it would be impossible to sell them in Montreal.

Honey—There is nothing new to report about honey. The usual demand of this season prevails. People generally use honey until the stock of new syrup arrives, and until that time it is likely the situation will remain unchanged. Quotations for buckwheat remain from 7c. to 7 1-4c.

Maple Products—Dealers expect to put new goods on the market shortly. The great demand now is for pure maple syrups; people are getting tired of maple flavor goods and compounds. Great business is anticipated in new stock, for which many orders are already filed.

Evaporated Apples—The situation in evaporated apples is very acute. One large dealer remarked that it was very improbable that there were two cars to be obtained in Montreal at the present time. No relief is in sight. The price asked is 11 3-4c., an advance of 1-4c. since last week.

Fish—As is usual during the Lenten season the demand for all kinds of fish is very brisk. The mild weather this year has had some effect on sales, but not enough to be serious. Labrador herring are very scarce, in fact they are practically out of the market. There is a good supply in nearly all lines of frozen fish, and prices in several lines show a decline. A scarcity is felt of large green cod in salted fish, but smaller sizes are plentiful, and these will meet with better sale in the future owing to the fact that salt herring are scarce. In smoked fish there is a fairly good demand for haddies, and prices are lower than usual. The usual volume of business is being transacted in oysters and lobsters.

GROCERIES.

Trade is quiet, and until the opening of navigation and the Spring movement will probably remain so. Price changes during the week have not been numerous. Canned apples and cherries are advanced, and there are some changes in the prune and raisin quotations.

Canned Goods—The Canadian canners have advanced the price of standard gallon apples from $2.50 to $2.75, and in their advice to the trade state that their stock is very low and that there is a good demand from England. The new pack will not be in before October 1, and they urge immediate purchasing. Canned cherries are also raised 10c. all round. Tomatoes are not above last week's quotation, but the market is very bullish. One dealer said he expected to see them $1.20 within a month. They are too scarce to be classified, and $1.05 to $1.10 is the range of prices on the street.

Sugar—Conditions of the sugar market are unchanged. Both buyers and sellers are indifferent. Large supplies of raw are arriving to United States refiners which make them independent of offerings at the moment; while on the other hand, sellers have sold so much recently that they adopt the same attitude. Europe continues to improve slightly. Latest quotations for 88 per cent. is 8s. 4 1-2d, basis f.o.b. Hamburg, which is equal to 30c. per hundred above the parity on cane sugar duty paid at New York. There is a good demand for refined without any special indications.

In local refined since the recent advances the deliveries on account of sales have been quite heavy, but we hear of no further purchases of moment. Until stocks are somewhat depleted, it is not to be expected that there will be further free buying. Prices remain as below.

Willett & Gray, New York, say of the world's visible supply: "Total stock of Europe and America, 4,050,557 tons, against 2,902,816 tons last year at the same uneven dates. The increase of stock is 1,147,741 tons, against an increase of 1,229,252 tons last week. Total stocks and afloats together show a visible supply of 4,160,557 tons, against 3,012,816 tons last year, or an increase of 1,147,741 tons."

The increase was in Europe, America showing a decrease. Last week's summary of the statistical position shows stocks in the United States and Cuba together of 351,557 tons, against 325,249 tons the week before and 404,816 tons last year, a decrease of 53,250 tons from last year. Stock in Europe is 3,699.000 tons, against 2,498,000 tons last year.

Hamburg shows no shipments of raw or refined sugar to the United States last week.

Willett & Gray, reviewing last week's market in raws, say: "The week before we said that the chances are that we have seen the lowest prices of the year and indications point to continued firmness with a slowly hardening tendency. We are further confirmed in this opinion by the course of the market during the week under review, with quite considerable transactions. Quotations on the spot and for shipment have slightly advanced to 3.44c. per lb. for 96 degrees test centrifugals, duty paid, and its equivalent 2 3-32c. c. and f. for Cuban sugars. The advance is not important, but the fact remains that there are chances of a hardening tendency which should lead to further improvement. The important feature tending in this direction is the fact that Cuban planters are selling so far below the Hamburg parity for beet sugars, now 29c., as to cause a loss to them of nearly all the concessions made under the Cuban Reciprocity Treaty. While prices of beet sugars continue steady and even have an advancing tendency, it is natural to suppose that after the liberal sales made by Cuba, of her first production, from crop, she will be able to maintain a firmer pretention for the remainder of the crop, especially as at this time the total crop production to date is considerably less than at the corresponding time last season, although by no means too late to be recovered from before the end of the campaign.

"Our special cable from Cuba gives production to March 1st of 333,411 tons, against 539,194 tons for same time last year and total stock in the island is 138,828 tons, against 239,392 tons on same date last year.

"Several sailing vessels are said to have been chartered to load sugar in Cuba for the Western Refinery, San Francisco, to make up part of the deficiency in their supply of Hawaiian sugars, caused by the opening of the Crockett, California, refinery.

"It is reported that Demerara and other West India sugars to the extent of 20,000 tons, for shipment up to June, have been placed in Canada and, finding no more of available sugars which would be admitted under the preferential tariff, the Canadian buyers have recently accepted San Domingo centrifugals for March shipment at 1.80c. c. i. f. to New York, being 1-16c. above the value in this market.

"At the close it is rumored and believed that 2 1-8c. c. and f. has been paid for cuban centrifugals for March and April shipment, although full particulars are not given.

"European markets remained quiet during the week, closing with an advance of 3-4d., to 8s. 3 3-4d. for prompt and 8s. 7 1-2d. for August beet."

Tea—Conditions on the London market are slightly improved. Quality is still to be searched for, but common grades are going more easily. Gow, Wilson & Stanton, in a circular of March 2, say: "The ill effect on prices produced by the heavy supplies with which the market was surfeited during the opening sales of the year is at last disappearing, and prices show a tendency to steady again under the influence of regular supplies of moderate and workable dimensions."

Thompson's tea circular says: "The tone has tended to further improvement, particularly at the Indian auctions, where buyers are beginning to realize that the supply of useful liquoring grades is likely to be none too large during the next few months.

"The consumption outside the British Isles of British grown teas Indian and Ceylon was, in 1905: India, 54,785,200 lbs.; Ceylon, 74,068,600; in 1904: India, 55,713,300; Ceylon, 67,598,700. These figures show a falling off in Indias and a very large increase of Ceylon."

Coffee — The market continues firm, with improving chances of realizing the advance spoken of in these columns a little while ago.

Willett & Gray, reviewing the situation at the close of last week, say:

"The outturn of the present crop so far is an object lesson to the trade as to how little attention the crop prospects of Brazil deserve when told far ahead. It is very evident that Brazil's experience is only an exhibition of human nature, the same as all others in speculative ventures, that is, after being hopeful and bullish for seven or eight years, continually predicting smaller crops which turn out large ones, they finally become demoralized and as bearish as they were formerly bullish, predicting larger crops, when due to the neglectful state of their plantations, smaller crops is the inevitable result. The planters do their share to mislead the exporters by reporting their respective crops to be very large, in order toobtain full advances at the beginning of a crop. The demoralized state of trade during the last two or three years added to the representations of the farmers were conducive to estimates on the part of Brazilians of 12 and 13 million bags, which actually turns out less than 10 millions. The trade continues to be extremely cautious, which must eventually lead not only to small stocks in the interior, but probably to higher values at a time when they are hoping for lower ones, as results are usually opposite from expectations.

"Rio No. 7 continues at about 8 3-8c., while Santos grades, according to quality and roasting merits, commands from 9 1-8c. to 9 1-2c. for 4's and 9 3-8c. to 9 3-4c. for 3's, regular store terms."

Visible supply of the world in bags, was on March 1, 11,324,581; on February 1, 11,931,631, and March 1, 1905, 13,271,745.

Foreign Dried Fruits — Prunes are somewhat higher. The market is quite firm at the coast, and smaller sizes are very hard to buy. The approach of Easter is creating a demand for larger sizes. There are some alterations in the quotations below.

Prices of California raisins are yielding somewhat. Earlier in the season a well informed broker said the Californians put the prices too high; a reduction was made a couple of months ago, but they are still too high compared with other imported fruit.

Dates are slower for commoner grades. Evaporated apples are advanced from 1-2c. to a cent.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, March 15, 1906.

There is fair average business. There is little in general markets to encourage buyers. It is yet early for Spring business. The president of the board of trade and a representative from the city council had an interview during the past week with the Minister of Public Works in reference to improved harbor facilities here; the city standing ready to build the wharves if the Government will do the dredging. The Government are doing some dredging, but it is absolutely necessary that immediate steps be taken to extend the present contract and to hasten the completion of the work. Unless this is done at once the large amount already expended particularly by the city, will be almost entirely useless in meeting the demand for increased facilities for next season's business.

In markets, ginger is higher. Nutmegs also show advance. Pepper unchanged. Cloves firm. Cream of tarter rather higher. Rice is little changed.

Oil.—Burning oil is still unchanged at the low price quoted; sales continue good. There is a good business reported in lubricating oil, chiefly for later shipment. This will be a season of high paint oils, linseeds in particular being higher than last year, when a record was made as regards low prices. Turpentine continues at the very high figure ruling for some time. Business in cod oil now light; full prices rule.

Salt.—More interest is being shown in Liverpool coarse salt, contracts for Spring business are being made. Prices show little change from last year. In fine salt, while some Liverpool factory filled is sold and some extra quality repacked here in boxes Canadian has the large sale. Spring demand now manifest.

Canned Goods.—The chief interest is the effort to get vegetables up to fair market values; good stocks are held, prices keep low. Fruits are unchanged. There is improved demand for gallon apples at somewhat higher prices. Salmon unchanged. Lobster higher. Oysters firm. Meats are low. In domestic fish, sardines the only line in which there is much stock. Business has been quiet.

Dried Fruit.—In California seeded raisins local prices rather lower but coast prices show an advance from the low prices named after the new year. In loose raisins Malagas supply the market. Valencias are low. Currants are rather higher. Prunes have a steady sale, prices are higher and small sizes scarce. Apricots are also higher. Peaches but a fair sale. Dates show an advance, a steady demand particularly for package goods. In peels, citron, new goods, is quoted high, and it is said even higher prices will rule. Evaporated apples are high and sale limited. In onions just fair business, Valencias chiefly offered.

Sugars.—Dealers have bought rather more freely. The advance of the past week gave a better tone to the market, but there is still much lack of confidence.

Molasses.—Each West Indian steamer brings a fair quantity of Barbadoes molasses, chiefly fancy. While the question of duty on this grade is somewhat unsettled it is likely to be applied. Prices are quite low. In the regular grade first shipments seldom show best quality. In Porto Rico a fair stock of old held; just a fair sale.

Fish.—It is getting late for frozen stock. This means rather lower prices for fresh fish. There are some small arrivals of dry fish; while prices are high, market hardly as firm. Smoked herring are quite high; stock light. Picked are scarce and full prices are obtained. Finnan haddies are rather dull.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, March 14, 1906.

The grocery markets are fairly steady and prices show little change. The Spring trade is slow in opening up, and is looked upon as being a trifle backward. According to cables received here from Barbadoes, the molasses market is somewhat firmer, and that stocks of the old crop are pretty well exhausted. The price of beans has dropped a little, and it is reported that some jobbers in the Maritime Provinces have started in to cut prices.

Fruit.—Good apples are very scarce on this market. The growers in the valley who have stock on hand are asking $4 per barrel, and some of them are even holding out for better prices. Northern Spys and russets are $4.50 here for No. 1's, and $3 to $3.50 for No. 2's. These prices are considered far too high for the country of production.

Jamaica oranges are selling here for $6.50, and navals from $4.25 to $5.75. Lemons are quoted from $2 to $2.75.

Germans Tax Lobsters.

All parties interested in the lobster business in these provinces will be affected by the action of the German Government in increasing the duty on all canned lobsters, and discriminating especially against Canadian lobsters to such an extent that the consumption of this article will be very considerably curtailed, if not entirely stopped.

This action is no doubt taken in reply to the surtax against German goods which has been enforced in this country. The extent of the effect cannot be judged by any reference to the direct exportations of lobsters from Canada, because large quantities shipped from this country to London, Liverpool, New York and other points, have eventually drifted into the German markets, where very high prices have been obtainable for strictly choice qualities.

Word has been received in this city that the rate of duty has been increased since the first of the month to 100 marks per 100 kilogrammes. The weight taken is the gross weight of the package, and represents about $7.50 per case of 48 x one-pound cans, or 96 x half-pound cans. This is regarded as prohibitory, and no business will be possible.

To the fisherman, packer and shipper this is a serious blow. The goods will have to be disposed of in other countries, and the market price will likely decline in consequence. Lower prices in these markets for the shipper means lower prices to the packer, and eventually lower prices to the fishermen.

It is learned also that some other European countries, such as Austria and Switzerland, have increased the duty against canned lobsters in their revisions of tariff this year. The cost of tin and other metals used in canmaking has materially increased, and the prospects for the packers for the coming season are very unfavorable.

WORTH THE GROCERS' ATTENTION

Every grocer has experienced the great difficulty in weighing out small quantities of cheese so as to secure to himself the full weight of the original cheese, and undoubtedly, at some time or other, has exclaimed. "There is no money in selling cheese."

All this, however, can now be happily ended with the advent of modern methods of utility and convenience. The Walker Bin & Store Fixture Company, of Berlin, are issuing a handy little folder in which is fully described a contrivance called the "Standard Computing Cheese Cutter," by means of which the original large cheese can be divided and cut into small portions of any size, apparently without the slightest loss.

To the grocer who considers that "money saved is money earned" this cutter is worth investigating.

IMPORTING ORANGES FROM SEVILLE.

T. Upton Co., Hamilton, have just completed their pack of marmalade and report they have had this year the finest lot of oranges they ever saw. The company used about three carloads, which they imported direct from Seville, Spain, and this year in the lot there were scarcely one dozen spotted oranges.

About four years ago the company made their first direct importation and it proved a success. A remarkable fact in connection with this importation was that the shipment was noted by A. Wallace & Co., importers, Glasgow, Scotland. They were astonished that any firm in Canada should use a sufficient quantity of oranges to import them direct or that they could be landed in this country in good shape. The next year a representative of A. Wallace & Co. came out to Canada and interviewed the Upton Co. with regard to the success of the shipment and, as a result of their enterprise, since that time the Upton Co. importations have been placed through this firm.

MAJOR'S NEW CATALOGUE.

An attractive and useful catalogue has just been issued by S. J. Major, Limited, of Ottawa, which will prove a handy reference for grocers. Copies are mailed on application to their Ottawa office.

GROCER'S APPRENTICE TO SENATOR.

tion of the company was precarious and the directors have had to give their personal security to the bank for large sums. Globe's stock could be bought for 15c. on the dollar. Now it is above par, and difficult to get at any price. But it was not for money he labored.

Industry, Kindliness, Foresight.

Every intimate friend of Senator Jaffray will tell you of his untiring industry, his kindness of heart and his business foresight. If he promises a chap to try and get him a position he doesn't just write a letter, or perhaps forget it. If he gives a promise he has it on his conscience and he hustles to find a place. Practically worthless stock of the Crow's Nest Coal Co. was kicking about and Mr. Jaffray undertook to investigate the proposition. He traveled 200 miles through the mountains and went over the coal areas at a tremendous expenditure of exertion. Then when he and other capitalists took it up and the stock began to advance, a widow whose husband had left her nothing but a block of it wanted to dispose of it. Mr. Jaffray persuaded her not to, and it finally returned her a handsome competence.

Mr. Jaffray had always great faith in Toronto's future. In the 70's he said to a friend who was going to sell property on Yonge street, just north of Bloor, "I wouldn't sell for three times what you paid for it. It will be the centre of a business district some day." The "some day" has come, though there was nothing then to indicate it to the ther, himself a shrewd Scot. Some years ago Mr. Jaffray foresaw that ultimately certain blocks of Yonge street property would bring large values, and he became heavily committed. The bad times delayed the fulfillment of his expectations, and for a while the property was a grievous burden, but the last year or two have more than justified his judgment.

Other Interests.

Aside from business and the Globe, Mr. Jaffray has few interests. Some years ago he gave some attention to theological and philosophical problems as recreation, and a sort of club comprising the best known university leaders and others used to meet at his home for the discussion of such questions. He was chairman under the late Liberal Government in Ontario of the Temiscaming Railway, and is now a member of the Queen Victoria Park Commission.

Mr. Jaffray's home relations have been sacredly beautiful and tender, and a great sorrow is now resting upon him in the serious illness of Mrs. Jaffray, a woman of deep piety and saintly living. There are four children, two daughters, both married, and two sons, one a stock broker the other a missionary in Africa.

To approach an adequate appreciation of this man's sterling worth, large business ability and kindly nature, the stranger need talk with the friends who have known him longest and enjoy the enthusiasm of their panegyrics.

James Cain, Huntsville, is selling out and retiring from business.

MERGER OF SYRUP FACTORIES.

Within the past few days a merger has been effected between the Imperial Syrup Co., Limited, Montreal, and Ramsay Bros. & Co., of Vancouver, and a large plant will be established in Winnipeg for the manufacture and distribution of cane syrups, maple syrups and molasses. In conversation with Col. Fred Welker, of the Imperial Syrup Co., Montreal, today, The Canadian Grocer elicited the following facts :

"As you are well aware, the British Columbia Sugar Refining Co., of Vancouver, manufacture a pure cane syrup, which Ramsay Bros. & Co., of that city, have been pushing on the west coast, while our company here, the Imperial, has been supplying maple products, both of these lines being largely consigned to Winnipeg and distributed from that point. It was calculated that by the establishment of a plant in Winnipeg, where the products of the Ramsay Bros. Co. and our Imperial Co. could be handled more satisfactorily, that the merger is put through. New Orleans molasses can be laid down as cheaply in Winnipeg as in Montreal and by continuing the shipments of eastern goods and western cane syrups, as well as the New Orleans molasses, it was felt that a great saving could be made and the business conducted much more expeditiously. The trade of these companies in Western Canada has developed to such an extent that it was found necessary to establish a central factory at Winnipeg. We expect within a very short time to have the plant in operation."

Mr. Ramsay has just returned from a tour through the United States markets and purchased the most modern machinery for the preparation of the various lines controlled by this and the affiliated Imperial Syrup Co., and every effort will be put forth to push the factory to completion in as short a time as possible.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

There is no change to report in the local cheese market. Stocks have been further reduced so that there are probably less than 5,000 boxes unsold in all Canada, which is a mere trifle, especially as stocks in Great Britain are also reported as being very light and the natural consequence will probably be very high prices ruling at the opening of the new season.

At present most of our exporters are on their annual visit to the different British markets, calling upon their regular correspondents and discussing the possibilities and probabilities of prices and conditions of the coming season. Some radical business changes are indicated and altogether there is an air of doubt and uncertainty about the future which causes more or less anxiety among the merchants. The trade will go on as usual; cheese and butter will be made, sold and consumed, although there may be changes among those handling this vast product of the Dominion. However, the future will tell what effect these changes may have and it is difficult to make any predictions at present. It is to be hoped that the ensuing competition for trade will not be such that it becomes ruinous to the merchants.

The first annual dinner of the Sherbrooke Dairymen's Exchange was held a few days ago in the Sherbrooke House. There was a large attendance of creamerymen from all over this section of the Eastern Townships. Mr. James McKinnon, general manager of the Eastern Townships Bank, is president of the exchange.

Mr. J. A. Ruddick, the Dominion Dairy Commissioner, of Ottawa, in replying to the toast, "The Dairy Industry," referred to the great strides that had taken place in the butter and cheese industry since 1897. Then a system of refrigerator cars had been instituted by the Department of Agriculture. During the last season there were from 120 to 130 iced cars running over the various railways, carrying this product to the market in Montreal.

The demand for butter and cheese was growing in the Old Country and he anticipated a very much larger demand during the coming season. He counselled the creamerymen not to lose sight of the fact that, while cold storage was a good thing for this industry, it would not change the quality. It depended upon the farmers to pay attention to the milk they supplied the creamery and the latter to see that all modern appliances and care was exercised to bring about a uniformity of quality. He remarked that while in Great Britain last year he saw a brand of the Eastern Townships butter selling for 120 shillings, while alongside was Danish butter selling from 118 to 122 shillings.

Mr. H. S. Foster, of Knowlton, also replied to the toast. He spoke strongly against the unbusinesslike method followed by many of the farmers in handling the milk. Good milk was essential to good butter and they could not be too careful in this respect.

A circular has just been issued by the Department of Agriculture stating that, in order to encourage in the Province of Quebec the production of hogs suitable to the requirements of the British bacon trade, a large number of boars and sows of the bacon breeds have been collected and will be distributed through the province by means of auction sales at central points. The work is being conducted by the live stock branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture in conjunction with the Quebec Provincial Department of Agriculture, the pork packing companies of Montreal, and the Montreal Produce Merchants' Association.

Up to the present time Quebec has contributed little to the export bacon trade. The hogs raised within the province have been almost entirely for local consumption. Canada supplies about 20 per cent. of the bacon for the British markets; of this about 15 per cent. is supplied by Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and the west; Ontario supplies the balance, or 85 per cent., amounting in value to about $12,000,000 annually.

The facilities for hog production in Quebec are perhaps unsurpassed by any other province in Canada. Comparing the existing conditions with the sister province of Ontario, lands in Quebec are cheaper, the climate is better for pasturage, common cereals are produced at small cost, and dairying is the leading industry, affording great quantities of skim milk, than which there is no better feed for hogs.

Considering what the farmers of Ontario have derived from this industry by using the proper type of bacon hog, individual farmers, agricultural clubs, and other organizations interested in the welfare of agriculture, should avail themselves of the opportunities of these sales, which will be held as follows, viz: Huntingdon, March 26; Cowansville, March 28; St. Hyacinthe, March 30; Joliette, April 2. At each point about 25 animals will be offered, including boars from three months of age upwards, and young sows, most of which will be in farrow. The animals have been selected by an expert on bacon hogs, and only such animals have been accepted for the sales as are calculated to improve the stock of the province.

Addresses on the bacon hog and on the possibilities of bacon production in the Province of Quebec will be delivered before commencing each sale.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

There has been practically no feature of interest in the provision situation during week under review. At Montreal and eastern points supplies are reported as much below requirements and receipts of hogs for the current week were considerably below previous week. Notwithstanding this, however, prices for live hogs declined slightly. At Toronto and western points practically the same condition rules.

The quality of hogs delivered are inclined toward the light kind, which virtually means that farmers are hurrying supplies to market before maturity in order to secure the present high prices. This cannot continue, however, as it is impossible for the market to rule long on existing basis except for highest of quality. The English markets are somewhat slow to increase stocks at present values, and there are clear indications that unless prices are shaded to meet their ideas their supplies will be drawn from other sources.

A circular has just been issued by the Quebec Department of Agriculture stating that in order to encourage in the province the production of hogs suitable to the requirements of the British bacon trade, a large number of boars and sows of the bacon breeds have been collected and will be distributed through the province by means of auction sales at central points. The work is being conducted by the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture in conjunction with the Quebec Provincial Department of Agriculture, the pork packing companies of Montreal and the Montreal Produce Merchants' Association.

Up to the present time Quebec has contributed little to the export bacon trade. The hogs raised within the province have been almost entirely for local consumption.

In their endeavor to secure the interest in hog raising which the industry deserves, the Wm. Davies Co. of Toronto are showing every anxiety to help the farmer ascertain the cost of producing bacon hogs, and intended to pay fifty cents per hundred more than the prevailing market price to farmers who would co-operate with them and report the results of experiments conducted for this purpose.

Prof. Day when speaking at Ottawa recently, indicated the factors to be taken into consideration when estimating the cost. In his own work he said he had found that pigs at weaning cost about $1.30 each, and may be prepared for market for about $4 a hundred weight. By having the best type of bacon hogs and feeding plenty of roots, the cost would be less. One pen of hogs that were fed solely on grain for a definite time cost $10 for each hundred weight of grain, but by feeding roots the cost was afterwards reduced to $4.75. He emphasized the necessity of each farmer using the weighing scales on all his feed and on his hogs at each period of their growth.

The present situation, whilst a serious one, could easily be met if the farmer were to take up the question of hog raising on a scientific basis. He would then find that his hog pens paid him probably better than anything else.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.

Nothing new of interest is to be noted in the provision market, which is steady. Dressed hogs are unchanged. Hams, bacon, etc., for local consumption, are in fair demand. Abattoir dressed hogs bring from $10 to $10.25, and country dressed from $9 to $9.50.

Eggs.

Held eggs are almost entirely cleaned up now and dealers are doing the greater part of their business in fresh laid goods. Already the latter are commencing to arrive by freight, but it will be a week or so at least before there is a very noticeable decline in express shipments. The fresh laid are selling from 16c. to 17c.

Provisions.

People must eat, and the provision market keeps active with prices firm or higher. Stocks of heavy mess pork, at the present price of hogs, are not being added to, and some of the provision men are asking $2 more a barrel. Lard is very firm and prices in some quarters are up ¼c. all round. Beef is bringing 50c. more; no particular reason except that this is the season for a rise.

The market is in the process of moving upward. Some houses still quote last week's prices but get more in special cases. Others are asking half a cent more. Stocks are high and demand is good. Some new cheese, 'tis said, has reached the Montreal market, but none has been seen here yet.

Eggs.

The only commodity in the provision market showing a weak tendency is eggs. The hens appear to have got their second wind and there is no stopping them. Lent, however, has helped the demand and the stocks are going out rapidly. Prices are a cent lower than last week. That is for new laid; for storage eggs the fairest quotation obtainable is from 12c. to 14c. One dealer said stocks were pretty well cleaned up and he had refused 13½c. Another declared that they were a good deal longer than the holders liked to see them, and that 13c. was high. For good eggs, however, 14c. is being asked.

Butter and Eggs.

Both butter and eggs continue in fairly good supply, though the receipts of the latter have slackened off some of late. This refers principally to fresh laid stock. The price quoted is from 17c. to 18c. The demand is not quite as good as might be expected, considering the low price. Cold storage eggs are still in abundance on the market and very little sale can be had for them. A Halifax commission man who was in the Western States recently endeavored to market some stock there, but failed, the prices quoted for eggs in Chicago and other cities being so low that the jobber would not get more tham the cost of transportation out of the deal. Fifteen cents is about the jobbing price here, some of those holding stock being eager to dispose of them at these prices.

The butter market continues to improve, and it is a little easier. Some shipments of country butter in large tubs sent to the city during the week sold for 19c. The dealer found no difficulty in disposing of the stock at that price. The outlook is good for an increase.

CHINESE DIGNITARIES IN RETREAT.

Squealing pigs a few days ago stampeded his Imperial Highness Prince Tsai Tse, cousin of the dowager empress of China and leader of the commercial commission touring the world. He and nine other dignitaries who arrived at Chicago from St. Paul, had been dashed out to the stock yards in automobiles and were led directly into the killing department of the Swift plant.

The Chinese nobles suddenly found themselves looking at the pigs in their death throes. Just one glance was enough for the Chinese dignitaries. They rushed back outdoors falling over each other in their anxiety to get away.

HOW THE DANES SELL EGGS.

Up to 1867 nobody in Denmark thought of exporting eggs, and little attention had been paid to the raising of poultry. From that time on efforts in this direction were made with surprisingly good results, and in 1895 a company for the export of eggs was formed. In 1896 the value of exported eggs was nearly $2,000,000, and reached $6,000,000 in 1902, the number of eggs exported in the latter year being 36,000,000 dozens. The dividends paid to the members of the association were more than $1,000,000 in 1902.

This Danish company has now 33,500 members and 500 local branches, which are under the direction of a central office. Each local branch collects the fresh eggs in its district and ships them to a certain export port. From the moment they leave the collecting district all expenses are defrayed by the company, who also guarantee to the purchasers the fresh quality of the eggs. Each local branch has at least ten members. The eggs collected must be shipped within four days. At the central station the eggs are weighed and divided into grouns of which the lowest weighs 14.3 pounds and the highest 19.8 pounds per ten dozen. The eggs are also tested as to their freshness and are afterwards placed in pine boxes which bear the mark of the company, the number of eggs and a sign denoting their quality.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The outlook at the present moment is not an encouraging one. The sharp break in prices of wheat in Manitoba and the American markets recently has undoubtedly put a ston to flour sales, as buyers hold off, looking for lower prices. This is unfortunate, as prices have held fairly steady for some time, and buyers were just beginning to have confidence in the market and to place orders, but a dull market must now be looked for until prices show a steady advance from whatever may prove the low point.

Export demand has been only indifferent, and the only basis reached for closing business is a good 25c. per sack below prices obtained a few days back. When brokers were getting 22s. 6d. — Glasgow freight—they felt they were being let out with the smallest of margins ; now, however, offers have dropped to 21s. 6d. To set off the difference in the parity, ocean freights are a little lower and brokers are on that aecount disposed to let go at that.

The domestic demand for flour during the past week has been very irregular. The mills that have an established trade in the Maritime Provinces report orders coming in more freely and that prices are satisfactory. On the other hand, a number of mills report it is impossible to sell flour, some of them stating that they have never known the milling business to be in such an unsatisfactory state, especially when the price of Ontario wheat has been as steady as it has been lately. The high price of millfeed is the only satisfactory feature.

The grain market made a further downward movement, and has thus lost some of the partial recovery reported at our last going to press.

The present reaction in the American wheat markets and in a lessened degree, in the Canadian markets, is believed to be the result of the inflation of a vear ago, when prices ran well beyond a dollar a bushel. Speculation encouraged by the Chicago operators was then carried to excess. Many who made money bulling wheat were infatuated with the speculation, which has ultimately brought about their own undoing. From $1.23 a bushel the Chicago wheat futures have now dropped nearly 50c. a bushel, without even showing evidence of a bottom at this decline.

The visible supply in Canada and the United States this week is more than 11,000,000 bushels above that of a year ago. To all appearances much of the reserve now held will have to be marketed and this can only be done by shipment to Europe. Latterly Liverpool quotations have retained a confident steadiness under full offerings from Russia, Argentine and other exporting countries. If the excess in the United States has now to be thrown into European competition, the prices there, unless something unforeseen should happen, will more than likely respond by a steady decline.

The domestic breakfast cereal trade is not by any means satisfactory. Quotations are practically run wild as regards bulk goods. By far the most satisfactory lines for the retailer under present conditions are the carton goods of popular make.

WINNIPEG'S NEW ELEVATOR.

The large elevator erected by the Western Canada Flour Mills Co. in connection with their new mill in St. Boniface, Winnipeg, was used for the first time recently and everything found to be in splendid working order. There are seven motors working in connection with the plant of the elevator, the power for which is supplied at present by the Winnipeg Electric Railway Co. The company are now prepared to take in wheat, and it is expected that the mammoth mill will be put in operation about June 15.

FLOUR MILLS CLOSE DOWN.

Over half the flour mills of Minneapolis have shut down. "There is no demand for flour ; our sales have dropped off heavily and we are forced to suspend operations for the next two weeks at least," declare the millers.

WORLD'S WHEAT SUPPLY.

The world's stocks of flour and wheat March 1, as compiled by the Daily Trade Bulletin, were the largest in more than seven years, being 208,704,000 bushels, as aganst 181,902,000 bushels a year ago. The increase in February was 4,935,000 bushels, as compared with an increase of 2,140,000 bushels in January and a decrease of 2,896,000 bushels in February, 1905. American stocks are 112,000,000 bushels, a decrease of 8,000,000 bushels in February, and are 27,000,000 bushels more than last year. European stocks in store and afloat, increased 12,842,000 bushels during February, and are 96,554 bushels, or 110,000 bushels less than last year.

A SCHEME TO INSURE GRAIN ELEVATORS.

Grain dealers of the Dominion have in process of incubation a scheme for forming an insurance syndicate to insure all elevators and their contents. In a circular issued it is shown that while grain elevators have paid to insurance companies something like $446,000 in the past four years, losses by fire on this class of risks have been but $40,000, leaving profits to the companies of about $400,000.

In the scheme outlined each elevator will be called upon to contribute a certain amount as capital towards the formation of company.

Flour.

There has been only very ordinary demand for flour since our last issue. Orders have been practically on a hand-to-mouth basis as far as domestic trade is concerned. Markets are weak, but prices remain as last quotations on a nominal basis. The eccentric movements of the wheat markets have not materially affected the flour quotations.

There is still an unsettled feeling about the grain market. Prices have continued the weakness reported in our last and quotations stand at from 1c. to 2c. below previous lists. It is felt on the market that prices will still further decline before any reasonable basis will be fixed. Buyers are slow to move although fair activity has been in evidence.

VISITORS FROM NEWFOUNDLAND.

T. A. MacNab, of the firm of W. A. Munn, St. John's. Newfoundland, is at present in Montreal. During his stay he paid a visit to the offices of The Canadian Grocer. Mr. MacNab, who was formerly with Mathewson's Sons, wholesale grocers, Montreal, representing them in the city for nearly nine years, went to Newfoundland about fifteen months ago and joined Mr. Munn in the manufacturers' agency and brokerage business, and he reports most satisfactory trade. Among the number of firms represented by them are the Edwardsburg Starck Co., F. F. Dalley Co., Hamilton; Lake of the Woods Milling Co.; A. F. McLaren Imperial Cheese Co.: Truro Condensed Milk Co.; Canada Salt Co.; Canada Maple Exchange and Goodwillie & Sons. Of foreign firms they represent the Cudahy Packing Co., South Omaha, U.S.A.; Jas. Robertson & Sons, Paisley, Scotland, jams, jellies, etc.; and Bensdorp's cocoa and chocolate. They are also large importers of Ceylon teas, having the sole control of the well-known Bee brand package goods. Mr. MacNab stated that the past season was a most satisfactory one for cod fish, as prices obtained were exceptionally high. Business generally is the Ancient Colony is good, and promises better for the future. Mr. MacNab will be in Montreal during the next week or so, as he is making arrangements for representation of other large firms.

A NEW FISH COMPANY.

A new company is being formed in Prince Albert, Sask., to be known as the Saskatchewan Freezer Company. The company purposes to take the fish from the northern lakes and keep them in cold storage till Summer and then ship in refrigerator cars all along the lines of railway that radiate from Prince Albert. There are millions of the finest salmon trout, white fish and pickerel in the northern lake and the new company propose to handle these fish on a large scale all the year round.

Their plant will be a modern one and will have a capacity of about four hundred cars of fish to start with.

The fish industry at Prince Albert is already assuming large proportions and the new company think they have solved the difficulty of handling the fish business during the Summer months.

FRUIT AUCTION IN MONTREAL.

At the fruit auction which took place on Mountain street, Monday morning, March 12, the following sales were made: 3 cars oranges at $3 to $3.35 per crate; 1 car Mexican oranges at $2.50 per crate; 2 cars lemons at $2.50 per crate; 2 cars apples at $3 to $4.85 (averaging $4 to $4.25 per barrel).

ENLARGING STEAM CAPACITY.

T. Upton & Co., jam manufacturers, Hamilton, are planing to enlarge the steam capacity of their plant by the addition of a large boiler room and installation of a new one hundred horse-power boiler. In recent years their plant has been increased several times without increasing the steam power. The projected improvement will put their factory in good shape.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

There has been no feature of particular interest in the Dominion situation during the week under review. From all points a steady, progressive trade is reported.

The condition in the Maritime Provinces is one of fairly good activity, the bulk of demand running on apples, and any good quality fruit commands high figures.

At Montreal and points east, dealers are somewhat discouraged at the trade; whilst demand is firm, still there is not that life and spirit on the market that is usually apparent at the opening of Spring.

At Toronto and western points a much better report is in evidence.

It has been frequently noted that oranges have been making considerable headway since the opening of the year, and values have in consequence been well maintained, with prospects of advancement at no great distant date. Recent sales at New York all speak of enhanced prices, especially for medium and small fruit. The larger fruit was not so well competed for and in consequence was not so strong.

The lemon situation is still a strong one and likely to continue so, on account of light supplies from primal points.

The first arrival of the Sama banana crop has reached New York since our last issue, and sold well, although reports are that quality was not well to the front. It is, however, thought that future arrivals will be fuller and better.

FRUIT TRADE OF MIDDLE CANADA

The fruit industry of the Niagara peninsula, confined though it be to a very small area, turns into the pockets of the growers between the middle of May and the end of October from a million to a million and a half dollars. That is an estimate by a man very intimately associated with the fruit industry, and one of the largest dealers on the distribution side. The fruit area is more limited than most people imagine, or perhaps few of the multitudes who enjoy the luscious children of the sun and soil ever paused to think of it. The district is in two parts. From Port Credit, a few miles west of Toronto, to Waterdown, within hail of Hamilton, and extending back from the lake three or four miles—that is the smaller portion. The other is the narrow strip of territory between the lake and the uplands, beginning a little east of Hamilton, where it is quite narrow, to the southern side of the peninsula, where it widens out as far as the Falls.

The Four Interests.

Think what strenuous effort is involved in gathering, marketing and distributing in practically four months, from so restricted an area, a million to a million and a half dollars' worth of small fruits, berries, peaches, pears and grapes, besides great quantities of apples and vegetables. There are four parties to the transaction—grower, wholesaler or commission man, retailer and consumer. The grower and consumer are the important people and no one more readily than the progressive and thoughtful commission man or retailer will admit that in all matters relating to the fruit industry it is the interest of the grower and consumer that must finally and permanently prevail. But the other two, who form the means of communication between the grower and consumer, are important considerations. The retailer is a fixed quantity, but the commission man or wholesaler—well, the former often wonders if he couldn't get along very well without him. The grower covets or rather regrets the 10 per cent. commission. But the fact is that the wholesaler is becoming a more important and stable factor in the fruit industry.

Commission Men Going.

The tendency both in the domestic and export fruit trade is towards the actual purchase of the fruit by the wholesale middleman f.o.b. at the point of production. It may surprise some, even of the trade, to learn that last year in the Niagara district 60 per cent. of the fruit was purchased outright by the wholesaler and only 40 per cent. was consigned to commission.

Just here it might be well to insert a note of explanation and warning. Inquiry has shown that it is somewhat difficult to obtain exact statistics of the fruit industry. The collection of them is a task the Government might very well undertake. The figures submitted in this article are not official, but are approximations by the best informed and most capable men associated with the business.

But to proceed. The manager of one of the trading companies stated to The Canadian Grocer that in five years, he believed, all of the fruit of the district would be sold outright by the growers, f.o.b., and the commission business would be a matter of history. Last year some of the leading commission houses had sent out purchasing agents where consignments were not as large as they would like. The tendency in regard to the export trade was evident at the Fruit Growers' Association annual meeting last year. A. E. Sherrington, in a report on co-operative associations, said:

When the Fruit-Growers Met.

"After visiting all of the principal fruit markets in England and Scotland, I am more convinced than ever that co-operation among the growers and shippers of Canada and other countries is an absolute necessity if the growers are to retain that market and receive a share of the profits on the products of the orchard. I saw some dickering in Great Britain last Summer that could scarcely be called square dealing, in fact, it was anything but square. Who was the loser in this particular transaction? No one but the shipper. The commission merchant had his commission and was at no loss. The time is coming when our fruit and other produce will be sold f.o.b. here instead of by consignment."

On Comfortable Terms.

Taking them as a whole, the Ontario commission men are on comfortable terms with the fruit growers. A grower ships a consignment of fruit this morning and tomorrow morning he gets a report from the commission merchant. His neighbors have the same for their consignments to other houses. They compare notes and if he doesn't like his returns he can change his commission man next day.

Existence Tends to Doubt.

But in regard to western and Old Country shipments when nothing is heard of the consignment for ten days or a fortnight this simple solution does not apply.

The Ontario shipper has about the same regard for the western dealer as the child has for the fire after it has been burnt. Here's a little incident that happened last year. A man in Toronto sent a carload of apples, 192 barrels, to a wealthy Winnipeg firm, the rate quoted being $3.25. The bill of lading was made to the bank. He got a wire stating that the apples had arrived in very bad condition and he would have to throw off 50c. a barrel or they would have to turn them down. He wired a friend in Winnipeg to look at the apples and sell them for what he could, and gave him an order on the bank for the bill of lading. He went first to the consignee and they would not let him even see the apples, so he went to the C.P.R. freight agent and he told him to get his bill of lading and the car was his. He did, and found the apples in first-class condition. He sold the apples to the original consignees at $4.50. They had to have them because they had already sold them, and they explained their 50 cents off demand as a mistake.

Market of the Future.

That's a story from the Ontario end and may illustrate only a point of view. It is a fact that 300 cars of small fruits were shipped last season from the Niagara district into Manitoba and the Northwest. One firm alone shipped 146 cars and the fruit arrived almost without exception in first-class condition. There was some wasting of plums because of faulty packing. "One bad plum," said an expert, "will do more damage than a gas stove."

This fruit was all shipped by fast freight and the time to Winnipeg was five days. The C.P.R. runs daily out of North Bay a first-class freight that operates on schedule time. The time will come when special fruit trains will deliver daily to the people of Manitoba and the west the fruit of the Niagara district. The market is there. The people are anxious and able to buy. At present there is talk of competition between British Columbia and Ontario growers. It won't be for long. The territory to be served is so great and the population is increasing so rapidly that before long the fruit gardens of Niagara and the Pacific slopes will be taxed to supply the demand.

Toronto takes about a quarter of the fruit output of the Niagara district. The rest is scattered from the Gulf to the Rockies. There was brought into Toronto last year approximately 807,000 packages of small fruits. Ninety per cent. of it came by express.

Alex. McNeil, addressing the fruit growers' convention last year, said: "Speaking particularly of small fruits, any further expansion must be in the direction of long distance markets." The commission and wholesale men do not agree with that. The consumption of fruit in Toronto has doubled, it is said, within five to seven years, and the wholesale distributors believe it capable of much greater expansion.

Packing and Shipping.

But if the wholesalers do not agree with Mr. McNeil in regard to the expansion of the local market, they are one with the leaders among the growers in advocating improved packing. The two large factors in the improvement of the fruit industry are better packing and improved shipping facilities.

"There is a good deal of slovenly packing," said a leading dealer. "If it was stopped, improved packages adopted and care taken to make the fruit look its best, the grower would reap the bulk of the advantage, just as he now pays for the defects. The improvements I suggest would increase consumption and improve prices. The wholesaler would profit by the increased trade, but the grower would be the greatest gainer."

Railways Slow to Improve.

On the question of better railway facilities, growers and wholesalers stand shoulder to shoulder. One prominent middleman speaking of this phase of the question illustrated the situation by one station not far from Toronto.

"What accommodation is there?" he asked. "I have seen fruit standing in the rain waiting for the train and when not in the rain it is in the sun. The growers load their own stuff. The commission men unload it. The heaviest thing the express companies have to do is to collect the charges."

The cars are better now than they were, but the temperature of a car when it reaches market full of fruit is in hot weather often between 80 and 100 degrees.

Another advantage to the trade in Toronto would be effected by getting all the fruit for the day on the market in the morning. It would save the retailer's time and he would have the assurance in buying that the market would not slump in the afternoon.

Views of the West.

Inquiry among the fruit men of Winnipeg shows that they unanimously recommend the Ontario grower to give more attention to his packing.

"Tell them to pack their fruit; they are not packing it now," said K. J. Johnston, of Bright & Johnston, Winnipeg, when asked what he had to say to Ontario fruit packers.

"Ontario currants and gooseberries always come to this market packed only in market baskets and there is a big loss every season. This fruit is packed about as carefully as one would pack potatoes. Currants and gooseberries should be packed in small strawberry boxes and shipped in strawberry crates."

Copy California.

"As to pears, tomatoes and peaches, they should be wrapped separately in paper and packed tightly in baskets or crates in the same way that California fruits are packed. Ontario tomatoes come in here in baskets with green and ripe fruit mixed indiscriminately; the consequence is that the hard green tomatoes crush the ripe ones and about half of what comes to Winnipeg from Ontario is damaged in this way."

"Pears are often shipped out here in cars with other goods and they are badly bruised when they arrive here. The Ontario shippers must pay more attention to careful and scientific packing if they want to extend their business in this market."

Barrels for Apples.

"What about Ontario apples" queried The Canadian Grocer.

"There is no necessity for putting Ontario apples in boxes," was the reply.

"A few shippers have been sending out apples in boxes, but there is no need of this if the apples are graded properly. The Winnipeg fruit men have made certain recommendations to the Ottawa Government regarding the grading of apples. They are asking that the XX apple be the same as the XXX apple except in respect to size and color. It must be a good sound apple."

Missing a Great Opportunity.

R. A. Rogers, head of the fruit and commission house of R. A. Rogers & Co., said there was great necessity for the more careful packing of Ontario small fruits as Ontario shippers were losing a big trade in the western market by their inattention to this important matter. He was much interested in the requests of the Winnipeg fruit men for a change in the law regarding the grading of apples.

B. McDonald.

B. McDonald, Winnipeg, manager of the Ottawa Fruit and Produce Exchange, said that the greater part of the Ontario small fruits arrived in Winnipeg last season in fairly satisfactory condition, but at the same time there is great room for improvement before the Ontario shipper can get the hold on the western market that he should have. A neater package is required for plums in order that the Ontario article may compete with the American and the British Columbia plums.

"Our system of handling fruits," said Mr. McDonald, "is by auction, and we think that in that way every package of fruit must stand on its merit; hence we watch qualities and packing pretty closely.

"Pears and tomatoes should be wrapped in paper and packed tightly in baskets or crates if they are to arrive in this market in good condition.

"British Columbia fruit has given good satisfaction on this market and generally speaking it is becoming more popular than the Ontario. The apples seem to be more uniform in quality.

"As to the packing of B. C. fruit, it is fairly satisfactory, but more attention should be given plums and pears."

USEFUL POINTERS ON FRUIT EXPORT

Probably no time is more opportune than the present moment to take account of the prospects and conditions of the English export market. The great opponents to Canadian fruit on that market are our cousins across the border; they have set themselves to capture the trade if there is any possibility of doing so, and have studied the situation most carefully.

An estimate, pending the completion of official figures, gives the last year's exports of American fruit into the United Kingdom as upwards of eight and one-half million dollars, and states that during the past five years the fruit market for American products in the United Kingdom increased fully 95 per cent.

These statements are full of meaning to the Canadian fruit grower; it means the possibility of extending Canadian fruit trade to certainly an equal extent as these figures represent. When account is taken of the fact that the British demand is a constantly increasing quantity, it will be easily seen that the possibilities are practically unlimited. The Detroit Business Man's Magazine in a recent issue gives an instructive article under the heading, "American Fruit Exportations," which will be instructive reading to those who have vital interests in the fruit question. After stating that during the last five years the American apple export to the United Kingdom had increased in value from one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to three million seven hundred and forty thousand dollars, it goes on to say:

"The producers and commission merchants of this country have more to fear from the energy of the Canadians in supplying the British market with certain fruit, than from any other source in the world. The figures desired to support that assertion will likewise demonstrate that initiative and honest, modernized methods are as vital factors in maintaining and extending British fruit markets as the natural resources and favorable climate existing in such abundance in this country. A glance at the figures furnished by the Canadian authorities, relative to a particular fruit, will show with what results their efforts have met. During the five year period, the British market for Canadian apples has likewise increased nearly 100 per cent., the value of the sales during the latter year being four million two hundred and eighty thousand dollars.

"England is the clearing house of the world—her geographical position, merchant marine and fiscal system rendering that commercial advantage certain at least; and where it is possible to overcome the decaying influences of distance in the marketing of fruit, the continued good will of the British commission men will be the powerful factor in increasing our fruit markets in other portions of the world. Considered, too, in another selfish light, it appears that even to-day the British market is more valuable than any other in the world to the fruit producers of this nation. The British market for American fruit exceeds by 100 per cent. that of Germany, which is the second highest on the world-list. The fruit markets in the Netherlands and Dutch India are third in the list, each taking two million dollars' worth of our fruits yearly. Comparatively speaking, the British Isles, leading three or four other countries, absorbed during the year indicated, 50 per cent. of the seventeen million dollars' worth of fruit exported by the United States. Our real interests, then, lie in the cultivation of the British market; knowing that the confidence of their merchants and the favorable taste of the retail public will assure an increasing market in the kingdom and an enlarged demand throughout accessible dependencies.

"It is apparent that the apple, more than any other fruit, has found favor with the people. The producer and commission merchant must understand that the market for expensive fruits is necessarily limited because of the vast working population compelled to live on a narrow margin of wages. But whenever continued employment affords a degree of prosperity, the Baldwin and the Spy are the favorites of the working people.

"Pears, including in particular Bartletts, Bosc, Dutchess and other varieties find a ready market in England, and Consul Dav reports that in the Bradford market, the varied canned fruits prepared by American houses are receiving increasing attention upon the part of commission houses and small merchants.

"It may be proper to remark at this juncture that more credit is due to our natural resources, coupled with the slight tariff levies of England, than to the wisdom displayed by our commission men in handling this feature of export trade. The latter can win the commendation of publicists by readily eliminating such questionable methods as have retarded the development of trade in general, and by adopting those systems which experience demonstrates is winning increasing fruit trade for Canada and other nations. Certainly the merchant who fails to retain his existing fruit market in the isles cannot place the blame upon the English statutes; but rather must he attach it to poor production, a sufficient crop abroad to meet the demands of the trade, or to the confidence-killing practices of brother merchants. Fruit is sold by the pound throughout the kingdom, and that is a fact which should be remembered by the commission men in packing for export. The basis for tariff levies is on the hundred-weight or 112 pounds. The British tariff act provides that all raw fruits, dates, and fruits otherwise unenumerated shall be admitted free of duty."

It will thus be seen that the American authorities are fully alive, not only to the immense importance of the British markets, but also to the important factor the Canadian fruit grower is likely to be on that market.

THE GREAT WEST AS A MARKET FOR FRUIT.

The growth of the Great West is so rapid and unexpected that it is really questionable whether its possibilities as a great market for both eastern and British Columbia fruits is realized. In a recent report by Inspector Philip, of Winnipeg, some idea is given of the vast importance of these fields.

Mr. Philip recently took a trip through Saskatchewan to Prince Albert, and in his report to the Fruit Division at Ottawa says:

"In June, 1902, I covered the same ground in connection with the enforcement of the Fruit Marks Act. The progress which this country has made since that time has been far in excess of what I had expected, although I have kept close track as I supposed of the improvements which this country is making. Towns have sprung up in many localities, prosperous and thriving, where on my previous trip there was nothing to distinguish them from the rest of the broad prairie. Other places consisting then of only a few shacks and a name are now bustling busy towns, in many instances commercial centres of no small importance such as Rosthern and Saskatoon.

"The situation in Saskatoon will illustrate a common experience throughout Manitoba and the new provinces. On my previous visit it consisted of two stores, a few dwelling houses and one very ordinary hotel, and was practically of no importance at all as a fruit market.

"One merchant told me that in October, 1902, he started a small fruit store on an exceedingly limited scale; to-day he has a stand that without the buildings is estimated to be worth $12,000 and the stock worth $40,000. His fruit deals on my first visit consisted of a few baskets; this year he handled seven carloads of British Columbia fruit and two carloads of Ontario fruit with several smaller lots of grapes. The British Columbia fruit was mostly berries—and this in a place that four years ago was almost unknown.

"It might be well to say, in this connection, that this merchant says he has no use at all for Ontario small fruits except grapes. Ontario apples he is glad to handle.

"Although Saskatoon is here used it is only a sample of what is taking place over thousands of miles of territory, and will illustrate the enormous growth of the northwest trade in fruit. At the same time it demonstrates the fact that the Ontario fruit growers are not making a successful bid for the trade in any lines but apples and grapes, while British Columbia is finding a market."

A WARNING TO FRUIT-GROWERS.

An interesting interview on the fruit situation in California was recently published in the Montreal Herald between the correspondent of that paper and Mr. R. A. Carruthers, a McGill graduate, and who is now proprietor of the San Francisco Bulletin.

The substance of the interview reads as a salutary warning to Canadians against permitting the system of monopoly to reach the development which it has attained in the United States.

Mr. Carruthers says California has been extraordinarily prosperous in recent years and the city of San Francisco, which has now with its suburban and adjacent municipalities, a population of half a million souls, has benefited enormously by the trade with the Philippines, which has reached as high a figure as $1,000,000 a month.

Fruit Pays Better than Wheat.

The basis of the prosperity of that part of the Pacific coast, Mr. Carruthers said, is the growing and shipment of fruit. The wheat farms which have been turned into fruit farms are yielding their occupiers from $500 to $600 an acre—and before the fruit age they were worth just what the ordinary wheat lands in Canada would bring. Great areas of country that were once barren deserts are now smiling orchards, orangeries and vineyards, the transformation having been effected by irrigation which has reached a degree of development there that is seen nowhere else.

Iced Car Monopoly.

But in this fair Eden there is the trail of the serpent and it lies in the iced refrigerator car that transports California's choicest fruits down east.

These cars are not owned by the railway companies there, but by the great Armour packing houses, who have a monopoly and practically control the railways.

The practicability of the shipment of fruit in a thorough iced car service was demonstrated about the time Mr. Carruthers went to California, experiments having been made by the Thomases of Chicago, and the Hubbard Brothers, but their greed was their undoing for it brought into competition the Earl Fruit Company, one of the largest shippers in California, backed by Armour, organized refrigerator car lines. This routed the Thomases.

Armour having got his finger into the pie determined to have the whole of it. Having crushed all, he broadened his activities and to-day owns and operates some 14,000 refrigerator cars worth over $14,000,000, and he not only controls most of the fruit transportation of California, but in a measure the destiny of the fruit growers and penetrates the peach growing districts of Michigan and Georgia, and the strawberry fields of North Carolina.

Enormous Express Charges.

Armour acquired a domination over the railways by demanding that they should make contracts with him for the exclusive use of the Armour refrigerator cars. Armour replied to the shippers, who were furious in their complaints, "why don't you get your own cars?" but if they had got them they would have been of no use for no railway in all the fruit growing country was at liberty to use any cars except Armour's, who charges for the service four or five times as much as it would cost if the monopoly were broken.

The End in View.

"But," said Mr. Carruthers, "the end is in sight. President Roosevelt has taken the matter up and a bill is before Congress which will release the fruit trade from this bondage and make the railways do their duty in the matter of refrigerator cars."

MONTREAL INTEREST IN OTTAWA MEETING.

The approaching meeting of the Canadian fruit growers, which takes place in Ottawa on March 20, is causing much discussion in Montreal among fruit dealers and also among the retail grocers, many of whom handle fruit in various forms. The suggestion that a meeting should take place has been made many times and now that one has been arranged for much business will be gone through, it is expected.

Representatives will come from all over Canada, so that the provinces will all be well represented. Exactly what will be done it is of course impossible to tell; many matters will doubtless be discussed which will affect the fruit trade and allied industries. In Montreal especially, where so many are interested in the fruit business, interest is very great and the city itself will send delegates as well as other parts of the province, so that the interests of this large centre of the fruit trade may be well represented.

EVAPORATED APPLES—IMPORTANT DECISION.

The judgment of the Superior Court was maintained in the appeal made by Dougall in the case of Dougall vs. Chouillou. The Superior Court some time ago awarded Chouillou $1,232, being the amount lost in a transaction over 1,000 cases of dried apples. The case is briefly this:

In October last Chouillou purchased the apples from Dougall at 6¼c. per lb., f.o.b. point of destination, with the express understanding that they were to be "prime Fall fruit." To fill the order, Dougall bought 500 cases from Amos H. Baker, of Picton Ont., and 500 cases from Landy & Pease, Wallaceburg, Ont. Dougall was apparently under the impression at the time that the fruit was to be delivered at Montreal, when instead of this Chouillou ordered them to be shipped to New York, he objected, pointing out that inspection there was not the same as in Canada, and that there was a possibility of the fruit not being accepted. However, upon receipt from Chouillou of a letter stating that he was not bound to guarantee that the apples would be accepted there, but merely that these were prime Fall fruit, he caused the two cars to be forwarded to the destination indicated.

According to agreement, Dougall was to allow respondent's representative to examine the fruit upon its arrival in New York. Instead of this he commissioned one of his agents to select samples and forward them to respondent. Chouillou declared himself satisfied with the fruit, paid over the contract price to Dougall. Subsequently, the inspector of Coffin & Co., the buyers of the apples, pronounced the fruit of inferior quality, whereupon Coffin & Co. refused to accept it. Chouillou called upon Dougall to relieve him of his position, but appellant answered that his transaction was at an end, as the goods had been bought and paid for.

Upon Dougall refusing to submit the matter to arbitration, Chouillou notified him that he would hold him responsible and that he would cause the fruit to be sold at his own risk. Appellant then had the apples examined by another expert and found the report of Coffin & Co.'s inspector to be practically correct.

Meanwhile a broker named Mearns offered to negotiate a sale, but refused to disclose the name of the buyer. Chouillou finally accepted, and the apples were sold for 4½ cents per lb. After the transaction Chouillou found out that the buyer was Dougall, whereupon he sued him for $1,232, being the difference between the price paid to Dougall and the price of sale plus the profit that he would have realized had the fruit been accepted by Coffin & Co.

The Superior Court decided in his favor and awarded him the amount, whereupon Dougall went to appeal on the following grounds: 1. Chouillou having accepted the fruit upon receipt of samples, had no further recourse. 2. That the action had been taken too late. 3. Because Chouillou had failed to establish satisfactorily that the apples were of an inferior quality. 4. The recourse taken by Chouillou was not permissible by law.

The Court of Appeal, presided over by five judges, maintained the judgment of the Superior Court, and dismissed the appeal by a majority of three against two, the dissentients being Judges Hall and Trenholme.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

The fruit market is dull just at present, the demand being very light. The weather is such as should be beneficial to the fruit trade, but orders are not coming in as fast as they might. The prices of all fruits are very high and perhaps this may have something to do with the scarcity of good business. As it is California oranges, particularly navels, are the best selling fruit ; navels command $3.50. The supply of Jamaica oranges is limited as the season is about over. Apples are very scarce and as prices indicate, expensive.

The unprecedented great demand for fruit in the United States is given as the reason for the high prices prevailing.

Vegetables.

The vegetable market is very fair at present. Prices have not changed very much recently and the demand for most lines coming in is good. Stocks of certain vegetables are limited but it is expected that in a few weeks good supplies will be on hand. The really good stock of tomatoes is hard to get. What there is to be obtained, however, finds a ready market from $6.50 to $7. Lettuce, too, is in good demand, although rather expensive. Celery sales are reported good, but owing to the increasing scarcity the price is advancing and now $6.50 to $7 per crate is asked.

Green Fruits.

The fruit trade continues active, and prices are firm all round, some with a tendency to advance. Oranges are in very active demand. Prices are the same as last week, but next week will see an advance of 25 cents a box for icing. The statement quoted last week that icing had begun was premature. Finest lemons have advanced 25 cents. The Sicilian fruit can be had at prices nearly as low as last week, but the top figures have moved up. Last Thursday 25,000 boxes were auctioned in New York and the top price was $3.80. Receipts are light.

The crop of pines though large is coming in very slowly. Last year they were coming in here in carlots by April

Vegetables.

There are no complaints on the part of dealers in green vegetables about slackness of trade. There is little new to list this week and prices have varied very little. Canadian cabbage is said to be scarce, but that feeling is limited. One market dealer said he had five tons. The price is firm though with an upward tendency. New Florida cabbage is in and is quoted at $4.50 a crate. The quality is very fine. California cauliflower is said to be getting scarce and one dealer is asking $4, but another was quoting $2 a crate. California asparagus is still very much of a luxury at 75c. to 90c.

ONTARIO FRUIT GROWERS AND CO-OPERATION.

A series of educational meetings for the purpose of laying before the fruit growers of Ontario the advantages which accrue from adopting the co-operative system of packing and grading are being held under the supervision of Fruit Inspectors I. J. Carey and A. E. Sherrington.

The first meeting was held at Forest on Monday, March 12. Mr. A. Lawrie occupied the chair and briefly addressed the meeting. He pointed out the great benefits to the fruit growers of Forest district through co-operation in the handling and marketing of their fruit under the management of Mr. D. Johnson, president of the association.

Mr. A. E. Sherrington, of Walkerton, addressed the meeting and took up the different questions involved in the better methods of handling and marketing fruit. He gave a very interesting account of a recent visit to Europe, telling of the impression he had received at the different markets in England and Scotland. He declared that the handling of Canadian fruit in the Old Country was far from satisfactory. He had had interviews with a number of retail merchants and consumers who all expressed themselves as tired of the present methods, namely, the passing of fruit through the hands of a long line of commission men with little or no guarantee of quality. They were ready and anxious to deal direct with growers or co-operative associations where the "pack" would be uniform, and there would be some security as to quality. The co-operative movement was fully discussed in the course of Mr. Sherrington's address.

Mr. P. J. Carey, Dominion fruit inspector, Toronto, then addressed the meeting. Briefly touching on co-operation, he contrasted the cases of the growers in districts where co-operative shipping had been done the present season, and who had realized from $2.00 to $3.00 per barrel for their fruit, to those of the growers of the eastern counties who had sold to local dealers at from 50c. to $1.00 per barrel. Mr. Carey then took up the transportation question and gave an account of an experimental shipment to Winnipeg in September last, with which he had gone in charge. This gave him an opportunity of discovering many of the troubles the fruit grower has to contend with. He pointed out the bad effect of faulty packing, bad shipping facilities, and poor methods of handling fruit at the other end He declared that in his judgment, not more than 50 per cent. of our fruit landed in a good condition in the different markets, and assured the growers that when they received but a small price for their fruit it did not necessarily follow that the consumer had received a cheap article, but instead, a damaged and often a worthless article. He urged the necessity of cooling fruit before shipment, and pointed out that the inspector's reports at the port of Montreal would show that the fruit in the barrels in September last in some cases showed a temperature of 85 degrees.

The meetings will be continued in the following order: Thedfords, Arkona, Belleville and Newcastle.

NEW PACK LOBSTERS.

The new pack lobsters are now close on the market, prices however are not yet made public. The Montreal "Gazette" in a recent issue publishes an interview with a prominent packer of Charlottetown in which the situation is closely criticized, and in which he said:

"The prices for canned lobster are now as low as they will ever be. The cost of production is constantly increasing, while the supply available for canning purposes is circumscribed by various causes. Chief among these is the restriction of fishing operations by the government to prevent the extermination of the fish. As Canada furnishes the bulk of the output of canned lobster the effect of these restrictions upon the market supply can be readily appreciated. The canned product also is coming into wider competition with the fresh fish owing to the improved methods of transportation in refrigerator cars, which permit of the shipment of lobsters fresh to many inland markets which formerly were dependent entirely upon the canned article. The effect of this upon the latter is two-fold. First, by restricting the field of consumption, and second, by increasing the cost of the raw stock at the source of supply.

"The shortness of the season in which it is now permitted to catch lobster in Canada waters has caused the abandonment of cheap sailing outfits for steam vessels, which is another important item contributing to the increased cost of production. If the Canadian packers now get 25 fishing days out of the season it is all they can expect. The government regulations are very strict, the purpose being to in every way foster an industry threatened with extinction. The Canadian Government has built lobster hatcheries at various points along the coast and is alert to the welfare of the lobster fishery in every way.

"While American markets are reluctant to pay the higher prices, foreign consumers are becoming larger, in fact, the largest buyers of canned lobster. In the face of a duty of $4, fancy goods are being imported into Germany in large quantity for the reason that retail prices for the fresh fish are proportionately very much higher than those of the canned article.

It is understood that it now takes the choice parts of not less than four lobsters to fill a 1-lb. can. At the average wholesale price of 15 cents a pound for the fish in the shell you can easily figure out what a case of canned lobster is really worth at present."

NO DAMAGE REPORTED.

The fruit crops of Niagara district have not been seriously damaged by the alternating mild weather and frosts of the past winter.

There is every prospect of a good crop of peaches.

JAPANESE FISH INDUSTRY.

Awaya, Ikeda & Co., whose head offices are in Osaka, Japan, and who also have an office in Vancouver at 151 East Cordova street, in charge of S. Karoda, have started another industry on this coast.

This time the Japanese have started a canning business and fish guano factory in the Queen Charlotte Islands, on what is called Hot Spring Island, which is situated about sixty miles south of Skidegate, on Graham Island. There are at present large numbers of Japanese engaged there.

Awaya, Ikeda & Co. have purchased the large river steamer Dawson, a stern-wheeler, and transformed it into a floating cannery, in which they can several species of shellfish, such as abalones, sea eggs, etc. They are also gathering and curing a seaweed, which thrives in the waters of the Pacific in the vicinity of Hot Spring Island, and which has a ready sale in Japan. Expert divers have been brought from California and Japan, who go down in the green waters of the deep sea for the shellfish.

This same firm has entered the whaling industry and is catching many whales from which it extracts the oil and uses the residue which it puts through a process manufacturing it into guano. Hot Spring Island, where it is stationed, is stated to be an ideal spot for a whaling industry, as mammals are very numerous thereabouts. It is right in the usual course taken by whalers going north and south to and from Behring Sea. At certain times of the year very large schools of whales pass in that vicinity.

Awaya, Ikeda & Co. have purchased an 1800-ton schooner from San Francisco parties, and they expect it to be turned over to them by June 1. The ship will be used for carrying the products of their canning and whaling industries to Japan. It is also quite likely that this schooner will call at Vancouver and other coast ports to take on fish put up by the Japanese for their home market.

There will not be enough business offered to keep the ship purchased by this Japanese firm plying between this coast and Japan all the year round, and if the present plans of the company are carried through, part of the time the schooner will be used as an ore-carrier. A Japanese firm is negotiating at the present time for the purchase of a gold and copper mine on Moresby Island, one of the Queen Charlotte group, and if the deal goes through, part of the time this vessel will be used for carrying ore from the mines to a smelter on Vancouver Island.

BISCUIT MEDITATIONS.

It is evident that in many grocery stores sufficient importance is not paid to confectionery lines. Why this should be so is hard to understand ; confectionery should not be considered simply as a side line deserving of little or no attention, but as a component part of every up-to-date grocery.

Confectionery with many grocers is left to take care of itself. In their advertisement it is seldom mentioned, and in the store it is a little known quantity.

In many a store than is otherwise well regulated can often be seen a wooden or tin case with a half dozen compartments embellished with torn greasy blue paper and which constitutes the entire display of the store's line of biscuits. If by chance a customer sees it, as often as not some of the compartments are empty, save for an unappetizing accumulation of crumbs and small pieces in the bottom corner. If you have not a neat little biscuit case in a prominent part of the store that will command attention the moment one enters, why not have a small assortment tastefully arranged on neat little cake dishes in your showcase or silent salesman ? This would do away with the crumb situation and at the same time be a tempting suggestion to the customer. One dish could contain fruit biscuits, another might have wafers, while a third could contain an assortment, and so on.

How often one sees people stop to look in a confectioner's window at an enticing display of good things, who probably had no previous thought of them, but who nevertheless turned back into the store.

Why not have your little silent salesman just as temptingly arranged and give this line a little more prominence ? The staples do not need this display. Everyone knows you keep sugar, tea, coffee, coal oil and potatoes. Do they know you have this other line ? Think it over. It will pay you.

BUTTERCUP CREATIONS.

Standing in the office of a manufacturing confectioner recently, the tempting aroma of chocolates and bon-bons from the adjoining factory made the word to "come and see them created" a welcome invitation.

The general cleanliness and spick-and-span appearance of the factory, with its whitened walls, its clean benches and tables, and its neatly dressed employes, gave conviction that there need be no scruples in accepting these tempting sweetmeats.

First came the chocolate department. Here were forms with rows of molds of divers shapes into which was poured the cream or filling of the chocolate. These molds are set aside until they are cooled and hardened, when they are coated with chocolate and made ready for the market.

The making of buttercups was even more interesting than the making of chocolates. Buttercups are those glossy, silvery candies, in appearance like spun silk and in shape chisel-pointed at both ends.

Drawing near the stone table, attention is arrested by a large quantity of syrup thereon, resembling very much a huge flapjack. After a lot of kneading and rolling the coloring was added and with a little more working, to thoroughly distribute the color, the material took on a more solid form. It was then taken to a large hook and the pulling process was gone through. This was much the same as the old-fashioned taffy pull, drawing out and doubling back again. It is this process that gives the buttercups their silken appearance. Once more it was taken to the table, rolled out flat, and then covered over with a thin transparent sheet of taffy. The batter was then turned upside down and the filling—ground walnuts—added ; this was done by placing the filling on the flattened out batter and wrapping it completely in same, much as a grocer wraps a pound of tea. After this the whole thing was placed near an open fire and gently rolled into the shape of a huge long-necked bottle, the neck part being drawn out by continued rolling until it was about one-half inch thick. These long ends were then cut into two feet lengths and taken to the cutting machine which cut them into the little cushion-shaped sweets we know as buttercups.

A QUESTION OF CONVENIENCE.

Mr. Blower had had a difference with the local grocer, and he had openly vowed never to patronize the emporium again. Therefore, the merchant in question was agreeably surprised when one afternoon his late customer entered and ordered half a stone of sugar, with complete nonchalance.

Prudence would have dictated silence ; but human nature is weak, and as he tied the string the grocer could not resist saying :

"I thought you declared you would never darken my door again, Mr. Blower."

"That is true, and I should not have done so," was the retort, "but I've just received a fine lot of carnation cuttings, and I had no sand for potting them."

Manufacturing Company and being shown through their factory by Manager Herman Steiner. The Coles coffee mill is well known to readers of The Canadian Grocer, and The Grocer representative was anxious to see how it was made. He found Mr. Steiner a courteous pilot and the trip through the factory an interesting one.

A great variety of styles and sizes of coffee mills are made here, but particular pride is taken just now in their double grinder electric mill, a cut of which appears in their regular advertisement.

The strong point in the Coles mill is the evenness with which it grinds or pulverizes the coffee. The grinders are of cast steel and each mill is fitted with an ingenious breaker arrangement, so situated near the centre of the mill as to catch the berries with little expenditure of power. The grinders have consequently merely the office of reducing the broken berries to the proper degree of fineness, the teeth being arranged to this end. A thumb-screw adjusts the position of the grinders for the particular degree of fineness required.

In case of any foreign substance getting into the mill, a clever contrivance enables one by shifting a lever to throw the grinders apart and the foreign substance immediately drops out. Throw back the lever and you are ready to continue the grinding. The new electric mills are fitted for any current that may be required.

The company are also manufacturing a shaker for making milk shakes and all sorts of mixed drinks.

A SUCCESSFUL RETAILER'S REMARKABLE PROGRESS

THE LATE MARSHALL FIELD.

It seems hard to think of Marshall Field, of Chicago, as being no more. The great name has stood so long for perfection in business methods that most people have come to look upon him more as an institution than a man. But Marshall Field, the man, was behind all that was done in the institution. It was his high ideals, his absolute integrity, his large sympathy, and his understanding of human nature which made his store what it is.

The Farm Boy.

Marshall Field began life as a farm boy. When he reached the age of seventeen his father moved to a village and the boy entered a general store as clerk. At twenty-one he moved to Chicago, where he entered a wholesale dry goods house, and from then on his quickness, reliability, and progressiveness won him rapid recognition. It was not long before he was admitted to a partnership. He and Z. Leiter were associated at this time and maintained the connection for many years. Together they bought the business of Potter Palmer, and established what was the beginning of the retail store of Marshall Field & Co. In 1881 Leiter retired, and Mr. Field became the sole owner.

His Personality.

The growth of the comparatively small business in a city of 50,000 to an annual business of $50,000,000 in a city of over 2,000,000 inhabitants is one of the wonders of American development. The personality of Marshall Field supplies the key to the situation. Mr. Walter M. Smith, whose business dealings with him extended over half a century, thus estimates his character :

A Man of Magnetism.

"His name and his fame as a merchant of consummate ability and sterling integrity are world-wide. It is no disparagement to his contemporaries to say that he has never been out-ranked as an honorable, successful business man. In transactions between our respective firms involving in the aggregate millions of dollars, I do not recall a single instance in which he was not always four-square. I formed his acquaintance in the 50's of the last century. It has been my pleasant experience to have continued this acquaintance and friendship through all the succeeding years. He was a man of wonderful magnetism. He was always ready to give good advice. While he seldom spoke for the public ear, I quote from remarks by him to young men a few years ago : 'What is needed to-day more than anything else is to instil in the minds of the young the desire above all to build up a character that will win the respect of all with whom they may come in contact, and which is vastly more important than a great fortune.' And to this he added as expressive of his own sentiments, a quotation from the will of a lately deceased senator, who in referring to his own sons wrote : 'I hope above all that they will realize early in life that there is nothing more difficult to build up, or more easily lost, than character, and that the only safeguards to character are the ten commandments and Christ's sermon on the mount.'

His Generosity.

"Mr. Field's influence was always on the higher side of life. He had a tender heart for the poor and unfortunate. I personally know of very many instances of his most generous treatment to employes who from sickness had become incapacitated. The rich or the poor alike had ready access to his office, and were received with equal consideration. His public benefactions are well known."

The Right Kind of Rule.

Marshall Field's rules were not numerous, but they were famous. They always appealed to the intelligence and Marshall Field.

COBALT'S RAPID PROGRESS.

Mr. B. Trudel, manager of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie.'s Montreal tea department, spent a week in the Cobalt and Temiskaming district lately. Mr. Trudel reports that even now with the snow still on the ground and the country in the rigors of Winter, there is a rush of settlers, prospectors, miners, etc., to the Eldorado of Canada, every train being loaded. The indications are that by the middle of the coming Summer 50,000 people will be swarming into the district. Business is likely to be good, particularly in groceries and provisions, as all these people must be fed, and Mr. Trudel is of the opinion that a properly organized and well stocked and equipped grocery store would be a paying investment. Haileybury and New Liskeard are growing rapidly and it was a surprise to Mr. Trudel after only a three years' absence to find such remarkable development and growth in the district. Mr. M. J. Legge, the firm's regular traveler in that district, was laid by through an accident.

HANDSOME GROCERS' CATALOGUE.

S. J. Major, Ottawa, has recently issued a complete grocer's catalogue, which for general usefulness, convenience and style is hard to excel. The book is of convenient size for the retailer and is well bound, and will prove a useful book of reference in the hands of the grocer.

"Know why you buy and you will know what you get"—J. Bruce Payne.

You do not have to buy cigars because they are advertised no more than you have to buy cigars because they are having the "run."

But if the cigars that have "taken" are being advertised truthfully, and you are able to form a somewhat accurate estimate of them yourself, the work of buying is rendered absolutely safe and, therefore, is recommended on the ground of wisdom

Cigars are always bought on "reason." I have laid the whole story before you grocers and you are your own jury, your own judges.

Some grocers think so much of the Pebble that they sell it at 10c., making double profit. I tell them to sell it at 5c., so if anything I underestimate the value of my own cigars, don't I?

I say that the Pebble is a high-grade Havana-filled cigar enjoying a large patronage. I say that the Filler of the Pharaoh (10c.) is made from personally-selected Manicaragua tobacco the Binder is a Connecticut broadleaf, and the wrapper comes from Holland. Smokers say the Pharaoh is unrivalled.

I am anxious that you should try an order plan of mine whereby the grocer takes no risk while getting an excellent chance to "start." If you are interested in the Payne Plan—the square deal—write me.

YOU CANNOT PUT THE HANDS BACK

Opportunities come, opportunities go, and some grocers are no wiser. At the end of the year these very grocers are surprised to hear what their grocer-neighbors' profits for the year were and surprised to find Tobacco amongst the items.

We would astound you, if we gave the names of all the grocers selling

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

THE TOBACCO DEPARTMENT IN A COUNTRY STORE.

If retail grocers would put in a small stock of good but moderate priced cigars, choosing good brands and always keeping the stock up to the standard, they would speedily build up a profitable trade. While it might not be a large department it would add its proportion to the general profits and be another reason why customers should visit a grocery store.

It is said that the only men who buy cigars from grocers are the hired men who come off the farms on holidays and Saturday nights, but that isn't quite true, even if grocers have few cigars that are satisfactory to anyone else. The thing to do is to make the department attractive and undertake to compel customers to buy more freely of better goods.

A small stock of five-cent cigars, some good smoking tobacco, some good plug tobacco and some pipes and smokers' articles would not require much investment, nor much space, but they would add their quota to the business of the store and cause smokers to patronize it more freely.

There are many country villages where there is no regular cigar or tobacco store. These villages ought to be good places to establish such departments and place them upon a profitable basis immediately.

It would be well to advertise the department as freely as its size and importance appeared to warrant, in that way attracting attention to it at the opening. In some instances it might be possible to secure samples of tobacco or little cigars to distribute to such persons as might come in for the first time.

It would always be comparatively easy to replenish stocks, for wholesale grocers nearly all have large cigar departments. Many of them even sell to regular cigar stores that do a big business. It is not conceivable that they can't supply a small grocer. This matter can be looked up very easily, and if you haven't such a department it would be a good thing to establish one as soon as you can make arrangements.

It is merely a matter of knowing how and of trying the proper quality of goods. No smoker, no matter how little experience he may have had with rather low grade cigars, is going to buy freely of poor stock if it is possible to get better.

THE COMFORT OF A GOOD SMOKE.

Why should men smoke? There are some good reasons. Many break off from a brain-concentrating occupation for a smoke who would probably enjoy no interval at all otherwise.

Such breaks are not only advantageous, they are often positively necessary; therefore, the practice that encourages and helps to obtain them is a distinctly beneficial one.

Smoking helps the subject to rest. Sedentarily employed, a man may be induced to sit for many hours during the day without enjoying an interval if he have nothing to break off for.

But a cigar or pipe will give him occasion to put his hands in his pockets and walk up and down the room or may induce him to go out of doors a little, so that he may obtain a pleasant and reinvigorating change from labor.

Were he to merely stop his routine work and do absolutely nothing, his thoughts would be certain to wander back to duty again, and both he and his work would suffer in the end.

On the other hand, the more restless some temperaments are, the more will they derive advantage from smoking, in moderation. A pipe helps to smooth down irritability; it soothes a troubled spirit and gives comfort to the weary.

At no time of life is smoking of greater advantage than during retiring old age.

A CIGAR NOTE.

It is contended by many that the most constant and faithful devotee of tobacco cannot tell whether or not his cigar is burning if you blindfold him or put him in a pitch-dark room, unless he resorts to unlawful means, such as burning his fingers at the lighted end or inhaling the smoke. But, in default of one or the other of these expedients it is claimed the smoker has not the faintest idea whether he is smoking or not smoking. This claim, however, I have heard vigorously disputed. Not long ago a smoker said to me: "Why, that sort of talk is all stuff and nonsense. I can't imagine how any one can fail to detect the taste of the burning weed." It is nevertheless true that many old smokers admit that they cannot tell whether a cigar or pipe is lighted unless they can either see the fire or smoke.

The owners of the "Shell" Brand of Castile Soap, as well as the owners of the "Tyne" Brand of Scotch Fish, have the principles, courage, enterprise and iron purpose that have enabled them to rise above all others in the high quality of their products. The liberal patronage they have won spells "success" in very large letters. The good has been a mutual one—for owner and retailer. Permanent trade has been established—and held most tenaciously. The retailer who is not handling these two lines is losing money every single day in the week.

Ceylon Tea Gaining in Popular Favor

Alarmists would have you believe that Ceylon Tea —that great favorite of the Canadian public—is fast falling short, in fact is almost in its death throes.

Be not deceived by such self-constituted advisors. The growth of Ceylon Tea was never more flourishing or more perfect. The official statistics are now available and state that the quantity of Ceylon Tea distributed during the year 1905 reached the excellent total of 172,629,960 lbs., which was 13½ million in excess of the figures of 1904, and 23½ million in advance of 1902.

Ceylon Tea has won its place on intrinsic merit alone. The grocer who would stand ahead of competitors must see to it that he sells only Hamilton, March 16th, 1906.

Dear Sir,—

A few weeks ago we emphasized the handsome profit to you in selling Our Extra Fine Sifted Peas (Petit Pois), and we took occasion to point out the merits of these goods and their superiority over the imported article, thinking to assist you in making sales.

Last week we discussed with you our second highest grade of Peas—the Sweet Wrinkle, and we trust that you have put some of these Peas into stock, if you did not have them before.

This week we call your attention to our Early June Peas. Our Early June Pea costs you only a trifle more than the ordinary Standard Pea. At the same time it gives you a larger margin of profit.

As we mentioned last week, our aim in Packing Peas is to produce an article which when opened will present a bright, clear liquor, Peas evenly graded, uniform in color, tender, sweet and attractive in appearance.

While our Early June Peas are, of course, not as fine as our Sweet Wrinkle Peas, they are of excellent quality, and are good enough for the most fastidious. Do not forget to impress upon your buyers that our Canned Peas are preferrable to fresh Peas, as they are thoroughly sterlized, and are absolutely pure.

Do not forget our brands, viz.: "Aylmer", "Log Cabin", "Horseshoe", "Auto", "Little Chief", "Lynnvalley", "Maple Leaf", "Kent Lion", "Thistle", "Grand River" and "White Rose".

Yours respectfully,

FLAKED WHEAT

The distinguishing feature of

Greig's White Swan Flaked Wheat

is the large, thin flakey flakes that make it so vastly different from any other wheat produced in Canada.

No attempt is made to compete in price with ordinary kinds of rolled wheat, as there is no comparison in quality. It stands in a class by itself and readily commands its price from particular people.

All barrels are attractively lined with crinkled tissue paper, thus ensuring freshness and cleanliness at all times.

A System to Increase Trade

Put aside detail work when the same result may be obtained in less time and at less cost by automatic machinery. The hustling retailer of today must have time to look after the wants of his customers and keep his stock up-to-date to attract trade.

A National Cash Register handles accurately, cash sales, credit sales, money received on account, money paid out and money changed, and leaves the mind of the retailer free to interest his customers and plan a larger business for the future.

Retailers are invited to send for our representative who will explain N. C. R. System.

DOMINION GROCERS' GUILD INQUIRY

Proceedings before the Court at Hamilton, by our special reporter.

The preliminary investigation into the charge of conspiracy in restraint of trade against seven leading members of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild had another inning before Magistrate Jelfs at Hamilton on Thursday and Friday of last week. The two days were occupied by Crown Attorney S. F. Washington, K.C., in reading letters written in 1898 and 1899 by the late W. H. Gillard, then president of the guild, and H. C. Beckett. These were contained in a single 1,000-page letter book, and in conclusion the Crown Attorney read some passages from the annual reports of the guild. The case was then adjourned for a week.

The sessions were not exciting. Sometimes the magistrate would doze, and most of the time some member of the little audience was enjoying a snooze. The Crown Attorney wore his throat out and had to call upon his colleague, John G. Farmer, to continue the reading. The legal talent present for the accused guild members were E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., Edmund Bristol, M.P., Wm. Lees and E. H. Ambrose. The magistrate did not require the presence of the accused, but when the session opened Lieut.-Col. John I. Davidson, T. Kinnear, J. F. Eby and Geo. E. Bristol were present. They soon became tired or disinterested and left the game to the lawyers.

It will be remembered that when the inquiry began a month ago, Mr. Washington stated that the books and documents had only come into his possession and he had not had time to examine them and did not know what they contained. After the four weeks adjournment he resumed with a short address to the magistrate, stating what he proposed to prove against the guild.

Crown Attorney's Promise.

"It was stated here at the former session," he said, "that there never had been a single agreement previous to the equalized rate book. We will show there was. We will also endeavor to show that this guild interfered with other people in purchasing goods; that they entered into cast-iron agreements for purchasing goods and these agreements were strictly enforced. Men who had been purchasing from the manufacturers and refiners were cut off in purchasing their supplies because not what the guild arbitrarily designated 'wholesale grocers.'

"We will show that this organization has spread throughout the Dominion until 90 or 95 per cent. of the wholesale trade are banded together to carry out the objects of the guild, and that they have obtained hard and fast contracts with the sugar refiners, manufacturers of tobacco, salt, jam, pickles, canned goods, wooden ware and a score more, and the object of the price committee formed by this organization is to bring into the same relations all manufacturers."

The Law as it Stands.

It may help to understand these proceedings to give here the clause of the Criminal Code under which the indictment against the members of the guild is laid. It is as follows:

"Everyone is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to a penalty not exceeding four thousand dollars and not less than two hundred dollars, or to two years' imprisonment, or, if a corporation, is liable to a penalty not exceeding ten thousand dollars and not less than one thousand dollars, who conspires, combines, agrees or arranges with any other person or with any railway, steamship, steamboat, or transportation company—

"(a) to unduly limit the facilities for transporting, producing, manufacturing, supplying, storing or dealing in any article or commodity which may be a subject of trade or commerce; or

"(b) to restrain or injure trade or commerce in relation to any such article or commodity; or

"(c) to unduly prevent, limit or lessen the manufacture or production of any such article or commodity, or to unreasonably enhance the price thereof; or

"(d) to unduly prevent or lessen competition in the production, manufacture, purchase, barter, sale, transportation or supply of any such article or commodity or in the price of insurance upon person or property.

"2. Nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to combinations of workmen or employes for their own reasonable protection as such workmen or employes."

Unreasonably and Unduly.

The clauses affecting this case are (b), (c) and (d). In (c) the words "unduly" and "unreasonably" are used as safeguards in defence of reasonable trade organization, and in clause (d) the word "unduly" is used to the same end. But in clause (b) the prohibition is sweeping, "to restrain or injure trade or commerce," and no qualifying word is used.

One main object of the Grocers' Guild was to direct trade in the well defined channels of wholesaler and retailer. Whether or not that comes within the meaning of the word "restrain" is for the court to decide. As to prices, the question is, were they "unreasonably" enhanced?

To return to Mr. Washington, he produced the guild letter book of '98 and '99 and said he would inform the court of "the aims and objects of the guild in its infancy."

A Technicality.

"You have not shown that these gentlemen had any knowledge of these letters," objected Mr. Johnston. "You cannot read letters without showing that the defendants are connected with them. It is true that in matters of conspiracy very wide latitude is allowed, but you must not prejudice the case against these men. Many of these letters were written by a man dead some years. Your worship knows there can be no agency in alleged crime. Take even a civil case, evidence of this kind would not be admissible for a moment. Those letters were written without our cognizance or permission. My learned friend's case is not ripe for the letters if at any stage they should be admissible. These men are not charged as a corporate body or as members of a corporate body; they are charged as individuals."

Mr. Washington—"My learned friend doesn't seem quite as anxious as he was a month ago to facilitate the investigation."

Mr. Johnston—"Oh, yes, I am. Don't misunderstand me."

"Most of these letters were written by the late Mr. Gillard, for a while president of the guild," said Mr. Washington. "Anything that any of these men says or writes is evidence of conspiracy. It was held in the plumbers' case in Toronto that what any of the members said or did was evidence and so admitted."

The magistrate—"I will admit the letters and leave the higher court to sift the objection."

Before the Law was Changed.

When Mr. Washington had got through about 100 pages, Mr. Johnston objected to the letters on the further ground that they were all written prior to the amendment of the Criminal Code in 1901, the last date in the book being, in fact, May, 1899.

"Under no circumstances can these letters be evidence against the defendants," said he. "They were written in 1898 and 1899 when the law was very different, in fact was the converse to what it is to-day. The Criminal Code Amendment Act was passed in 1901. What took place before 1901 has no bearing on this case. There is no law in existence to-day of which these matters could be a contravention. Acts that under the then condition of the law were innocent are not applicable now."

"But if they kept on after the law was changed," suggested the magistrate. "Let the higher court decide. I might be throwing out the only means of getting the required evidence."

The Guild Letters.

The letters dealt wholly with the efforts of the guild officers in 1898 and 1899 to establish its regulations and the equalized rates book for sugar. That book was evolved by H. C. Beckett in the Summer of 1898, and the system came into operation in October. Sugar and tobacco were the only articles touched upon in the letters. In all four or five hundred letters were read. The various difficulties that beset the guild officers and their method of dealing with them are illustrated in the letters and extracts here given.

The Kingston Difficulty.

On January 14, 1898, W. H. Gillard, then president of the Dominion Guild, wrote to T. M. Cutler, secretary of the Acadia Sugar Refining Co.:

"Messrs. Geo. Robertson & Son, of Kingston, having refused to join with us in the sugar agreement, a deputation composed of Messrs. Blain and Ince of Toronto, Mr. Hughes, Montreal, and Mr. Macpherson, Hamilton, and myself visited Kingston on Wednesday last but unfortunately found Mr. Robertson away, although he had been notified that we were coming. However, we inquired very carefully into the cause of his refusal and learned that he had no faith in some of his neighbors keeping any agreement they might enter into. That was his experience of the old agreement and he says he does not want to be caught again. He believes, however, in the principle of having an agreement and would join if we could get your help and that of the other refiners in striking off at least two retailers in Kingston, viz., Rigney & Hickey and A. McLean. Mr. Robertson complains also of Carsel & McRae, but I think possibly we could get Mr. Robertson into the agreement if the two retail firms just mentioned were taken off the list of direct buyers.

"I find that Rigney & Hickey are buying or have bought from the Canada Refinery and when I saw Mr. Watson in Montreal on Thursday he said he would take this firm off their list of customers and if your firm would do the same with McLean I think possibly we could get Geo. Robertson & Son to come in. We have not made this proposition to Mr. Robertson, but from what his manager said I am in hopes that this will satisfy Mr. Robertson.

"If, therefore, you would be kind enough to give this your consideration and let me have your reply as soon as possible I shall be very much obliged.

"Of course if Mr. Robertson will not come in even should these two firms be struck off, they can remain on the list of the refiners as at present if you so wish.

"All the other merchants in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, that is from Montreal west, have signed the agreement and are extremely anxious to get Kingston in, as otherwise it might upset the whole agreement. In fact, some of the Montreal wholesale merchants say they are not coming into any arrangement unless Kingston comes in.

"Kindly help us all you can in this matter, as it is certainly in the interests of the refiners as well as the wholesale trade."

Canadian Grocer Told Too Much.

The Canadian Grocer's activity in keeping the retail trade informed of what was going on was a source of considerable uneasiness to the guild officers. President Gillard on January 28 wrote to Hugh Blain, Toronto, as follows :

"I presume you have read the article in The Canadian Grocer, page 15, of this week, headed 'Proposed Sugar Agreement.' I am really surprised at the lack of judgment on the part of the editor of this paper in writing such articles. He must or ought to know that articles of this kind are most damaging to the wholesale trade by unsettling the minds of the retailers and creating a lot of unnecessary friction in the trade.

"It has been our policy always to keep matters pertaining to our guild as private as possible and there is no reason whatever why everything that is done by them should be advertised and made known to the retailer.

"As you know, everything is being done to have this sugar agreement settled and not a day has been lost on my part to get the thing into shape. I am in hope now in a few days of getting the refiners to help us in our Kingston trouble.

"I received your letter some time ago agreeing with me that the editor of The Grocer should consult a committee in Toronto before giving quotations or putting articles pertaining to our guild in The Grocer.

"I hope you will take some action at once in this matter so that we may be relieved from such unpleasant articles in the future.

"Wholesale houses in Canada so far as I know have been doing their best to introduce The Canadian Grocer into the hands of the retailer, but if they are going to disregard the patronage of the wholesale trade, as they appear to be doing, of course the good feeling that has existed in their interest heretofore will naturally be lessened and they will suffer in the end."

Everything Leaked Out.

Another letter on the same subject was written July 12 by H. C. Beckett, Hamilton, to Col. John I. Davidson, Toronto. It ran :

"It has occurred to me (I have not mentioned it to anyone but yourself) that in view of the many objectionable items that have appeared in The Canadian Grocer from time to time touching upon our arrangements, which are strictly the business of the wholesale grocer and not for the retailer, possibly in the next issue of The Grocer we may see some explanation of our present arrangement that will not do any good so far as the retail trade are concerned, but may have the effect of creating the impression amongst the retail trade that the Wholesale Grocers' Guild are working together in the nature of a combine on the sugar arrangement.

"I mention this for the reason that nearly everything we do seems to leak out and get into the hands of The Canadian Grocer. I thought, therefore, that if some of the Toronto trade would wait upon the Toronto editor of The Grocer and prevent if possible the publication of anything that might injure our cause, now is the time to do it, for if anything is said it will likely be in the next issue which is published Friday. It is a mystery where they get all the information they secure. There seems to be a leak some place, but knowing their methods, to publish everything they can get hold of whether it benefits the wholesale trade or not, I would venture the suggestion that the matter is worthy the attention of the Toronto trade."

Not Taking Chances.

President Gillard wrote to T. Kenny & Co., Sarnia, Feb. 10 :

"I have received your favor of yesterday with sample of dark sugar which, upon examination, appears to me to be 'raw.' If I am correct in this there is nothing in the sugar agreement preventing you selling it at any price you like.

"At a meeting of the trade here this evening, at which I submitted the sample, they were all of the same opinion—that it is 'raw.' Of course if it is refined, and you know it to be so, you cannot sell it under the price of the lowest Canadian yellow, viz., 3 11-16c. One or two of the London houses have some imported refined yellow about as dark as yours, which they have agreed not to sell under 3 11-16c.

"If your reply should not agree with my ideas as to its being 'raw' sugar, I will again submit the sample to the Toronto, Hamilton and London trade, but I fear that no concession can be made, as one or two of the London merchants have some very dark colored refined. I have not seen their sugar, but am told by a gentleman who did that they are about as dark as yours. In order to preserve the sugar agreement in its entirety, and without risking any friction, you must not sell your lot at a lower price in the meantime at any rate."

Sugar Held Sway.

On April 5 Mr. Gillard wrote to Lieut.-Col. Davidson, stating that F. W. Humphrey had made an allowance of 10c. a hundred, instead of 4c., for freight to Fergusonvale. He added :

"Then, of course, you will remember the discount that Humphrey is giving on tobacco, viz., 3 per cent. Of course we have no absolute control over tobacco discount, but if Mr. Humphrey is to enjoy the privileges of the sugar agreement he must comply with all the regulations of the trade, or it will be our duty, I think, to see that his supplies direct from the sugar refiners are cut off."

Rebate System.

Mr. Gillard wrote on May 9 to Theo. Labatt, vice-president of the St. Lawrence Refining Co.:

"I feel that the trade have your full support in their endeavor to maintain their sugar agreement, which I am pleased to tell you is, so far, working admirably in the west, with a very few exceptions. I have, however, some fears that unless the rebate system is shortly put in operation our Montreal friends will become impatient and may invade our territory at cut figures, and I am therefore waiting anxiously to hear that you are prepared to complete the proposed agreement on this basis."

Foreign Competition.

Mr. Gillard wrote to T. H. Macpherson, M.P., on May 17, 1898 :

"I learned to-day that T. B. Greening & Co., of this city, have decided to go into the sugar business and have already given an order for a lot of foreign granulated. As they are outside of our sugar agreement their idea, no doubt, is to use this article as a lever to sell their teas, which will, as you can see, be a very dangerous competition, and which we must at once take steps to counteract, for if we allow them to get a foothold with the trade others will follow, and all our efforts to secure a legitimate margin on this article will be lost and the trade will again have to fall back into the Slough of Despond from which they have been so desperately struggling to escape, unless the Government come to their aid with a larger share of protection to our manufacturers against bounty-fed sugars. I do hope, therefore, that you, knowing the situation, will use your full power and influence with the Ministers to assist the trade against this ruinous foreign competition.

"In appealing to the Government through you for their serious consideration of the question, I voice the sentiments of the whole grocery trade of Canada, both wholesale and retail, neither of whom seek nor expect to make a profit on this great staple more than sufficient to cover the risk of handling and distribution, but they do most earnestly hope that something can be done to cure the great evil of selling at cost, or even at a loss."

Just a Slip.

Homer nods and even Gillard & Co. broke the rules, as the following letter of June 25, from Mr. Beckett to Geo. E. Bristol, evidently in reply to a complaint, shows :

"We had been giving 10 days extra on carload lots of sugar and thought we had a right to, but turned up the last sugar agreement (Oct. 11, 1897) and it distinctly states that the terms are thirty days or 1 per cent. off in ten days from date of shipment, and 7 days extra time may be allowed on shipments from the Acadia Refinery. (This is clause 11)."

Retailers on the List.

H. C. Beckett, on July 2, 1898, wrote as follows to Galbraith, Walmsley & Co., Belleville :

"The majority of the wholesale grocers are members of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild and, like yourselves, are all anxious to make a profit on sugar. They object to large retailers being sold to direct by the refiners, and these are matters that will be discussed in Montreal. The present sugar arrangement is difficult to work out, I understand, and some different method will have to be adopted so that it will be clear to every wholesale house.

"I cannot post you better on the present arrangement than by sending you copies of all circulars that have been sent to members of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild. The secretary of the Dominion Guild being in Toronto, I am not certain whether your firm are members of the guild or not. Although having a list of the direct buyers from the refiners, I hesitate sending out lists to those not members of the guild for fear that I might in error supply some retailer who is a direct buyer with the refiners' terms of sale to strictly wholesale houses. The wholesale trade object to refiners selling direct to merchants who are not strictly wholesale, and this matter will be discussed at the meeting in Montreal."

In the Olden Time.

Light on the former sugar situation is thrown by the following extract from a letter by Mr. Beckett on August 10 to W. G. Craig, Kingston :

"I may say that the present system of selling sugar is not satisfactory to the trade, and that at a recent guild meeting in Montreal a resolution was passed to direct the attention of the refiners to the same. Beg to say that the matter is now in the hands of a committee and there is an excellent prospect of the sugar business being placed on a basis that will at least cover the cost of handling the goods."

Negotiating With Refiners.

Mr. Beckett on Aug. 24th wrote to Gilmour & Co., Brockville, as follows :

"The guild is now trying to arrange with the various manufacturers whose goods are not listed at any retail price to get them to fix a retail price for their goods and leave a sufficient margin between the retail and wholesale prices to make it profitable to handle the article. The members of the guild have heretofore agreed upon prices themselves, but the jobbers not all being members of the guild it was sometimes difficult to avoid friction. If, however, the manufacturers took this matter up and fixed the retail prices and refused to sell to any jobber who sells at less than manufacturers' prices we will be able to handle all staples at a fair margin of profit. These are questions that are under consideration and being worked on.

"The sugar question is also in the hands of a committee, and this committee is working out a system that will make it profitable to handle sugar or at least leave a sufficient margin to pay for the cost of handling the goods, which they do not get at present."

Making up the Rate Book.

Sometimes the guild felt the pinch of poverty. On Sept. 1 Mr. Beckett mentioned the matter to Col. Davidson and threw an interesting sidelight on the preparation of the equalized rate book. He said :

"Beg to advise that I am in receipt of a letter from Mrs. A. C. Gray (acting for Secretary Wills) to the effect that the guild funds have run out and that it will be necessary to make an assessment on the membership. I think, however, that it would be just as well to let the matter stand until Mr. Gillard gets home and until the wholesale houses have seen the necessity of chipping in to defray the expenses of the guild business. Undoubtedly the new plan on sugar will put thousands of dollars into the pockets of the wholesale houses, and they can well afford to meet any calls that may be made upon them.

"I have had the services of two of the Grand Trunk clerks for a month, working every night at the freight rates, and have kept them at it pretty hard to eleven and twelve o'clock every night, commencing at half past seven or eight, and I agreed to give them $50. I don't think that the guild will object to this because, without their assistance, I could not have done the work, as the freight tariffs that have had to be gone through are fully a foot and a half thick, which will give you an idea of the work."

All Profit as Rebate.

Mr. Beckett wrote W. W. Watson, of the Canada Sugar Refining Co.:

"I feel that it will strengthen the system considerably if all the profit made by the wholesale houses is given in the shape of a rebate. It would prevent any outsiders buying from the refiners getting 6c. per 100 lbs. off and sacrificing his 2½ per cent. rebate and still being in a position to sell at a little less than merchants working on the equalized rates system, because, as I explained to you before, on less than carload lots it gives a margin of 11c. per 100 lbs. to work on, whereas if the 6c. per 100 lbs. and 2½ per cent. rebate were all given in the shape of a rebate it would prevent the possibility of any outsider buying sugar from refiners and defeating the objects of the system.

"This is an important matter, and it seems strange to me that the Montreal trade should desire to leave a point like this open, and afterwards go to the refiners and ask them to adopt a plan if it was discovered that competition of outsiders made it necessary to give the 2½ per cent. rebate and 6c. per 100 lbs. all as a rebate. I think it would be far better to adopt the plan of giving the 6c. per 100 lbs. and 2½ per cent. all in the shape of a rebate, because then there would be no inducements held out to outsiders to try and break up the system.

"In working out a plan like this it is necessary to give it every fair chance possible and not set obstacles in the way of its success, and I think if an outside wholesaler can buy from the refiners and, getting the sugar at 6c. per 100 lbs. less in 250 barrel lots, with the intention of losing his discount and coming in competition with wholesale houses who are working on the system, it would be better to provide against such a contingency at the commencement of the sustem rather than adopt it a little later on."

Various Firms.

Writing to Col. John I. Davidson, of Toronto, on Oct. 1, Mr. Beckett said :

"With regard to Wallbridge & Clark of Belleville, Mr. Watson (of the Canadian Refining Co.) explained that this firm were their oldest customers and that they were retail and did no jobbing trade, but if they did Mr. Watson said he would write and explain the new system to them and state that they must not in future sell any goods to the retail trade (if they did a small jobbing trade) except on the basis of the equalized rates system, and Mr. Watson promised to look after this firm and give them full particulars and keep them posted. He said that he would take this firm under his own care.

"With regard to M. Carton, of Peterboro, it was admitted in Montreal that this man was strictly wholesale, and none of the delegates made any objection to the refiners selling him. He buys from the St. Lawrence, Acadia and Canada, and the refiners explained that any house doing a strictly wholesale business they could not refuse to sell that house.

"Messrs. Beattie & Co., St. Mary's : No objection in any shape whatever was made by the delegates to the refiners selling this firm, although it is known that these people have a retail dry goods and retail grocery establishment and a wholesale grocery establishment. They have, however, always observed the terms and have not made any trouble in regard to the terms, except that under the old system it was difficult to make any profit on sugar in St. Mary's, but under the new system it will not make any difference.

"With regard to Telfer & Long, that was finally discussed and settled with the refiners when in Montreal.

"The refiners expressed a willingness and were quite anxious to satisfy the trade in every way possible, all cutting off all the firms they could ; but there were such firms as these mentioned that they said it would not be possible to cut off. If they could have cut them off without creating any friction or without providing material with which to break up the equalized rates system they would have been glad to do so, but it was felt that in view of the houses to which your resolution referred being direct buyers for such a length of time it would be a mistake to antagonize them just at a time when we wanted the system to work perfectly."

A Case for Refiners.

Mr. Beckett on Oct. 11 wrote to T. M. Cutler, of the Acadia Sugar Refining Co.:

"We are having a little trouble with Mr. Lumbers. Mr. Lumbers, as you know, has always set out to run his own show, irrespective of the consequences to himself and the rest of the trade in general. He wrote to Mr. Gillard stating that he would not comply with the terms owing to his doing his business by circular and wanting to quote f.o.b. Toronto for his sugar. He could easily figure out the delivered price and put it on the circulars which he sends to his customers, but he wants to avoid this little extra work. If 99 per cent. of the trade can carry out the arrangement, the only way we can do with Mr. Lumbers is to get the refiners to inform him that unless he carries out the arrangement he cannot get any Canadian sugar, and as he can't get along without Canadian sugar he would soon be brought into line. Mr. Lumbers will have to be a case for the refiners to deal with. He is not a member of the guild. He will not pay a cent towards the expenses incurred in getting up the new system which has cost the trade over $2,000; in fact he is always ready to make trouble. I have no doubt, however, that if the refiners refuse to sell him unless he agrees to the terms as laid down in the equalized rates book, and approved by the refiners, he will soon realize that he cannot do just as he likes in a matter of this kind. However the trade all feel that the refiners are with them in making the new plan a complete success, and I have no doubt that when the rough edges are worn off the new system and it gets working smoothly in the course of two or three weeks there will be no further trouble. In the meantime if you get any orders from Mr. Lumbers the information which has been supplied to you will put you on your guard as regards selling him unless he gives his assurance that the rules and regulations will be adhered to by him."

Must Expect Difficulties.

The sequal to that is contained in a letter of Oct. 17 by Mr. Gillard to Gilmour & Co.:

"I am pleased to say that so far as I can learn the plan is working successfully everywhere. Of course there are one or two kickers. Mr. Lumbers refused at first, but after he had been approached by the refiners he has seen that it is absolutely necessary to come in with us if he expects to make anything on sugar. The refiners are giving this matter their hearty support and, while we must expect some slight misunderstanding for the first two or three weeks on account of a great many houses who have not attended the meetings being unfamiliar with the system, it is only a question of a short time before everything will be working like clock-work."

Collecting the Cost.

Here is a sample of collecting for the cost of the equalized rates book and with it an explanation of the system. It is a letter from Mr. Gillard to M. Carton, Peterboro. After referring to the former unsatisfactory condition of the sugar business, he continues:

"The present system of selling sugar is the outcome of very lengthy discussions and negotiations with the refiners, which negotiations have been going on for some months. Deputation after deputation of wholesale grocers have waited upon the refiners to discuss this important subject, and a very large sum of money has been expended in completing the present system. An assessment of $100 has been made on most of the wholesalers and they have cheerfully complied.

How it Worked.

"At the request of the trade the refiners have endorsed the present system of selling sugar and the trade have agreed not to handle foreign refined goods. When the refiners now sell to a wholesale grocer, as you know, they allow a rebate of 3c. per 100 lbs. in carload lots and a rebate of 6c. per 100 lbs. in 250 barrel lots. To all wholesale grocers who have not deviated in any way from the rules as laid down in the equalized rates book, and who have not sold sugar at less than the prices and terms as mentioned in the equalized rates book, and who have not bought and sold foreign refined sugar, the refiners will give a special rebate of 2½ per cent. This rebate, however, will not be given to any wholesaler who does not carry out these terms. The refiners only allow it to the wholesale houses that have observed the rules and that have not broken the prices. If any wholesale house breaks it it is not entitled to the rebate. After three months have expired the refiners will, upon receipt of a declaration from you send a check for 2½ per cent. of the amount of your purchase for the first month. At the end of the fourth month the refiners will allow you a rebate of 2½ per cent. for your second month's purchases, and so on, always keeping back two months. Understand that the refiners when selling you sugars do not agree to allow you a 2½ per cent. They say nothing about the 2½ per cent. on their invoice, and they will only give this special rebate under certain conditions and to houses who are prepared to carry out the terms of the new system.

Refiners Helped Collections.

"The refiners in endorsing the present system were aware of the fact that some jobbers were not members of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild, but it was their opinion that all jobbers who buy direct from refiners should contribute to the expenses of completing the present system. All jobbers, therefore, who will enjoy the special rebate are expected not only to observe the rules but are expected to pay their share of the expenses. If you are to be placed in the same position as the larger wholesale houses as regards buying you must have the books. It has cost over $2,000 to prepare this work and print the books, and the small amount that you have been called upon to contribute is a mere bagatelle as compared with the advantages and extra profit you will make. Compare your profit under the new system with your profit formerly. You will make on all your sales in Peterboro a profit of about 21c. per 100 lbs. on all sugar. Formerly you did well to make ½c., and the sugar competition was getting so bad that it would soon have had to be sold at cost.

"The refiners realized that it was necessary to do something. They had to contend with the competition of foreign goods and desired the wholesale grocers to give the preference to Canadian refined. The wholesale grocers agreed not to handle foreign refined if the refiners would adopt some plan by which the wholesale grocers could make a small profit. The refiners appreciated the fact that if they expected the sugar trade to be in a healthy condition it was necessary for the wholesale trade to make a little profit."

The Kingston Trouble.

Robertson & Sons, of Kingston, were a great trouble to the guild in 1898 and 1899. Here is part of a letter written Nov. 5, 1898, by Mr. Beckett to Craig & Co., Kingston:

"So far as Robertson is concerned, if the refiners are going to supply him with sugar and give him 6c. per 100 lbs. off and deliver to him at the special rate of 12c. in carload lots, it will give Robertson an opportunity of cutting under the rates at which we are all selling: but I do not think the refiners will give Robertson this 6c. per 100 lbs. and deliver to him at the 12c. rate. He has got to be firmly dealt with, and I feel certain that the refiners will not let Robertson be the means of breaking up a system which, when working properly, will be a great assistance to the trade."

All on a Level.

A wholesaler must needs charge a near-by customer cartage. Mr. Gillard wrote, Nov. 12, to Randall & Roos, Berlin, as follows:

"In Waterloo I understand that you deliver sugar to your customers' stores. The sugar arrangement does not permit of this unless you charge the buyers in Waterloo cartage equal to the cost of getting the sugar from the station to the customers' stores in Waterloo. You can readily understand that you would have an advantage over the outside houses by so doing, and it is not the intention of the sugar arrangement that any one should have an advantage. The only way you can do is to charge cartage of five cents per barrel when delivering sugar to customers' stores in Waterloo."

Getting In.

Mr. Gillard wrote to Fenwick, Hendry & Co., Kingston, Nov. 17:

"I received a letter to-day from Mr. McLean, applying for membership to the guild, and inclosing a letter from you recommending him. He cannot be admitted as a member of the guild unless he is strictly a wholesale merchant and has the consent of all the wholesale grocers in Kingston with the exception of Geo. Robertson & Son."

Authors of Trouble.

Mr. Gillard wrote to W. G. Craig, Kingston, Nov. 26:

"As the Montreal and western guilds are working in perfect harmony on the questions of sugar and tobacco, the whole object of the meeting was the discussion of the Kingston difficulty and what action should be taken to meet the opposition of Geo. Robertson & Son, who are alone to blame for the entire trouble.

"The first article considered at the meeting was tobacco, and after an exhaustive discussion the unanimous opinion was that, although Mr. Macdonald has firmly refused to do anything to assist the trade in their efforts to establish uniform prices, one more effort should be made. Failing that there is no other way but to meet Geo. Robertson & Son on their own terms on the territory covered by them, which no doubt can be easily defined. The Toronto trade agrees to observe such an arrangement, and I think I can get Montreal to do the same.

"To throw the whole country open to these cut prices would do Kingston and Ottawa no good and would so demoralize the trade in these articles that there would be very little chance of getting it back again to its present shape even should we succeed in bringing Robertson to his senses by the plan proposed, which must be our united constant aim to do.

"With regard to sugars, it is felt that we can certainly make Robertson sorry for the position he has taken by so arranging freights that he will have to sell Canadian sugars at absolute cost or less, which he will hardly feel like doing very long, and will be anxious to get back into the fold. The refiners, I understand, have not given up hope of bringing him into line again."

Cut off the List.

The following letter was written by Mr. Gillard to Mr. Watson, of the Canada Refining Co., Nov. 20.:

"Having regard to A. Beattie & Co., St. Mary's: A strong objection was being raised by a large retail house in Stratford, by name of the Barnsdale Trading Company, who were doing business in competition with Beattie & Company in the town of Stratford. Beattie & Company have one or more retail stores in Stratford, and the Barnsdale Trading Company complained very bitterly to the wholesale house of Geo. Wall & Sons, of Brantford, with whom they were doing business, about the refiners selling to Beattie & Company and refusing to sell to the Barnsdale Trading Company, they being retailers.

"Messrs. G. Wall & Son, of Brantford, wrote to the St. Lawrence Refinery Company giving their views on the matter and, as I understand it, asked the St. Lawrence people if it would be possible to stop selling to Beattie & Company, as they were not wholesale, and in fact were the only retail firm on the list of direct buyers from the refiners. It was pointed out to the St. Lawrence Refinery Company as I understand it, that Barnsdale Trading Company were entitled to any privileges that the refiners extended to Beattie & Company and I was informed by Mr. Lambe, the representative of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refinery Company that they had decided to discontinue selling to Beattie & Company.

Refused to Pay.

"I do not think that this action would have been taken so promptly had it not been for the fact that Beattie & Company refused to have anything to do with subscribing to the funds necessary to carry out the equalized rates system. They claimed that it was entirely a guild matter, and they not being members of the guild refused to subscribe. They were asked by the St. Lawrence people, I believe, once or twice to pay up but they refused to do so and the complaint of Geo. Watt & Sons coming right at a time when they had refused to pay the call, and in view of the fact that a good excuse was necessary to get them off on account of their being retailers, I understand the St. Lawrence people decided to discontinue selling them.

"Now that Beattie & Company are not direct buyers, the refiners, as I understand it, will only quote them according to the equalized rates book.

"As the wholesale trade understand it the refiners will not quote carload lots or over to the retail trade or to any outside buyer at less than the rates as called for in the equalized rates book, allowing the rebate of 5c. per 100 lbs. for carloads.

Keeping Silent.

"I received a letter from W. G. Craig & Co., of Kingston, stating that the policy they are adopting with Geo. Robertson & Sons is to keep silence regarding sugar, and that this way of dealing with the matter they have good reason to believe has caused Robertson to be somewhat surprised. It is not what he expected, and Geo. Robertson & Sons are realizing that they are not such tremendous factors in the sugar deal as they thought they were.

"Messrs Craig & Co. state they are inclined to think that the policy should be continued for the present by all concerned. They state that Geo. Robertson & Sons claimed that the sugar arrangement will burst by the first of January. The Kingston trade also think that if the 6c. allowance were held back, along with the 2½ per cent., it would bring Robertson to time 'instanter.'

"At a meeting of the Toronto, Hamilton and London trade, held here last week, a resolution was passed to make the above suggestion to the refiners. The trade all know the reason the refiners have refrained from doing this, but if the refiners could see their way clear to keep this 6c. back then there would be no trouble in bringing Robertson into line."

Not All Their Own Way.

Mr. Beckett to Craig & Co., Kingston:

"I am pleased to see that Geo. Robertson & Sons are not having things all their own way, as they expected they would. The suggestion was made to the refiners by Mr. Gillard to hold back the 6c., and while they are not doing this at present they have taken another method, I think, which is equally successful, and which I will explain to you when I have the pleasure of visiting Kingston as early next week as possible."

Keep Them Guessing.

Mr. Beckett to Craig & Co.:

"The new equalized rates book covering the Winter rates have been distributed to the trade to-day, and all the Kingston houses have been advised except Messrs. Geo. Robertson & Sons. Geo. Robertson & Sons, of course, know nothing about the new issue and your policy to preserve silence is undoubtedly a very good one. It will keep them guessing to know just what the rest of the trade are doing. Under the Winter freight rates Geo. Robertson & Sons will have more difficulty in meeting the quotations of their competitors than they had under the Summer rates and there will be less likelihood of their being able to make capital out of their present position."

The Great Majority.

Mr. Gillard to Charles Chaput, Montreal, Dec. 5:

"I am pleased to inform you that satisfactory assurances have at last been given by Mr. Macdonald that he will use his influence to assist the trade in their efforts to establish uniform prices and terms for his goods.

"With this assurance, backed by the cordial support of the other leading manufacturers, I trust that all difficulties with respect to this article will immediately disappear and that our friends east of Toronto will enjoy the same profit henceforth that we have had here and which the trade for years have persistently held to under many aggravating circumstances. They felt that, notwithstanding the difficulties thrown in their way by the few who had no respect for the regulations of the great majority and their fellow merchants, it is better to suffer a slight diminution in sales than to do the whole tobacco business at cost or less. Had we not stood firm and induced every merchant and tobacconist in Toronto and west to join in the arrangements we could not have presented so favorable a case to Mr. Macdonald, and would consequently never have succeeded in getting his consent to help us."

The Mighty Voice.

Mr. Gillard to W. W. Watson, of the Canada Refinery:

"I have to thank your company for supporting the trade by refusing to place them (Beattie & Co., St. Mary's), on the list of direct buyers on wholesale terms.

* * * * * * * *

"Mr. Beckett left last night for Kingston to meet the merchants there and of Ottawa, to further educate them on the working of the equalized rates book system of sugars, which they don't even yet appear to quite understand. I hope that Robertson will soon realize that he is not so important a factor in the trade as he appears to think he is and that he will yet bow humbly to the mighty voice of the great majority."

The day after Mr. Beckett wrote to Mr. Watson, stating that Robertson & Sons did not like the indifferent attitude of the rest of the trade and was not having success with foreign sugars.

The Tender Mercies.

Mr. Beckett on Dec. 11 wrote to Craig & Co., Kingston:

"Mr. Beckett wrote you yesterday giving all the reasons why I thought it not wise to write to Robertson & Sons regarding tobaccos and sugars. We will have to leave him to the tender mercies of the manufacturers, and which I know

FRUIT INTERESTS CONVENE AT OTTAWA

While Ontario was experiencing the first real snow storm of the year there were making for Ottawa from all parts of Canada representatives of our fruit interests to take part in the conference convened by the Hon. Sydney Fisher, to discuss, and possibly solve, the problems with which the Canadian fruit men are met at the present time.

The minister had every reason to congratulate himself on the response to his invitation. In addition to the staff of the fruit section of the department and no small number of fruit growers, buyers, members of Parliament and the such, there were 19 accredited delegates representing every province of the Dominion. In calling the meeting to order Mr. J. A. Ruddick alluded to his presence at the last Dominion fruit conference sixteen years ago. The present conference would, he said, confine itself to the broader questions of national importance.

Hon. Sydney Fisher Takes the Chair.

The Minister of Agriculture on assuming the chair expressed the belief that this gathering of the leading spirits of the fruit growing and fruit handling interests of Canada would prove of great importance. Their opinions would be received with the greatest consideration both by the Government and by the members of Parliament in general. He considered it a privilege to preside and expected to follow the proceedings closely.

An essentially national gathering, Mr. Fisher characterized the conference. The problems of the separate provinces would be discussed in their several organizations, the questions of wider interest would be dealt with here and in a broad way. The matters for consideration would fall under three heads: (1) Problems of organization for national purposes; (2) problems of fruit transportation of foreign, provincial and interprovincial trade; (3) legislation along the lines of the Fruit Marks Act.

The transportation problem, including cold storage, handling, rapid despatch, would demand their attention.

A difficulty in defining seconds in the grading of apples was admitted by the minister, but a difficulty which he hoped would be overcome.

The Fruit Marks Act had been intended to protect our trade in foreign countries, but it had been found difficult to secure evidence sufficient to ensure conviction. He hoped to secure amendments that would enable him to do this.

Statistics and Fruit Crop Reports.

This subject was introduced by Mr. A. W. Peart, of Burlington, who moved a resolution asking for more detailed statistics from the provincial governments, and from the Dominion Census Department, in regard to fruits. Mr. Peart had prepared a mass of statistics from which he gave excerpts to the effect, among other things, that Canada had in 1901 over 21,201,239 fruit trees, of which 14,000,000 were in Ontario, 3,000,000 in Quebec, 2,300,000 in Nova Scotia, 360,000 in Prince Edward Island, 567,000 in British Columbia, 63,600 in Manitoba, and 9,405 in the territories. He estimated their capital value at about $73,191,415 and their annual return $10,295,000.

Mr. Gilman, of New Brunswick, was strongly in favor of the resolution. New Brunswick had not the organization existing in Ontario, and felt the need of it.

Mr. Starr, of Nova Scotia, endorsed the resolution and incidentally pointed out that for the last five years his province had exported an average of over 400,000 barrels of apples.

Rev. Father Burke, of Prince Edward Island, agreed in the necessity for fuller statistics and gave an eloquent eulogy of the fruit possibility of his "Garden of the Gulf," as he termed it.

Not to be outdone, Mr. Burrell, of British Columbia, expatiated on the remarkable development of the fruit industry of his province and declared that in 1905 they had increased the number of their trees to 2,500,000 and would this year set out nearly a million more. It was only 12 years since British Columbia shipped her first car of fruit. Last year the C.P.R. carried 4,000 tons freight and 1,000 express. Mr. Burrell clinched his argument in favor of his province by instancing the gold and silver medals won this past year in England.

Manitoba was represented by Mr. Manson, a distributor, not a grower. He declared that the west wanted the best and could handle all quantities of it if the quality was right.

Lively Afternoon.

The afternoon session developed a marked difference of opinion between the Ontario delegates on one hand and the British Columbia men on the other, over a proposition to create a new legal grading of apples to be known as "Fancy," and the Minister of Agriculture displayed his usual acumen by postponing the decisive vote to a later session of the conference.

Statistics Resolution Again Discussed.

While the report of the resolution committee was being waited for the question of fuller fruit statistics was resumed from the morning session and very general interest was manifested. Ontario wanted a differentiation made in reports for peaches, pears and plums. British Columbia wanted cherries included. A valuable suggestion was at this point made to the purpose that about blossoming time and again just before the apples were ripe, the Government inspectors should make a general survey and report on the crop prospects.

This was supplemented by the further request that our representatives abroad secure similar information as to the prospective crops in the countries in which they were stationed.

Consignment or Auction Sales—Which?

Just here a lively tilt occurred on the policy of sending apples abroad on consignment. Mr. Graham made a vigorous attack on the auction system of selling apples. He urged that with fixed standards apples should be sold on an f.o.b. basis the same as wheat. He had avoided the auction room for some years and knew trade could be done on the other plan. In a market like Liverpool with 30,000 barrels arriving one week and 90,000 the next, demoralization was inevitable. If on the other hand dealers brought on just what was required for their weekly needs the market would be steadier and the prices more profitable.

Mr. Chaplin, of Toronto, representing the auction interests, was loudly called for and in a few words declared that we could never expect the Old Country dealers to buy our apples on a f.o.b. basis till our Fruit Marks Act was amended. On a rising market such as this year the trouble was not so acute. But usually the producers made their XXX apples sell their XX grade. They would not sell their first quality alone. When we had an act by which we knew where the culls were a f.o.b. basis might be considered, and not before.

The Fruit Marks Resolution.

By this time the resolution committee was ready to report on the Fruit Marks resolution, Mr. Burrell moving the report as follows :

"Resolved, that the delegates to the Dominion Fruit Growers' Conference recommend that the Fruit Marks Act be amended in the following manner :

"1. That the words 'in letters not less than half an inch in length' be inserted in section 4 after the word 'manner.'

"2. That section c be struck out and the following be substituted :

" 'With a designation of the grade of fruit, which shall include one of the following four marks : Fancy, No. 1, No. 2, No. 3.'

"3. That section 6 be amended as follows :

" 'No person shall sell, or offer, expose, or have in his possession for sale any fruit packed in a closed package, upon which package is marked any designation which represents such fruit as of "fancy" quality, unless such fruit consist of well grown specimens of one variety, sound, of uniform size and of good color for the variety, and of normal shape.'

"4. That a sub-section A shall be added to section 6 as follows :

" 'No person shall sell, or offer, or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in a closed package upon which package is marked any designation which represents such fruit as of No. 1 quality, unless such fruit consist of well grown specimens of one variety, sound, of not less than medium size and of good color for the variety, of normal shape, and not less than ninety per cent. free from scab, worm-holes, bruises and other defects, and properly packed.'

"5. That a sub-section B be added to section 6, as follows :

" 'No person shall sell, or offer, or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in a closed package upon which package is marked any designation which represents such fruit as of No. 2 quality, unless such fruit consist of specimens of medium size for the variety, free from worm-holes except at the blossom end, and free from such other defects as cause material waste, and properly packed.' "

A Lively Discussion.

Clause 1 passed with no objection. Clauses 2 and 3 were the rocks on which the conference split and in the end left over.

These clauses abolished the old XXX, XX marks that were optional. It seems that ingenious and not overly honest retailers had a habit of improving the quality of their apples by adding an X or so to the grade placed on the barrel by the packer. It was further argued and admitted that the Americans had worked the XXX mark into disrepute. It was agreed to use No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3 instead.

The proposition to make a No. 1 Fancy that should admit of nothing but absolutely perfect specimens was made by British Columbia, acquiesced in by Nova Scotia and opposed by Ontario. The Ontario men claimed it was impossible to always prevent a few imperfect apples getting in even with the best of graders.

The British Columbians were mildly facetious in regard to the quality of Ontario apples and the Ontario men hit back with deprecating allusions to the flavor of the Pacific coast fruit.

One thing was certain, there is no doubt in the Ontario mind that this province is the garden of Canada and a second Eden. The British Columbian, the Nova Scotian, the Quebecer, and the Prince Edward Island man is just as morally certain of the superiority of his province as a fruit district.

What does it matter, so long as they are all happy ?

A Solution Offered.

A solution to the whole question of grading was offered in co-operative packing, and the suggestion was received respectfully.

Finally the minister proposed to define the grades strictly with a general clause allowing a slight deviation in enforcing the act as is the case with the Seeds Act. With this suggestion the matter was left open to be resumed later, an amendment in the meantime having been offered to clause 3 as follows :

"No person shall sell, offer, expose or have in his possession for sale any fruit packed in a closed package upon which package is marked any designation which represents such fruit as of fancy quality unless such fruit consist of well grown specimens of one variety, sound, of uniformly large size and good color for the variety, of normal shape, and not less than 95 per cent. free from scab, worm-holes, bruises and other defects, and properly packed, and that this grade of fruit shall be packed exclusively in boxes."

His Excellency the Governor-General having learned of the conference expressed through Mr. Fisher his intention of being present on Wednesday and listening to the discussion.

Adulteration of Food Products

Mr. McGill, of the Inland Revenue Department, was deputed to read a paper on this important subject and the Hon. Mr. Templeman was there to hear.

Mr. McGill gave a resume of the development of the adulteration evil. Pure food laws were not necessary to our forefathers because up to recently food was largely home produced and home prepared. At the same time the chief adulterants, glucose, cotton seed oil, analine dyes and preservatives had but in the last few decades been discovered. The sophistication of foods, declared the speaker, had been made possible only this last half century.

The situation demanded the attention of the physician and the lawmaker. It was dangerous to tamper with the human system, and a man had a right to know what he was eating. The names of the great food staples were the product of generations and were well known. We had a right that articles sold should be true to their name. Such adulterants as glucose and cotton seed oil were harmless but should not be palmed off on us as sugar, olive oil or butter. They had a value but should be sold for what they were.

Glucose was used on account of its cheapness. There was no other logical reason.

Preservatives were unnecessary and he believed harmful. Sugar and cooking would preserve any wholesome fruit.

Dyes were another objectionable ingredient and were used generally to hide inferior quality or the introduction of light colored pulps as adulterants.

As an object lesson samples of wool were shown that had been colored from dyes found in jams and catsups.

On being interrogated the Hon. Mr. Templeman declared himself in favor of enforcing the law to ensure that food stuffs are sold for what they are.

Mr. E. D. Smith pointed to England as an instance to prove that if the people were assured that their jams were pure, great quantities of fruit would be used in this form.

This closed the afternoon session.

In the evening the Hon. Sydney Fisher, Sir Frederick Borden and Dr. Jas. W. Robertson addressed the delegates in the normal school.

ALCOHOL OIL IN LEMON EXTRACTS

The pure food branch of the Dominion Inland Revenue Department has been doing some good work, but they issued the other day a statement regarding lemon extracts that is somewhat misleading to the public and is humorous to the few who know something of the manufacture of extracts. Ottawa news dispatches state that the department tested 110 samples of lemon extract of which 63 per cent., that is 69.3, contained alcohol 50 per cent. strength. The inference is that inebriety lurks on the housewife's pantry shelves and that the seeds of it are sown in pastry, ice cream and cake.

But the department seems alarmed also over the absence of lemon oil. The dispatches continue :

"Such samples, the analyst states, contain only traces of lemon oil. Of the total samples two contain above six per cent., three from four to five per cent., four from two to three per cent., fifteen from one to two per cent., and seventy-eight below one per cent. Owing to the non-existence of a standard for extract of lemon, either as regards its alcoholic strength or its content in lemon oil, it is impossible, the analyst avers, to declare any of the foregoing samples adulterated by reference to the standard extract."

A little inquiry on the part of the analyst would have caused him to state the result of his inquiries differently. The Canadian Grocer consulted an expert, a partner in one of the most reputable and largest manufacturing firms in the trade. This is what he said :

"It might be explained that oil remaining in extract is not any indication of the actual merit of lemon extracts as it is possible to make the highest grade extracts without any trace of oil being retained. The latest method of making lemon extracts is through the action of diluted alcohol to separate completely the flavoring essentials of lemon from the lemon oil proper."

This new method is 15 or 20 years old. The oil itself has no flavoring value. It is like a sponge holding the flavor. The alcohol acts as an ether and itself takes up the flavor from the oil and gives it off again easily when diluted and subjected to heat as in cooking. The chemist might devise some mechanical means for testing the strength and quality of an essence, but the best method is the expert's senses of taste and smell. Cheap extracts are sold that are little more than sweetened water and the best safeguard the public have is to buy standard goods.

ONTARIO PROPOSES TO TAX TRAVELERS.

Mr. T. Herbert Lennox, M.P.P., North York, has introduced in the Ontario Legislature a bill to place a tax on commercial travelers entering the province as representatives of firms situated elsewhere.

When seen by a representative of The Canadian Grocer at his law office yesterday Mr. Lennox had no hesitation in stating why he had introduced the bill and the purpose of it.

"I have introduced it," he said, "at the request of a number of the commercial travelers. Now there are two objects in view. I see no reason why they should not be stated. The first is to practically force the Dominion Government to take action looking to joint action and a mutual understanding on the part of the provinces, looking to the abolition of such trade restrictions.

"The second object is to retaliate in kind upon Quebec and so compel, if possible, the rescinding of the traveler-tax law in that province.

"I don't think there is any doubt the bill will pass. I have assurance of the Government's support."

The bill was given a first reading Wednesday and it was stated at the Buildings, though Mr. Lennox would not go so far, that the Government had offered, if necessary, to make the bill a Government measure and so insure its passage.

THE TRAVELERS' TAX CAUSING TROUBLE.

That a "coach-and-four" can be driven through an act of parliament is a very old saying, but has never been more clearly demonstrated than in the case of the Quebec travelers' tax.

Montreal wholesale houses are in a great state of excitement over the injustice which the tax, in its working out, is bringing down upon them.

It has developed recently that smart American commercial men have discovered a means of evading the tax of $300 which the Government of Quebec, in its wisdom, has imposed on foreign commercial travelers from foreign countries.

The expedient, which is a simple one, does serious harm, not only to Montreal, but other Quebec business centres. The American travelers, instead of going to the province which forces them to pay a tax, strike for Ottawa, or some other town in Eastern Ontario. They engage sample rooms and open negotiations with Montreal buyers, agreeing to pay all their expenses if they will come to Ontario and buy goods. This comes higher than going to Montreal under the old conditions, but it is cheaper than paying the present tax.

This plan of evading the tax is a most serious one; it does harm to such places as Montreal in more ways than one. There is, of course, the loss to these cities of the actual money spent by the visiting travelers; but there is also the natural feeling of obligation to place an order which comes over the buyer after having traveled at the expense of the Americans, in many cases much larger than they would from the same traveler if he were exhibiting his wares, say in Montreal. The natural consequence is that less goods are bought from the Canadian wholesale houses.

In its present form the tax is unbusinesslike, and an evil; people will, therefore, naturally use every means to evade it.

WHERE DO YOU STAND?

Have you finished your inventory? Where do you stand? Have you made as much money as you expected or not? Have you hustled in season and out of season and failed to reap returns? If so, it is either time for you to turn over a new leaf or to get out of business and conserve what little you may be able to save.

The merchant must be thoroughly modern. In the days of our fathers, it was well enough to keep two books, one for what "I owe" and the other for what "Others owe me." In these days a store conducted on this system can not live. The retailer must first know what his goods cost, and keep this cost price constantly before him. He must know his stock as an open book and should be able at almost any time to give an approximately correct statement of his fiscal position, and the value of his stock.

He must conduct his credits with wisdom or they will swamp him in a wave of bad debts. A large number of retailers have cut out the credit system entirely. That there is wisdom in this action is more than probable because had they been able to do a larger business, cash and credit, they would probably have maintained the dual system, provided it did not entail too serious a percentage of bad debts.

It is the time of year when the retrospective is as important as the prospective. "Let the dead bury the dead," may be well enough sometimes. But if the year 1905 was full of mistakes, the lessons of the year should not be lost on 1906.

If you sold on margins that were too small, mark up your prices. If you have figured your expenses too low, correct the error. Do business on a certain percentage of profits. From your experience you should be able to tell just how expensive your establishment is compared with the volume of business transacted. There is no use wasting your time in a business that doesn't pay and hasn't a future. Better get out and try something else, unless you can do better than split even.

A PRACTICAL PROPOSITION.

The suggestion made at a recent meeting of the Regina Board of Trade that the city should appoint a publicity commissioner at a good salary, is one that should be adopted. Brandon, Moose Jaw, Edmonton, and other western cities have either adopted a similar proposition or are considering it, while Toronto, London, Ingersoll, and other industrial centres in Ontario propose to spend considerable money to advertise the advantageous points in connection with the respective cities and towns.

The idea might even be carried farther and some lessons learned from the experience of Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster, in each of which cities there is a Tourist Association, with a paid secretary, working under the auspices of the civic authorities, his duties being to boom the advantages of the cities named as stopping off places for tourists, and to see that all visitors are cordially welcomed and well taken care of when in town.

The two propositions—that of a publicity commissioner and that of a tourist association secretary — might well be combined in the case of the various cities named, with the possible exception of Toronto. The tourist and publicity commissioner of the western cities might, for instance, influence the railway corporations to allow stopover privileges on all tickets sold to trans-continental or tourist passengers.

Visitors spending a day or a week in a town would spend some money with the merchants, and might also be impressed with the particular advantages of the place for some enterprise with which they or their friends are connected, and in other ways advantages would result.

The proposition is a good one. Push it along.

A VIRTUE TO CULTIVATE.

There is no habit the young man entering business can more profitably cultivate than that of promptness and faithfulness in keeping appointments. Nothing is more exasperating or more inexcusable than the failure to keep a business undertaking or appointment. It is not only a personal affront to the other party, but has wasted his time, upset his arrangements and generally thrown his plan of the day's work out of gear.

A gentleman recently starting in business in Toronto has very justly been voicing his grievances owing to the failure of the telephone company in installing his 'phone. Here was a case of direct money loss to the unfortunate business man, as the telephone was absolutely necessary for him, particularly on account of the many petty errands required before his work was put in smooth running order.

Another case in point was in connection with a small printing order. The job was promised at a certain time, was expected, was not delivered. The order was eventually filled, but will be the last one for that printer.

On the other hand the firm or man that wins or deserves a reputation for promptness and reliability need never be on the search for business or employment. Business will seek him.

It may mean a sacrifice of personal comfort to deliver goods just exactly on the minute agreed upon in some instances, but failure to do so may be just the thing that loses the trade of your best customer. Be prompt. See that your employes are prompt. You can confer on them no greater benefit than a sound training in this most desirable habit.

DANGER TO MANUFACTURERS.

The reference to the increasing competition of mail order houses in the report of the convention of western merchants shows that this subject, which has been an important one in the United States, is becoming a live problem in Canada.

Objection to the retail catalogue house system of conducting business has heretofore been based on the theory that it was injuring the retail and jobbing interests alone. It is possible that the peril to manufacturers is as imminent. The policy of the mail order houses in the past has been to attract trade by offering reduced prices on certain well known articles, and to make good the deficit on other articles of unknown quality. The plan is based upon the theory that first impressions are lasting—that consumers will find the mail order value exceptionally good in some instances and assume it is good in all instances. The theory is sound and has been demonstrated to be such by empirical test. It is not probable that the policy will be changed.

The danger of this method to manufacturers is shown by an announcement appearing in the latest catalogue of one of these concerns, as pointed out by the American Artizan. Up to the past year the concern had been furnished saws bearing the trade-mark of a prominent manufacturer. In accordance with their policy, after the reputation had been made, and the recognized living profit killed, the retail catalogue house discontinued pushing this leader, and now claim that a saw stamped with a private brand of their own is better than the original trade-mark saw. The private brand is quoted at a comparatively low figure. Consequently, consumers are being taught that the trade-mark saw is in no wise superior—possibly inferior—and that the manufacturers are realizing an exorbitant, wholly unjustified profit. This particular saw manufacturer is being hurt to that extent.

It is unnecessary to comment at length upon the irreparable injury that announcements of this kind are able to effect. To some manufacturers, a trade-mark is worth many times the cost of the entire plant, the annual income and a private fortune. Thousands of readers will note the unfavorable criticism, not many will take time to verify the truth of the statement. These and other facts are readily apparent.

SUGAR TARIFF CONTROVERSY.

The following is the memorial on certain statements regarding the duties on sugar fyled at Ottawa 2nd March, 1906, with the Tariff Commission by the Canada Sugar Refining Co., in reply to the memorandum submitted by Mr. Robert Anderson on the same subject:

On the 8th February, Mr. Robert Anderson, acting on behalf of Messrs. Robert Crooks & Co., importers of refined sugar, presented to you an elaborate statement in regard to the sugar duties, covering 42 pages of typewritten matter, which may be summed up as an unreserved indictment of the Canadian duties on sugar, under which Mr. Anderson asserts the refiners have a complete monopoly of the Canadian market, and amass enormous profits at the expense of the Canadian consumer.

Mr. Anderson supports his case with an elaborate series of figures and calculations, and has spread his memorial broadcast.

Under these circumstances, the reply which we now make is an endeavor to show you that Mr. Anderson is not a reliable authority on this matter, and to give to his conclusions an emphatic denial and contradiction as inconsistent with facts.

Before, however, dealing with the main question, one or two points may be noted. On page 3 Mr. Anderson asserts, quoting his own words, referring to last season—"The refiners were maintaining an artificially high market in Canada until recently, when they reduced their prices to make as unprofitable a return as possible for the domestic beet factories in Ontario." This statement is absolutely devoid of any foundation, as the following facts will show:

1905 was a disastrous year to every dealer in sugar, decline after decline in values took place, the refiners were obliged, as usual, to follow the markets wholly independent of the question of loss or profit, the following successive declines actually took place:

Reductions in price of refined sugar from January, 1905, to date.

	Declines.
1905.	Number.	Amount.
February	1	$0.10
April	1	.10
May	3	.30
June	3	.25
August	1	.10
September	2	.20
October	3	.30
November	1	.10
1906.
January	2	20
February	1	.10
Per 100 lbs.		$1.55

Total amount of declines before commission met in Montreal, $1.35.

Total amount of declines after commission met in Montreal, 40 cents.

The great majority of these declines it will be noted, took place long before the Ontario beet sugar came into view (about the beginning of November) and it may be summed up that Mr. Anderson's accusation is wholly baseless.

Another of Mr. Anderson's statements runs as follows: "The refiners' actions savor of a demonstration, to impress the trade and the country, for on the morning the hearing was opened in Montreal (7th November) the facts were that at that time (says Mr. Anderson) there were no supplies of preferential sugar available for import." Now the Tariff Commission opened on 7th November, and we direct special attention to the last sentence of Mr. Anderson's—for we would draw attention to the fact that the maifests of this port show at this very time, that is, during the month of October, 1905, when, as he says, "No preferential sugar could be had"—his firm alone imported at Montreal over 11,000 bags of sugar—what duty this sugar paid we do not know, but it must have been preferential, at a rebate of 33 1-3 per cent., because Mr. Anderson says elsewhere, that that kind only can come to Canada.

And if further proof is required of the value of Mr. Anderson's "facts"—we would quote reports of one British port—Greenock—from which the following exports took place for Canada:

Week ending	Tons.
14th October, 1905	240
21st October, 1905	565
28th October, 1905	450
4th November, 1905	200

Mr. Anderson goes on to another point where he assumes to speak of things of which he knows nothing and can know nothing. In page 5 he says: "The Canadian refiner buys only in bond and does not pay on the average any premium to the British West India planter for his sugar, over what the New York refiner would give for it—which is pocketed by the Canadian refiner as extra profit." All this is false, the Canadian refiner has paid and does pay a large share of the preference to the West India planter.

In 1904 we paid to the West India sellers an average premium of 12 9-10 cents per 100 lbs. over and above the New York market price of the day on account of this preference.

In 1905 we paid an average premium of 13 7-10 cents per 100 lbs.

Now, the sugars on which we paid these extra prices ranged in test from 75 degrees to 96 degrees, and the preference to which these sugars were entitled by law ranged accordingly from 13 cents to 24 cents per 100 lbs. A large share, therefore, of the reduction of duty on raws has gone to the West India planter. As it is a fact that Mr. Anderson is engaged in importing refined sugar, represented to be made from West India raws, and claims and collects a rebate of over 40 cents per 100 lbs., it becomes appropriate to ask if he himself, or his firm, contributes any portion of this large premium to the West India planter, to whom it is as righteously due as from that portion of their crops which the Canadian refiner uses.

Mr. Anderson proceeds to his main argument, viz: That the Canadian refiners are over protected, his assertion being that, to quote his own words, —"The sugar refiners are granted over 50 per cent. more protection than is given to American refiners."

Mr. Anderson's statement in support of this assertion is as follows:

Canadian duty on refined	$1.26 1-2
Canadian duty on raw	.71 1-2
Apparent protection	.55
U. S. duty on refined	$1.95
U. S. duty on raw	1.68 1-2
Apparent protection	.26 1-2

In these figures Mr. Anderson conveniently conceals the following facts:

1st. He takes the highest rate of Canadian duty, viz., on granulated, omitting to mention that on all soft sugars the Canadian rate of duty runs down as low as $1.08 per 100 lbs., which reduces the Canadian duty on refined to $1.20—and by the preferential tariff to 80 cents. While the American duty on all qualities and grades of refined is at the uniform rate of $1.95 per 100 pounds.

He further assumes that the American refiners are paying a duty of $1.68 1-2 on their raw material. Let us examine this.

The United States consumption of sugar of all kinds during the year 1905 was 2,632,216 tons, and the sources of supply from which this was drawn were as follows:

U. S. Consumption, 1905.

Source.	Duty.	Tons.
Domestic cane and beet	free	576,124
Hawaii and Porto Rico	free	501,425
Philippines	$1.26 3-8	14,673
Cuba	1.34 8-10	1,101,611
Other countries	1.68 1-2	438,383

From these figures it is proved that the percentage of Sugar consumed paying full duty is only 21 1-3 per cent of the whole.

Sugar consumed paying full duty is only 16 2-3 per cent. of the whole.

Consequently the average duty paid on imported sugar, basis 96 degrees, is $1.09 1-2 per 100 lbs., and on sugar consumed, basis 96 degrees, $0.85 1-8 per 100 lbs.

The foregoing table shows that the American refiner, instead of paying $1.68 1-2 on his raw sugar, really contributes that duty on only 21 per cent. of the total importations, and the actual contribution to the American revenue by the American refiner is $1.09 1-2 per 100 lbs. at the most. Applying these corrections to Mr. Anderson's table above, we find the true situation to be:

	Per 100 lbs.
Applying preference the Canadian duty on refined of all grades is, estimate	0.80
On raw	.48
Apparent protection	$0.32

	Per 100 lbs.
U. S. duty on refined	$1.95
U. S. duty on raw, as explained	1.09 1-2
Apparent protection	$0.85 1-2

So that by deducting 23 cents from the Canadian protection, and adding 59 cents to the American, we arrive at the truth, which, as above, is:

American protection, 85 1-2 cents per 100 lbs.

Canadian protection, 32 cents per 100 lbs.

You will observe that the word "apparent" is used in both cases, because, as it takes more than 100 lbs. of raw to produce 100 lbs. of refined, the protection to refiners is reduced.

Mr. Anderson proceeds to calculate the advantage accruing to the Canadian refiners from the dumping clause. Now, it may be said in reference to the dumping clause that while it is a righteous provision against that process, applicable to other commodities besides sugar, it has never had the effect of adding one single cent to the price of Canadian refined sugar, and never can do so as long as British refined can be had, to which the clause does not apply.

He proceeds to contrast the price of granulated in New York with that in Montreal, to quote his own words: "The net prices were recently on the same day:"

	Per. 100 lbs.	Per. 100 lbs.
Granulated in N. Y.		$4.45
Paying a duty of	$1.68 1-2
Granulated in Montreal		4.08 1-2
Paying a duty of	.47 2-3
	$1.20 5-6	.3650

Therefore, he says, while the New York refiner paid $1.20 5-6 per 100 lbs. more duty on his raw than the Canadian refiner did the return to the Canadian refiner was apparently 84 1-3 cents per 100 lbs. more than the New York refiner got.

Applying the necessary correction to this statement, we find that the correct figures for the day Mr. Anderson appeared before the commission, were as follows:

	Per. 100 lbs.	Per. 100 lbs.
Granulated in New York, net		$4.45
Paying a duty of	$1.09 1-2
Granulated in Montreal		3.84 3-4
Paying a duty of	.47 2-3
	.61 5-6	.60 1-4

Leaving Montreal 1 7-12 cents per 100 lbs. better than New York instead of 84 cents as Mr. Anderson has it.

But we attach little importance to the comparison for it is next to impossible to follow the ups and downs of the New York market. Substantially, however, the comparison has been just about the same as the corrected figures given above through the year past.

It seems unnecessary to pursue the analysis of Mr. Anderson's calculations further; what remains is affected with the same disease of erroneous data and conclusions as in the cases above dealt with.

We do not hesitate to affirm that the information he offers the Government is inaccurate and unreliable, and his conclusions absurd. His proposed tariff changes would certainly answer his purpose and transfer to the importers the entire business of the supply of refined sugar to this country, and deprive the West Indies of the traffic and preference they now enjoy.

Referring to the inaccurate statements with regard to the protection and profits of the sugar refiners, a glance at the subjoined table will be instructive.

Table showing the ad valorem equivalents of present duties at present market value:

	Duty on Raw material. p.c.	Imported goods. p.c.	Protection. p.c.
Cotton, no duty		20 to 35	20 to 35
Wool, no duty		30 to 35	30 to 35
Silk, no duty		25 to 35	25 to 35
Jute, no duty		25	25
Rubber, no duty		25 to 35	25 to 35
Sugar
	Raw pays.	Refined on the average.
(Gen. tariff)	45 2-5	*48 1-5	2 4-5
(Pref. tariff)	30 3-10	*32 3-20	1 7-8

The above figures show that sugar refining instead of being as alleged a specially favored industry, has probably a lower rate of preference from the tariff than any other industry of importance in the Dominion, a difference of less than two and one-half per cent ad valorem existing between the duty collected from the raw material, and that on competing importations of refined.

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

Morris Knechtel, grocer, at 104 Dundas street, Toronto, has sold out to A. Ashton, who is a new arrival in the city from the north country.

W. H. Wilson, Woodstock, has been bought out by a gentleman who purchased the property with a view to starting business himself.

W. H. Thompson, of the F. F. Dalley Co., formerly with John Taylor, crockery, Hamilton, was in Buffalo this week on business in connection with his firm.

J. S. Huff, Petrolia, has sold out his grocery business and gone back home. His father is well-to-do and the family wanted J. S. at home, so it is back to the farm for him.

W. W. Steeves, who represented the McDiarmid Drug Co., St. John, N. B., in New Brunswick, has joined the traveling staff of E. W. Gillett Co., Limited. Mr. Steeves will cover the Province of New Brunswick for this company.

T. McMurtry, Midland, has sold his grocery business to his brother Charles, and he will take over Charles' market garden. The latter has made a success of vegetable growing and the former has children for whose energies he seeks scope.

John Fullerton, of Rowat & Co., Glasgow, is in Montreal on his annual tour among the Canadian grocery trade. With Mr. W. Forbes, of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., agents for his company, he is meeting with good success with Rowat's pickles, olives and other grocers' specialties.

Mr. Marshall, manager of the agency department, A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, is visiting Detroit, their headquarters for the United States, and is meeting their salesmen to arrange for a campaign of the United States with Maconochie's goods.

W. W. Fox has sold his grocery business at Sackville street and Wilton avenue, Toronto, to Alex. Draper. Mr. Fox is a tailor and is returning to the T. Eaton Co. to take charge of their ladies' tailoring department. Mr. Draper was at this stand before and sold his business at Dunn avenue and Huxley street to Geo. McKee, in order to return to it.

C. H. Murdock, representing the Frontenac Cereal Co., Limited, Kingston, was in Montreal during the past week. Mr. Murdock is well known to the grocery trade of Canada, particularly in Ontario, Manitoba and the west. A very satisfactory trade for Orange Meat is reported by Mr. Murdock, who called upon the trade in company with Mr. R. H. Hall, of R. B. Hall & Co., Quebec agents.

Hollendrake & Son, of Milton, have built themselves a fine new store and will occupy it about April 1. It will be one of the finest stores in Western Ontario and will be fitted with handsome new fixtures throughout. The firm carry groceries, dry goods, crockery and wall papers, and the new store is to be strictly in keeping with the larger and better premises.

D. Grierson, representing the Fielding Chemical Co., Limited, Guelph, passed through Montreal last Friday on his return from a most successful trip through the Maritime Provinces. During his stay in Montreal he favored the offices of The Canadian Grocer with a call. One of the specialties handled by Mr. Grierson and very extensively sold to the grocery and handware jobbing trade was chloride of lime, a line that is well calculated to increase grocers' profits.

John W. Greene, of John W. Greene & Co., New York, was a visitor to Montreal this week. Mr. Greene is head of the spice importing house of John W. Greene & Co., 74-76 Wall street, New York. To The Canadian Grocer Mr. Greene stated that this was his first visit to Montreal and though he had had business relations with some of the leading firms here he had never become personally acquainted with his clients. Mr. Cecil Gordon, of J. Alex. Gordon & Co., introduced Mr. Greene to the trade will work out all right in the end, and we shall not be troubled very much longer with them in that direction I think."

On Dec. 22 Mr. Gillard wrote to Chas. Chaput, Montreal, who had complained about the cutting of prices on tobaccos in the Kingston and Ottawa districts, stating that Craig & Co., Kingston, had notified all the houses that Mr. Macdonald would not supply houses that cut.

Manufacturers' Supplies.

The question of manufacturers getting direct supplies of sugars came up more than once. On Dec. 22 Mr. Gillard wrote to Theo. Labatt of the St. Lawrence Refinery :

"At a meeting of the Toronto and western trade held in Hamilton a short time ago Mr. Davidson, of Toronto, mentioned the fact that Cowan & Co., manufacturers, of that city, are importing and offering to the retail trade foreign refined sugars. This is contrary to the guild arrangements. Kindly let me know if they are buyers from you direct. If so, would you be good enough to notify them that, being buyers from the Canadian refiners, they must use the goods only for their manufacture, and if they import foreign sugars these sugars must not be offered to the trade but used solely in the manufacture of their goods."

Would Cut Them Off.

Mr. Gillard wrote to Mr. Macpherson, M.P., on Jan. 7, 1899 :

"I saw Mr. Tuckett last evening who said that they did sell Jackson & Son of Guelph, being a continuation of the firm of Jackson & Hallett, and very old customers of theirs and who have always pushed their goods in preference to others, but if it could be proven that they are selling to the trade at a less price, or giving better terms than fixed by the wholesale trade, they will strike them off the list."

Shut Off Supplies.

Mr. Gillard, writing to Secretary Wills on Jan. 11, 1899, added this postscript :

"I have had two or three complaints of Scales & Wilson, tobacconists, Toronto, that they are not observing the guild terms. They either give a rebate or extra discount. The firm that made the complaint named Jackson of Guelph and Schwartz of Hamilton, both of whom the complainants say they are convinced are getting something of this sort. In fact they were told by one of these men they could do better with Scales & Wilson than with any other firm. Kindly find out who it was that got the promise from this firm that they would strictly observe the rules and get them to kindly see the firm again and have it stopped at once if possible, as otherwise I will take steps to prevent their getting supplies."

Sermon on Ethics.

A somewhat unusual letter was written by Mr. Gillard to T. B. Escott & Co., London, on Feb. 8, 1899. He begins by stating that an envelope with his firm's name on it, addressed to a grocer in St. Thomas, had been received from the post office as "uncalled for." From the post mark he had seen it had been mailed in London, and had taken pains to ascertain by whom. Mr. Gillard continued :

"You know that the guild was organized for the mutual protection of the entire wholesale trade and any changes made in its management being authorized by a majority vote, it is manifestly unfair to place the responsibility of such changes upon the shoulders of officers who are only carrying out their instructions and who should be protected against any attacks by the retail trade, instead of having his or their names paraded (entirely without their knowledge or consent) as the parties upon which the retailers should vent their displeasure for any change that they might not approve of.

"When acting as a body of merchants in the mutual interest, each and all should be prepared to support the deliberations of the guild in a manly way and assume their share of the objections, which in this case could easily have been done, seeing that every retailer in St. Thomas is placed exactly upon the same basis."

DEATH OF JOHN STUART.

John Stuart, of the wholesale grocery firm of John Stuart & Co., Hamilton, Ont., died unexpectedly on Tuesday the 20th inst., at his residence, 3 East avenue south, from pneumonia. He was the fourth son of Alexander Stuart, city treasurer. A widow and one daughter, Miss Julia, survive.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, March 23, 1906

There has been little improvement in grocery circles since last report. The Winter just passed has been a bad one for merchants. The roads have been continually bad; farmers have been unable to get to town and therefore sales in this direction have not been as large as they might. What was sold comes far below the record of the previous Winter. Collections, say wholesalers, cannot be expected to be first-class under the prevalent conditions, but everything considered they have been very good. Orders coming in at present are fairly large, but are as a rule, for immediate use. The most interesting feature to note is the advance in sugar of ten cents. This is the second rise within the past three weeks. Tomatoes are also selling at a higher figure, the advance being ten cents in this instance also. Evaporated apple stocks are pretty well cleared up now. Holders are asking 12c. Probabilities are that there will be further rises in a short time. The molasses market is unchanged since last week. Business is quiet in foreign dried fruits, and spices are quiet, there being no very great demand. The coffee situation does not present any new features. Beans are still at the same figure and the market is firm. The demand for tapioca is falling off on account of the high price asked. Rice is being sold in the usual quantities.

Canned Goods—There is a continued demand for tomatoes which have advanced another 10c., quotation now being $1.20 per dozen. The canners of the country are sending out statements saying that they have disposed of many lines of canned goods already, and that the daily consumption is gradually clearing up what they have in stock. British Columbia canners say that they are about to advance the price of salmon 50c. a case. This, however, will not affect the local market very much as stocks are fairly plentiful. Corn and peas are meeting with steady sale and demand for other lines is about the same as usual.

Tea—Very little change has occurred in the tea situation since last week. Most teas are moving along quietly and orders coming in are fairly large. Japans are selling a little better than they were recently. Ceylon greens are doing well; prices firmer. Other lines are doing proportionately. China blacks and greens, particularly the latter, are improving in demand; Ping Sueys, Pealeaf, Pinhead and Gunpowder getting scarcer.

Coffee—Local dealers report the coffee market as being unchanged since last week. Reports are still current regarding the shortage in the Brazilian crop. One report says the shortage amounts to 1,000,000 bags. This is taken "with a pinch of salt" in some quarters, however, and in most cases the statement is attributed to the speculators.

Foreign Dried Fruits—Dealers report very little business in foreign dried fruits The market is quiet in all lines. A shipment of 3,000 cases layer raisins, f.o.s., was made by Montreal to New York recently, and this helped the local market somewhat. If one or two more lots like this were shipped, the local market would experience quite a recovery. Shelled walnuts are still very scarce. Holders report stocks of prunes considerably reduced by recent sales. The currant market in Greece is unchanged, although firmly held. Raisins are quiet at the same figure as last week.

Spices—The market does not present any features of particular interest just now. The amount of business being transacted is not very large. Nutmegs have not experienced an further rise. Ginger, too, is still quoted from 16c. to 24 1-2c. Peppers are firm and tending higher; good demand.

Rice and Tapioca—There is nothing new to report regarding the rice situation. The sales reported are no larger than usual at this time of year. Tapioca is not selling very well on account of the high price asked. People are not disposed to purchase tapioca at 10c. per lb. when rice and sago are obtainable at a much lower price.

Beans—The market is firm in price, especially in the west. There is not much business being transacted at any point as holders are not anxious to dispose of their stock. Reports from the Detroit market, which is showing considerable strength, show a rise of 6c. in the bid price. The prices in local market are unchanged.

Honey—Now that the new syrup is in sight, jobbers show a disposition to refrain from buying honey. However, the syrup has not yet arrived and they are compelled to buy a certain amount. Prices are unchanged and the market is firm.

Evaporated Apples—These have taken another flight and are now selling at 12c., an increase of half a cent. Stocks are becoming cleared up at advanced prices, and holders are thinking of putting up the price still further. Many jobbers are holding off in the hopes of a decline, but it is not likely that they will save money in this way, unless they wait for the new crop, for supplies are very, very scarce. Those who are buying are taking only such quantities as they must have.

Fish—The trade has flourished this past week owing to the very favorable weather we have been having. The demand for all lines continues good, but supplies are ample to take care of all orders, except in a few lines, especially salt Labrador herring, which are practically out of the market. Some Canadian herring, cured after the Scotch method, are being offered in small packages, or kitts, and these will sell readily on account of the scarcity of Labrador. Price, $1.10. In green cod fish the small size, which is known as No. 2, is plentiful and prices a little lower, with medium and large cod very scarce. The market is pretty well cleared up in smoked frozen fish, although there are still some lots of inferior quality which are being sold for what they will bring. Already a few lots of fresh cured haddies have arrived by express, but prices will be high for the first arrivals. Kippers and bloaters are in fair demand and supplies are good. Oysters are scarce owing to the stormy weather off the Atlantic coast, but this is only temporary. Frozen haddock and cod are meeting with ready sale, but some fresh haddock are now offering, although prices are very high. Other lines of fish are selling very well.

GROCERIES.

Trade is seasonably good; no one is complaining, but none are boasting. Price movements are all upward. Sugar and tomatoes are the features of this week's market and a salmon advance will be a feature next week, indeed some houses have already made the move.

Canned Goods—Tomatoes are being quoted from $1.10 to $1.25, but the bulk of the trade is asking $1.20. Everyone is satisfied they will go higher. The more conservative name $1.40 as a top price before the new pack comes in in September; but some forecast a rise to $2.00. The situation is in the hands of the wholesalers because they hold what stocks there are.

One wholesaler, who, it might be stated, is anticipating an advance to $1.75 or $2.00, explaining the situation, said: "The consumption of tomatoes has increased and is increasing enormously. While there was a large pack last year, and a splendid pack so far as quality is concerned, it has been almost entirely absorbed. There has not been a case of tomatoes in packer's hands for some weeks. The retail trade did not show any disposition last Summer to buy futures, and to meet their requirements they have been buying from hand to mouth. Stocks in the hands of the wholesale trade are light and it is not believed to be sufficient to meet requirements until the 1906 pack is on the market.

Some houses have advanced the choice brands of canned salmon 7 1-2c. to 10c., others will mark them up for next week and some are still selling at the old quotations. Stocks are said to be small and a large catch is not anticipated this year.

Sugar—The feature of interest in the market this week is the local advance of 10c. per 100 lbs. in all domestic refined sugars, taking effect at 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday. This is in sympathy with firmer conditions outside, and the market on now has entered a much stronger phase.

There is much divergence of opinion in the trade as to whether or not sugar will continue to advance, but the prevailing feature is uncertainty. The advance of 30 cents in three weeks is convincing enough, but traders point to the large visible world's supply and indications for another large crop this year.

Tea—Low grade teas which have been sagging for some time, have shown a distinct improvement on the London market. Thompson's Tea Circular, Mar. 8, says: "For the first time since last July common teas have also taken a slight turn for the better in spite of the fact that the offerings during the past few weeks have been rather larger. More recent advices show the advance has been maintained.

Coffee—Speculation as to the outcome of the next crop is rife. As an offset to anonymous bear reports that it is to be early and large, Willett & Gray state "the two largest exporters in Santos cabled that the fruit was falling, owing to rain, and in one of the cables details were given about the danger to the crop and the prospects being less favorable. These two firms for a number of years past have been shipping by far the largest quantity of coffee both to Europe and this country, and any expression from them is serious and can be taken in confidence."

Foreign Dried Fruits—A decline in the rate of exchange has advanced the price of currants on the primary market. P. L. Mason & Co. stated yesterday: "We have a cable on currants which advises considerable advance in Patras. This is due to the fact that in addition to the minimum price in the currency of the country at which the privileged company established by royal charter, is compelled to take currants of all descriptions offering, there has been during the past few months a constantly declining rate of exchange on England and the result has been the establishment of an advance of fully two to three shillings per cwt., according to quality in the sterling quotations."

B. C. News.

Vancouver, March 15, 1906.

Northern canners are very active just now sending men and supplies to their canneries at Skeena River, Naas River, Rivers Inlet and other points on the northern British Columbia coast. The run of salmon there is much earlier than on the Fraser, hence the necessity of early preparation. As there are several new canneries, built or in the course of erection, machinery for the equipment of these is added to the regular annual shipments. Every steamer operating to northern coast points is carrying the full capacity of cargo each trip, and frequently shipments have to wait over. Tin plate is being sent in very large quantities just now, and the Chinese employes who are chiefly engaged for canmaking are being sent up to the canneries to prepare the tins for the pack.

The greatest activity is evinced on Skeena River and Rivers Inlet this year, most of the new canneries being built there.

The Okanagan Flour Mills Co., of Armstrong, B.C., F. C. Wolfenden, manager, has received from the Dominion Government an order for 5,000 sacks of flour for immediate shipment to Japan, being the Canadian Government's contribution to the aid of Japanese famine sufferers. The order was placed after open bids had been called, quality determining rather than price. Samples from Northwest mills as well as from the B. C. flour mills were sent to Ottawa.

Another Okanagan flour mill operator, F. V. Moffett, of the Columbia Flour Mills, Enderby, has been spending some days in Vancouver this week, presumably in connection with the mill it is rumored his company intends erecting here. No public announcement has been made.

Movement of live stock north has begun, the steamer Dirigo having taken out 70 head destined for Dawson. They will be driven over the Winter trail most if not all the way from White Horse. Other freight has begun to move north, too, and by the time navigation opens there will be the usual large accumulation at White Horse waiting for the first vessels down the Yukon.

In the provision market, price of lard shows an upward tendency. Flour and sugar are unchanged since last reports. Owing to the very fine weather prevailing for weeks local fresh eggs have driven all importations off the market. There are practically none on the market from Oregon and Washington this week. The last New Westminster market day found prices wholesale dropped to 20 to 25 cents per dozen, while in a retail way fresh eggs are now quoting at 25 cents.

In fruit, oranges are selling freely and of excellent quality. Prices remain firm. Apples, except the best quality, have gone off the market. Prices are from $1.50 to $2.50 with very few at the lower quotation.

California vegetables, fresh stock, are selling briskly owing to the limited supplies of store vegetables in hand. Cauliflower and celery are getting scarce now and lettuce is still hard to get, though the local and Victoria greenhouses will soon be ready to meet the demand again. Fresh tomatoes are again in the market after a very temporary disappearance. They sell at $2.50 per crate.

N. B. Markets.

It is still somewhat quiet in business. March has been a stormy month and the weather cold. There is much complaint in regard to the Allan Line of steamers which come to St. John, the importers, particularly of perishable goods, complaining of the slow time made. It is thought a waste of money that the Government should pay a large subsidy and then allow the company to use such slow boats. Where subsidies are granted companies should be continually watched and compelled to fulfill the terms of the contract, and care should be taken to see that the contracts compel a first-class service.

In markets there is little change. The situation is in general a firm one. Fish which have been extremely high are likely to rule lower in the coming season. Cream of tartar is still quoted quite low. Rice remains unchanged.

Oil.—In burning oil prices are still low. While season of best demand is over, there is still good steady business. Lubricating oils have much attention. Active business will begin with the opening of navigation, when shipments will be the order of the day. Paints and paint oils are high this year, linseeds being well above last season's price and turpentine even higher than last year. Cod oil quiet, values hold quite firm.

Salt.—In Liverpool coarse salt, larger quantities are now being received. Last year a very large quantity was handled in March. This year business is somewhat later. Prices are unchanged. Buyers should arrange for shipment from ship's side and save the difference between the ex ship and ex store price. In fine salt chiefly Canadian sold; while demand shows improvement it is yet early. Price unchanged.

Canned goods.—Those who held their goods and did not follow the cut in prices last Fall, will have the advantage now with the strengthening market, particularly in tomatoes. In fruits there is little of interest; fair stocks in nearly all lines. There is better inquiry for gallon apples at rather better prices. Meats will rule low. Salmon unchanged. In domestic packed fish, a fair stock of sardines, other lines light. There is limited business.

Dried fruit.—There is little of interest. In raisins, seeded chiefly sold, but sales not large, local prices rather lower. In loose muscatels, Malagas chiefly sold. Currants are firm, dealers now generally buying in New York. In prunes higher prices quoted, particularly for small sizes which are very scarce. Apricots and peaches higher. Dates are higher, though still cheap. The outlook for peels is high prices, particularly for citron. Evaporated apples are high and dried are firmer. Canadian onions about out of the market. Valencias, nice stock, prices firm.

Sugar.—Price is firm at the slight advance of the past week. A fair business. There is some foreign sugar here, but little if any offering from the other side.

Molasses.—A small cargo of Barbadoes here. The last steamer landed a large quantity. There are two grades, choice and fancy; the latter is a new line, being different from the regular run of molasses. So far it has had a splendid sale. A small quantity was imported last year. Porto Rico rather dull, a fair stock of old held, new will be late and high.

Fish.—Just fair business. Frozen fish business about over. Dry fish while high are hardly as firm. Pickled herring very firm at full figures. Smoked herring rather easier. Finnan haddies somewhat dull.

Green Fruits.

Apples are high, for good fruit.

Oranges generally firmer, sales good. Valencias owing to delay in receipts were scarce last week.

Bananas begin to have interest, though while the frost remains there is no large business. It is said that at least for the first part of the season prices will be high.

Lemons rather higher.

Provisions.

In barrel pork there is little offered except clear of different grades. Full prices asked, light sales. Beef is firm but very quiet. Pure lard high, very little Canadian here. In refined compound price is still low, though more firmly held. A good sale. Smoked meats high. In fresh beef market is still dull, prices are low. Nice veal seen, and commands good prices. Mutton steady. Pork is still high.

N.S. Markets.

Halifax, March 21, 1906.

The grocery trade is a little on the dull side, the changeable weather conditions having to some extent a detrimental effect on business.

The recent advances before noted in the price of sugar have caused a considerable drop in the sales, though the jobbers in most cases are stocking up, anticipating another advance in the price. All canned goods are now finding a ready sale, beans, peas, tomatoes and corn being most in demand.

Collections are about a good average.

Many of the grocery stores of the city, while the bodies of the late Archbishop O'Brien and Lieut.-Governor Jones were lying in state, draped their windows with black and white and purple and white.

The stock of apples in the valley is being pretty well cleaned up. The Furness liner "St. John City" which has just sailed from here for London, took over four thousand barrels, which will probably be the last large shipment from Halifax this season. Good apples are very scarce on this market. Some Russets and Spys of fair quality are offered, but the price quoted is away above their value. $4.50 is asked for the best of them, and from $3 to $4 for the others. The demand for apples during the Lenten season is always very good. Some of the commission men say that before the season closes the best of the Spys will fetch $5 per barrel.

The best quality of the last shipment of Jamaica oranges are jobbing at $6.50 to $7. The high price is said to be due to the large proportion of the waste. Navel oranges are selling at $4 for all counts.

Lemons are selling at $2.50 to $3, according to the quality.

Grapes are very scarce and are quoted at $6 and $7.

The onions in stock here are of rather poor quality. 2¼c. to 2½c. per pound is the price quoted.

The first strawberries of the season on the market are selling at 40c. to 50c. per box.

Stocks of potatoes are now very wasty and the commission men have to pick them over. Some vessels which were at the wharves all Winter are discharging cargo, some of which is in pretty poor shape. During the mild weather the potatoes heated in the holds and much of the stock rotted. They are selling here at 40 to 50 cents per bushel.

Turnips are quoted at 80c., beets at $1, parsnips at $1.50, and carrots the same.

Butter is in fairly good supply. The farmers continue to send in small lots, which is consumed principally on the local market. Good butter in small tubs finds ready sale at 25 and 26 cents, and the farmers who go about from door to door, find no difficulty in disposing of their stock at these prices. Very little butter is being exported from here this season. The local demand is good, and it is expected that the supply will increase as Spring advances.

The recent cold snap has caused a decrease in the supply of fresh eggs, though the price has not advanced very much, the stocks on hand being fairly large. Fresh eggs can be bought here from 18 to 25 cents, the vendors in the green market on Saturday asking the latter figure. Their stock is always superior to the general run, and in consequence they usually receive a couple of cents more per dozen than the average jobbing price.

A NEW CANNING FACTORY.

A new canning factory is to be built at Beamsville. The parties interested are E. D. Smith, M.P., Winona, who is already engaged in putting up jams and fruits in heavy syrups in glass, and Thos. Owens, of the Bloomfield Packing Co., Bloomfield, packer of Quaker Brand canned goods.

The factory will be 100 feet by 40 feet with a storehouse about 160x60. A splendid location has been secured on the H., G. & B. line right under the mountain from the top of which excellent water is to be had in abundance. The new factory will confine its operations very largely to tomatoes and fruits.

A circular letter under date of Feb. 24 has been sent by Ira Stratton, secretary of the Manitoba and Northwest Postmasters' Association, to the postmasters of Western Canada urging upon them the necessity of organization and asking their signature to a petition which is to be presented to the Dominion Government on behalf of the postmasters of the Dominion. With all worthy organization movements the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada may well sympathize, and no argument will be advanced by the association in opposition to the scheme. But there is one clause in the petition now being signed, to which the merchants of Canada have every reason to object. Clause 11 of the petition is the one referred to. It reads as follows:

"That the Postmasters' Association be allowed to compile a post office directory containing lists of patrons of offices with a view to selling same to mail order firms, and proprietary medicine firms and enterprises."

To this proposal the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada is strongly opposed and there is every reason to believe that the matter has only to be brought to the attention of the retail trade through the trade press to elicit from the merchants of the country an expression of disapproval so strong as to prevent the request of the association from being granted. Fortunately the merchants of the west are in a position to speak as an organized body in opposition to this clause through the medium of their association. Last Saturday, Secretary Coulson wrote Ira Stratton, the secretary of the Manitoba and Northwest Postmasters' Association, warning him that the retail merchants of the west are unalterably opposed to the granting of this clause in the petition, and that unless satisfactory assurances are given during the coming week the association will bring the matter at once to the attention of the Government.

The proposal is simply indefensible and the superb "nerve" of those who make it can best be appreciated when it is remembered that more than 85 per cent. of the postmasters of the west are general storekeepers. To ask these men to sign a petition of this nature is sheer impudence, for the scheme is one that is wholly in the interests of the mail order houses. It is bad enough that the country storekeeper in his capacity of postmaster should be compelled to distribute tons of mail order catalogues every year, but to suggest to him an organized scheme whereby he is part of the machinery to furnish his mail order competitors with lists of his customers is cool effrontery of a sort to excite the admiration of those who can only wonder at Mr. Stratton's nerve.

It happens, however, that the clause is No. 11 on the list and that it is associated with others which are in no way objectionable, and which relate to grievances under which the postmasters suffer. With the other clauses there will be no disagreement, and many country postmasters reading the synopsis of the petition hurriedly may attach their signature without noticing clause 11.

There is no reason why the machinery of the post office department should be placed in this way at the disposal of the mail order houses. To do so would be most unfair to the local dealers, and it is most unlikely that the Dominion Government will assent to this clause, provided the merchants of the country make themselves heard. The Canadian Grocer will welcome communications on this subject.

Secretary Coulson was in Stonewall on Friday of last week organizing the Stonewall section, which includes the town of Balmoral. At a meeting of the dealers in this section it was agreed to sell all 10-cent packages and plugs of tobacco at 10 cents straight and to regulate the price paid for eggs according to advices received from Winnipeg.

Next week Secretary Coulson will go west to complete the organization of a number of sections, and notices are being sent to merchants to attend meetings at various points. The meetings for which notice has been given are as follows:

Souris, March 26; Brandon, March 27; Indian Head, March 28; Balgonie, March 29; Regina, March 30; Moose Jaw, April 2; Weyburn, April 3; Fillmore, April 5; Esterhazy, April 10, and Balcarres, April 12.

The Esterhazy section is to include the towns of Esterhazy, Wellwyn, Rocanville, Tantallon, Hazelcliffe, Stockholm, Dubuc, Grayson, Killaley, and Neudorf. In this section there are 21 merchants who already are members of the association.

The Balcarres section includes the towns of Balcarres, Lipton, Abernethy, Cupar, Earl Grey, Lemberg, Dysart, Southey, Bulyea, and Strassburg. In this section there are now 26 members.

The Moose Jaw section includes Moose Jaw, Belle Plain, Caron and Mortlach. The membership is 16.

The Balgonie section, which includes Balgonie and Pilot Butte, has 10 members.

The Souris section, which includes Souris and Carroll, has 9 members.

The Indian Head section has not yet been organized at all, but Mr. Coulson has been invited to address the Board of Trade with the object of forming a local section.

The Weyburn section has 28 members from the following towns: Weyburn, Hitchcock, Macoun, Midale, Halkute, McTaggart, Lang, Milestone, Wilcox, Rouleau, Drinkwater and Yellowgrass.

The Fillmore section has 20 members from the following towns: Fillmore, Sedley, Francis, Tyvan, Osage, Creelman, Heward and Stoughton.

The Regina dealers, like those in Indian Head, have not yet been secured as members of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada. They have, however, their own local association and it is expected that, as a result of Mr. Coulson's visit, this organization will be annexed by the larger body. It is proposed to include Pense in the Regina section.

At the Eterhazy and Balcarres meetings, Mr. Coulson will have the assistance of W. C. Paynter, one of the leading members of the association. Dealers have been anxious to have their own sections thoroughly organized in time for the Spring produce trade, and it is to be hoped that there will be a large attendance at these meetings in order that the organization may be perfected.

The practical pecuniary benefits from these meetings of local sections are much larger than those secured from the annual and semi-annual meetings in Winnipeg.

NEW CHILLIWACK STORE.

Carl Grossman, lately manager of Ashwell's grocery in Chilliwack, B.C., has bought the crockery business and store of T. B. Henderson in that town and has opened a general store business. The building is being entirely remodeled. A plate glass front is being installed, giving a 12-foot display window which will give Mr. Grossman an opportunity of making some excellent window displays. The store is being fitted up with modern counters and shelving of the new owner's own design, and Chilliwack will have one of the best equipped stores on the coast.

NEW BROKERAGE FIRM.

A strong brokerage and commission firm known as the Dominion Brokerage Co., Limited, has been organized in Calgary and it commenced business the first of the month. The officers of the company are F. G. Dawson, president; J. G. Edgar, vice-president, and R. C. Johnston, secretary-treasurer. For the last two years Mr. Dawson has been manager of the Calgary branch of Campbell Bros. & Wilson, and he has a good connection among the trade. Mr. Edgar has been a resident of Calgary for several years and has held the position of manager for the Hudson's Bay Co. in that city. Mr. Johnston has been a partner in the big brokerage firm of Nicholson, Bain & Johnston, Winnipeg and Calgary, and he is well connected among the trade, having been one of the first merchandise brokers in Calgary. In Calgary the new firm has a large track warehouse on Ninth avenue west, and good storage facilities will be provided their patrons. Offices have been secured in the Sharples block over the Northern bank. Offices are also being opened in Edmonton, where the business will be in charge of Mr. Edgar. The new firm have taken over the agencies of Hull & Sharpe, Calgary, and therefore commence business as representatives of several good firms. The capital is $20,000.

INTEREST IN N. S. PRODUCTS.

Writing from Dublin to Mr. G. De Wolfe, of Kentville, N.S., J. H. Sheridan says:

"This season we had an unusually large sale of dried fruits, raisins, currants and figs, and as I carry a considerable quantity of these fruits in season my time was fully occupied in looking after them.

"I was much interested in the report of the last conference of your association of fruit growers. As mentioned before, I believe it would be far more satisfactory to your growers to arrange to do direct business with the principal markets in Ireland, Dublin, Belfast and Cork. The two former would be the principal places. I have endeavored to interest some of your people in these markets but up to the present without success.

"So far this season good prices are being obtained for Canadian packs here, most of it coming via Liverpool. For this time of the year there is also a good supply of Oregon boxed fruit. These apples generally realize from 10s. to 15s. per box.

"I intend again taking up the matter of direct business with some of the N. S. growers for the coming season, and hope to be able to show them that it would be to their advantage to supply this market independently of the others."

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

The cheese market has gained further strength since our last report. Cables from British markets have been steadily advanced in prices and goods unsold in Canada have dwindled down in quantity so that there is not much left.

There is still a fair quantity of cheese here in store, sold, but not shipped out, however. The most liberal estimates of the entire stocks of cheese in all Canada do not place the figures above 40,000 boxes. This, with the light stocks in Great Britain, may be called insufficient for the natural demand to be expected before new goods can come on the market.

Butter, under certain conditions, will absorb water like a sponge, and as the percentage of water in butter in Great Britain is limited to 16 per cent., anything above this is considered and treated as adulterated butter, but the greed of gain will tempt people to take chances and recently a number of prosecutions were reported from the U. K. At least in one case the analyst found a sample of butter containing 50 per cent. of water, and in many cases 25 to 35 per cent. of water was found in butter which was offered in retail shops to the consumers as "pure butter."

Bulletin No. 8, issued by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, deals with the water-content of butter. This pamphlet is published by direction of the Hon. Sidney A. Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, and compounded by Frank T. Shutt, M.A., F.I.C., chemist Dominion Experimental Farms, with the assistance of Mr. C. F. Whitley, B.S.A., and Mr. A. T. Charron, M.A.

According to this bulletin water is a normal constituent of butter. Butter fat, pure and simple, could never become an article of diet: it would be unpalatable and disagreeable, and also—a matter of considerable importance—it would be uninviting in appearance.

Further, butter without salt or other preservative could not be held good for any length of time at ordinary temperatures. These preservatives do not dissolve in butter fat mechanically. Mixed with pure butter fat they could not act in keeping the butter. It is these saline materials in solution (brine) that preserve the butter. The keeping qualities of butter, therefore, are in a certain sense dependent upon the water content.

There is also, no doubt, a relationship between "body" or texture and water content. There are no data, unfortunately, that can be presented to prove this point, or rather to show the exact proportion of water that should be present for the best results, but of this fact there is ample evidence—that an excessive amount of water, no matter how well incorporated, tends to destroy this desirable property, and this is especially true when obtained by means of a high churning or washing temperature.

Quality in butter includes flavor, body or texture, appearance and similar attributes. It is a comprehensive term and may be said to result from several causes, beginning with the nature of the feed the cow receives and ending with the various details of fermentation of the cream and manufacture of the butter. Nevertheless the probabilities are that in controlling the water content we have at least one means of controlling the quality of butter, and this, apart from "keeping quality," a distinct property from quality as usually understood, and one which undoubtedly is injuriously affected by a high water content. For quality, as judged immediately after the butter is made, much depends upon the thorough incorporation of the water and the temperatures at which it is incorporated, but it is very doubtful if there is not in all cases a distinct falling off in value when the water exceeds 41 per cent., no matter how skilfully the butter is made.

Though, as we have seen, water is a necessary and legitimate constituent of butter, there is no recognized normal water content, unless one so regards the legal limits fixed in some countries as, for instance, 16 per cent. in Canada as a maximum. As butter comes from the churn, and before working, it may contain between 16 per cent. and 22 per cent. After working and draining, unless the conditions are exceedingly abnormal, it may contain between 7 per cent. and 16 per cent., according to certain factors.

According to the consensus of European authorities, well-made butter of the best quality should not contain more than 15 per cent. water, and as far as we can gather most experts favor a water content between 13 per cent. and 14 per cent. In this latter deduction the analytical data of butters made in England, Denmark, Sweden, Holland and other European countries, have been consulted.

It has been stated that water is a necessary and legitimate constituent of butter; nevertheless when present in excessive or unusual amounts it is accounted an adulterant. Water, in undue proportions, results from fraud or lack of skill in the manufacture of the butter, but in either case the butter so characterized is held to be adulterated. As we have already stated, the legal limit of water content in Canada is 16 per cent. It is, therefore, evident that as regards the desirability or possibility of making butter in Canada having a moisture content of 16 per cent. or over, there is no room for discussion. But we go further than this and say that it would be highly injudicious to approach this percentage.

Two years ago a large number of samples of creamery butter made in various parts of the Dominion were submitted to analysis, and it was found that this butter contained an average of 12.3 per cent. water. This may be considered from all points of view a very satisfactory amount, though very possibly it might be brought up to 13.5 per cent. without injury to the butter. A higher percentage would mean a larger "overrun," which, of course, implies a larger return, but the probabilities are that the benefit would not be a lasting one, for the quality of the butter would suffer and the butter trade—and particularly the export trade—would be correspondingly injured. It seems undesirable, therefore, we believe, to adopt any modification in manufacture that would result in a butter with a water content above 13.5 per cent. As an illustration of the relation between keeping quality and water content, we may instance the New Zealand butter. This butter is in excellent repute in the British markets, and the analysis of a number of samples made last year gave an average water content of 10.59 per cent.

This is a matter which is receiving considerable attention at the present time and we, consequently, take this opportunity of impressing upon those in authority in Canadian creameries that it would be extremely unwise for a present benefit to hazard the loss of our reputation. We can make first-class butter with good keeping qualities, and the output from the majority of our creameries is, and has been, of this character. Any deviation in the direction of a butter containing more water would, as we have said, lead eventually to loss and possible injury to the butter industry that it would take years to recover from.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

There is little of interest to note in the provision situation. Montreal reports steady local trade with very active inquiries for bacon. In Maritime Provinces trade keeps well to the front, with offerings reported as scarce and prices well maintained.

The situation with regard to hogs shows no improvement, the farmers' supplies at all points being sadly deficient of packers' requirements. At the present time, no doubt, the severe weather accounts somewhat for the sudden decrease in supplies, owing to difficulties of transport. There is little doubt, however, but that it will be some good while before supplies are anywhere near requirements.

The English markets have been inquirers for Canadian bacon, but prices do not move upward, although the growing approval of Canadian provisions is everywhere apparent.

There has been no change in prices of live hogs; packers are prepared to continue present high values in order to secure supplies, whilst at the same time it is evident that quality does not warrant them.

A note of the remarks in a recent report of Commercial Agent P. B. Mac-Namara, of Manchester, England, is interesting. He writes :

"The action of the Government in prohibiting the importation of American hogs into Canada, has met with general approval by the provision trade handling Canadian bacon on this side. Notwithstanding the care taken by the Canadian curers, to differentiate the American line from the genuine Canadian bacon, produced from the well fed and shapely Canadian pea-fed hog, yet in the distribution of cured meats on the English market this distinction is not always maintained, and the retail trade on this side frequently buy the spurious Canadian article, not knowing that it is only Yankee bacon packed as if it were Canadian, thereby assuming a virtue it does not possess. Canadian bacon is so much appreciated for its excellent qualities and stands so high in the opinion of the English consumer, it would be a thousand pities if its reputation should be marred by substituting inferior hogs, which the American swine undisputably are.

"The prices realized for Canadian bacon so far this year are certainly not commensurate with the high cost prices of Canadian hogs. This unfortunate unprofitable condition of things is not confined to Canadian curers, but is typical of the curing trade generally. Irish and Danish curers are alike sustaining heavy losses. There is every indication at the time of writing of a change in the situation, as the values of all kinds of cured meats are clearly appreciating."

OUR LONDON LETTER.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

The past week has been one of greater activity on the London produce markets, and sales have proved somewhat more profitable to sellers, taken altogether.

The demand for both Australian and New Zealand butter has been good, but unfortunately arrivals have been very heavy during the past few days, and some holders, in order to force matters, have given way in their prices. No less than 124,902 boxes were received, and there can be no doubt that some of this will have to be held over until next week, when receipts will probably be about a third less. Owing to its scarcity, unsalted butter is showing a difference of something like 5 or 6 shillings over salted, the price for the latter being 100 to 102 shillings for choicest, and 94 to 98 shillings for finest Australian. Quotations for New Zealand butter are several shillings higher, which is fully justified by the quality. Of course, the Australian season is now moving towards its close, while for New Zealand it is in its prime. It will not be long now before the Canadian season will be round again.

There has been a brisk demand for Canadian and New Zealand cheese this week, and transactions have been in favor of the seller at an advanced price of 1 shilling per cwt. For Canadian choicest 65 to 66 shillings are being realized ; for finest, 63 to 64 shillings. New Zealand supplies, particularly of the lower grade, are being fast consumed.

Stocks of Canadian cheese held for importers at the Surrey Commercial Docks now stand at 71,064 boxes. Of course, the agents have at their own local storehouses a few more thousand boxes, but at the same time it is evident that the demand is gradually getting the better of supply, receipts being on a somewhat limited scale.

During the past few days there has been a great deal of discussion one way and another as to the desirability of removing the embargo on Canadian cattle entering Britain. This subject was dealt with at some length in this column of The Canadian Grocer of August 4 and 11 last.

A short while back Earl Carrington, Mr. Fellowes' successor as president of the Board of Agriculture, advised those interested that he could not depart from his predecessor's decision that it was not desirable to remove the embargo. But the opponents of the obnoxious ruling have not lost heart. Although Earl Carrington received yet another deputation on this subject on the 5th March, without satisfactory result, Mr. Cairns, M.P., who is putting up a strong fight for the removal of the embargo, has made out a Parliamentary memorandum to ask Sir E. Strachey, as representing Earl Carrington, whether he will furnish a return of the number and kind of diseases reported in cattle imported from the Dominion of Canada from 1896 to the present time, and whether he can furnish the returns of the Dominion Government as to the same diseases in the herds of Canada.

It is well known that there is no disease in Canadian cattle to justify the retention of the embargo, but evidently Mr. Cairns is bent upon forcing this admission from the Board of Agriculture. That the measure is really a protective one, retained in favor of Irish farmers, is made evident by the fact that Mr. T. W. Russell and Mr. Glendinning had an interview with Earl Carrington quite recently, whereat they put up argument to the effect that the abolition of the embargo would spell ruin to Irish farmers and "prevent many of them, who have purchased their holdings, from paying up their instalments of the purchase money."

This is not the only occasion on which Greater Britain has had to suffer for Ireland's benefit. It might be said that in many districts of Scotland and in some portions of England whole crops of turnips have been absolutely wasted, because there are not sufficient cattle to consume them. Moreover, it is well known that of late years there has been a considerable falling off in the export of cattle, owing to a shortage of some 200,000 carcases. The reason is that the British master-farmer is, by the embargo, deprived of what might be termed his raw material. If he could import live Canadian stores for fattening purposes, he would not only make good his falling export business, but also give work to a very considerable body of men.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.

The provision market is steady and demand is fair. Inquiries for lard are very good. Bacon is being asked for extensively. The hog market is unchanged at $9.75 to $10 for abattoir dressed. Country dressed hogs are still very scarce.

The local stocks of cheese are pretty well cleared up. What there is, is calling for 13½c. and in some cases 14c. The average price is, however, 13½c. and in some cases dealers are selling at a quarter of a cent lower than this figure. The market on the other side, according to the latest cables, is firmer. Quotations are, colored 67s. and white 63s. 6d.

Eggs.

The egg market is firm in tone. There is a scarcity of new laid stock at present owing to the temporary cold spell. Held eggs are off the market. Most arrivals now are by freight, although some cases are still coming in by express. New laid eggs are quoted from 17c. to 17½c.

TORONTO.

Provisions.

Advances in prices of fresh beef, fresh pork and lard are the features of this week's provision market. The increased firmness in lard results from the limited operations of packers. Beef is said to be scarce ; at any rate the wholesalers are quoting from 50c to $1 a hundred higher. Pork is quoted 25c. higher for street lots. There are no car lots. Prices for cured meats are unchanged. The packers have not again advanced prices for live hogs and are still quoting $6.65 f.o.b. in the country. Receipts are light this week but are expected to be heavier next. Prices for pork products now average about 18 per cent. higher than a year ago.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The conditions reported at the several centres of wheat supply are somewhat discouraging. The sharp drop in prices referred to in our last issue has naturally made itself felt very materially. The fall in values was undoubtedly due to the realization that the universal stock of grain was very heavy.

At the end of February there were nearly twenty-one million bushels of wheat in store in Canada, contrasted with only about thirteen million bushels at the corresponding period of the previous year. This estimate only provides for the stocks of wheat at principal points throughout the Dominion, and does not include the wheat held in farmers' hands, which is known to be considerable.

A similar condition exists in the United States, farmers there having been financially strong enough to carry large quantities over from the last crop season. It is estimated that the world's stocks at the beginning of this month totalled 208,704,000 bushels, which is a matter of twenty-six million bushels in excess of the previous year's figures.

The supplies in this country and the United States alone were 112,000,000 bushels at the commencement of this month, a decrease of eight million bushels when compared with February of this year, a perfectly natural contraction, but an increase of twenty-seven million bushels over the same period last year.

* * *

European stocks have shown heavy increases over last year's holdings, and there is altogether a very fair outlook for the continuance of the present low quotations in the wheat market.

* * *

The export flour trade has shown better interest. Inquiries which have come to hand have been on lines more approaching the ruling conditions here, consequently business has been more easily negotiated. Some decent sized orders have been secured at prices which show moderate margins for dealers after taking into account the revised freight rates.

* * *

Reports from Maritime Provinces and Quebec speak of flour stocks as light, and point to a likelihood that dealers will be compelled to buy freely shortly, which simply means that the present dullness is only the postponement of demand.

FLOUR MILLS AMALGAMATE.

There is a rumor current that the Lake of the Woods Milling Co. is about to take over the Keewatin Milling Company in its entirety. The latter company has only recently organized, and it has a paid up capital of $1,000,000. The price to be paid for it is said to be something like $1,250,000. The Keewatin Milling Company is at present building a large plant at Keewatin, where are situated also the chief mills of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company. The capacity of the new plant will be 4,000 barrels a day, but should the latter company take it over the daily output would be increased to 7,000 barrels daily.

Should the amalgamation go through the Lake of the Woods Milling Company will be the largest milling company in the British domains.

Another rumor says that the Lake of the Woods people intend to develop extensively the territory about to be opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company.

WORLD'S AVAILABLE WHEAT.

The world's stocks of flour and wheat March 1, as compiled by the Chicago Daily Trade Bulletin, were the largest in more than seven years, being 208,704,000 bushels, as against 181,902,000 bushels a year ago. The increase in February was 4,935,080 bushels, as compared with an increase of 2,140,000 bushels in January, and a decrease of 2,896,000 bushels in February, 1905. American stocks are 112,000,000 bushels, a decrease of 8,000,000 bushels in February, and are 27,000,000 bushels more than last year. European stocks in store and afloat increased 12,842,000 bushels during February, and are 96,554,000 bushels, or 110,000 bushels less than last year.

FLOUR FOR JAPAN SUFFERERS.

In connection with the recent shipment of flour for the relief of famine sufferers in Japan, which was made by the Dominion Government, it is interesting to note the speed and facility with which some of our Canadian manufacturing houses can fill and ship orders on short notice. It is known that the Government gave $25,000 with which to buy the flour. The Ogilvie Flour Milling Co., Limited, received an order for 7,000 barrels, and the Lake of the Woods Milling Co. received an order for a like amount. A western house supplied the rest. The flour was put up in bags of forty-nine pounds each, and in each bag was inserted a package of Royal yeast cakes, manufactured, as everybody knows, by E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, of Toronto. E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, received at 12.15 p.m, an order for four hundred cases of their Roval yeast cakes and the same day the goods were ready for shipment within fifty minutes after the order had been telephoned in, and were shipped on the 1.5 p.m. train for the west. This company further showed their enterprise in having a circular printed in Japanese characters which showed how to obtain best results in bread-making with Royal yeast cakes. A copy of this circular was enclosed in every bag.

All of these orders were received on very short notice, but nevertheless were promptly and satisfactorily filled, proving most surelv that Canada's mercantile houses areshowing themselves fit to rank among the first in the world for promptness and business methods generally.

WINNIPEG'S GRAIN EXCHANGE CLEARING HOUSE.

The second annual meeting of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange Clearing House Association was held on the 15th inst. and was well attended. During the twelve months ending February the total amount of wheat passed through the clearing house was 176,220,000 bushels, compared with 164,550,000 in the corresponding period of the preceding year. The average monthly clearings aggregated 14,686,000 bushels, against 15,963,000 the year before, and the average daily clearances were 583,000 bushels, against 638,000.

Directors were elected as follows : Capel Tilt, F. Phillips, R. Muir, J. Fleming, W. H. McWilliams, S. P. Clark, A. Hargraft, T. Hatcherd and Donald Morrison. After the regular meeting the directors met and elected the following officers for the ensuing year : President, S. P. Clark ; vice-president, W. H. Williams ; secretary, Capel Tilt ; manager, F. O. Fowler. Though this is only the second year of the existence of that body, its importance in connection with the Winnipeg grain market has been demonstrated beyond a doubt, and it has done much towards putting the local market in the front rank of the markets of America.

SCOTS BUY 100,000 ACRES.

A departure of a highly important character, awakening widespread interest, is the acquiring by the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society of one hundred thousand acres of wheat land in Saskatchewan, with the intention of becoming a producer of its own flour. It provides another illustration of the extraordinary interest which is being aroused in the Old Land regarding the Canadian Northwest.

NOTES.

R. W. Oliver, of the R. W. Oliver Milling Company, has returned from a three weeks' trip to Manitoba and the west.

Prices are the same as last week, nor is there any change in the market. Millers are not very anxious to do business at the prices prevailing, claiming there is no money in the trade at present. Accurate quotations are hard to obtain.

The situation is anything but right just now. Stocks are very heavy; any new arrivals are placed with difficulty. There has been no decline, however, on account of the large holdings. There is little demand.

The market in the United Kingdom is not one that pleases, either, although it is bettering. Arrivals are easing off a little and this will tend towards improvement. Quotations received are in the neighborhood of 55s. c.i.f. Liverpool.

TORONTO MARKETS.

Flour.

The domestic trade is still described as slow and uninteresting. Buyers for the most part are only concerned about immediate requirements, as little confidence is expressed in present markets. Previous quotations are to a great extent merely nominal, as sellers are disposed to close business at near offers. No quotable change, however, is reported.

The market is a most unsatisfactory one. There is practically no stability to quotation. It will be seen that whilst No. 1 hard Manitoba wheat has actually declined 1c., No. 2 and 3 northern have advanced 1c. to 2c.; this is an instance of the present eccentricity of the market. Export trade has been better, though still of small volume and irregular in character. Dealers report great difficulty in securing even moderate prices.

A SUCCESSFUL TEA TRAVELER.

Tea, as a rule, be it ever so good, is not an easy article to sell. A good tea salesman must know the tea business from the bottom up, otherwise he will be beaten by the salesman of a rival house who does know it. Lyman W. Cox, one of T. H. Estabrooks', St. John, N.B., travelers, has not much to learn about Red Rose tea, which he chiefly sells. Mr. Cox commenced with Mr. Estabrooks on May 13, 1896, when he was only a boy, and has stayed with him ever since. He began at the bottom, but soon proved that he was worthy of promotion. When he grew older he showed that he still had the right stuff in him by offering to go on the road without any guarantee of salary. This was trusting everything to his ability to sell Red Rose tea—but he sold it—he has built up his connection. It has taken time, but he has succeeded. He travels over a large territory for his firm now, covering Nova Scotia, including the Sydneys, and also Prince Edward Island.

IDEAS FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS

POLITENESS ITS OWN REWARD.

How many merchants ever stop to think whether or not they are endeavoring to get the trade—which of necessity includes the good will—of the children, those "wellsprings of pleasure," as they have been called, and which they are the most of the time? How many ever pause to consider what the consequences to their business will be eight or ten years hence if they make no effort to "get solid" (to use a bit of "the kids'" slang) with the rising generation.

Some dealers there be content to let well enough alone, who take small thought for anything but the present, going along, one would imagine, on the assumption that their business will sustain itself; that it will expand without any special effort on their part to add to it, as old time customers drop out by removal from town, or dissatisfaction, or perhaps by a wearing away on the part of competitors.

Children are sensitive creatures; in many respects like unto that strange, old fashioned plant, the sensitive plant. Often without knowing how, without the ability to analyze fine psychological points, they will detect a slight where the same words or acts would be passed by unnoticed by older people. Many cases might be cited, by as many reminiscences, where, for cause, children have taken a dislike to a storekeeper and have arrived at years of discretion with an injustice rankling in their bosoms, never to be eradicated so long as they live.

Outwardly, the offended ones, after they are grown up, might bear no grudge, but the feeling would be inside just the same, and as long as there were other merchants, who had been considerate of their feelings, they would not be obliged to deal with the displeasing ones, and the result would be a loss in many dollars and cents to the unthinking, the unheeding.

Every one can recall a dealer who at one time or another did not wait on them with any too much courtesy when they were little tots "doing errands for mother." Perhaps the dealer waited on others "over their heads," or was careless about exchanging civilities—did not greet them with a smile and a pleasant passing of the time of day. Of course it might have been the case that such "grown ups" were of a grouchy disposition, any way, and never were in the habit of being overly polite to anybody. Perhaps that "offish" way was unobserved or overlooked in the merchant's manner with older people and the child divined the disagreeableness only as it touched his own tiny life, and, without going into details as to his elders, regarded only his own troubles, and then did not get over them as time went by.

An instance was recited just the other day:

It appears that a certain storekeeper, a number of years ago, was rude to a particular midget before grown people. The child never could "abide" (in ancient parlance) the man after that, and when she grew up the memory of the humiliation was never effaced, it still rankled, and not to this day does she patronize that man to whom she took an intense and ineradicable dislike as a child.

The dealer runs a retail furniture establishment, the biggest in his town.

The little girl grew to girlhood, to womanhood, then married a "likely" enough young man, who thought that everything "his Molly" did was just about perfect—and, by the way, is of "the same opinion still," although they have been married some fifteen years!

At first the couple practiced the very strictest of economy—verging really on parsimony—because they wanted to be "forehanded."

Then they branched out more, but always living within their income and putting by the rest in healthy investments and in the bank where they could get hold of it in a jiffy if the proverbial rainy day dropped down its torrents without any warning.

When this thrifty couple bought a nice house it called for better furniture than they had owned in the cosy nest which before this they had rented. So their first possessions—the poor little cheap stuff they had "got along with"—were trundled off and things of good quality replaced them.

When it came to refurnishing did they fit up their new quarters with supplies from the stock of the man who had been surly to the lady when she was a little maid?

No need to put the question. The furniture man lost an order amounting to a thousand dollars. And goodness knows how many more fine orders he has lost in his business career if other children he has treated with incivility have held a grievance as did the one in the above chronicle!

"This," you will say, "happened in the furniture trade."

Yes, but a groceryman is exactly as apt to be an Old Granny Grumpsy as the dealer just "raked over the coals." Naturally, the eatables man cannot lose so much in a lump sum as the other merchant, but yet the amount aggregates a tidy sum in a year, and when you count up the gastronomic footings for fifteen years lost from a similar household it is not the most difficult task in the world to come to the conclusion that affability in the traffic places of earth is an asset not to me lightly thrown away.

ALWAYS CARRY IT THROUGH.

There is no luck, for all practical purposes, to him who is not striving and whose senses are not all eagerly attent. What are called accidental discoveries are almost invariably made by those who are looking for something. A man incurs about as much risk of being struck by lightning as by accidental luck.

There is, perhaps, a seeming element of luck in the amount of success which crowns the efforts of different men, but even here it will usually be found that the sagacity with which the efforts are directed and the energy with which they are prosecuted measure pretty accurately the luck contained in the results achieved. Apparent exceptions will be found to relate almost wholly to single undertakings, while in the long run the rule will hold good.

Two pearl divers, equally expert, dive together and work with equal energy. One brings up a pearl, while the other returns empty handed. But let both persevere, and at the end of five, ten or twenty years it will be found they have succeeded almost in exact proportion to their skill and industry.

Stick to the thing and carry it through, says Success. Believe you were made for the place you fill, and that no one else can fill it as well. Put forth your whole energy. Be awake—electrify yourself—go forth to the task. Only once learn to carry a thing through in all its completeness and proportion, and you will become a hero. You will think better of yourself. Others will think better of you. The world in its very heart admires the stern, determined doer.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

The general situation in fruit has been uninteresting. Montreal reports a measure of activity, the main centre of attraction being oranges. At St. John, N.B., and other eastern points, trade has been brisk with prices all around holding firm. At Toronto and more western points no great activity has been manifest.

The export of apples has been well maintained and prices continue to rule high, whilst in domestic trade all good quality is in active demand and command good figures.

The indications of reports to hand are that both California and European lemons are at high values. At recent sales in New York some Mediterranean sold at quite high prices, whilst California fruit commanded even higher prices still. There are clear indications that point to a high lemon market as the season advances.

The first arrivals of Havana pineapples sold well at the New York sales. About 500 crates of stock, good quality, showing considerable color, were sold. The market was very high. This was really the inaugural auction sale of the 1906 Havana season, and the fruit was generally pronounced by the trade to be unusually good in point of quality for this early stage.

Advices received from California state that favorable weather conditions, supplementing the high prices paid last Fall are expected to stimulate the production of beans in California this year. The Santa Barbara and Ventura farmers will give the usual acreage to this staple crop and possibly a little more, while a much larger acreage will be planted to limas in Los Angeles and Orange counties.

THE BANANA TAX.

A very hot question among fruit men at present is whether or not duty is to be paid on bananas coming into Canada. Certain Montreal fruit firms, including some of the best in the city, recently drew up a memorial which they sent to the Tariff Commission in Ottawa. This memorial is the cause of much discussion on all sides. It points out to the commissioners that bananas are coming into Canada entirely free of duty while oranges, peaches, pears, etc., are all taxed very heavily. It is represented therein that a fair duty to levy upon bananas would be ½c. per pound, which would be somewhere about twenty-five to thirty-five cents a bunch, or in the neighborhood of one hundred dollars a car. This duty should be levied, says the memorial, upon all bananas coming from the United States, Central America and other points not under the British flag. Such as came from Jamaica should be admitted into the country under a preferential tariff, the duty being 50 per cent. of ½c. per pound, or just one-half of what fruit from the other points should have to pay in duty. The memorial further requests that the duty on peaches, pears and certain other Californian fruits should be lowered considerably.

The item taxing bananas is giving rise to much discussion all around. It is hard to say what the Commission will do, but in all probability some sort of a tax will be imposed ; whether it be the one proposed in the memorial or a lower one remains to be seen. The trade is divided in opinion.

One party is very much against the imposing of any tax at all. Bananas, they say, are the poor man's fruit. It is a fruit which does not compete with Canadian fruits. Therefore, they say, why is protection required ?

What the One Side Says.

A Montreal fruit merchant who is among those who wish the tax to be imposed said :

"We have sent a memorial to Ottawa, to the Tariff Commission, requesting that a duty be imposed upon all bananas coming into Canada. What we proposed as a reasonable duty was ½c. per pound. This would mean from twenty-five to thirty-five cents duty on each bunch, or in the neighborhood of one hundred dollars a car. We have also suggested in the memorial that all bananas coming from Jamaica by British steamer to Canada be given a preference of 50 per cent. With this duty, bananas would be on the same footing as other fruits coming into Canada, such as oranges.

"As it is, bananas are coming into the country absolutely free. If other southern fruits are taxed, it is only just that bananas also should be taxed. When the present tariff was drawn up about thirty-four years ago, the banana trade was nothing when compared to what it is to-day. It was then insignificant. It was so small that the Government did not think of it, and consequently no tax was imposed upon such as were imported, and ever since bananas have been coming into Canada without paying any duty.

"Then in the Summer months," he continued, "Canada is used as a dumping ground. It is a well known fact that the Canadian banana trade is controlled by a certain trust in the United States. Rather than break the price in the New York market, whereby they might lose thousands of dollars, they ship car after carload of goods into Canada with instructions to dealers to 'sell them for what you can get.' This same trust does not permit any firm buying from it to buy from another house ; if a dealer should purchase from a firm outside the trust he is at once struck off their lists, and thereafter finds it impossible to obtain bananas from them. This sort of business is against the laws of the country. Fruit merchants cannot say when they shall have bananas," said he, in concluding ; "they must take them when the trust sees fit to send them."

What the Other Side Says.

When seen by a Canadian Grocer representative regarding the memorial imposing a tax upon bananas, a large dealer in fruits who sided with those who did not wish the tax to be levied was very strong in his views upon the matter.

"Why should there be any duty on bananas?" he asked. "They do not compete with Canadian grown fruit. They are the poor man's fruit. They are the only fruit which the general public can buy at a reasonable price. The prohibitive prices of oranges and apples makes it impossible for the average working man to buy these, while the price of bananas always makes them easily obtainable. If the welfare of the country and the people is regarded the tax will not even be considered," said he. "It is not the trade who will suffer most. The consumer will have to pay the advance which would be necessitated by the imposing of such a tax.

"Canada is not used as a dumping ground. The bananas which come in here are ordered. We never have any trouble with the concern from whom we buy. They deal with us in a business-like manner. As to buying from other firms, there are none who can supply first-class goods at a reasonable price.

"The banana trade is one of the best branches of the fruit industry, and to impose the proposed duty would be to practically kill it."

MONTREAL MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Very good business has been done in fruits this week. The demand has been good, especially for oranges. A wire from California quotes a rise of 40c. per crate on navels. The advance has not affected local markets yet, but it is probable that there will be a proportionate advance here shortly. Apples have had a fair sale at prices ranging from $4.50 to $6.

The market as a whole is quiet at present. Potatoes are steady. A few inquiries have been received from the west already, and it looks as if they were pretty nearly cleaned up out there. It is expected that shipments will be made to western points in the course of a week. Celery, spinach, and lettuce are selling very well. The new arrivals seen on the list this week are not in very great demand on account of the high prices asked. Cucumbers and turnips are slow.

Green Fruits.

The fruit trade this week is nearly devoid of feature. Refrigeration charges have not yet gone on oranges, but shipments are now leaving California iced, and it is stated positively that the extra 25c. a box will go on next week. Valencia oranges are quoted 25c. higher than a week ago. California navels and lemons are firm at last week's quotations and the tendency is upward. Bananas are firm at about last week's prices. Some Jamaica 8s are offering at $1.25 to $1.40. Strawberries are down 5c. to 10c. a quart box. Pines are quoted somewhat higher, from $5 to $6. Grape fruit is getting scarce and is higher at $6 to $7.50. Cranberries are out of the market. The marmalade oranges have been cleaned up early and the season is practically over.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

GET READY FOR FIRST OF APRIL.

The first of April will soon be here, and many lines of "fool" goods will be prominently before the public.

Wholesale confectioners are busy preparing many freaks of this character. A leading line with one prominent manufacturer will be "fool" chocolates filled with cotton wool instead of cream.

Quite a variety of lines are being prepared by the leading makers—candies filled with pepper, soap and other obnoxious compositions, anything and everything which is likely to produce amusement on that eventful day.

Grocers should be alive to this; the stocking of such goods in advance, and then bringing them right to the front in good bold display is one of the features which mark the up-to-date dealer. In no way can the grocer call attention to his store more effectually at the present time than with this confectionery.

It seems very difficult for many grocers to grasp the fact, that the time has arrived when the storekeeper must count many lines which at one time were considered foreign to the grocer, as now regular staple goods. This is particularly so with confectionery, and many grocers by not doing so are missing an excellent opportunity.

THE CONSUMPTION OF MACARONI

America, more particularly the United States, has a large appetite for macaroni, for 4,000,000 boxes are imported into the United States annually. This is the macaroni most used by both native Americans and Italian residents, not because it is the best, but because it is the cheapest imported and because it comes in the greatest variety of forms. There are fully sixty forms of Neapolitan macaroni. Americans know and use only a few of these. Italian residents most of the three score.

The niceties of macaroni eating are really a sealed mystery to most people. The Italian residents use in Winter and Spring the pastina, or small paste, in forms suitable for mixing with soup. In hot weather they use more commonly the pasta lunga. All the year round they use the forms known as spaghetti, macarancelli and perciatelli. The soup pastes are not only in the familiar alphabetic form, but in a dozen others, as anchors, stars, little seeds and the like. The retailer has but to indicate his wish to the factory and supply the perforated plate in order to get any new or strange form made. The shell-like soup paste called chiglie is made by hand in Italy, but it sells for very little more than the machine made forms.

American macaroni most often imitates the forms of the Genoese. An expert in macaroni says that the best in America is made in Texas from Nebraska Winter wheat. There are scores, and perhaps hundreds of small macaroni factories in the Italian quarters of American cities, and there are besides a few large factories where macaroni is made commercially on a large scale.

THE BISCUIT OPPORTUNITY.

With the advent of the individual package, and the perfection to which the tin canister has been brought, the manufacturer of biscuits and cakes has been able to find full scope for his genius. The dainty and attractive confection can now be placed in the hands of the public in as perfect condition as when it came fresh from the bakers' oven, and almost regardless of distance.

The effect of this on the average housewife has been what one might have imagined. She is no longer under compulsion to experiment with home made dainties when in a hurry, or when overcrowded with work. The nearby grocery can supply, if the proprietor is up-to-date, a most enticing variety of fancy biscuits, which in appearance, daintiness and healthfulness are in nine cases out of ten away ahead of the domestic product.

Most housewives are acquainted with these facts and are accordingly generous buyers of fancy confections from the grocer, but the trade could be much extended by a little effort on the part of the grocer. The thing itself is its own best advertisement. If the grocer takes the trouble to locate his fancy biscuit department where it will be seen by every person who enters the store he will find a large increase in his sales.

With their glass fronts these handsome tin boxes show forth their sweet contents to very great advantage, and there are few women who looking around for "something nice for tea" are able to see such a display as this without placing an order.

It is not enough, however, in order to get the best results merely to have these biscuits on exhibition, a hint, a suggestion from the salesman will often add the last straw to the customer's determination to invest.

This is a department that will repay attention.

"You get quality in a cigar in proportion to the quality of the maker."—J. Bruce Payne.

Conscientious men are conscientious in business, and though they are scarce, their influence is felt.

There is no business where "rut" methods are so apt to gain the mastery as in cigar-making. A manufacturer runs short of Havana and for expediency sake orders a supply of tobacco from a New York jobbing house. Then he gets into the way of "saving freight" but he forgets to discontinue calling the tobacco Havana and he forgets to bring the price down a bit.

"Assume a virtue if you have it not!" is poor consolation for the smoker. He pays for the "virtue" but he only smokes the "assumption."

The policy I follow in

Pebble and Pharaoh Cigars

is "should there be a shortage of 'right-kind' tobacco see that there is also a shortage of 'right-kind cigars.'" The "filling-up" policy will not go in my factory.

That is the reason I journey to Cuba every year to get my Fillers. That is the reason I keep in touch with the Holland growers, so that my Wrappers will always materialize. Important matters demand personal attention always.

Seeing that the Pebble sells at 5c. and the Pharaoh at 10c., it is patent that neither the grocer nor the smoker is charged for the Payne Principle. That principle is beyond price.

This is not all! Yet I think this is enough to make any grocer feel the need of keeping in touch with the man who doesn't do things.

If I were a grocer I would stock up the Pebble and Pharaoh Cigars because I would know that if they didn't sell I could go back on Payne.

J. BRUCE PAYNE, LIMITED, Mnfrs., - Granby, Que.

Can Your Tobacco Trade Stand the Wind of Competition?

Yes, Sir, if you are attached to T. & B. you must have noticed what stubborn buyers those T. & B. fellows are. You cannot change their beliefs by "just as good" or "No! but I have —— tobacco" reasoning.

Some makers say T. & B. smokers are tobacco bigots. The charge is that they tie themselves up to One Tobacco.

But you see the T. & B. man's conviction runs deep. He perhaps got the cue from an associate or perhaps from his father, so there is a sort of heirloom influence about it.

T. & B. grocers are enthusiastic. No wonder! Where T. & B. goes, business goes, and there are no windy days.

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

POSSIBILITIES OF TOBACCO DEPARTMENT.

One of the most important qualities for the grocer to cultivate is the ability to detect the opportunity when it arises. The average man floats through the world, and lets circumstances carry him along, but the up-to-date grocer seizes every opportunity that arises and quickly uses it for the making of capital. Grocers have been known to lay hold of an apparently insignificant department and bring it so to the front that it ultimately became one of the store's principal features, and this all because they saw an opportunity when it arose.

Probably no grocer has missed his opportunity in any line so much as in the tobacco department, and yet an instance is in evidence where a grocer whose store was on a side street and an unimportant location, saw an opportunity to push his line of tobacco, etc. He immediately set himself to discover what the requirements of his locality really were, and concentrated his attention on these particular lines, with the result that he quickly secured a very fine connection. That man now occupies one of the best city positions.

Nothing goes down so successfully with a customer as the impression that the dealer is taking a special interest in his requirements. When once that idea gains headway the path of the dealer is an easy one. If after this he is careful never to belie that confidence, he will find opposition may come and go, but he has a foundation which cannot be assailed. There is no use in running a tobacco department in a half-hearted manner. Anything worth doing at all is worth doing well; if, therefore, it is worth retaining, make it a real live part of your stock. A man may hesitate putting in a completely new line of goods, but when he has made up his mind and bought his stock, there is only one thing to do, and that is to push the stock for all it is worth.

This applies to no department to as great a degree as it does to the tobacco stock. In this, constant display is absolutely necessary. The department must be kept in evidence, it must show signs of life, it must look as if something was really moving. If you have to hunt around for your stock when a man asks for tobacco it is a certainty that you don't sell to many. A customer is quick to notice little things like that, and he will not patronize a store that is apparently shunned by others.

Keep the stock fresh and attractive. It is well worth while. A department run on the right principles will soon prove its right to existence. But no matter how big the store, no merchant can afford to have a dead department. Its condition is too lively to be infectious. Now is a good time to infuse life into it.

HOW TOBACCO IS SPECKLED.

The prospective purchaser of a box of cigars complained to the Broadway tobacconist that they lacked the little specks which are supposed to indicate a cigar's excellence.

"That notion is pretty generally done away with," laughed the dealer. "A few years ago the demand for 'speckled' cigars became so great that some manufacturers sprinkled acid on them to get the desired effect. Few took the trouble to explain just how the specks were naturally caused. As an indication of quality of a cigar, the specks are just about as valuable as the freckles on a man's nose are as an indication of his character and ability.

"In warmer climates—say, in Cuba—a sudden shower comes up. There is a heavy downpour of rain, and a few minutes later the sun is shining fiercely again. The tobacco plants are dotted with big rain drops, some large as pearls. These drops become burning-glasses in the sunlight. The same as real lenses, they concentrate the sun's heat, and on the leaf beneath them the little specks that you venerate are burned."—New York Press.

TOBACCO NOTES.

The Edmonton cigar factory has removed to new quarters on the ground floor of the Masonic building on Second street.

A well-known Quebec tobacco merchant was re-elected alderman at the recent elections held in that city, in the person of Mr. H. D. Barry. He has been engaged in this business for many years. Mr. Barry has served the public on the city council since 1902.

GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

KEEP UP-TO-DATE.

Following on from last week's suggestions, it would be well in your advertising to give prominence to fruit and vegetables for a while yet. Something fresh will be arriving at regular intervals. For instance, just now rhubarb would be a good line to take up, at the same time not forgetting such ready sellers as apples and oranges.

Keep your eye on the primal market reports and let your ads speak suggestively—in a "newsy" way. This will help to fix public attention on your store which, of course, is the aim of your advertising. The accompanying ad may give you an idea to follow.

Crawford & McCullough, Brampton, Ontario, send for review a large circular headed "A Disaster Preventing Ten Days' Sale."

A great many items appear on the circular with old and new prices, but the merchants inform their readers that even this great list does not represent all the goods that will be sold regardless of cost or profit.

While the circular itself is unwieldy, the matter is well put together and the salutary lines are strongly worded. Any customer coming via a railway station in the counties of Peel and Halton, and purchasing twenty-five dollars' worth of goods during the ten days' sale, had his or her return fare paid. Crawford & McCullough might tell us if the rebate system proved successful.

W. C. Latimer, Beaverton, also ran a ten days' sale on a large scale and made a feature of issuing an additional announcement each week.

* * *

The latter is a commendable point, as it serves to keep up interest in the sale and at the same time helps to bring in new patrons.

STORE PAPERS.

Store papers—you have all seen them, good, bad and indifferent. And just because a little below par, very often results fail to come up to expectations. Sometimes this below par condition is due to the printer, more often to the man who stands sponsor as publisher. But no matter to whom or what due, careful observance of the hints and suggestions to follow will effect a change for the better.

Store papers are issued for two purposes—to support newspapers and supplementary advertising, or to furnish all the advertising. We find dealers making good use of store papers who use them exclusively, and we find dealers using them who also use newspaper space to good advantage. Of those who use them exclusively, we find dealers who do business in towns having no daily or weekly papers, and we find some whose places of business are located from the main thoroughfares, with the consequence that the purchase of space in newspapers would necessitate the paying for much waste circulation.

One reason for failure is given in the following idea :

A dealer told the writer, "I issued a store paper once a year for several years, used good paper, had cuts, nice printing, and listed many of my goods. Didn't pay, though, so have given it up. I don't believe advertising pays anyway."

He issued his paper once a year, and because his annual plunge did not pay, did not land him in the Rockefeller class, he says store papers do not pay—that advertising does not pay. Well, well ! Too bad ! Yet this man's experience furnishes a vital reason why some store papers do not bring the much wanted results. Just put it down as an axiom that no advertising will succeed that is not issued frequently as well as regularly. Putting out one edition annually may be regular, even persistent if carried on for years—but it cannot be expected to pay. Store papers, like other advertising, must be kept before the public, and the issuing of an annual edition falls far short of filling this requirement. To publish less than twelve numbers a year means to take good-sized chances.

The second reason for failure lies often in the poor paper, composition, and press work. Many advertisers fail miserably in this respect. They will advertise all kinds of bargains, offer to sacrifice all kinds of profits, but evidently weaken when it comes to pay for presentable advertising literature.

To users of this kind of matter, nothing can be said except, "Brace up." Carry the thing through on a business-like basis. Do the job right while you are about it. Is not a person likely to question your statements, who receives your announcements on a "rag of a paper" ? Are not all persons justified in thinking that a man who will skimp a few dollars on a printing bill would also feel a tightening of the heart and purse strings when contemplating the cutting of profits ? Would you expect a right royal welcome after receiving a shabby invitation ?

3. Many store papers fail to give definite information. Their contents consist of stale jokes, recipes of no particular value, and stories of unquestionably poor quality. Frequently such papers are issued by a syndicate—for the benefit of everybody except the local dealer. You will find listed, in such papers, various advertisements of some medical or other manufacturing house—and these houses or concerns are the only ones to derive any benefit whatever. And though the purchase of a stipulated number of copies brought with it the exclusive agency for the remedy or other thing, the value received would be problematical. Sooner or later would occur some kind of falling out with this concern. Possibly the price would be raised, a favorite pastime, you would object—and lo !—your competitor gets the line. Then where would you find yourself ? Who would get the benefit of the advertising ? Who would have paid for it ? Draw the line on syndicate newspapers containing advertising of general advertisers. You will make no mistake in doing so.

4. A store paper should be a paper. It should, therefore, contain news of some kind, preferably news of local interest, if issued where no daily or weekly publications are published. If such are published, the choosing should lie between good bits of humor, popular poetry, and choice selections from literature, something in a light vein. But above all, a store paper should contain store news, something, strange to say, many merchants fail to recognize, probably because not possessing the newspaper instinct, and for the reason that they do not know good advertising when they see it.

5. Store news means the elimination of cut and dried lists of merchandise and the substitution therefor of items like the placing of a particularly large order, its sale, and method of sale ; the receipt of an exceptional lot of this or that ; of a purchase at an actual bargain price, and the division of the good thing with the public; the hiring of new clerks; opening of new departments, better facilities, etc.—all told in the breeziest style at one's command.

6. Goods advertised should be described in all cases except in the case of well advertised general lines like package foods; etc. A cut in price of these will talk a great deal louder than any amount of description. But—let the description be truthful.

7. Give prices. A store paper, like an advertisement, without prices, is like a magnet demagnetized—no pull to it. And if you are talking bargains, please be kind enough to have your offering bargains. Stick the knife right into the prices. A dealer advertises ten per cent. off horse blankets. That is N.G. — no good—nothing to it. What's ten per cent. on a horse blanket?

8. Be kind enough to tell people where you live. Give the address. Furthermore, do not advertise to-day as "Bull, the Shoe Man," and to-morrow as "John D. Bull." Stick to one name.

9. Never publish hits on the Irish, Dutch, or Jews, etc. They may seem funny—yes, may be funny, but the people of the nationality it hits will feel sore. You cannot afford to have anybody sore on you. Show yourself the possesser of the finer feelings. Respect the feelings of all. It will pay you well.

10. The judicious use of premiums is a vital factor in successful merchandizing. Premiums should be such as will appeal to the greatest number. They should not only be good value but should also look it. This may seem a distinction without a difference, but there is a difference. A local store once had a line of bric brac. It was first-class "stuff," but the people could not see the value. Consequence—no sales.

11. Premiums offer the double-edged sword of large value at small cost. A purchaser will believe a clock to be worth ten dollars, and consider it good value as a reduction in price, who would look with suspicion on a ten dollar cut. The clock costs five dollars. Which is better, ten dollars off in cash or an expenditure of five dollars for a clock? Hard question, isn't it—yet a large per cent. of the merchants of the country are "not onto their jobs."

12. If, whilst reading your trade papers, you should come across an item telling of a good store paper put out by some other merchant, sit right down and send for it. Inclose postage for reply, as a matter of courtesy. You may be able to learn something from the other.

13. But if you "lift" something bodily, kindly give credit. Do not be a pirate.

14. Last, but not least, when you see suggestions in the various papers you read for getting out good store papers, try the suggestions. That is what you are paying for—the information you get. Use it. Act. Stop your dreaming. Do more than read. The difference in results will prove ample compensation for your trouble.—F. G. K. in Brains.

Large Soap Sales.

Don't try to sell soaps that are unknown—it's hard work and unprofitable labor.

The best selling soap is the best known soap and the best known soap is the one which is advertised the most extensively and is at the same time absolutely pure and of high quality.

Baby's Own Soap

is the most extensively advertised Soap in Canada—it is absolutely pure and is known throughout Canada as the best Soap for the Nursery, Toilet and the Bath because of its rare quality. It is not surprising that it sells easily and in very large quantities. You cannot afford to let your customers go elsewhere to buy Baby's Own Soap.

Re Standard Peas, No. 4 Size

Dear Sir,—

This week we want to speak briefly about OUR Standard Peas, No. 4 Size, which are, as you are aware, our cheapest priced Peas.

Our Standard Peas are grown from carefully selected Seed. We guarantee that all of our Peas are of the sweet variety, and none of them of the common field variety. You will also find our Standard Peas sweet and tender.

We aim in packing our Standard Peas, as well as the higher grades, to produce an article which when opened will present a bright, clear liquor, Peas evenly graded, uniform in color, tender, sweet and attractive in appearance.

Our processors have had nearly a quarter of a century's experience in the packing of Peas, and our Peas are therefore free from any liability of being old, and are invariably canned the same day as picked, thus ensuring a tenderness which is lacking in Peas canned a day or so after they are picked, as often happens with the packs of inexperienced processors.

Even in season our canned Peas are to be preferred to fresh Peas purchased on the market, as the latter are generally a day or two old and are thus tough, and without flavor, whereas our Peas are grown in the immediate neighborhood of factories, and are packed within a few hours of picking.

Our Peas are thoroughly sterilized, and are also for this reason preferable to fresh Peas.

Peas were never cheaper in price or better in quality than at present. You should point out to your customers the advisability of laying in stocks now for future use. Compare present prices with a year or so back.

Do not forget our brands, viz.: ''Aylmer'', ''Log Cabin'', ''Horseshoe'', ''Auto'', ''Little Chief'', ''Lynnvalley'', ''Kent'', ''Maple Leaf'', ''Lion'', ''Thistle'', ''Grand River'' and ''White Rose''.

Yours respectfully,

N.B.—Our Motto is ''Quality''.

Ceylon Tea. (Green or black)

"Time passes and customs change."

In the days of long ago—in grandfather's day — the sturdy housewife brewed her family beer, full, clear and sparkling, and good judges too they were of it, we are told. To-day the dainty housewife brews her Ceylon Tea, fragrant, rich and mellow, straight from the "Sunny Isle."

Ceylon Tea has no equal. It stands absolutely alone for quality and excellence. A perfect natural green leaf.

It talks satisfaction and spells profit.

The Man Behind the Counter

is the one we recognize. We want the co-operation of the retail clerks throughout the country in extending and increasing the sale of the great Fairbank specialties:

Gold Dust Washing Powder
Fairy Soap, Copco Soap
Fairbank's Glycerine-Tar Soap
Fairbank's Scouring Soap
Fairbank's Sanitary Soap

We are willing and anxious to acknowledge the service they can render us by rewarding them in direct proportion to the interest they display in pushing these goods. Our method of rewarding is "The Fairbank Plan," which is a system of couponing our specialties in such a manner that the coupons can be easily removed when the goods are sold, and giving for these coupons useful articles, the best that money can buy. Our whole aim is to give the clerks the best value we can secure.

The products embraced in "The Fairbank Plan" are easily sold because they are the best value and give the greatest satisfaction to the consumer. They increase the trade of the store and "The Fairbank Plan" rewards the dealer or his clerks for selling them.

Send for a copy of "The Fairbank Plan" illustrated premium list. It will pay you.
